LAYING BRITAIN'S VAST BARRIER OF MINES

A huge barrier of mines has been laid off the coasts of England. It contains no hidden dangers for shipping, as proper notice has been given ac ang to international law. But to Germany the field presents a difficult and formidable obstruction-a complete bar against raids by the larger nazi warships on coastal towns. It presents als a nerve-racking problem to U-boat commanders. A British mine is shown here being sent over the side of a minelayer to take its place in the formidable barrier.

NONE ON FENCE

When R. L. Maitland, Leader of the Opposition, was it a bond may be made very picturhere this week he quoted a passage from the Bible: "He esque. that is not with us is against us," applying it to the present war attitude.

There are some people who do not believe in war and think that Canada had no right to enter this conflict. They from this pest. They bored into the would have allowed Germany to overrun Great Britain! stalk and destroyed the blooms as without so much as lifting a hand to help prevent it. Then well as chewing un the leaves. We presumably they would have acted in a similar manner have killed most of them now but toward the United States. They would allow their friends to perish or surrender their liberty. However, their rehigious convictions are something over which the country! has no right to interfere. But, as Mr. Maitland says: "He who is not with us is against us" at a time like this.

Mr. Maitland, when here, referred to an editorial article in the Federationist, a C.C.F. paper with considerable circulation in Prince Rupert. Since the beginning of the war this paper has done nothing but try to point FOR SALE-1939 Dodge. Custom out the weaknesses of the British Empire. It jibes at everything, taking a somewhat similar position in the conflict to that of most C.C.F. members of the Legislature.

This is not the time for recriminations or political disputes. Many members of the C.C.F. party are as loyal as any person in the province and as anxious to help. And; 486. yet there must be many who approve the attitude of the Federationist or they would not continue to subscribe to it. considering that it does everything possible to undermine public confidence at a time when confidence and unity of purpose is needed.

THE BELGIAN KING

It is too early to try to discuss the war effort of any nation or person but the Belgian King, Leopold III., has, WANTED through a friend, issued a statement which summarized is somewhat as follows:

"The decision to lay down arms on the morning of May 28 had been imperative owing to the unbearable position of the Belgian army. The troops were encircled beyond hope and were unable to get effective assistance from the Allies. The decision was taken in full agreemnet with and on the advice of the chief of staff. The King acted fully within his rights under the constitution. Any statement to the effect that the Allied commands had not been kept informed was not true. They knew the plight of the Belgian forces which made it imperative that they cease fighting. The King might have left by air and sought refuge abroad but he preferred to share the fate of soldiers and people." A lengthy defence of the Belgian king appeared recently in The Standard of Montreal written by a Belgian . who was in a good position to obtain information. This article gives in detail the events leading up to the surrender and draws attention to the fact that supplies, ammunition and drinking water were lacking and an epidemic of typhoid had broken out. Sir Roger Keyes, British liaison officer, asked the House of Commons to suspend judgment on the king who was "a very valiant soldier." The Belgian army fought gallantly and deserved the highest praise.

DOES TRIPLE DUTY AGAINST NAZIS

Flying in great numbers over Germany, Holl and Norway, Belgium and France combatting the enemy are Great Britain's aerial "uriple threat" Bristol-Beaufort bombers. These planes are built a seemen speciffications but this much is known of them. They are armed with machine-guns from from forward positions and from a power-operated gun torret in the tail. It is the fastest two-engined bomiler in operation and carries a crew of four. It is known as the "jack of all trades" insmuch as it can be used as a long-campe bomber, an pedo bomber or general recommaissance plane.

Improved Relations Between Russia and Germany Claimed by

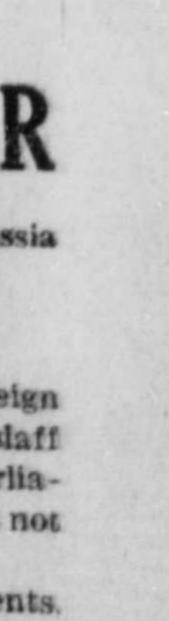

MOSCOW, Aug. 2: (CP)-Foreign Commissar - Premier Vyacheslaff Molotoff told the Russian Parliament yesterday that Russia was not taking part in the war.

Molotoff said that recent events. including the collapse of France, had only served to improve Russia's relations with Germany and Italy.

It was possible, Molotoff suggested, that, as a result of the appointment of Sir Stafford Cripps as ambassador to the Soviet, relations between Russia and Great Britain might improve. Molotoff suggested the European war might soon enter a new phase with United States entering on the side of Great Britain against Germany and Italy.
