A PRETTY WEDDING AND VERY POPULAR

Miss Isabelle Smith Becomes Bride of Mr. Frank Ellis at Residence of Mr. E. A. Woods Last Night

In the beautiful bungalow residence of Mr. and Mrs. A. E. Woods, on Borden Street, a charming and most popular wedding took place last night. The bride was Miss Isabelle Smith, of Scarborough, Eng., who has only just braved the big Atlantic to share with her young husband the new home he has prepared for her in Prince Rupert.

At 8.30 p.m. the wedding was solemnized. The bride who was charmingly gowned in grey silk voile, with rich trimmings in the new aluminum shade with a large picture hat trimmed with old rose ostrich feathers. She wore a diamond and pearl sunstar pendant, the gift of the bridegroom.

With Mrs. A. E. Woods attending her as maid of honor, she entered the spacious drawing room to the strains of the wedding march played by E. A. Woods, who with Mr. Birch signed the wedding register as witnesses.

Rev. F. W. Kerr solemnized the wedding with a simple, dignified form of service over which he himself has devoted sympathetic study, and after the young couple had been duly united in marriage a dainty wedding lunch was served, of which the guests, all intimate friends, partook with merriest congratulations.

The wedding cake, a wedding gift brought all the way from England by the bride, was a handsome feature of the occasion, and many other very handsome gifts have been received by the young people. The gift of bride to bridegroom was a case of silver mounted brushes engraved with his initials.

Mr. and Mrs. Ellis will reside on Seventh avenue and that they will receive right heartily the good will of all Prince Rupert is assured.

WILD ANXIETY IN NEW YORK FOR NAMES OF THE RESCUED

Government Sends Out All Its Available War Vessels With Wireless Equipment in Effort to Relieve Public Tension---Telegraph Offices Taxed CARPATHIA EXPECTED WITH THE RESCUED

Neither the Number Nor the Names of Those Saved is Yet Known ---Reports Regarding President Hays Contradictory---Seems Certain, However, That Wife and Daughter Are Among Fortunes on Carpathia---David Hays Gets Many Messages---Real Estate Banquet Postponed--- Proposition to Fly Flags at Half Mast

(By Our Special Correspondent.)

New York, April 17.—All day yesterday huge crowds blocked the lower part of Broadway opposite the White Star office, and all night long there seemed to be no diminishment. The whole country is filled with horror at the intensity of the disaster, the situation being rendered all the more horrible by the fact that no definite news can be obtained of the number lost or the names of those who have been so providentially saved. The telegraph offices are stacked up with messages of enquiry to the general interference with business messages; the cable offices are besieged that this morning even the market quotations could not be guaranteed immediate delivery in London.

All the government steamers having wireless connections that were in the harbor or in the Brooklyn navy yard have been hurriedly dispatched with the hope of intercepting the Carpathia, having on board the rescued, and by wireless sending in a full list to relieve the anxiety of the crowds so patiently awaiting this news. All the leading newspapers, too, have vessels out in search of the Carpathia, and, in fact, no great event of modern times has cost the newspapers so much in nervous energy and anxiety and money in order to obtain the latest news first.

It is believed that the Carpathia must pass within practical distance of the great wireless station on Sable Island, and on this is based a hope that definite news may be received at any moment. Also, the Carpathia should arrive here late in the afternoon or early in the evening, but she is certain to be within wireless distance of any one of the vessels sent out equipped with wireless long before she reaches the approach to the harbor. So that the tense excitement cannot be very much longer prolonged.

Description of the Titanic.

The triple screw steamer Titanic, totally lost on her maiden trip by collision with an iceberg in the Atlantic within nine hundred miles of her destination, New York, was one of the two greatest steamships in the world. She was 882 feet 6 inches long by 92 feet 6 inches beam and her tonnage was 45,000. Her sister ship, the Olympic, was some 324 tons larger than the Titanic, but otherwise identical with her.

Contradictory as to Hays.

Ottawa, April 17.—This whole city is deeply stirred by the terrible catastrophe attending the first and last voyage of the great steamship Titanic. Sir Wilfrid Laurier received a personal message this morning that there was no hope to be entertained for the safety of President Hays of the Grand Trunk Pacific. It is stated here, however, that one of the Grand Trunk officials in the head office of the company at Montreal has wired that a telegram has been received from New York to the effect that President Hays is among the saved.

CHARLES NEWTON CALLED IN ALBERT TRIAL

Denies That He Instructed Peters to Settle for Twenty Thousand Dollars---Could Not State Whereabouts of Mrs. Newton

(Special to Daily News.)

Vancouver, April 17.—At the conclusion of the second day's hearing of the Albert case, yesterday, Mr. Justice Gregory ordered that the accused be no longer given the privilege of bail. Mr. Albert was accordingly taken into custody and will remain so until the end of the trial, which will probably be reached today. The Crown closed its case shortly before noon with the evidence of Mrs. Carl, who told of advising Miss Newton to inform her father of the alleged happenings, which the girl had confided to her.

A rather heated incident occurred during the cross-examination of C. D. Newton by S. S. Taylor, K. C. Counsel wanted to know whether witness had instructed Attorney Peters to ask for the sum of $20,000 to settle the case. "I did no such thing; I emphatically deny such an insinuation," said Mr. Newton in a loud voice.

Before opening the defense Mr. Taylor addressed the jury, giving a sketch of Albert's career. He described him as a member of a well known and honorable Russian family, who had left his country for political reasons. He stated that he was an Armenian Christian, a man of honorable and upright life, and that he had gone to Mrs. Perk's house on the evening in question owing to his love of music.

Mr. Justice Gregory stopped Mr. Taylor during the course of his address, saying he would not permit counsel to give evidence to the jury in that manner. Counsel must confine himself to outlining the evidence he proposed to call. Several times during the course of the hearing the defense counsel and the presiding judge clashed in a way that suggested it might be part of defense tactics to influence the jury by arousing sympathy.

Mrs. Perks, who is in attendance, is to be called this morning and will probably give very lengthy testimony. Mr. Taylor announced that accused, as a man of honor, would prefer the penitentiary to escaping by any technicality and would take the witness stand himself to deny point blank the accusations against him.

Mrs. C. D. Newton was not called. In answer to a question by S. S. Taylor her husband stated that he had no knowledge of her whereabouts.

FUNERAL TODAY

Interment of the late Daniel McKinnon Took Place at Garden Island

On receiving news of his death deceased's sister, Mrs. Anderson, arrived in the city from Portland, Ore., and took charge of the final funeral arrangements. The funeral was held at Garden Island, under the direction of Messrs Hayner Bros. Services were held at the graveside and in the Hayner funeral chapel on Grenville Court. Deceased was well known in Rupert and district, and a number of friends paid their respects to his obsequies.

Acting Chief Merritt Resigns

Announcement is made today of the retreat from the city police force of Acting Chief Constable Merritt, one of the most efficient men of Chief Vickers' exceedingly creditable force. Regret is generally expressed amongst the citizens taking an interest in the efficiency of Rupert's police department, that Constable Merritt is not to remain with the department. Constable Cargill will take charge during the absence of Chief Vickers, in place of Constable Merritt, who had been appointed Acting Chief.

GOVERNMENT VESSELS GO OUT TO GET LATEST NEWS

(By Canadian Associated Press.)

New York, April 17.—The night passed without any definite news being received from the steamer Carpathia, which is expected to reach here late today with 866 of the survivors of the ill fated steamer Titanic. Although the Carpathia is expected to pass within range of Sable Island wireless station, no signal was received from there all night long. The anxiety in this city is something fearful. Government vessels, with powerful wireless apparatus, are steaming to catch the Carpathia and send in the story of the disaster and a complete list of the names of those rescued.

DAILY EDITION.

WEDNESDAY, APRIL 17

CONSISTENCY IS THE BRIGHTEST JEWEL.

Mayor Newton proved himself at the Monday night meeting of the Council to be a man of principle, but the special brand of principle he affects is a debatable question. He explained with the scrupulous care of a full-fledged diplomat how it was that he must vote for the early closing of bars, as a matter of principle, at the same time admitting that he had pledged himself before election to see that the existing law in reference to closing such places was not to be interfered with or changed. In the view of Alderman Morrissey this was a deliberate break of the Mayor's word of honor.

But to the Mayor "What is honor but a name; a word that hurls to sleep." Words, with him, are combinations of sounds issuing from the mouth for the purpose of expressing or obscuring the meaning of the speaker. Election pledges are as piecrust, made to be broken. Honor is one thing; principle is another and a far more sacred word or thing in the vocabulary of His Worship.

The Mayor also pledged himself that if elected he would see that the city hall force was reduced and the money of the people in this way economized and saved. At that time there was a large force of men at work for the city, and this entailed work on the city hall staff in the paying of these men, recording their names, answering questions and so on. There are now seventy-two men at work for the city, and the engineering force of the city hall now numbers seven—an engineer for every ten men.

At that time the city clerk was water and telephone collector, purchasing agent and a lot of other duties fell upon him in addition to those of city clerk. Since then there has been a new office created, that of purchasing agent to buy for the city all the materials used by seventy-two men and seven engineers and the lead pencils for the rest of the city hall staff, and in other ways the duties falling upon the city clerk have been reduced. But the city hall force has not been reduced in accordance with the pledges of the Mayor, nor have the expenses been reduced. The salary of the city clerk, also that of the accountant, was increased on Monday night.

There is no question as to the merits of those whose salaries were thus increased. It is a question of principle only. And the Mayor's principles are sacred things. Those pre-election pledges were words, mere words. The Mayor is the soul of principle and upon that soul there are no scabs.

But we would remind the Mayor that words, once uttered, unlike kites or the mayors of Seattle, cannot be recalled. He should see, therefore, that he make no more pledges; that no cyanide of street gossip poisons his utterances; that no benzoate of calumny enters into and adulterates his platform discourses. If not, even his sacred principles may be affected by disease.

BRITISH COLUMBIA MORTGAGED TO THE HILT.

No community of equal size in the history of the world has mortgaged its future in the guaranteeing of railway bonds as British Columbia has done under McBride, observes the Toronto Globe. The total obligations, direct and indirect, incurred have been over $47,000,000 for less than four hundred thousand people. The results of Thursday's polling prove the truth of Sir H. Tupper's statement. Sir William Mackenzie holds British Columbia in the hollow of his hand. The newly elected legislature is as much his servant as the office boy for whom he snaps his fingers when he needs a messenger.

Hopeful homesteaders are waiting outside of the Lethbridge land office to get a chance at homesteads which will be open for settlement on May 1. The system of handing out homesteads in this country is antiquated and barbaric. If a couple of mad bulls could file on homestead lands they would stand first chance to get the choicest prizes.

No one has yet suggested that Henri Bourassa in going abroad is contemplating entering the British parliament, yet he and Joe Martin would make a pretty pair of deuces to draw to.

COUNCIL STRIKES A BLOW AT CANNED COW

"Real Milk" Will be Imported by Boat to Delight Wives and Children of Prince Rupert

Hundreds of homes in Prince Rupert are supplied with canned milk alone—not because the residents prefer that kind of cow juice, but because it is all they can get. Many women and children who have come from more settled parts of Canada, or from the Old Country and America have all but forgotten the taste of "real milk." Before any home can get a supply of milk that is not the canned kind it is necessary to prove to the satisfaction of the dairyman that the said home can boast of a baby. So far, however, the habit of borrowing babies for the purpose of fraudulently obtaining "real" milk for adults has not become prevalent, but there is no knowing how soon it may.

In this city of the armor plated cow has come John Dorsey with a plan by which milk—really real milk—my flow like a river of whiteness into the city to be eagerly absorbed by thirsty citizens. Briefly, Mr. Dorsey's plan is to import milk from the city of Bellingham, Washington by boat and establish a milk depot here.

Glad tidings of great joy for the milk thirsty citizens of Rupert. But when the proposal Monday night came before the City Council some of the city fathers raised objections. (Had they been city mothers how different it would have been!) Objections were raised that by bringing the milk in from the United States it would make it impossible for the medical health officer of Prince Rupert to inspect the sources of supply according to the bylaw affecting the supply of milk in the city. It was hinted, too, that infants reared on United States produced milk might develop early symptoms of spradeaglomonia or starand-stripitis, which would not be becoming in B. C. babies.

Against such objections Alderman Montgomery, Alderman Clayton, Alderman Kerr, Alderman Maitland, and Alderman Morrissey raised voices in protest. Alderman Montgomery spoke for the babies, guaranteeing that they would not develop the foreign complaints specified. Alderman Clayton aroused a storm of applause by an outspoken demand that the Council should get busy and do something for the good of the city, not being hidebound by petty red tape. The milk supply proposed would fulfil all the inspection requirements as to sanitation, etc., insisted on in the States, which are fully as stringent as those required by the city of Prince Rupert. He moved that license to supply milk as proposed be granted applicant.

Alderman Morrissey showed that there is little chance of local enterprise being subject to unfair competition as there is little or no pasture land around Prince Rupert. Therefore, in spite of objections by other aldermen, he supported Alderman Clayton's motion, which was carried by a good majority. It was further agreed to issue a permit to let the applicant sell at once the milk he has had shipped experimentally, which has been tested by Dr. Reddie.

From Profits—or Losses?

WE all advertise.

A man advertises his character by his deeds, his wisdom by his words or by his silence. A merchant's store, stock, and windows speak either well or ill of his business.

So when a man says "No, I do not advertise," he knows not what he says. What he really means is that he does not publish printed advertisements.

Some proclaim this as though it were a virtue—yet spend much effort and invest much money in advertising their business through mediums other than the printed word.

They may make their wares fit for a king—yet hesitate to introduce them to Brown or Smith.

This is inconsistency.

The truth is, printed advertising is a vital force in every business, just as is the "silent" advertising of a product's quality or a merchant's service.

When you employ the Printed Word as your solicitor in the Court of Public Opinion, you build good will for your product or service—a good will that results in profit.

If unrepresented at this Court, your interests are as unprotected as though, when involved in a law suit, you failed to "enter an appearance" and the case is decided against you—by default.

So it is clear you pay for advertising—one way or the other. If you pay it wages, it will work for you.

If you refuse its offers of service, it will work against you, in just the measure of its employment by your Competitors.

So you are paying for advertising either out of your profits or by your losses.

Advice regarding your advertising problems is available through any good advertising agency, or the Secretary of the Canadian Press Association, Room 503 Lumsden Building. Enquiry involves no obligation on your part—so write, if interested.

WANT THE STRAPS BARRED.
At the meeting of the Rules Committee of the American Trotting Association a deputation representing a large number of members appeared and argued that the rule barring hop-pies should not be rescinded at present; that in their opinion it had not been given a fair trial, as it had only been applied to two or three year olds and that it should be continued in force at least two years longer. This deputation further showed that racing hops in which hoppers had been barred of the State fairs of Iowa, Nebraska and South Dakota over half-mile tracks had proved more successful and received more entries and starters than had those in which hop-pies were hon barred.

HUNTING WILD BEASTS
WITH A CAMERA
Adventures in Taking Cinematograph Pictures in the Jungle.

The business of hunting wild beasts with a camera is attended by as much excitement and rather more danger than hunting them with the usual weapons. Two Englishmen who make a business of getting cinematograph pictures of the denizens of the jungle have had much success and enough thrilling experiences to give them something to talk about for the balance of their days.
They are Cherry Kearton and his brother Richard. Cherry Kearton is reported to be the only man who has photographed lions while they were being shot, speared or lassoed. To a writer for the Evening Standard he gave this account of one of his hunting trips:

"One of my most memorable trips was in quest of a tiger. I obtained an introduction to the Sultan of Johore and asked him if he would shoot a tiger at 15 yards while I took the photograph. He refused, saying I should certainly be killed. I was willing to risk my camera and myself, but he would not take part.
"I went along to Ceylon and explained my mission to the Maharajah of Mysore, who made out a traveling pass to facilitate my journey, and provided me with an elephant for the jungle. As time was pressing, I covered the first 60 miles with relays of horses, and the next day I was in a dense jungle. I sat 21 days on the elephant's back before I could get my tiger.
"There were marks of him to be seen, but the difficulty was to locate him. In the meantime I was hunting another very dangerous animal, the bison. The bison gave me eight days' hard work on the elephant's back.
This statement may seem strange, but it was very awkward to push through the jungle, and at times I was swept off the elephant by overhanging branches. In a tropical climate this is very trying, and fatiguing, too.
"At the end of the eighth day I got my bison at from 15 to 20 yards. The trackers never went more than four yards without looking for a tree as a means of escape. They could tell by examining the blades of grass how long it had been since the animal had passed that way.
"While I was after the bison I got about 50 elephants around me. The game ranger, who accompanied me, was scared less they should charge the tame elephant, as they had done on previous occasions with fatal results.
"I was very disappointed at not being able to get the tiger, and I determined to prolong my stay in the hope that success would at last reward my efforts. I had been in the jungle 20 days without seeing the beast, when I reluctantly decided to commensate my return journey. I saw tracks of a mile from the village I saw tracks of a bullock having been dragged in the direction of a tunnel formed out of heavy plant and leaf growth.
"Jumping off my elephant, I found marks of the tiger as he had retraced backward, probably pulling the bullock by the nose. I crawled up the tunnel on my hands and knees with my revolver ready. It was very dark, and I had not gone far when I came upon part of the bullock's carcass freshly gnawed. Deeming it unsafe to penetrate further, I returned to the game ranger, who decided, as the beast was becoming a man-eater, that it should be destroyed.
"He obtained 300 men to act as drivers. I cut away the opening of the tunnel and waited developments behind a leafy screen. The tiger came toward me bellowing and grunting, and when he got opposite the screen he gave one of those fearful coughs which only the man who has been close to such a beast can appreciate.
The tiger was 11 feet long, and was the biggest tiger the game ranger had ever seen. He told me he would not go through the same experience again for a thousand pounds, adding
"I have done with this work."
"The natives could not understand why I did not shoot the tiger. They expected to see bullets come out of the camera.
"It was decided to proceed to kill the beast and 15 men were selected to jump from behind the bushes and spear it. When the signal was given only three men obeyed, and the tiger was clawed by the tiger. I was up a tree about eight yards away, and I kept my eye fixed on the beast.
"At last I shouted, and with an other terrifying grunt he trotted off into the jungle. I covered the last 60 miles of my journey and took boat to England."

RACING IN GERMANY
It Has Appealed to the French in Late Years.
German racing has of late appealed to French owners, says a European correspondent, for the market in that country has been widely opened to French produce. The Prussian State Budget has just been passed, and contains a provision that every two years a first-class sire should be bought for the service of the State and private owners possessing a thorough bred stud. The price to be given for such a suitable sire is fixed at $75,000 and each year half of that amount will be handed over to the Government buyers. A further grant of $20,000 has been made for securing a good thoroughbred sire for the half-bred stud while another $15,000 has been placed at the disposal of the Royal Graditz stud. It is understood that this grant will be continuous, so that the different strains of racing blood may be continually renewed.

Letters to the Editor

Dear Sir,—Although I am very loath to enter into newspaper controversy, yet the petition circulating in the hands of the hotel men ought to call forth a protest from all right minded citizens.

This matter of the hotel hours is now subjudice by our city council. It ought therefore to be unmolested at this stage by outsiders. The council is weighing the question on its merits. They arose at 1.30 a.m. after Monday night's session, reporting progress, yet with no decision reached. Six of the aldermen have taken their stand clearly on the question: they are in favor of shorter hours. As yet they have reached no agreement as to how great a reduction will be made. Now, for the hotelmen to bring undue influence to bear upon them in the very process of deciding, is to me a very questionable proceeding; and to think that our city council can be stampeded or intimidated by this petition, is to underestimate the calibre of the men who compose it.

The fact is that the liquor men have no longer the power of intimidation which they imagine they have. There is a growing determination among the people to assert their birth right of independence, and few really wish the bars open until midnight. A number of business men told me after the last liquor petition, "Yes, I signed it, and I will sign any petition that goes round, both for or against if necessary." They consider these petitions an imposition upon them, because they naturally desire to retain the patronage of both sides in an issue; and for them to be called upon to live up to their signatures on one side in every contest, is to put their business at a recurring disadvantage. They are tired of petitions.

Why should the hotelmen determine to force the hands of the council? Which of these six do they imagine will bow down before their mighty petition? It is certain that Ald. Douglas and

Ald. Bullock-Webster are as firmly in favor of shorter hours as are the other four who urged more drastic reduction.

And after all, it is not merely a matter of hours. It is the bigger question of whether the hotel men are going to carry their own legislation by this process of bombardment. The council is not unreasonable. Vancouver and Victoria have no bars open until midnight. From the Atlantic ocean to the Rocky Mountains there is not a bar in the Dominion open until midnight. Why then should Prince Rupert hotel men put up such a desperate fight for this last, dark midnight hour?

I believe that the people will stand behind the council in what it is doing. And I further believe that our council is ready to defy the opposition of those who will not stand behind it, because they know they are doing right. It is hard to budge a man who has taken his stand upon his principles.—I am, Sir, Yours truly,

F. W. KERR.

WILD ANXIETY IN NEW YORK

Worth Millions.

Both vessels were built at Belfast by the famous firm of Harland & Wolff, greatest ship builders in the world, and represented the last word in luxurious trans-Atlantic accommodation for all classes of passengers. Abundance of space for the accommodation of her passengers was the feature of the Titanic, and her equipment, furnishing and upholstery were simply superb. Their cost ran into the six figures.

Drowned Luxuries.

For the first class passengers, whose number was restricted to three hundred, there were suites of luxuriously furnished state-rooms, dining saloon with alcoves, palms, velvet curtains, richest of furnishings and every modern device for comfort similar to the most elaborate of hotels ashore. Libraries, smoking rooms, gymnasiums and even a swimming bath figured amongst the luxuries provided. Electric elevators served every portion of the great liner, and the services of a stringed orchestra of first rate musicians were retained to add to the pleasures of the Atlantic voyage for the passengers. Second Class Like First.

As showing the sumptuous nature of the boat's equipment mention may be made of the fact that even in the second class passenger quarters wardrobes featured as part of their state-room accommodation. In fact, second class accommodation on the Titanic surpassed easily most first class accommodation on any other liner afloat.

Tragedy of Boat Deck.

The boat deck, on which were enacted some of the most piteous scenes ever chronicled in the history of marine disaster, was thus described at the time of the Titanic's launching: "The boat, or topmost deck of the steamer is an exceptionally spacious one and offers a most attractive rendezvous for those who may wish to engage in games or pastimes; there is chair space also for others who would enjoy more quietly the delights of a day at sea."

Engine Room Heroes.

The boat deck was reached by electric elevators, and amongst the heroes of this latest of marine horrors must be numbered the engineers who stuck to their posts keeping power supplied to hurry frantic passengers aloft from the lower decks, until the flooding of the engine rooms made all further effort useless. That all the boats were launched and accounted for is noble testimony to the magnificent management of the Titanic in time of disaster.

FATHER DONNELLY'S LECTURE ON SOCIALISM

Westholme Opera House Crowded---Famous Lecturer Strips Socialistic Argument of Its Sophistries and Tinsel and is Warmly Applauded by Audience

It might be the popularity of Rev. Father Donnelly or the general interest in the subject of Socialism that crowded the Westholme Opera House Monday night, but it seems fair to assume that more Socialists, or people with minds bent in that direction, went in than came out. In a remarkably easy and graceful manner the lecturer explained what Socialism is and is not; and the few questions that were put by Socialists when he closed did nothing to blur the masterly picture of socialistic argument he had drawn without the use of an unnecessary word.

William Manson, M. P. P., presided on the platform with him was Rev. Father Bunoz, who at the close moved a vote of thanks to Father Donnelly which was accorded with hearty cheers. There was also a general salvo of applause when the lecturer completed his discourse. During it he was listened to with the most respectful silence, the closeness of his argument and the intensity with which it was followed leaving no loophole for merely complimentary approbation.

Father Donnelly considered himself peculiarly qualified to speak on such a subject as he was the only practical Socialist present. He was not a capitalist; he labored with his pen, his tongue and his brain and he got no wages. He did not theorize and accumulate a few corner lots, and he had no special axe to grind. But a short time ago he had called upon Herr Be
