Speculation About Return Of Bri-British Columbia's Finance Ministish Ambassador To Germany

LONDON, April 25: (CP)-Despite the statement of Prime Min-Neville Chamberlain that no inusual significance is to be attached to the return of Sir Neville! Henderson, British ambassador, to Berlin, diplomatic quarters are still speculating as to a motive for the action.

Some suggest that Henderson may have been instructed to warn Chancellor Adolf Hitler that Great Britain may invoke compulsory military service unless he gives a satisfactory answer to the peace proposal of President Franklin D. Roosevelt of the United States.

Some form of compulsory national service, perhaps in relatively limited measure at first, is indeed reliably understood to have beer agreed upon by the British government with the intention of making the decision known before Hitler answers Roosevelt on Friday. The whole book is a warning to English-, men and through them to the rest of the world of the fate; that awaits them if they do not awaken to their danger and face the facts. Since a year ago there have been many editions of the book and the warning seems to have had! its desired effect. The writer has visited every European country except Spain and is a very keen observer of events.

In one chapter Reed tells of a visit to Russia where he got off the beaten track. He says: "And then looking farther afield, I saw the universal sign of the terrorist, state, whether its name be Germany, Russia or whatnot. Barbed wire palisades, corner towers with machine guns and sentries. Within, nameless men, lost to the world, imprisoned without trial by the secret police. The concentration camp, the political prisoners. In Germany the FURNITURE for sale-Fine solid concentration camps held tens of thousands, in this country (Russia) hundreds of thousands. This was the thing! that I detested in every country where I found it, this cruelty, this inhumanity, this injustice, and this was the FOR SALE - A few American reason that, whatever else I found to admire in them, and stamps. Daily News. whatever else I found to criticise in other countries, I al-1 ways came ack with relief to those European countries where so much of reason and right at least yet remained that men cannot be imprisoned or killed without trial."

AGE OF RETROGRESSION

The writer of "Insanity Fair" occasionally ruminates and philosophizes on the various things he sees and hears. He criticizes English statesmen very severely, never sparing his own people because of sentiment. He also does not spare any country where he sees things he does not like. He is hard on those who pretend to be saving the world FOUND Leather dog leash. Ownfrom Bolshevism saying that they have no intention of trying to save anybody from anything. Their only aim is territory and power. It has nothing to do with patriot-! ism but everything to do with greed. He says: "In many respects you are already back in the dark ages. In many countries you have no individual rights, only the right to be a member of one big mutual admiration society, one of millions of men all pulling on the Hitler or Mussolini rope and singing, like sailors the old sea chanty "Oh what a wonderful man! Oh, what a wonderful man!" You are not allowed to know what is happening either in your own or other countries. You have to be seen and not heard. You have to do what you are told and die when you are told. "Insanity Fair" is a book that tends to broaden the horizon of anyone who may read it.

DOUSES YOUR FIRE

· You can't shine at work or play if you're troubled with constipation. And common constipation is not a necessary evil. Too little bulk in your diet often causes it. Foods like meat, bread and potatoes do not form the "bulky" mass the bowels need for regular movements. They become lazy. Eat Kellogg's ALL-BRAN, a crisp, delightful cereal. It helps to supply the "bulk" you need. And it is especially rich in Nature's intestinal tonic, Vitamin B1. Try this sensible routine: Eat
