Militarists predict a winter long + siege of the Mannerheim Line on + + + + + + + + the Karelian Istumus as the Russians are still reported driven CAPTAIN IS

The Russians continued their assaults on the Mannerheim Line over the week-end but were still unsuccessful in making a breach. On the Salla front Soviet ski troops, emulating the tactics of the Finns, launched a ski attack but it was ineffectual and the Finnish command claimed that three hundred Russians had been killed with many wounded.

On the Arctic front the Soviet campaign appears likely to collapse completely under the Finnish resistance and sub-zero weather conditions.

forty-fourth division, by Finnish ing. forces, reported today, the Russians continue in flight, abandoning large numbers of wounded and large quantities of war materials including 43 tanks, guns, armored cars and airplanes as well as over 1000 prisoners.

Last week the Finnish had reported that the invaders' 163rd. Division was wiped out in the northem part of the Suomussalmi

In the endeavour to halt the fast-moving Finns, the Reds have resorted to use of barbed wire and the dynamiting of trenches.

Four more Russian planes were shot down yesterday while bombing Finnish towns, making a total of 200 planes which, according to Finnish claims, the Soviet has lost since the war began.

Cabinet Crisis In Britain Seen

4 Country Appears to be Restless Following Removal of Hore-Belisha As Secretary For War

LONDON, Jan. 8.—The possibility of a cabinet crisis in Great Britain in the midst of war is seen following the removal of Leslie Hore-Belisha as secretary of war. Calling for an immediate session of Parliament which the government is unlikely to agree to, the British Labor party! is demanding a full explanation of Zealanders since war broke out is the circumstances of Hore-Belisha's removal. The press generally continues to express dissatisfaction at the change.

The Evening Standard said today that tactlessness was one of inion's sterling funds which the causes of Hore-Belisha's removal from the War Secretaryship, last year. On one occasion he severely rebuked a senior officer in the presence of a junior officer. There was also difference of opinion with Sir Edmund Ironside over the state of defences in France.

Farmers Will Probably Do Better in This War Than in Last

LOCAL DEFENCE OF RUSSIA

Editor, Daily News:

While condemning the Nazi press for party bias and tendencious! news and propaganda, the press on this continent is indulging in those same methods so violently denounced.

For instance, we have been told! that the Russian soldiers are ill equipped and underfed, while only nine months ago we were told by these same papers that the Red Army was the strongest fighting force in the world. We are being that Soviet Russia now is sending 2,000,000 more men into Finland, while any sane persons nows that this cannot be done the Russian Armies in Finland do not outnumber the Finnish forces. We have been told! about bombing of civilians and machine - gunning of peaceful; neonle whereas everyone knows, or ought to know, that if such were the case the Russian air force could have blackened the whole

Will not these extravagant statements overshoot the target and become boomerangs. Obviously, they will in time. Whether we look at this war as a righteous or unrighteous war, we should not indulge in such journalism.

For instance, the world almanac supplies us with correct information as to the strength of Soviet Russia. They are producing 25 per cent of all the grain in the world, and other victuals in proportion. How can they be underfed under such circumstances? They have snow and cold climate on the Russian side as well as on e Finnish side. They have Finthere are discontented Finns who co-operate with the Red Army. The Finnish government in 1918 was forcefully evicted by the present rulers and thousands upon thousands of Finnish workers were slaughtered in cold blood by Mannerheim and his henchmen. Does the public recollect how Russia, prostrated by the war, by intervention and famine, was robbed twenty years ago? Perhaps not. but truth will out sooner or later and then all the wrong information we have received will have shot far over the target.

C.C.F. Bridge Party Enjoyed

The local Co-operative Commonwealth Federation Club opened a series of winter bridge parties Saturday night. Eleven tables were in play and the affair proved very enjoyable. Prize - winners were: men's first, George Howe; second, James Hampton; ladies' first, Mrs. James Krikevsky; second, Mrs. S. L. Peachy. George Lawson was master of ceremonies. At the conclusion of card playing, delicious refreshments were served.
