MAGNATE IS DEAD

Walter P. Chrysler, One of United States Famous Car Manufacturers Passes in New York

NEW YORK, August 19 (Canadian Press)—Walter P. Chrysler, sr., motor car manufacturer, died of cerebral hemorrhage at his home at Great Neck, Long Island, yesterday. He was sixty-five years of age and had been ill for some time. The son of a Kansas locomotive engineer, he became a machinist himself and at the age of thirty-five was a superintendent for the Chicago Northwestern Railway. At forty-one he was production superintendent for General Motors at a salary of $500,000. In 1924 he started the Chrysler corporations.

Banking interests associated with the automobile industry referred to Walter P. Chrysler as the "doctor of sick motorcar companies."

He was recognized as possessing genius for organization, expert knowledge of finance and mechanics, a driving power of will and an enormous capacity for work that carried him always forward, and made him sought after by companies with which the post war period had dealt rather severely.

Chrysler was not a pioneer of the industry. The motorcar already was overcoming early day prejudice when it first attracted his interest. Yet to him it was new. Back in 1905 when Chrysler was superintendent of motive power of a midwestern railroad, he borrowed $4,300 and with $700 capital of his own bought an automobile he couldn't drive.

Some of his friends called him "crazy"; others said things less harsh but shook their heads dubiously. But Chrysler had a hunch and he wagered $5,000 on it. It took him nearly three years to repay the loans. His path to the title of superintendent of motive power had been an arduous one, starting with a job at five cents an hour as locomotive wiper.

He brought the automobile solely so that he might take it apart and learn how it was constructed. "I think I took it apart at least 40 times," he said long afterward.

By the time he had torn the machine down three or four times Chrysler could have built one himself. Previously, he had reproduced a working model of a railroad locomotive, perfect in every detail. It was part of his self-conceived study of applied mechanics that was to make him notable in his field.

Chrysler's experience with automobiles began in 1911 when he became production manager for the Buick Motor Company. He was president of that company when he resigned in 1920 to direct the affairs of the Willys-Overland Company. Later he went to the Maxwell-Chalmers Company and in 1924 became head of his own company, the Chrysler Corporation.

Chrysler has no set formula for success. He believed in courage, definite objectives and quick decisions. "If you don't have the courage of your convictions," he once said, "you worry. Hard work doesn't hurt anyone. But hard work and worry are impossible."

The huge Chrysler building in New York city is one of Chrysler's achievements. When he was born April 2, 1875, at Wamego, Kans., the site of the building was known to New Yorkers as the Lexington avenue goat farm.

Walter Perry Chrysler was the son of Henry Chrysler, a locomotive engineer, and Mary Brayman Chrysler. He was graduated from the high school at Ellis, Kans., and later took a business college course before starting a four-year apprenticeship in the shops of the Union Pacific Railway.

He was married at Ellis, June 4, 1901, to Della V. Forker. They had two daughters and two sons.

Nerves Shattered By War's Ordeals

Hypnotic Treatment Aided in Restoring Soldier and Sailor to Normal Health

LONDON, Aug. 19: (CP)—A British soldier who shot his mortally wounded brother to hasten his death on the sands at Dunkirk was a nervous wreck until hypnotic treatment revealed the reason for his strange nervous ailment, a writer disclosed in a recent issue of Lancet, British medical magazine.

The writer, Dr. William Sargent, psychiatric specialist, cited this and another case to show beneficial results of hypnotic treatment. The illness puzzled Dr. Sargent and inducing the soldier to describe the frightfulness on the beach also failed to provide a basis on which to formulate a cure.

Under hypnosis, however, the soldier gave Dr. Sargent a clear picture of his ordeal beside his brother. The incident had tortured the soldier's mind but he could not remember what he had done except when hypnotized. After the doctor heard the story he was able to treat the man who quickly regained his health.

Another case was that of a torpedoed merchant seaman who confessed under hypnosis, that he felt responsible for the death of his best friend, who until he sank, had been swimming at his side. When the sailor became conscious after the hypnotic treatment he was told the story and assured by the doctor that he had no cause for self-recrimination. His worries vanished.

Today's Raiding Activity is Light After Heavy Onslaught On Sunday—Churchill to Make Full Statement Tomorrow

LONDON, August 19: (CP)—As a precautionary measure, all Britain was made a defence area today as the nation prepared for a possible struggle to defend its soil. With the Germans believed nearing the zero hour for the attempt at a direct invasion, the Royal Air Force launched a thunderous attack against the Nazi-held French coasts.

British night raiders scored hits on one of Germany's largest aluminium factories just across the Rhine from the Swiss town of Reheinfelden, bombs being reported to have dropped on Swiss territory. The raiders' objectives were widespread and the bombers attacked a German industrial district on the northern side of Lake Constance.

Germany issued a warning today that there would be reprisals on R.A.F. prisoners if Nazi parachutists in England were mistreated.

Waves of Nazi planes attacked on Sunday but today's activity was slight. One German bomber was shot down this morning in the southwest.

Prime Minister Winston Churchill tomorrow will make his first full public review of foreign affairs since assuming office in a statement on the progress of war to the House of Commons.

HEAVY DAY OF GERMAN BOMBING ON OLD LAND; SCORE WAS 141 TO 22

Royal Air Force Continues to Carry Fierce Offensive to Important Military Objectives in Nazi Territory

LONDON, August 19.—The Air Ministry announced 141 German planes were destroyed Sunday during raids on Britain, the British loss being 22 planes. The fighting extended over wide regions of England, including the London area. The raiders diverted from the London area dumped their bombs as they flew back towards home.

Eighteen German bombers escorted by twelve fighters attacked the Portsmouth area. Six were shot down and they jettisoned their bombs as they fled at the appearance of British fighters.

The Royal Air Force bombed Boulogne harbor and blasted 26 airdromes in northeast France, Holland and Belgium.

Munition dumps, oil tanks and airplane shops were also attacked, further raids took place Sunday night on Nazi occupied French Channel ports by heavy bombers.

Attack in London

Swarms of Nazi bombers came again to the very gates of London Sunday and there was vicious fighting above the metropolitan and suburban areas but the enemy were driven away across the North Sea and the English Channel. It was a furious onslaught in which at least one hundred planes took part, doing, however, a minimum of damage and causing relatively few casualties. So devastating was the British anti-aircraft fire that the enemy were held at great height and were unable to damage the defences of the great city. At least five of the enemy planes were brought down and there were probably more as only 53 of the 100 in retreat. In leaving, the German jettisoned their loads of deadly explosives over open towns, making no attempt at military objectives. These bombs were dropped in Kent, Hampshire and elsewhere to the southeast of England. Londoners went to their bomb-proof shelters in high spirits, singing war songs such as "Pack Up Your Troubles." There was complete lack of panic. Many disregarded the warnings and went about their normal pursuits. A later dispatch reported high-flying German bombers off the southeast coast of England, carrying out bombardment but doing little damage and causing no casualties.

On Saturday Between sunrise and sunset Saturday there was not a single air raid on the British Isles although the Nazis came over again at night and dropped a few bombs. Hitler was, apparently, pausing to review the situation following his disappointing blitzkrieg in which he lost 491 of his planes while the British lost but 115 as well as saving many of the Royal Air Force pilots. In addition to showing their vast superiority as air fighters, the Britons inflicted damage on military objectives in Germany and German-occupied territory which the Germans could not hope to match with their feeble effort in spite of killing women and children and attacking civilian property. The Royal Air Force continued its pulverizing raids against German military and industrial objectives and extended the naval blockade by mining the Bay of Biscay.

TEN PER CENT DOWN

Almost every day since the blitzkrieg started the British have shot down about ten per cent of the invaders. That is a pretty good percentage. At that rate the Germans will not be able to keep it up long. While the German radio day after day pictures the British people as being in a panic and the damage to the British as enormous, the British advices all indicate that the people of Britain are taking the invasion with great calmness and good humor. They had been fully warned of what was coming and the only surprise so far has been that the bombings have not been worse. As a matter of fact the British bombings in Germany have been much more destructive than the German bombings in Britain.

The British are now looking forward anxiously for the promised invasion. Day after day they watch for the invaders and when they find there is further delay, there is nothing but regret at not having to deal with them as they deserve. "Let them come. We are ready," seems to be the daily cry, and in many cases the wish.

UNRESTRICTED SUBMARINE WARFARE

The German government does not seem to have much of a sense of humor. For nearly a year now it has been sinking neutral as well as British shipping whenever it had the chance. Now it announces that neutral shipping is to be sunk on sight.

The announcement is a sign of desperation. Having failed to intimidate the British people and finding its position weakening, the Germans are looking about them for some other method of frightfulness.

It seems evident that Hitler expected that he could raid all the neighboring neutral countries and look to Britain to feed the people there. It seems clear now that the people of those countries will have to look to Germany for food because Germany has declared again and again that she has plenty.

DEFENSIVE ALLIANCE

One of the policies advocated editorially by the Chicago Tribune recently was the forming of a military alliance between United States and Canada for the common defence of both countries. Naturally any such alliance would have to take into consideration the position of Canada as part of the British Empire.

The Tribune points out that Canada is the only country on the continent that has the means of waging a defensive war. It suggests that the present forces overseas, the co-operation of the naval forces and the vast air training program are only the beginning of Canadian efforts. These commitments of two countries are not conflicting. What the Tribune suggested was that the two countries should sit down and face their common problems together. Evidently that was what happened on Saturday when Prime Minister Mackenzie King and President Roosevelt sat down together and talked over the situation.

Learn How To Act During Air Raids

Keep Cool and Take Cover Most Important Things to Do

LONDON, August 19: (CP) — Working on the theory that you should know the answer before the question is asked, the ministry of information has placed the following quarter-page advertisements in newspapers:

What do I do when I hear guns, explosions, air-raid warnings?

I keep a cool head. I take cover. I gather my family with gas masks on at the enemy. And I remember and go quietly about alarming people. I remember that a lot of the noise is good noise—our guns firing at the enemy. And I remember the odds are thousands to one against my being hurt.

GIRLS PLAY BIG PART

KIDDERMINSTER, Eng., Aug. 19 (CP)—After working their shift in a carpet factory, more than 1,800 girls volunteered in response to an appeal for munition workers. Three hundred left immediately for the munition works, worked through the night and went on an eight-hour shift.

It's the cumulative effect of advertising that counts.

INDIA IN WAR WITH MILLIONS

Fighting Services Expand With Increasing Material Aid To Motherland

SIMILA, Indaa, Aug. 19 (CP) — India made news since the war started because of discussions over the tangle constitutional question but, at the time she has been making a tremendous contribution to the war effort.

Figures released here showed that, since the outbreak of the war, India has despatched to overseas centres 75,000 rounds of small arms munitions, 200,000 shells of all categories, 4,500,000 sandbags, 10,000 sets of web equipment, 600,000 blankets, 3,000,000 yards of khaki drill and large quantities of other material.

Meantime, a senior officer of the General Staff of the Indian army declared in a broadcast that "steps have been taken to mobilize India's resources for an unparalleled military effort." As a result of previous planning, he said, production of ordnance supplementary supply was brought in the first eight months to a quantity materially exceeding the peak reached after three years of war in 1914-18.

Personnel of the Royal Indian Navy has been increased by nearly 200 percent. Naval training establishments in Bombay and Karachi have been expanded while establishment of a new naval training school will enable still further enlargement as more vessels, to be constructed in India become available.

Although thousands of the army personnel, adequately equipped to cope with mechanized forces, had been sent overseas, the army's strength is greater than at the outbreak of the war, apart from the recently announced expansion program involving initial increase of 100,000 men.

To implement the decision to quadruple the air force, the necessary quota of pilots and grounds staff is being selected.

British Housewives Prepare For Casualties Caused By Air Bombers

LONDON, Aug. 17 (CP)—Britain's housewives are linking up with Air Raid Precaution services to help in dealing with damage and casualties caused by raids.

Workers of the Women's Voluntary Services, whose chairman is the Dowager Marchioness of Reading, are enrolling housewives willing to assist A.R.P. workers by guaranteeing supplies of hot water, tea for people suffering shock, blankets for those more seriously affected and bandages for the wounded.

In one London area, the problem of finding material for bandages was a serious one. Then someone had the ingenious idea of using ballet skirts. A round was made of theatres featuring ballet and all discarded skirts were collected, ster-alized and cut into strips.

In Islington housewives were canvassed to look after children in the confusion that might follow large-scale raids. Others have undertaken to have buckets of water on their doorsteps for supplying stirrup-pumps, used to tackle incendiary bombs.

Cards and badges on the homes of those prepared to offer such help will enable ARP officials to know just where to go for any particular assistance.

CHALLENGE SOFTBALL

Signals Beat D.D.S. and T.O. By Score of 38 to 21

Signals and D.D.S. and T.O. battled it out in a challenge softball game at the Gyro Ball Park Saturday afternoon. After a fairly even start, the Signals broke loose, beating their opponents to the score 38 to 21. The game was the occasion of much excitement. Although the D.D.S. and T.O. was defeated it feels sure it can change the state of things with a little practice.

The line-ups were as follows:
Signals—Brooks, Telland, Coom- lie, Lawford, Finlay, Russell, Watson, Carlisle and Shannon.
D.D.S. and T.O.—Watson, Tuthill, Oliver, Buster, Wilcox, Guelpa, Middleton, Taylor, Willey.
Lieut. James of the Signals acted as umpire.

"Northwest Passage," With Spencer Tracey, at Capitol Theatre

Affording Spencer Tracey and Walter Brennan colorful roles and elevating Robert Young to the threshold of stardom, "Northwest Passage" opens a three-day en-gagement at the Capitol Theatre tonight.

The story is one of courage, fort-itude and almost superhuman physical triumph. Tracey as Major Rogers takes his hardy Rangers, in-cluding Young and Brennan, on a secret mission to wipe out a vil-lage of marauding Indians. This starts a thrilling journey during which the men carry their heavy boats over a mountain, struggle for days through swamps, cross a river torrent by forming a human chain, stage a harrowing battle with the Indians and then batter their way back home, starving, weakened and in tatters.

As Rogers, Tracey has a charac-ter role of opportunity, and Young's part as a young artist is one of the best ever given him.

The feminine cast is headed by Ruth Hussey, as Young's sweet-heart, and Isabel Jewell as a white girl captive of the Indians. Among the many outstanding roles in the story are those played by Nat Pen-dleton, Louis Hector, Robert Bar-rat, Lumsden Hare, Donald Mc-Bride, Douglas Walton, Addison Richards, Hugh Sothern, Regis Toomey, Montagu Love, Lester Matthews and Truman Bradley.
