Specially Prepared Landing Fields Enable Change on Northern Planes

EDMONTON, Nov. 19: (CP)-Planes equipped with wheels instead of skis will operate this winter over the Edmonton-Yukon commercial air mail route and to assume their efficient operation two huge tractors have been flown to the far northern landing fields at Fort Nelson and Watson Lake.

Fort Nelson is about 600 miles northwest of Edmonton, just south of the Northwest Territories boundary in the northeast corner of British Columbia. Watson Lake is in the Yukon, midway between Fort Nelson and Whitehorse.

The tractors, to be used in field maintenance, are equipped with circular saws which will cut lumber for snow rollers to pack and clear the runways. With the fields kept suitable for the landing of planes, the oft-needed procedure of changing from wheels to skis or viceversa in flights over the route will be eliminated.

Both fields are maintained by Yukon Southern Air Transport. They may be used, however, by United States army planes enroute to Alaska where, company officials recalled, the United States government is carrying out an extensive air force defence program.

The two tractors, weighing 3,000 pounds each, were sent north by railway from Edmonton, driven to Party of Dozen Here Yesterday On High Requiem Mass Celebrated At Fort St. John, then disassembled for Smithers For Repose Of Soul the flights to their new homes.

Prince Rupert Little Theatre Body Is Active

With one three-act play already in rehearsal and a one-act play about ready for presentation, the Prince Rupert Little Theatre has been active since its inception six weeks ago. From the handful of organizers who attended the first meeting the group has now grown to a large number of talented and enthusiastic workers.

Next week on November 27 a social evening is to be spent at the Cathedral Hall to which members and prospective members and all those interested will be invited. The presentation of the one-act play is scheduled for that evening as part of the entertain-
