Germans Fail In Blow On Forth

RAIDS ARE NUMEROUS

But Every German Attempt On French Outposts Driven Back With Automatic Fire

PARIS, Dec. 7. (CP)—Along a broad section of the western front from west of the Vosges Mountains to the Moselle River, numerous German raiding parties during the night crossed "No Man's Land" in a series of sharp raids on French outposts. The enemy was forced to retire by French automatic weapons.

There were also artillery exchanges today and signs were not lacking that the Germans were planning a large scale offensive in the Luxembourg area.

NAZI SUB GIVES UP

Observer Describes Depth Bomb Attack and Rescue of U-Boat Crew

LONDON, Dec. 7. (CP)—An eyewitness aboard a British destroyer tells of the attack on a German submarine by depth bombs and the U-boat's coming to the surface to surrender.

The British ships were seeking the German underwater craft in northern waters when reports received told of an enemy U-boat headed to the south. The destroyer raced to the spot and began to quarter the sea on a prearranged plan.

Guns were manned, depth charges ready. Suddenly a flag hoisted by one destroyer indicated the scent had been picked up. Depth charges after depth charges were dropped. The detonations of those massive cannisters about the size of dustbins seemed to squeeze the air. They shook the ships from which they were projected and raised huge mushroom-shaped hummocks of water which burst upwards in a great spout of spray tinged grey by the high explosive.

Then the attack was suspended and watch kept for the U-boats or tell-tale patches of oil. Nothing was sighted. The attack was renewed. Finally a submarine broke surface bow first. The compressed air was leaking. There was only enough pressure left to blow the tanks and come to the surface to give the crew a chance for their lives. This the commander decided, to do. The sub's stern was still submerged when the conning tower opened and men began to tumble up on deck.

It was a case of surrender. Some of the U-boat's crew were leaping overboard. Others held up their hands, destroyers approached, lowered boats and rescued the entire crew.

The submarine flung her bows vertically in the air and sank stern first in a flurry of whitened water and an ever-widening patch of iridescent oil.

Air Force Flies Over Navy Bases

Another Successful Reconnaissance Flight by Royal Air Force Yesterday

LONDON, Dec. 7. (CP)—Royal Air Force planes made another successful reconnaissance flight yesterday over Kiel, Cuxhaven, Hamburg, Brunsbuettel and other northern Germany naval bases in Schleswig-Holstein. German charges that the British planes flew over Denmark were denied by the air ministry. German reports said the Britons were driven off by anti-aircraft fire.

INVESTED BY THE KING

Cadets of the Air Defence Corps admire the Distinguished Flying medal which was personally awarded to Sergeant William V. Willets in recognition of his gallantry in flying operations against the enemy. Sergeant Willets was a member of a bombing crew which was attacked by German planes. With the pilot killed, Willets took over the controls and landed the bomber and its crew safely. The King presented him with the medal personally.

Fascist Grand Council In Session—Alliance With Hungary—May Draw In Britain and France

ROME, Dec. 7. (CP)—An Italian move to stop any Russian drive in southeastern Europe is believed imminent as the Fascist Grand Council prepared today to meet with Premier Benito Mussolini. Observers suggested a military alliance between Italy and Hungary might emerge. This is considered as a warning to Russia which has intimidated Roumania that she should fall in line with Soviet demands or be prepared to take the consequences.

If Russian aggression extends to the Balkans, Great Britain and France might be drawn into war against the Soviet in view of their pledges to support Roumania.

PROMINENT IN MINING

Spencer Penrose, Who Made Fortune at Cripple Creek, Dies At Age of Seventy-one

COLORADO SPRINGS, Dec. 7. (CP)—Spencer Penrose, aged 71, who made a fortune from mining in the Cripple Creek gold rush, is dead here.

Penrose came out of the Colorado gold fields at the turn of the century with a fortune and a resolve to enjoy life.

Mining deals in the early days of the Cripple Creek boom gave him his financial start; successful operation of copper companies balanced his wealth. With cost no handicap, he built an elaborate playground at Broadmoor, six miles from Colorado Springs and for more than a generation let neither advancing age nor the responsibilities of his varied financial interests interfere with gaiety.

In 1937, on a promontory of Cheyenne Mountain, he built the "Shrine of the Sun," as a memorial to Will Rogers, the cowboy laugh-maker. Within the shrine is a crypt in

Rare Sea Monster Shot at Kasaan—Elephant Seal With Flexible Snout from Tropics

KASAAN, Alaska, December 7.—Strengthening the theory that kump and other tropical fish are invading Alaska waters, a huge sea elephant or elephant seal, hitherto found only off the coast of Mexico and occasionally in southern California waters, was recently towed to the beach at Kasaan after being shot by natives. They are using it for trap bait.

Natives were amazed at seeing the unusual animal, which was identified by members of the forest service, aboard the Forester. The specimen bore mute evidence of a previous encounter with a formidable enemy: an old scar of immense size on its left side showing where a large piece of flesh had been torn out.

LONDON, Dec. 7. (CP)—The British government received endorsement from Parliament late Wednesday on its war policy. By a vote of 303 to 125 a Labor want of confidence motion was rejected. Secretary for the Dominions Anthony Eden told Parliament that soldiers from Canada, Australia and New Zealand would be shortly arriving in England for overseas service. Capt. Four Neutral Vessels Are Victims Of German Torpedoes or Mines

LONDON, Dec. 7. (CP)—Since yesterday there have been further victims of Nazi torpedoes and mines in the war at sea. Four ships of neutral nations are reported lost.

The Greek steamship Paralos, 3900 tons, with cargo of German coal, was sunk in the English Channel not far from the Thames estuary. She is believed to have been the victim of a mine. Twenty-two members of the crew were picked up and three were lost.

The Norwegian steamship Primula was sunk in an explosion and eight were drowned.

DRIVE OFF NAZI RAID IN PLANES

Germans Headed Off On Projected Visit to Firth of Forth—New British Device for Downing Aircraft

LONDON, Dec. 7. (CP)—The Daily Sketch said today that a "new secret British weapon" is believed to have brought down a German bomber off the Norfolk coast yesterday. The report was not confirmed officially.

Authoritative sources reported air engagements over the North Sea yesterday in which two German Dornier flying boats were badly damaged.

British pursuit planes sped aloft today to intercept German fliers over the Firth of Forth area in Scotland. The raid was successfully broken up with the driving off of the enemy by British pursuit planes, one of the German aircraft having been seen to be hit. There were no bombings by the Germans, no Nazi plane having reached land. It was reported that another German Dornier flying boat had been badly damaged over the North Sea.

Twelve British and eight Germans participated in the engagement. There was heavy anti-aircraft gunfire as the planes bobbed up and down in combat. All along the coast there was much aircraft activity.

BOTH SIDES CLAIM WINS

Conflicting Reports as to Progress in Europe's Latest War

LONDON, Dec. 7. (CP)—Both Finns and Russians claimed victories in Wednesday's fighting. Finnish reports were to the effect that two hundred thousand Red troops had been repulsed on three fronts, thousands being mowed down by artillery and machine gun fire. Whole companies were decimated on the Karelian Isthmus as they attempted to advance on foot.

The Russians, according to Finnish reports, were found to be very poorly equipped. Since the war began a week ago eighty Russian tanks and thirty-six airplanes have been destroyed, the Finns claim. At Helsingfors Finnish authorities declare that the nation has by no means called up its entire army as yet. The Finns are preparing to withdraw from the Arctic coast to a stronger line of defence. They are undoubtedly harassing the Russians with guerrilla tactics.

A Soviet military communique said that Russian forces had smashed through the main Finnish defence line on the Karelian Isthmus. The Russians engaged in bombing attacks by air on Petsamo and other points in northern Finland but did not bomb Helsingfors.

The Russian claims, which were discounted in Helsingfors, said that the Soviet forces were advancing northward from the Karelian isthmus. Reliable Finnish sources disclaimed knowledge of any sudden Russian gains in that sector.

A Swedish newspaper woman reported to Stockholm that the Finns were exacting a tremendous price for the invasion, whole companies being mowed down in thousands.

The Finns charged the Russians with machine gunning civilians in central Finland, killing one and injuring six.

President Kallio of Finland, in a message marking the twenty-second anniversary of the Declaration of Finnish Independence, expressed confidence that he could trust the Army to defend "home and western civilization."

I TOLD YOU SO

It seems quite evident that Hitler intended to invade The Netherlands early in November and that he allowed himself to be persuaded to try the blockade plan first. Now, evidently he is feeling that the blockade is not a success so it is foreshadowed that a military drive is to take its place. The Germans cannot carry on the defensive tactics very long. They thrive on success. They must have success in order to keep the people of the country satisfied. For that reason it is quite possible the Christmas season may signalize an intensive drive, either at what the generals look upon as the weakest spot or a drive all along the front with special emphasis on the supposedly weakest point. Hitler knows better than anyone that the longer the present condition lasts the weaker becomes the morale of the Germans.

The Fuehrer doubtless now says to his generals "I told you so" and will revert to his original plan or a similar one.

AN INSTITUTION

Constitutionalists, spinning their theories, say "you can't do that," says the Ottawa Journal. The British Empire proceeds to do things which no empire of the past ever thought of doing, and which most students of government, even a generation ago, would have held to be impossible.

Many people find this hard to understand. When they seek to grasp such things as the divisibility of the Crown they get an intellectual headache of a feeling of mysticism, as though they were trying to dissect the Athanasian Creed. Yet the fact is there. The fact of the British Empire, held together by no particular bonds, nor by anything written on parchment, yet united by something which, indefinable perhaps, is stronger than bands of steel.

The British Empire, in truth, is just an act of faith. It is the practical expression, as it is the mighty vindication, of man's faith in liberty; of his conviction, in free co-operation for the best of human aspirations, lies the hope of mankind.

That is why, two years ago, men of all races and creeds and tongues traveled from a quarter of the earth's surface to the Coronation of a British King. They did not go to give homage to a man, or to a great warrior or ruler. They offered a tribute, such as history had not known, to an institution.

ROOSEVELT FOR BRITISH

Major Kermit Roosevelt, son of the former president of the United States, is fighting with the British forces in Europe. He fought in the last war with the British army, winning the military cross, serving in Mesopotamia, and no sooner was the war declared against Germany again than he left for England. His passport said he must not join a foreign army but he does not consider the British army foreign so he went and seems to have been accepted as a valuable addition to the forces.

The Port Simpson party, which arrived here this morning and will be proceeding home this afternoon, consists of Vincent Wells, Sonny Beynon, Tom McKay, Mederick Martin, Rennie Johnson, Ed. Scott, Moses Ross, Harold Ryan and Henry Hella.

SPORT CHAT

The two Canadian clubs—Toronto Maple Leafs and Montreal Canadiens—who have been battling since the first of the season for the leadership of the National Hockey League, will meet tonight in a game of exceptional interest at Montreal. The Maple Leafs are now in the lead by two points with the Canadiens tied for second place with the Boston Bruins who crept into the runner-up berth by virtue of their win Tuesday night over the luckless New York Americans. In the second scheduled game tonight the Americans take on the Black Hawks at Chicago.

Eight years after losing the world heavyweight boxing title to Jess Ward in Cuba, Jack Johnson was refused a licence by the New York Boxing Commission 16 years ago today because he was "too old." The colored battler, who held the crown for five years, was granted a conditioner's permit by the commission.

TWO FILMS DRAMATIC

"Dramatic School" and "They All Come Out" Featured on Capitol Double Bill

"Dramatic School," romantic story of a poor factory girl and her determination to become a great actress, and "They All Come Out," an actionful drama centering at the famous penitentiaries, are the features of what promises to be an exceptionally interesting double bill picture program at the Capitol Theatre tonight and Friday.

An impressive cast in "Dramatic School" is headed by Luise Rainer and Paulette Goddard. The setting is a typical dramatic school in Paris where the daily life and struggles of the students are revealed. Miss Rainer labors in the factory by night to pay her daytime class dues, living in an imaginary world to conceal her poverty. Romance enters the story when she is suddenly thrust face to face with the sweetheart of her dreams, a handsome and wealthy marquis portrayed by Alan Marshall. Included in the supporting cast are such favorites as Gale Sondergaard, Henry Stephenson and Eric Rhodes.

Italy Doing Well in Liner Business But Little "First Class"

ROME, Dec. 7: (CP)—Italy's near-monopoly of transatlantic passenger travel is keeping its ocean liners busy but wartime passenger rates have practically eliminated the first-class traveller.

Tourist class fares, due largely to increased war risk insurance rates, are approximately the same as former first-class fares. Consequently, those who usually traveled first class now buy tourist passages and many who originally would have gone tourist are traveling third class.

Because of the scarcity of first-class passengers the Italian liner Saturnia on its last westbound trip dispensed with the top class entirely making the ship available to tourist class.

which Penrose planned to be buried. Penrose was born in Philadelphia November 2, 1865. His father was professor in the medical department of the University of Pennsylvania. He was educated by private tutors and was graduated from Harvard with a degree in mining engineering in 1886.

Penrose was the youngest of four brothers, all leaders in their fields. The others were Boise Penrose, United States senator from Pennsylvania; Dr. Charles B. Penrose, a Philadelphia physician, and Richard A. F. Penrose Jr., geologist.

Early Gold Seeker

Penrose had more "background" than money when he started west to apply his knowledge. He first inspected the mining potentialities of Old Mexico and New Mexico but neither interested him. However, he did realize $2,000 from the sale of some New Mexico property in which he had invested. Three-fourths of this nest egg was gone when he arrived in Colorado Springs early in 1891.

That winter gold was discovered on Cripple Creek. Penrose and a partner, C. L. Tutt, another Philadelphia, went there, opening a livery stable and a real estate office. They acquired a gold claim which eventually netted them $300,000. Then with two other men they went into the smelter business and, when the foreman of one of their mills devised a system of treating low-grade copper ores, formed the Utah Copper Company. Eventually this concern became a Guggenheim property.

Two other copper companies were organized successfully and the Penrose fortune bulged. One more promotion, Alaska Gold, completed his big-scale money-making. He sold his shares in Alaska Gold after watching the price soar from 25 cents to $27.

In Cripple Creek days Penrose had enjoyed the bluff, frontier life as well as his hard-drinking companions. But it had been a raw, rustic existence. He now was ready to make up for that cabin existence.

Tall, handsomely moustached, and wealthy, Penrose married Mrs. Julie Villiers (Lewis) McMillan in Paris on April 26, 1906. She was the widow of J. M. McMillan, the son of a Michigan senator, who died in 1903.

Switzerland in America

To further his program of enjoying life, Penrose developed Broadmoor, designing it as a year-round resort, the St. Moritz of America.

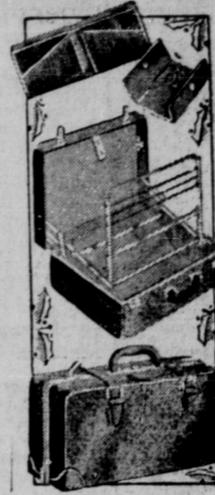

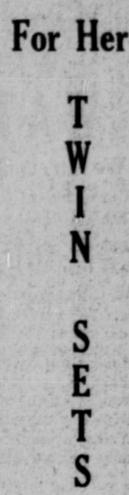

The lay-out attracted a continual parade of celebrities and enabled Penrose to play his best role, that of "mine host." To prevent any derelictions of hospitality that might have been caused by national prohibition, he filled a warehouse with "private stock" before the eighteenth amendment took effect.

Aside from his Broadmoor activities, Penrose was in the public eye chiefly because of his place in Republican party inner circles and his anti prohibition efforts. He was potent in his party after his brother became senator and was one of the men who picked Warren G. Harding as candidate for the presidency at the "smoke-filled hotel room" conference of 1920.

At Smith's anti-prohibition stand weaned Penrose away from his party temporarily in 1928. But in 1932 he supported Hoover.

In his late years he relinquished most of his executive positions with mining, sugar beet and tourist attraction companies.

KISS YOUR TIRED FEELING GOODBYE!

Fepless Many Suffer Low Blood Count—And Don't Know It.

The baffling thing about low blood count is that you can weigh about as much as you ever did—even look healthy and strong, yet you can feel as if you had lead in your legs, dizzy, tired and nervous. Low blood count means you haven't got enough red blood corpuscles. It is their vital job to carry life-giving oxygen from your lungs throughout your body. And just as it takes oxygen to explode gasoline in your car and make the power to turn the wheels, so you must have plenty of oxygen to explode the energy in your body and give you going power.

Get Dr. Williams' Pink Pills today. They are world-famous for the help they give in increasing the number and strength of red corpuscles. Then with your blood count up, you'll feel like bounding up the stairs as if you were floating on air. Ask your druggist for Dr. Williams' Pink Pills today.

The soldiers quartered at the old hospital are in great need of a piano. There are among the two hundred warrant officers, non-commissioned officers and men quartered there a number of good pianists and singers but they have no instrument. It is possible that some local person has a piano that is not in use that he would be willing to donate or loan to the soldiers. This would not be a very great sacrifice for the men are sacrificing much more than one hundred dollars each in giving their services to their country. Anyone wishing to donate or loan kindly notify the Daily News and arrangements will be made to fetch the instrument.

TALK ON FINLAND

W. Brown Speaker on Subject of Timely Interest at Gyro Club Luncheon

"The Finns" was a topic of timely interest for T. W. Brown in speaking before the Prince Rupert Gyro Club at its regular weekly luncheon yesterday. Mr. Brown traced the history of the nation and conveyed information and made certain observations appropriate to the crisis through which the nation is now passing. He predicted that Finland, or what might be left of it after the Russians got through, would unite with Sweden of which nation, indeed, it had once been a part. In opening, Mr. Brown had a few comments in regard to the two mad dictators of Europe—Hitler and Stalin. It was generally agreed that Hitler was suffering from a form of dementia. Stalin, in his colder way, might be even more dangerously mad. The difficulty with the dictator was that there was no way of removing him. They never resigned. Nor was there any provision for superannuation or retirement after they had outlived their usefulness. Speculating on the motive of Stalin's westward territorial demands, Mr. Brown did not believe that he was actuated by desire for more defensible frontiers, for a buffer against Germany or for controlled areas from which to disseminate communist propaganda. Rather he believed that this man, already the master of the world's greatest Empire, was just another Oriental overlord actuated by the ambition, as had been others in history, to move westward.

Some Finnish History

Turning to the history of Finland, the speaker told how the country had been conquered by the Swedes in the twelfth century. For centuries thereafter it was a fighting ground between Sweden and Russia, the latter country getting it for good in 1809—not as a conquered province but as a semi-independent state. 1899 Nicholas II tried to Russify the country, abolishing its language and the power of the Finnish diet or Parliament. However, a few years later a form of independence was restored and Finland escaped the World War although 2000 Finns enlisted with the Russian army and 2,000 with the German. The declaration of Swedish independence from Russia came in December 1917 but in March 1918, by the treaty of Brest-Litovsk, Finland became the slave of Germany. Later came a Red uprising and, eventually, the German defeat in the First Great War turned the Finns towards the Allies. The League of Nations gave the Aaland Islands, now in dispute with Russia, to Finland. Since the last war there had been persistent disputes between Finland and Russia.

The outstanding national characteristic of the Finns was stubbornness, the speaker stated. They were physically strong and of tremendous endurance.

Finland, "the Land of One Thousand Lakes," had an area of about 150,000 square miles, only three percent of which was arable. It was well equipped with railways with few highways, much of the transportation being through the lakes many of which were connected by canals. The winter climate was severe. Population of Finland was just under four million people of which ninety per cent was Finnish and ten per cent Swedish. Education was cheap but thorough. Military service was compulsory. Economically it was progressive. The farm owning class was increasing greatly and co-operative associations were general.

The president, W. M. Watts, extended the thanks of the club to Mr. Brown for his address. There was a good attendance of members and guests were U. Ameth of Vancouver, G. Gottfred of Edmonton, Lieut. McDuff of H.M.C.S. Armentieres and R. T. Forrest of Prince Rupert.

INSPECTOR IS HEARD

Status of Schools Under New Municipal Order Discussed By Teachers

The Prince Rupert Teachers' Association was in regular session last evening when T. L. Davies presided over a good attendance. The first part of the evening was taken up with routine business. Various communications from the provincial executive were considered and appropriate action taken. Considerable discussion took place regarding the way in which civic matters would be handled next year. With the city commissioner retiring at the end of the calendar year it was stated by some that automatically there would be a mayor and council elected. This would also require the election of a school board which would be primarily concerned with the advancement of educational interests. It was felt that an official announcement would be made in the immediate future.

After adjournment of the business session a most enjoyable talk was given by the recently appointed school inspector for the district, Alex Turnbull. The speaker dealt with professional subjects and his broad treatment of the various problems that confront the teacher in the classroom was of great value and interest to all. The desirability of continuing contacts with teachers in the morisolated parts of the inspectorate was mentioned and a closer liaison will be established. Mr. Turnbull spoke from a long experience as a successful teacher and with a keen appreciation of the value of the daily work of the teacher in the classroom. The advantages of the new curriculum were recognized as well as the need for retaining the desirable features of the old curriculum. Hearty appreciation of the talk was expressed on the motion of Mr. O'Neill and the chairman.

TOMMY ATKINS TO THE FRONT

The stirring battle screech and the rattle of the war drums wake echoes in the rain-drenched street of a little French town as British Tommies in column three are "piped" to the front by a band of Highland pipers. Bicycle troops lead this rain-cloaked column in its move up to the front. Day after day sees the advance of similar columns of British troops through similar little French towns as Britain mans her section of the line facing against Germany.

This Is Not Going To Be Prince Rupert's Wettest Year; Nor Will It Be Darkest In Weather Annals

Next to the war, in view of this incessant rain, weather has, apparently, become the second most important topic of conversation in Prince Rupert these days. "The worst year I have ever seen here" is the comment of almost every person. Even the old timers are saying it. But, evidently, they have overlooked two years—1913 and 1923—which, as far as precipitation is concerned, 1939 is hardly likely to overtake. In 1913 the precipitation in Prince Rupert totalled 126.48 inches and in 1923, 132.07 inches. Up to the end of November this year the precipitation had reached a total of 107.23 so December will have to be an extremely wet month if 1939 is to be the wettest year on record. The average precipitation for a 28-year period in Prince Rupert has been 98.23 inches per year.

As for sunshine this has been a dark year in Prince Rupert, with 787.9 hours to date, but there have been worse—1932 and 1933 for example which had only 692 hours and 734 hours respectively. The sunshine average in Prince Rupert per year for a period of fifteen years has been 1123 hours of which mark 1939 is evidently going to fall far short.

Dr. Neal M. Carter, director of the Prince Rupert Fisheries Experimental Station, has been checking up lately on the station's meteorological records and has made the following figures available in regard to precipitation and sunshine aggregates for a number of past years:

Precipitation

1909—113.80 inches.
1910—Not available.
1911—103.59 inches.
1912—90.02 inches.
1913—126.48 inches.
1914—104.98 inches.
1915—110.47 inches.
1916—94.55 inches.
1917—93.38 inches.
1918—93.76 inches.
