The enemy planes came in small formations and there were furious dogfights. At least three assaults on London were hurled back though a few raiders managed to drop bombs on some areas. Today's daylight assault followed the twentieth successive night raid.

LONDON, Sept. 27:-Following two daylight raids in which the enemy again had little success in penetrating London defences, the usual night air raid of London commenced at 8:30 last night. Again there was damage to property and casualtles. It was the twentieth straight night raid on London.

Former City Commissioner Urges New Move Under Federal Housing Plan-New Homes Is Crying Need

"The crying need of Prince Rupert is for new homes and the only the federal housing plan," declared YANKS IN W. J. Alder, former city commissioner, who left for the south last night after visiting a week in the city and looking after his interests. "Practically every city in southern New British Columbia has availed itself of government help in their home building campaigns and building campaign- and building booms are in evidence everywhere. Prince Rupert has greater need than most cities and surely is entitled to the same privilege. Those citizens who more homes must now see that it is a necessity.

The city that ceases to build will gradually die."

Mr. Alder upon being asked for his impression on what undoubtedly is a changed city said it must be borne in mind that there could be no real prosperity or success for any city or individual until the war was won but it was apparent to everyone that Prince Rupert was today more prosperous than it has been for many years. Steady work had put new life into many a home and driven away the bogey of poverty. Merchants seemed to be all doing well and new faces among the civilian population were everwhere in evidence. "Under my observation," said the former commissioner, "this city has grown in thirty-one years from a dozen children and a few hundred adults without streets or city conveniences to its present status. A no time in its history has it been in a better position to consolidate its gains. WAR AIMS

Capt. Elmore Philpott Gives His Ideas About Issues In Present War-Confident Of Ultimate Victory

The Nazi menace is not going to be beaten by November 15. There is no more chance of that than there is of Hitler crushing Britain by that time. "It will take us some years to restore any real stability to the world. We will be fortunate if we get along very much with the job by 1944 or 1945. I think we may expect a long war characterized by intermittent furious outbursts with long lulls' between." So declared Capt. Elmore Philpott M. C. of Victoria in an address at the Canadian Legion Hall last night under the auspices of the Women's Canadian

Capt. Philpott suggested that the first stage of the war was that where the British were carrying the brunt. If the situation became desperate enough the United States was bound to come in "if not only to save their souls but to save their skins."

Outlining his idea of war aims. Capt. Philpott declared that the things for which Great Britain ! and the Empire stood had been' won over a period of centuries at, great cost, "First, we stand for established justice, something which it had taken thousands of years to win and develop but which the Nazis would sweep aside in a few months. Other aims were religious freedom, social rights and political control of government.

Democracy might be a long way from being perfect but it did give priceless privileges which should never be lost and for which the time had come to fight.

"And." continued the speaker! "you can't win wars unless you attack, take the offensive. On the political front. too, the offensive; I must be taken." In this political; offensive there would eventually be assistance from France, Italy, Spain and even Germany.

Britain And United States

Capt. Philpott reiterated the prediction that out of the present! Having made another speedy FOR SALE-Old furniture-dressituation must come the out and voyage north. In opening his address, Capt. Philpott gave an interesting account of the personal history of Adolf Hitler and the strange circumstances which had led up to his accession to power. Three years of miserable existence under privation in Vienna after the death of his father and mother had had an important bearing on Hitler's psychology, the speaker believed. When the First Great War came. he threw himself on his knees and thanked God that his opportunity had come. Since then he had never been off the German payroll. The technique of his career had always been along one linethe entanglement of other people in conspiracies which he used to his own advantage. The acceptance by the German people, great in many respects, of the crazy philosophies of an insane man, the speaker characterized as one of the "strangest exhibitions of stupidity the world had ever seen." Speaking of Japan, Capt. Philpott expressed belief that the Nipponese was not a primary menace If Hitler was beaten, there would be no need to worry about Japan. Only if Hitler won would there be a real danger from the Japanese. 'The only menace we need to worry about today is Nazism." There was a large attendance at Capt. Philpott's lecture. Miss E. M. Earl, president of the Women's Canadian Club, was in the chair. Len Cripps sang "There'll Always be an England," the audience joining in the chorus. C. P. Balagno accompanied Mr. Cripps. Mrs. C. E. Cullin presided at the piano for "O Canada" and "God

Save the King." There was a silver collection for the dry canteen fund.
