HITLER FEELS ANNOYED

It is understood that Adolf Hitler feels very much annoyed when he hears reports of British convoys sailing in or out through the English Channel or the Straits of Dover, carrying on their trade as usual unperturbed by the Big Berthas, the heavy bombers or other German armaments. Just imagine that you are a German general, one who has taken part in the conquest of half a dozen countries standing on the shore at or near Calais and looking across at the little country that has held invaders at bay for a thousand years. In the moonlight you see a convoy of ships passing through the Straits bearing merchandise that Germany would like to have but which it is incompetent to secure. The vessels are over toward the British side of the channel and are accompanied by planes. The Big Berthas roar but the ships sail on enveloped in a smoke screen, the silence broken only by a few British bombers trying to silence the German guns. Then a formation of German planes appears and swoops down toward the ships. Immediately there is a fusillade of anti-aircraft guns and the attacking planes are driven off, several of them being shot down into the sea by British fighters while others go limping toward the French shore. And still the convoyed ships sail on toward the open sea and will sail on safely until they reach New York or some other port with which the British do business. How would you feel if you were a German anxious for conquest and you saw all this? Yet this is a scene that takes place almost every night. Ships are coming and going and it is seldom one gets injured, not one in five hundred. All this takes place in sight of the Germans except when shrouded by smoke screens or mist. The incoming ships carry food supplies of all kinds, arms and ammunition, to the British and the outgoing vessels carry manufactured goods to pay for the imports. It is the kind of business that has made Britain prosperous for centuries and which still goes on in spite of German threats. It indicates more clearly than anything who is winning this war. There are no German ships sailing on the seas with the exception of an occasional raider, such as that one reported recently in the Tasman Sea and even they are immediately chased and have to slink around like the bandits that they are. Is it any wonder that Hitler is annoyed?

A HELL OF A BEATING

An American writer, in proposing peace in a magazine article, says "Our friends the English are taking a hell of a beating." That is not so. The Germans are being beaten. True they are still sending planes over Britain but these do comparatively little damage whereas the British are giving the Germans "a hell of a beating" in the air everywhere as well as on the sea. The only reason the German and Italian ships are not at the bottom of the sea is because they refuse to come out and face the British. In the air the British are carrying the war into all parts of Germany and to a small extent into Italy. In North Africa ships and bases are being bombed and many destroyed. That does not look as if we were getting a "hell of a beating."

Man in the Moon

If the Irish Fusiliers stay here long they are liable to be known as Huttites from living so long in the military village in the centre of the city.

Colonel S. M. Rogers who was at one time superintendent of the Jasper National Park greeted the Duke of Connaught when the visited the park. The Duke asked what was his former business. "I followed the medical profession" was the reply. It seems he had been an undertaker in Montreal.

Hard-boiled drill sergeant to married recruit: "Button yer coat!" Recruit (absently): "Yes dear."

"You mustn't use that dreadful word," said nurse to the bookish little boy.

"But Bernard Shaw uses it, nurse."

"Darling, this steak tastes like burnt leather," said the husband.

"What strange things you've eaten in your life," replied the wife.

TITLE IS RETAINED

Aiyansh Keeps Northern British Columbia Native Football Championship

Aiyansh Y.M.C.A. retains the Northern British Columbia native football championship which it has held since 1934. At the Carnival series last week Aiyansh fielded their team for the final but Kitchikla which had defeated a combined Greenville, Kincolth and Canyon City team in the semi-final, failed to put in an appearance. Aiyansh was, therefore, once again declared the champion.

Prince Rupert Wins Softball District Title

Prince Rupert won the Northern British Columbia softball championship at the Carnival sports last week by defeating Greenville 20 to nothing and Kitchikla 4 to nothing. Kitchikla had beaten Kincolth 26 to nothing.

Signals Beat Irish Fusiliers At Softball

The Signals defeated the Irish Fusiliers in a matched softball game on Saturday in the Gyro ball park, to the score of 30 runs to 14. Although the Irish were unable to field their best team, the Signals have been reinforced by new talent from the south and are developing into a good team. Lieut. James of the Signals and Billy Townsend of the Irish umpired the game.

The line-ups were as follows: Signals—Peacock, Bird, Carlisle, Coombe, Lawford, Weaver, Yelland, Calder and Shannon. Irish Fusiliers—Hobbs, Massey, Campbell, Moreno, Bush, Hayes, Fiddler, Burns and Brooks.

LIFE TODAY IN ENGLAND

voy was accompanied by four destroyers for the first week. Then the convoy broke up, each ship going its own way. They did not know what ship they were to join until they were aboard and they did not know when they were to sail until they were notified at the last minute.

The people aboard the ship were very interesting. For example there was a Mr. and Mrs. Archibald who had been living in France for many years and who had to get out quickly leaving their home and everything they had behind them. The trip was very rough all the way and this made it fairly safe passing through the submarine zone. They landed at a St. Lawrence port and came directly through to Prince Rupert. The arrangements were all made by the Canadian National Railway people, for whom they have the greatest praise. Mrs. King's health has improved since she was away. Their difficulty now is to get a place to live.

Telling about the life on the east coast of England, Mrs. King said they could plainly hear the bombing at Dunkirk during the evacuation of the Allied troops and it was rather an exciting time. They also could hear the occasional bombing of the coast and now and then they saw the planes, both German and British. On the coast, as part of the defences, are pylons with cables attached to prevent planes landing

There are also anti-tank obstructions, all of which have been told about before and pictured in the newspapers. The windows of the houses and stores are criss-crossed with strips of paper to prevent the glass flying if they should be broken. People are supposed to be home after the curfew rings at 9.30.

On the ship coming across all were expected to remain dressed for the first few nights and to wear lifebelts all the time. But these were just incidents which would be expected at a time like this.

Several district canneries, having completed their packs during the week following the closing down of sockeye fishing, concluded the season's packing operations at the end of the week. Fall salmon fishing is reported light in all areas. Some chums have been taken on the south Queen Charlottes with a light pink run in Massett Inlet.

There were twentyone tourists on board the steamer Catala which was in port last night en route to Portland Canal and other points. They are returning on the same ship.

Terrace Registers Six Hundred

Population of this Centre Must Have Nearly Doubled in 10 Years

TERRACE, Aug. 26.— National registration was carried on here in the Orange Hall some 600 persons being accounted for. Local enthusiasts, by whom we mean those who like to boost Terrace and the district, are pointing out that at the last census the population of Terrace was recorded as between 300 and 400 and as there are probably about 150 young people going to school, too young to be registered and also it is likely there are another couple of hundred under school age, we may with some confidence bet that the census to be held next year will record that Terrace has doubled its population.

South Sea Film Tropic Monsoon Of Laughs, Fun

One of the liveliest melanges of joy and hilarity ever to come out of Hollywood is to be at the Capitol Theatre tonight, Tuesday and Wednesday, with a cast headed by Bing Crosby, Dorothy Lamour and Bob Hope, who are ably abetted at their gay high jinx in the tropics by such players as Charles Coburn, Judith Barrett, Anthony Quinn and the renowned Professor, Jerry Colonna, Bob's radio sidekick. The title "Road to Singapore" hits the keynote of revelry and riot which predominates throughout the film.

The story serves as a warp on which is woven a series of hilarious incidents such as Bing's and Bob's trick of playing "Patty-cake," then socking offensive parties, Jerry Colonna's singing session at the organ and the time the boys go blackface so that they can get something to eat at a native party. All this naturally involved plenty of singing of five new tunes, and elegant dancing by about two hundred tropical maids. At least, it was two hundred when the observer lost count.

After disposing of two gorillas hired by one of Hope's old girl friends at "Patty-Cake," and after eluding Bing's father—Charles Coburn—and his fiancée—Judith Barrett, the boys turn up in Kaigoon, a South Sea hamlet.

There they lead an idyllic existence until Dorothy Lamour comes along. Things get even more adlyic when she decides to keep house for the boys and both of them fall in love with her.

Meanwhile however, Professor Colonna, representing the rival steamship line to that owned by Bing's father, spots the lads, and lets the old man know where he is. When the irate Papa and Miss Barrett get there, things become complicated romantically and it takes lots of funny things to straighten out matters.

NEW IDEA WEDDING

Bride and Groom Followed by Band Paraded Third Avenue Following Wedding at Cathedral

Something quite new in wedding celebrations was seen here on Saturday when immediately following the ceremony according to the rites of the Anglican Church the wedding party took a drive around the city with the horns blowing. Arriving at the corner of McBride Street and Third Avenue the party was met by the Greenville concert band led by Fred McKay. The bridal party alighted and headed by the bride and groom all marched up Third Avenue to the Commodore Cafe where the bridal feast was held.

The service in the Cathedral was performed by Very Rev. J. B. Gibson, dean of the Cathedral. The bride, Miss Sarah McMillan, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Clarence McMillan of Aiyansh, was very charming in white with the usual bridal veil and orange blossoms. The bridegroom was a well known Aiyansh man, Roy Adams, son of Mr. and Mrs. Timothy Adams. Official witnesses of the ceremony were Edgar Cecil and Mrs. Mildred Cecil, also of Aiyansh.

At the Commodore there were 122 guests. From there all adjourned to the Boston Hall where, to the strains of the Greenville band orchestra, dancing was kept up until past midnight.
