Last Forty-eight Hours of Aerial War Has Been More Costly For Enemy Than For Britain

NAZIS RETURN TONIGHT LONDON, Dec. 6: (CP)—After inactivity through daylight hours, the German air force swooped back on England with darkness tonight...

LONDON, Dec. 6.—Far heavier blows have been delivered by Great Britain against Germany in the air war during the past forty-eight hours than Germany has been able to score upon Britain.

A concentrated attack which was attempted last night by the Nazis on the naval base city of Portsmouth is believed to have been in the nature of reprisal for smashing blows delivered by the Royal Air Force on Turin, Italy, and Dusseldorf, Germany.

In addition to explosives, leaflets were dropped on Turin and pictures showing actual damage which was done to Aranto naval base on the recent raid there by the British Navy air arm when a large part of the Italian fleet was entirely put out of commission.

Last night, on the whole, aerial warfare was at a low ebb owing to the unfavorable weather. Nevertheless, British planes crossed the Channel to drop bombs on military objectives in Holland and France, two of the planes falling to return.

There was another duel of big guns across the Channel yesterday.

Southern Dominion Arranges Closer Ties With Free France Possessions

AUCKLAND, N.Z., Dec. 6: (CP)—The decision of the French possessions of Noumea and Tahiti to rally to the cause of General de Gaulle and Free France has resulted in closer ties with British possessions in the Pacific.

Following the plebiscite in Tahiti, Moorea and Paumotu Archipelago which resulted in an overwhelming vote in favor of General de Gaulle—5564 votes to 18 for the Vichy government—the New Zealand government on behalf of other governments of the British Commonwealth made contact with the new administration.

This was done through a highly placed government officer. He visited Tahiti, where he found the new Governor, M. Edmond Mansard, in office, assisted by members of the late Governor's Privy Council, who had been largely responsible for the decision to support the Free French movement.

The Governor and his advisers appeared to be firmly in control of the situation and to have the support of the great bulk of the population. Their co-operation with the New Zealand representative was most cordial.

It is intended that New Zealand, as closest neighbor of French Oceania, shall maintain contact with the territory. Prime Minister Fraser of New Zealand, stressed that French Oceania was not in any way merely a British protectorate under the supervision of New Zealand. French Oceania was being administered under the authority of General de Gaulle.

Efforts are being made in New Zealand to increase trade with New Caledonia and shipping companies are making contact with exporters and importers in the French possession.

The bulk of New Caledonia's substantial nickel ore output will probably go to the United States.

HOUSE TO PROROGUE

Session At Victoria Concludes Today—Another Sitting Before Spring—Election Expected

VICTORIA, December 6 (Canadian Press)—The British Columbia Legislature is proroguing today after the Lieutenant Governor, Hon. E. W. Hamber, gives assent to sixty or more bills.

Among measures passed during the 28-day session was the Teachers' Pension Act, replacing the 1929 act and giving all retired teachers pensions of not less than $50 monthly.

Another bill gives municipalities $250,000 in the fiscal year ending March 31, 1924, and annually thereafter not less than $450,000 to be distributed on an equitable basis.

Although there is no official indication, some believe that another session will be held following the Dominion provincial conference at Ottawa in January with the possibility of a provincial election late in spring.

Considerable war material is also reported captured by the Greeks as they swept into the former Italian base which was to have been one of the important points of departure on the Fascist invasion of Greece which has now turned into a complete counter-invasion.

Earlier it was announced in Athens that the important Albanian coast port of Porto Edda (Santa Caranta) had been occupied.

AIR TRAVEL IS GROWING

More People Handled by TransCanada in October Than September

WINNIPEG, Dec. 6.—Figures for October released by Trans-Canada Air Lines today show 6059 passengers flew with the national air service that month as against 5736 in September on increase of 323. Only the peak vacation month of 1940 made a better showing.

Air mail continued the steady increase that began last July. The October load was 94,164 pounds, an all-time record, more than four tons over September and showing a steady increase since mid-year. Air express fell from 12,776 to 10,249 pounds. The decrease was attributable to one point—Ottawa.

The passenger figures presented show actual passengers carried and not tickets sold as heretofore. No sign of a seasonal falling off in passenger traffic was evidenced in the statistics released by D. B. Colyer, vice-president.

The new Toronto-Windsor service has proved to be one of the best patronized services in the T.C.A. system although it was established only a few months ago, said Mr. Colyer.

At Sea Again Today Following His Visit to British Island Colony of Jamaica

KINGSTON, Jamaica, Dec. 6.—Concluding his visit to this British island colony, President Franklin D. Roosevelt left today aboard U.S.S. Tuscaloosa in continuation of his tour of Caribbean defenses. His next point of visit was not disclosed.

Except to visit the site on Portland Bight the use of which United States has obtained from Great Britain for the establishment of an air and naval base, President Roosevelt did not go ashore in Jamaica. He inspected the large fleet anchorage and the ground for an air base.

Mr. Roosevelt entertained Sir Arthur Richards, Governor of Jamaica, and Mrs. Richards and family aboard the Tuscaloosa at luncheon. The United States consul to Jamaica was also present.

The President got an actual sight of war operations by seeing a British steamer which had on board six hundred German prisoners of war enroute to Canada.

Carnarvon Castle Due at Montevideo Monday, Being Given Permission to Make Repairs There

MONTEVIDEO, December 6: (Canadian Press)—The British armed merchant cruiser Carnarvon Castle, damaged in battle with a German raider, is expected to reach Montevideo Monday, apparently seeking repairs. It is learned that the Uruguayan government has granted permission for her entry.

Informed sources place the scene of the battle one thousand miles northeast of Montevideo. Naval sources believe the ship broke off the engagement when the German raider outdistanced her and said that the fact that the Carnarvon Castle was putting into port indicated that another warship has taken up the chase.

EDITORIAL

No Dishonorable Peace . . .

It is only in a democracy that a scene such as that which took place yesterday in the British House of Commons could have occurred. In the face of general but silent disapproval, six Socialist members suggested that a peace move be started, but they were solemnly and sedately voted down. Later they filed out to the lobby, the whole House recording opposition to any such move.

The British have been subjected to very great suffering. They have seen their women and children blown to pieces and their homes destroyed. But the attitude of the people is that there is something much greater than death. They are prepared to fight for the right no matter what may befall. It seems evident that the people of Britain are behind the House of Commons in the attitude they have taken. They want no dishonorable peace.

Pity The Poor Railroads . . .

The railroads of the world are having a bad time. Not only are they competing unfairly against trucks that pay almost nothing for their right of way and against an industry that has no labor union to protect its employees and see that they work only reasonable hours. Now they are beginning to feel the pressure of competition from airplanes. So far this competition has been not very important but it is only beginning. It is claimed that planes can be built now that will carry passengers at about two cents a mile and freight at such a rate as to compare favorably with many of the present railway rates. Progress along these lines is held up by the war restrictions but once the war is over, planes will be used much more than they are today. Yet we cannot very well get along without the railways. They are necessary for the long hauls and especially for the handling of heavy shipments. Halifax could not very well be taken to the Atlantic coast without the railways unless it was carried by huge refrigeration planes.

Crippling The Enemy . . .

The Royal Air Force activities have severely crippled the enemy and, if the British get enough airplanes and trained men, they will be able to smash all the synthetic oil plants in the Reich and also tie up transportation and destroy oil stores so that the enemy activities which are all based on a proper oil supply will be completely paralyzed. That will mark the end of the German resistance. They cannot possibly fight without oil any more than they can fight without shells.

Just now the British have had to divert many of their bombing planes to help Greece drive the Italians out of Albania. This part of the war will not last indefinitely. Some people think Italy will sue for peace and others feel sure they will soon lose their African possessions. The Italian army has been bogged down on the Egyptian border for many months. Once this part of the war is settled, fewer British planes will be needed there. More will be available for use in carrying the war into Germany. This is not the time for the British to talk peace. Rather it is a good time for Hitler to try to have the fighting stopped.

It's interesting to know when reading the Daily News that the people of the whole district are doing the same.

Clocks Uniting Wartorn Family

Peter's Mother In England Knows Where Her Son In Canada Is Dining

REGINA, Dec. 6. (CP)—Peter Findlay, 11, is far from home, but he has received some reminders of war from his Middlesex home where his parents have a map of Saskatchewan and a clock on the mantel set at Regina time.

When it is 11 p.m. Middlesex time, Peter's mother can visualize him eating supper at 5 o'clock in Regina.

Peter's parents sent him a tin box filled with a jagged piece of copper shrapnel, a piece of braided parachute cord and a stout piece of greenish German parachute cloth which was found in the garden of his home. A delayed action landmine floated to the garden with the parachute and was detonated by an engineers' precaution squad.

Peter is in Regina for the duration, staying with his great-aunt and uncle, Mr. and Mrs. Fred Findlay.

Women's Service Corps Invades U. S. Camps Getting Practice In Mechanics

TACOMA, Wash., Dec. 6. (CP)—Lug wrenches and pliers are replacing powder puffs as the American silk stocking army goes on the march.

Throughout the United States young women, eager to aid in national defence, are joining the National Service League Motor Corps, a volunteer organization that would drive ambulances and act as mechanics in case of war or a dire emergency.

The Tacoma unit was the first to get actual experience. While soldiers, shocked at seeing young, attractive women in overseas caps in their camp, watched bug-eyed, corps members worked on army ambulances at Camp Murray where the National Guard's 41st Division is having a year's training.

The idea of training Uncle Sam's young women to drive ambulances and be ready for non-combatant service originated with Miss Harriet Virginia of California, who was an ambulance driver overseas during the First Great War.

Although the girls will be prepared for overseas or hemispheric service, Miss Virginia—ranked as "Lieutenant-Colonel" in the motor corps—states this as the organization's aim:

"In times of national emergency or local stress, earthquake or fire, invasion or bombing attack, the members of the corps will jump into their uniforms and go to their stations. They will be trained and disciplined, and they will hold the respect of the local police and military forces, and the public at large."

LAND ARMY FOR WOMEN

Leader Of Groups Finds No Prejudice Against Girl Farmhands

OTTAWA, Dec. 6. (CP)—A goodly number of Canadian women want a national women's land army in the belief that before this war is over women trained to handle farm duties are going to be needed as never before, says Mrs. Dorothy Walcott of Toronto.

"They want to be prepared before the call comes," Mrs. Walcott said here in an interview. "There's going to be a labor shortage which may bring this call sooner than we expect."

In Ottawa to interview government officials Mrs. Walcott said she had 175 girls in Toronto organized to form the nucleus of a land army. "The women are eager and there's absolutely no prejudice among farmers against female farmhands," said the Toronto woman, an instructress in the Women's Land Army in England during the First Great War.

One official had told her that women could only be used in a very limited capacity. Bristling but smart in her khaki Canadian Women's Service Force uniform, Mrs. Walcott asked how. The official said "Do you think any of your girls would be prepared to clean out a stable and haul manure?"

"I answered 'Yes, indeed,'" said Mrs. Walcott.

Busy In Britain
Mrs. Walcott claims to have handled every sort of a job a farm can produce. Today, she said, there are nearly 10,000 British girls running tractors and manning farms and doing every sort of agricultural labor.

"If they can, we can," said Mrs. Walcott. "Think of the jobs the women did who lived on the early Canadian homesteads?"
Not discouraged by lack of official recognition, Mrs. Walcott made a tour of some Ontario farms and discovered "men wanted" signs in many places. Farmers told her no men had applied so she gathered eight members of the C. W. S. F. and took them to a farmer to pick tomatoes. The farmer next door asked of Greek war names the correct her for 15 pickers and another pronunciation of Salonika is Sal own] ka ("I" as in "it").

summer and fall was divided into two groups. Some lived in Toronto and the others near Clarkson, Ont., about 18 miles from Toronto. The city girls were picked up by truck every day at 7:15 a.m. and taken to the country to work on farms. They returned home at 6 p.m.

Those living at Clarkson were quartered in a large house that was loaned them. Twenty girls were under a "non-commissioned officer" and had a soldier's wife as a voluntary housekeeper.

Routine began with morning bell at 6:30. Girls went out to farms, picking, doing domestic work and helping in any way possible. In the evening they had drill, route march or recreation and lights out was sounded at 10:30 p.m.

Drawn mostly from the unemployed Mrs. Walcott said her girls were formerly waitresses, stenographers, domestic servants, clerks, manicurists and even models. They were nearly all city-bred but are delighted to work and live in the country.

For work the girls wore dark blue overalls with shoulder straps, white shirts, blue kerchiefs on their heads and red C.W.S.F. arm-bands.

"The work is given dignity and the girls feel in addition to earning a living they are doing a national service," said Mrs. Walcott.

Spain Shortens Leisure Hours

MADRID, Dec. 6: (CP)—The government has decided, in order to economize on coal and electricity, to make the leisurely Spanish people change their established habits of keeping late hours.

The decision, to date limited to a brief announcement that hours will be changed to rearrange the time people eat, work, go to the theatre and sit in cafes, brought widespread public speculation.

Spanish life is now geared much later than life in the rest of Europe. Most office work is done in the afternoon and evening. Spaniards eat luncheon at 2:30 or 3 p.m., dine around 10:30 and go to the theatre at 11. They usually are in their favorite cafes at 2 or 3 a.m.

Brocklesby and Mrs. Arnold Flaten. Acting as cashier was Mrs. H. L. Landrey while numerous members of the chapter acted as servers. The home cooking table was in charge of Mrs. William Reid and Mrs. J. A. Frew.

There were three raffles. Mrs. David Taylor was the winner of a table centre donated by Mrs. Buchanan. A cushion, donated by Mrs. Jack Sutherland, was won by Mrs. Thomas Boulter. A book of Capitol Theatre tickets, presented by D. G. Borland, was won by Mrs. James Stewart.

The tea tables were attractively decorated with fall flowers.

New Curtains At Capitol Theatre

Visual Atmosphere of Stage Greatly Enhanced by New Drapery Installation

Much favorable comment has been heard on the great improvement made in the setting of the picture stage at the Capitol Theatre through installation of fine sheer madras curtains which, with the colored lighting effects, give a very pleasing appearance. As is done in the large metropolitan theatres, the curtains are drawn across the screen while title matter and introductions are being projected. It makes a fine dressing for the stage and vastly enhances the visual atmosphere.

At the first of this month the post office at Surf Inlet was reopened after being closed for a number of years.

Dr. Joseph T. Mandy, resident mining engineer for the northwestern mineral survey district, sailed last night on the Prince Rupert for a trip to Victoria on official duties. He will attend a departmental conference.

MANY TIPS TO OTTAWA ABOUT WAR

Suggestions Arrive Daily and Are Gratefully Received by Officials

OTTAWA, Dec. 6: (CP)—Many and varied are the suggestions coming to the government these days of how best a Canadian might contribute to the war effort. They range all the way from suggestions for collecting tin cans to ideas for dropping gorillas on the enemy and an offer to get inside a torpedo and direct it at the enemy.

The suggestions come to government departments from citizens of all ages and classes, all anxious to help win the war.

been considering the position of the nation in respect to the war and the position of those serving in the armed forces.

He felt himself that he could not accept more money for remaining peacefully at his work than was paid those who were fighting. In consequence, he was prepared to surrender his pay over and above the $1.30 a private in the Canadian Active Service Force received toward national expenditures.

An old soldier in the west, Arthur Krogstadt, a man totally disabled as a result of the last war, sent in a dollar a month from his war pension and offered his body "if any suicide troops are to be raised." Unable to write himself he had a friend draft a letter in which he expressed his willingness to "put myself in a torpedo or lie in a mine behind the lines and blow the enemy up as they advance."

In Rhyme Too

Other suggestions are in lighter vein. One arrived in verse: "It's not only wealth and armaments, Plus soldiers in the ranks. But a lot of stand togetherness That will outweigh the enemies' tanks."

A ranchman in Alberta wrote suggesting the government might use payment in kind in the war effort and he would contribute anything he had by way of grain, cattle or hogs.

Youngest suggestion but by no means fantastic is that of Sylvia Dattner, six-year-old miss of Calgary. She wrote Prime Minister Mackenzie King saying: "I would like to know if you think it's a good idea to start a club to save tin cans and help win the war. Please let me know. Your friend, Sylvia." Sylvia's idea comes under the Daily in the mails these suggestions arrive and all receive attention for, as one official put it, "you never know when you may find a fine idea in a haystack." For example, one suggestion that came in hit right on a point a government agency was working on. The matter was considered of the greatest importance and operations were being carried out in the most secret way.

Officials decided the citizen who made the suggestions could have had no knowledge of what was going on and, while they had the highest regard for his discretion, they were loath to admit even to him that his idea was being investigated. They finally decided to inform him as to the state of affairs in order to obtain his silence. This was done and the whole matter remains an official secret.

If In Good Spirit

Officials of the national war services department said all suggestions indicating the spirit and goodwill of the people of the country are gratefully received. But it is not to that department alone that offers and suggestions come. Rather they come to virtually all departments—finance, war services, defence, air, navy and even trade.

One particularly interesting idea came from a naturalized Canadian of Italian birth, a railway shop worker in Winnipeg. This worker wrote that he and his fellows had

NAZISM IS EVIL FORCE

Rev. A. Harding Priest Gives Eloquent Address at Weekly Rotary Luncheon

An eloquent address was given yesterday to the members of the Prince Rupert Rotary Club and visitors by Rev. A. Harding Priest, western field secretary of the Board of Religious Education of the Anglican Church. Mr. Priest showed that Nazism was an outstanding phase of the force of evil that was found to be a greater or lesser degree all over the world. Hitler had taken possession of the education system of Germany and perverted it so that there was growing up today in that country a race of young men who knew little or nothing of what they owed to the past. The new world order which it is attempted to set up was a terrible challenge. It contained all the sinister forces of evil.

The speaker explained that Hitler set up a standard of human conduct which was a complete reversal of those ethical, religious and moral precepts which other nations held dear. Today the tiniest tots in Germany were bent to one end by Nazi propaganda and their actions were quite logical in the light of their creed. Hitler had tried to prove that there was no ideal which could not be set aside by the use of violence and propaganda.

Mr. Priest quoted to show that the Biblical God was disgusting to national Socialism. Hitler was said to be greater than Jesus Christ. He gave it as his opinion that the Christian Church, both Lutheran and Roman Catholic, was the greatest barrier to Nazism in the world today.

Unfortunately, said the speaker, there seemed to be the same kind of people in this country and in the United States as those who were responsible for the condition in Germany. This was undermining the continent.

Mr. Priest spoke of the pathetic and fallacious doctrine of Karl Marx and the fact that this was the supreme hour of crisis in the conflict between evil and good. He urged the solidarity of the past with the present. In explaining why France fell, Marshal Petain had said that the spirit of ease had prevailed over that of sacrifice.

"How can I pay my debt to the past?" inquired Mr. Priest. "I can do it only with my actions today. My constant thought must be 'How can I help Britain today?' Those who really serve expect nothing in return. Despite one hundred dictators I must proclaim my belief in the work of the divine architect of the universe. As a mother said to her son when she recently went to live at Dover—'You do the fighting and let God do the worrying.'"

MORRISTOWN, N. J., Dec. 6: (CP)—They're teaching a new course at Miss Gill's School for Girls in the nearby Mendham hills—how to live on an estate. The lessons teach themselves. They consist of taking over and operating a mansion of 30 rooms and 40 acres of land.

The home was that of the late John F. Drviden, life insurance executive. It was spared from a house-wrecking crew at the request of the school.

Former Local Nurse On Staff Of County Hospital Which Was Recently Bombed

Miss Phyllis M. Mooney R. N., formerly operating room supervisor of the Prince Rupert General Hospital, is now a member of the staff of a London County Council Hospital at New Southgate on which three bombs were recently dropped by German raiders, killing twenty patients as well as a young nurse eighteen years of age and badly injuring two others. Three bombs were dropped, Miss Mooney says in writing to a local friend. The first caused the casualties. The second was a miss and landed in a cabbage patch. The third was also a miss but shattered the nurses' residence badly although none were injured. Had it been a direct hit the consequences might have been much more serious as only a few nurses were off duty and in their rooms. The time was 1:45 on a Sunday afternoon. A huge crater was made in the ground between the nurses' residence and nurses' mess-room. Miss Mooney herself was in the nurses' messroom having lunch. All of a sudden debris came flying through the windows into the messroom and there was a scramble to get outside as it was feared the building would fall.

Miss Mooney tells of making a trip to downtown London to see the bombed places. "The state of London is not bad at all," she writes. "I think it is amazing how much of London still stands. Reports one hears do exaggerate the damage so. Of course, it is true there has been damage but, really, it is a few houses down here and there." Casualties are also fewer than one might be led to believe, says Miss Mooney.
