BANQUET ON BURNS DAY IS SUCCESS

Fine Affair Last Night to Honor Memory of Scotia's Bard

Last evening at the Oddfellows' Hall over two hundred persons assembled to celebrate the anniversary of the much-loved Scottish poet, Robert Burns. Held under the auspices of the Women's Auxiliary of Canadian Legion, the affair was an unqualified success, all tickets having been sold out some time ahead.

W. M. Brown being in the chair, the singing of "O Canada" opened the evening's festivities, followed by the famous "Burns' Grace, pronounced with due solemnity by D. C. Stuart. Then The Haggis was piped in by S. G. Leslie, borne aloft by a member of the Canadian Scottish, and set before D. C. Stewart, who delivered the "Address to the Haggis" in splendid manner.

The first toast of the evening, "The King" was followed by the National Anthem accompanied by Dr. H. N. Brocklesby. Later there were selections by a Scotch orchestra composed of Mrs. Halcrow, pianist, and Messrs. Breen and Bremner, violinists. The numbers were the famous "Bon Accord" and "Braes of Afton" and were followed by an encore, all enthusiastically received.

The toast to "The Immortal Memory" was proposed by D. C. Stuart in the following most inspiring and interesting speech. "What was there about Burns," Mr. Stuart said, "which enshrined him in the hearts of his countrymen. This man who spoke to the people of the people, in the language of the people, whose memory 181 years after his birth is this night honored in every city, town and village, not only in his native Scotland but in every part of the world where the English language is spoken, an honor unparalleled in history? No other, not even the Bard of Avon, has so endeared himself to the hearts of the people. The 'ploughman poet' stands alone."

Mr. Stuart continued with references to Burns' early years, his toil and poverty on the farm of Lochlea, where his father, William Burns, a man of a strong and taciturn disposition, strove to wrest a living from the hungry soil. He frowned upon fun and levity, which must have been galling to the youthful Burns, who was full of the gaiety of life. The speaker mentioned Jennie Wilson who had a great influence on the young Burns, Mrs. Dunlop, a descendant of Sir William Wallace, who was the inspiration for "Scots Wha Hae" and other nationalistic works. Old songs and ballads, often handed down by word of mouth interested him greatly. The most outstanding example of songs written from one of these was "Auld Lang Syne," sent to Mrs. Dunlop, although Burns disclaimed authorship but later it was found to be entirely his own composition.

No uneducated ploughman as often stated, Burns had a fair education, a good knowledge of French, Latin, had studied trigonometry and mensuration and even dipped into philosophy. A great reader, he studied Shakespeare, Milton, Pope and other great poets but it was from his early years, the tales of Jennie Eilison, his personal acquaintances and his foregatherings with the fair sex that he drew his inspirations. Burns' poetry was that of the human heart—life, love and passion were his themes. He never forgot his kinship with the poor and lowly. He hated hypocrisy and cant.

Burns was a democrat, always ready to take up the battle for the poor. His early struggles were never forgotten and his appraisal of the

War News

GREAT RED OFFENSIVE

MOSCOW—An important council of Soviet Russian and political leaders led to the belief that a great Russian offensive on the largest scale yet may be expected against Finland with the general objective the Mannerheim Line or north of Lake Ladoga, probably the latter. The Russian chief of staff and his lieutenants later left for Leningrad. Meantime Russian attacks are still being repulsed by the Finns with great losses. Women have been found to be fighting in the front lines with the Russians.

MORE VIGOROUS ATTACK

LONDON—Germany is reported to be building a number of new aircraft carriers for use in connection with anticipated more vigorous air attacks upon Allied shipping and possibly British territory. The Reich claims one a day submarine production now. There is some question as to how the carriers could be kept fuelled and outfitted even if they were successful in eluding the British naval and aerial patrols.

GERMANS DISPERSED

PARIS—French artillery fire today dispersed German troops who were engaged in fortification construction work in the Vosges Mountains section, a French communique stated. There was German artillery fire in reply. The day was also marked with considerable aerial reconnaissance activity on both sides. A lone French scouting plane got deep into German territory where it was set upon by a dozen Messerschmidts which it eluded by a daring power, dive returning to its home base safely.

BRITISH PLANE DOWN

BERLIN—The German high command today confirmed that a British Blenheim scouting plane had been shot down yesterday near Duisburg, close to Essen, the great German munitions manufacturing centre. German fighters downed the British machine which was believed to be on its way to the Ruhr.

SEIZING CONTRABAND

PARIS—During the past week French vessels have stopped nine ships at sea and removed therefrom 15,600 tons of contraband bound for Germany. Since the war started 254 ships have been stopped by the French and 480,500 tons of contraband removed.

SECOND DIVISION SOON

OTTAWA—The Second Canadian Division will be sent overseas as soon as possible, Prime Minister William Lyon Mackenzie King told the House of Commons yesterday but it will not be before the general election is held late in March. The government intends to see that the First Division, already in England, is regularly and properly reinforced.

NEW SUPER GUN

LONDON—The Daily Telegraph says that the Germans have developed a new super gun which will fire 155 miles, being designed to shell London. It is 115-118 feet long and fires 616-pound shells.

Wants No Politics During War So He Called Election; Some Criticism Of Sudden Contest

MARCH 26 PROBABLE DATE

OTTAWA, January 26: (CP)—After a Liberal caucus this morning, Prime Minister King said the election would probably be held March 26 but he would not know definitely until he had a final report from the chief electoral officer.

OTTAWA, January 26: (CP)—Less than four hours after the opening yesterday, Prime Minister William Lyon Mackenzie King at 7:07 last evening announced the dissolution of Parliament paving the way for an election which is expected to take place late in March. Following the opening the House had adjourned for dinner but the cabinet went into session and, after deliberating for no more than ten minutes, decided upon the lightning dissolution of the sixth session of the Eighteenth Parliament which was thereupon announced by the Prime Minister.

Vancouver Boy Boxing Champ

SAN FRANCISCO, Jan. 26: (CP)—Kenny Lindsay, young whirlwind from Vancouver, British Columbia, outboxed Al Ellis of Detroit last night to win the flyweight title in the National Diamond Belt amateur boxing championships. Originally, the winner in the Lindsay-Ellis bout was scheduled to meet Basil Jones of New York in the final but Jones, being overweight, was ruled ineligible. Explaining reasons for the dissolution and calling of an immediate election, Mr. King said that this was his answer to criticism of his government's war effort including that of the Ontario Legislature. He charged the Ontario Legislature with deliberately opening a political campaign against his government. He did not wish a political campaign in Parliament during war and deemed it advisable to ask the people for a new mandate to carry on. An immediate election, the Premier pointed out, would also permit of the members of the First Canadian Division voting in England before leaving for France and the Second Division voting in Canada before leaving for overseas.

The transfer of players is effective at once. No cash was involved. Shore is a defenceman and Wiseman a right winger. Ross said that Shore was no longer interested in playing for Boston and had wished himself to be traded to the New Yorkers.

EDITORIAL

THE FEDERAL ELECTION

The decision of the Federal government to hold an immediate election, thus accepting the challenge of the Ontario Legislature and other government critics in regard to the conduct of the war, came as a complete surprise. It gives the government an opportunity to defend itself and to take the verdict of the people. While we had been hoping that there would be no election until after the war, we can quite understand the feeling of Prime Minister Mackenzie King whose work had been officially challenged by the second largest elective body in the country.

While, doubtless, the conduct of the war, so far as Canada is concerned, will be the main subject of discussion during the election, it is also possible that the government would like the opinion of the people on the proposed agreement with the United States for the construction of the deep waterway to the ocean and the power developments arising therefrom.

It is understood that the present government will be given strong support from Quebec. The various Ontario Liberal Associations which have held meetings since the Hepburn incident have all gone on record as supporting the present federal government rather than Hepburn. In the other provinces there do not at present seem likely to be any very important changes in the present line-up so that it may be taken pretty well for granted that the administration will be returned to power to carry on.

LOCAL RECEPTION

Complaints are being received at what is thought to be local interference with radio reception. Some evenings it is almost impossible to hear anything because of noises thought to have a local origin. It is suggested that it is not the noise formerly coming from the main power line but something quite distinct and separate from it. It seems to have struck every part of the city although not with equal intensity.

It has been suggested that some local machine or instrument is being operated without proper condensers or that some transformers are out of order. The condition is very annoying, especially to those who like to hear the radio commentators on the war.

AGE OF JUDGES

Chief Justice Archer Martin is retiring from the bench because he has reached the retiring age of 75. He has had a long and honorable record but he is wise to retire. Very few people are capable of carrying on such onerous duties after that age and many should retire earlier. The Minister of Justice would do well to require that every judge retire at that age.

Mr. Justice Martin has had his critics. Prior to his appointment he was a lawyer and a politician. After his appointment he abandoned the "hail fellow" attitude of the politician and upheld the dignity of the bench to the fullest possible extent, even to the extent sometimes of making himself slightly ridiculous. As an Irishman he reserved to himself the right to criticize the British government but his sons fought for the British overseas and distinguished themselves during the First World War. As an advocate of clean sport the Chief Justice has always been to the fore. His has been a good influence on the bench, where he was always a hard worker, diligent in his profession.

LEADER IN PRINTERS ATHLETICS WIN OUT

John De Gruchy, "Father of Canadian Football," Dies in Toronto

TORONTO, Jan. 26 (CP)—John De Gruchy, president of the Ontario Rugby Football Union and second vice-president of the Canadian Rugby Union, is dead here at the age of seventy-nine years.

Competitive sport became an inspirational force in the life of John De Gruchy. He never lost sight of the fact that athletics taught youth to live cleanly, developed the mind and body.

The unofficial title, "Father of Canadian Football" came to him during a quarter of a century as president of the Ontario Rugby Football Union. His reign ended with the 1939 season. The slight, white-haired man of later years, also was president of the Canadian Rugby Union three times, in 1925, 1930 and 1935.

Annually he selected a Canadian all-star football team for a magazine and he put in several years working on a book in which he traced the origin of the game back to Athenian Greece in 200 B.C. Illness halted work on the book.

Born in London, England, December 15, 1860, he passed most of his childhood in the Channel Islands and came to Canada at the age of 17.

He started work in Toronto for a trunk manufacturing company, and rose steadily until he reached the post of secretary-treasurer. At the end of 1939, when he became seriously ill, he had been with the firm 63 years.

At a football match, John De Gruchy never sat in the grandstand, always on the players' bench or with the timekeeper. He scorned such accessories as a blanket, even when the temperature was below zero, and remained calm and analytical while other fans were shouting themselves hoarse. He brought to football games the mental attitude of a lover of symphonic music, automatically comprehending the elements of each play as a musician allows melody, harmony, rhythm and form to shift into his mind.

In the 1880's in Toronto he was rated as a first class lacrosse player and some of his teammates at the time were the late Sir Sam Hughes, minister of the militia in the First Great War, and the late Col. Herbert Lennox, former M.P. for North York. The team was the "Young Torontos."

His devotion to the game of rugby began at the start of the century when his two sons, Hal, and the late Reg De Gruchy, were half-backs on the Upper Canada College team. In those days it was 14-man rugby and the antiquated "Burnside" rules were in effect.

No matter where Upper Canada was playing, in the city or out, John De Gruchy never missed a game. Later when his sons played for club teams he was a fascinated spectator from the players' bench when the starting whistle blew. When Reg died several years ago, his father donated the Reg DeGruchy Memorial Trophy for the city championship in senior football.

John De Gruchy had never seen professional football in the United States. In November, 1939, he went to Cleveland to see a game and at the same time visit a married daughter. It was there he became ill. He entered a hospital when he returned to Toronto.

Married October 12, 1888, Mr. De Gruchy was devoted to his home. There were three children, the late Reginald; Harold, in Toronto; and Mrs. Gerald C. Clarke, wife of a Cleveland clergyman.

Mr. Tobey Speaks To Rotary Lunch

Had Personal Talk and Told Stories at Gathering Yesterday Afternoon

A farewell address of a more or less personal nature was given at the Prince Rupert Rotary Club luncheon yesterday afternoon by W. H. Tobey, retiring superintendent of the Canadian National Railway here. He spoke of the friendly associations he had always kept with members of the club and himself. He had been in the city for 32 years and it was very difficult to tear himself away. He arrived here on Christmas morning, 1906, landing on a clear and bright day and, at the end of four months, resigned and left but his resignation was not accepted and, within four months, he was back as assistant engineer on the railway. He later became engineer in charge of this division and in 1925 took over his present position.

Mr. Tobey told of incidents during the work on the line and told a number of humorous stories which were much appreciated. He said that, when the position of manager of the Pacific Great Eastern had been offered him, he did not feel that he could turn it down. However, he was leaving with many regrets.

After the meeting the members shook hands with Mr. Tobey and wished him God Speed.

Caviar and Imported Perfume and Jewels Scarce but Old Household Standbys Still on Hand

By MURIEL ADAMS Canadian Press Staff Writer TORONTO, Jan. 26: (CP)—The luxury-loving Canadian has had to economize on his purchases since war was declared but so far the ordinary home budget has been little affected by price increases.

Caviar will likely be scratched off swanky menus since the cost of the little black luxury, imported from Russia and Finland, already has trebled in price. Some imported cheeses are harder to get than before the war and special jams, marmalades and sugared fruits are higher on the luxury list.

Tea and coffee are costlier because of increased duties, sugar is up about 50 cents per 100 pounds and butter is up about five cents a pound. But most household groceries are lower in price than a year ago, balancing the total cost of living to about its pre-war level. Experts predict there will not be the sharp advance in prices there was in the last war because many products are under control of government agencies.

Importers of special food brands say their stocks do not average an increase in price of more than five per cent but there will, doubtless, be a larger increase shortly because of war-risk insurance and other war expenses.

Effect on Imports Perfumes are hitting the higher brackets and many imported French scents are becoming scarce. Jewelers believe their business will not suffer materially during wartime. New sources in neutral countries have been discovered to replace the novelty and jewel wares usually imported from European countries now at war. But orders of china, glass and silver are filled more slowly because of transportation difficulties.

Wardrobes may be more expensive for the person who likes tailored English suits made-to-measure for there will undoubtedly be a delay in filling orders and shipping materials. French model gowns will not be so readily available as war progresses. But the average woman can find plenty of bargains in dress salons where prices are still within her reach. Stockings are a bigger worry than ever for women. Their cost has jumped 10 per cent and is still advancing.
