GERMANS TACTICS CHANGED

Revert To Mass Daylight Raids Over British Isles—Meet With Heavy Resistance

GOVERNMENT STAYING LONDON, Oct. 17: (CP)—The Parliamentary correspondent of Reuters tonight wrote that there is "no question of the government leaving London" because of raids. It gave no reason for reiterating what is understood to be fixed government policy.

LONDON, Oct. 17: (CP)—Changing their tactics again from the sending over of bombers singly or in small numbers, the Nazis resumed widespread mass daylight raids on the British Isles today with hundreds of planes but Royal Air Force fighters and anti-aircraft guns succeeded to large extent in driving them off from the centre of the city. The enemy dumped their explosive cargoes on the outlying portions of the city and in the southeast section several buildings were demolished. Early reports for the day showed three enemy planes shot down. Damage since yesterday, it is stated, has been comparatively slight and casualties relatively not high.

Sixteen districts were hit in last night's raids which opened up rather quietly but became more severe as the night advanced. Liverpool, Merseyside and Birmingham were subjected to attack and the enemy also engaged in bombing in Wales, Scotland and scattered sections of England. As reports of last night's raid on London came in, the attack appeared heavier than was at first believed but still comparatively light.

Autumn rains appear to be serving to assist the fighters and anti-aircraft fire in keeping the raiders off the centre of London.

Digging In Ruins Rescue squads dug Wednesday for persons entombed in one of the worst overnight bombardments in forty days of continuous siege of London while Nazi planes roved the coast of England, Scotland and Wales.

Despite widespread reports of Nazi raiders, an official communique said: "There was hardly any enemy activity over this country Wednesday."

Apparently, the principal objective of the daylight raids was reconnaissance.

The number of persons killed in Tuesday night's bombing of London was greater than in recent raids, the Air Ministry announced. The statement said, however, that casualties were considerably lower than in early September raids in which daily death tolls were 300 and 400. Almost without pause the Germans followed up with fresh thrusts at London, near Liverpool, along the south and east coasts and over the coastal regions of Scotland and Wales. The cold October dawn lighted many scenes of devastation in London. A famous London square was piled with debris of shattered buildings. A whole block of apartment buildings was blown to pieces. Dead and injured lay in the ruins.

Formations of hundreds of aircraft attacked Britain today as the Germans switched back to their mass daylight style of raids against London and other areas. Most were forced back during two morning and one afternoon raid but some managed to penetrate the London defences and drop bombs in the capital area. The British planes were outnumbered three to one but, in one of the biggest fights in weeks, kept the enemy away from London.

The raids started early in the morning when twenty planes crossed near the Thames estuary only to be repulsed. They were followed by more than one hundred some of which bombed London while even-

Nazis Flee To Rumania

BUCHAREST, Rumania, Oct. 17: (CP)—Preparations to house 200,000 children being removed from Berlin, Hamburg and other large German centres to escape Royal Air Force bombing are being made in the Benat region of Western Rumania, it is reported authoritatively.

NAVY GETS LARGE BAG

Three Supply Vessels and Two Warships of Enemy Are Sunk—Troop Casualties at Cherbourg

LONDON, Oct. 17:—Three German supply ships, one a 7,000-tonner, and two Nazi war vessels have been sunk by the British navy in an attack on an enemy convoy in the English Channel or North Sea, it is stated by the Admiralty. Another 7,000-ton merchant ship was crippled.

Between 40,000 and 50,000 German troops have been killed or wounded as a result of a bombardment of the Channel base of Cherbourg, according to a report from Madrid.

RAID NEWS RESTRICTED

Foreign Correspondents No Longer Have Free Hand in Germany

BERLIN, Oct. 17: (CP)—Foreign correspondents have been forbidden to cable news regarding air raids in Germany until formal announcements have been made by the authorities.

German Motorboat Eludes Big Guns

Enemy Vessel, However, Escaped From Long Range Artillery Near Dover

DOVER, Oct. 17: (CP)—British long range guns fired at a German torpedo-carrying speed boat several miles off the French coast this morning. The boat, apparently, escaped.

A larger formation crossed the Kent coast. Next to London the raiders seemed to be making their most determined stabs at the West of England coast.

One coastal town reported German planes overhead for the second time shortly after lunch.

Dozens of bombs were unloaded on the shopping district of a south-east town, demolishing several buildings.

The renewal of the massed daylight raid is a shift in tactics for the Germans who have been recently using fighter planes and bombers singly or in small groups.

The Germans claim to have made direct bomb hits northwest of Waterloo Bridge and set fires around Royal Albert Docks.

The Air Ministry denies a German claim that three hundred British soldiers were killed when a troop train was struck during a bombing attack. The report is described as "piffle."

KILLED IN AIR RAIDS

Prominent Industrialist And Noted Naval Man Are Listed Among Casualties

LONDON, Oct. 17: (CP)—Air raid casualty lists include the names of two important victims—William Lionel Hitchins, chairman of Cammell-Laird Shipbuilding Co. and director of the London, Midlands and Scottish Railway, and Rear Admiral R. B. B. Tower, former director of the Portsmouth naval school.

BABSON IS CANDIDATE

Running For U. S. President On Prohibition Issue, Hopes He'll Triple Support

LOS ANGELES, Oct. 17: (CP)—Roger Babson, famous for a generation as a business prophet, is doubling in politics this fall. He's carrying the presidential banner of the Prohibition party and, although realizing that he's pretty well overlooked, he thinks he will make enough noise to attract a million votes. In 1936 the Prohibition vote was 350,000.

It's a different, wider kind of prohibition that the 55-year old analyst is preaching—one that applies "not to liquor alone but to all the commercialized evils that are undermining the character, health and earning power of the nation."

"Our watchword is self-denial for the nation's good," he explains, "and we're going to have to force that self-denial on about 20 percent of the population."

"We can leave the remaining 80 percent to their consciences. But statistics show that 20 percent of the American people are irresponsible, lawless or greedy and they have to be regimented and disciplined to protect the rest of us."

Babson doesn't advocate "the fatal mistake of national prohibition." Regeneration from the bottom up is the party's aim, he says, and that regeneration may as well take in gambling, vice and naughty magazines. Above all, it must mean personal sacrifice, in Babson's opinion.

BURMA IS REOPENED

Japan Threatens to Use Force Against Both Road and Port of Hong Kong

LONDON, October 17: (CP)—Official sources said today that the Burma road, which Great Britain closed for three months last July in an effort to improve relations with Japan, was reopened to arms traffic to China at midnight tonight Burma Time (9:30 a.m. Pacific Standard Time). It was said authoritatively that ending of the Burma road agreement paved the way for reopening of Hong Kong to arms shipments to China if desirable.

Japanese authorities at Tokyo contend that reopening of Hong Kong is not linked up with reopening of the Burma road, there having been two separate agreements. The Japanese threatened to use force against Hong Kong as well as the Burma road in their determination to prevent shipments to China.

Meantime seven hundred Chinese trucks were ready at the end of the Burma road to start moving into China with supplies, planning to bring out antimony for the United States. The trucks will travel in small and scattered numbers as a precaution against Japanese bombing.

GERMANS CAPTURED

Two Prisoners Who Escaped From New Brunswick Camp Back In Custody

SAINT JOHN, New Brunswick, Oct. 17: (CP)—Two German prisoners who escaped from an internment camp near here have been recaptured. Rabbit hunters located them in a deserted shack and police recaptured them without difficulty. The two men had been interned from a German ship seized shortly after the start of the war.

LOG CAMPS SHUT DOWN

Production Now Well Ahead of Deliveries—Will Reopen After First of Year

Logging camps on the Queen Charlotte Islands, with production now well ahead of orders for war purposes, are commencing to close down. Soon after the first of the year it is expected they will be re-opening. Camps affected are the J. R. Morgan Logging Co., A. P. Allison Logging Co. and T. A. Kelley Logging Co., all large Moresby Island operators.

AIRCRAFT AND NAVY

Both Branches of British Service Are Active in Bombardment of Enemy

The Air Ministry announced today that Royal Air Force planes had bombed a power station at Brest, causing extensive damage.

LONDON, Oct. 17: (CP)—The Royal Air Force, continuing its incessant bombardment of German war bases and war industries, dropped large numbers of heavy calibre bombs during Tuesday night on German naval bases of Kiel, Bremen, Hamburg and Cuxhaven as well as other military objectives, causing extensive new fires and fresh damage the Air Ministry announced today. Weather was spotty, clear in places and elsewhere so bad that blind flying was necessary. Some Royal Air Force planes assigned to objectives in Germany were unable to reach their destinations so they attacked other targets. Although unfavorable weather hampered last night's operations, they were nevertheless described as successful. Five planes failed to return. British naval units were also active in the attack on the Nazi shores Tuesday night and bombarded the German-occupied port of Dunkerque. An Admiralty statement said that large fires were started and great damage was, apparently, caused.

PASSING OF MRS. BLACK

Death, occurring yesterday at noon at the Prince Rupert General Hospital, removed one of Prince Rupert's highly esteemed pioneer women in the person of Mrs. Margaret Black, wife of James Black, 719 Alfred Street. She had been in failing health for the past five or six months but had been in hospital only a day before death came.

Mrs. Black was born at Gorebridge, Midlothianshire, Scotland, sixty-five years ago and came to Prince Rupert about thirty years ago, having resided here continuously since that time. She made many friends by whom she was highly regarded and who will regret deeply her passing.

Besides the widower, Mrs. Black is survived by one son, Thomas B. Black. They will have general sympathy in their bereavement.

The funeral will take place tomorrow afternoon from the chapel of the B.C. Undertakers with Rev. H. G. Munton, pastor of First Presbyterian Church, officiating.

Weather Forecast

General Synopsis—The pressure continues low off the coast and the weather has been unsettled throughout this province. West Coast of Vancouver Island—Fresh southeast winds, cloudy and mild with occasional light rains.

FINAL BULLETINS

MRS. JABOUR DIES Word has reached the city of the death last Friday in Hollywood, after a lengthy illness, of Mrs. Dan Jabour, formerly of Prince Rupert. Mrs. Jabour, who was an early resident of Prince Rupert, left here a few years ago and had since resided in California. Mr. Jabour died here several years ago. There are two daughters—Marcelle and Lorraine—both attending University in Los Angeles. Mrs. Jabour was a past worthy matron of Belist Chapter, Order of the Eastern Star, here. Many friends will regret to learn of her death.

Russian Policy - - -

Many people are looking to Russia to help the British against Germany and the United States government is supplying Russia with her needs because she is a "friendly power." Yet Russia must be considered an uncertain quantity. We are bound to remember how she acted on a former occasion. If she now decides to throw in her lot with the Turks and British she will undoubtedly be welcomed but too much dependence must not be placed in her. She will fight if it serves her purpose but, as long as the present government is in power in that country, we are bound to look upon her with suspicion, much as we would like to do otherwise.

Asian Policy - - -

The Russian policy in Asia is just as uncertain as is her European policy. She had some kind of a pact with Japan but all the time she was supplying China with war materials including airplanes. Duplicity is expected, evidently, and duplicity is what the neighboring nations get. We have no idea what sort of pact Russia had with Germany but even there one side is not playing the game and possibly both are engaged in an effort to outwit the other. They are allies only as long as it suits them.

If it is true that Russia is making a pact with Japan, will she continue to help China? It seems unreasonable but we must not take the affair too seriously. Pacts do not mean much to either Russia or Japan. They are just scraps of paper. We must not forget that.

Delivering the Goods - - -

A front-page item from Montreal reads as follows: "Emphasizing that Britain still rules the waves, a label on a shipment of goods received by a Montreal sporting firm today proclaimed: 'Britain Delivers the Goods.'" This reminds us, says the Victoria Times, that not so long ago the Nazi propaganda factory boasted that German commercial houses and factories were in the field for deliveries to this hemisphere this fall—just another timetable that requires adjustment.

Not only is Britain doing much of her normal business with this continent, however, she is taking advantage of some lucrative markets of which until a year ago Germany was not a little proud. Rayon is a case in point. British manufacturers of this commodity have organized themselves into one of the country's strongest export groups to secure for the United Kingdom a share in the colossal yearly export of nearly 250,000,000 square yards of this material from the now isolated European countries to the rest of the world. Less than one-fifth of the total was exported from Europe in the form of actual piece goods; most of it went as yarn, but, as each kilogram of yarn finally forms 11 square yards of cloth, the enormous total is an accurate estimate.

Almost three-fifths of this trade was formerly held by Italy. The Netherlands did an important part of the remainder, shared by France, Germany, Belgium, Switzerland and Czechoslovakia, in that order. The business is now open to British and neutral competition, which, in effect, means to Britain, the United States and, most powerful of all, Japan, now, however, very much occupied with her own troubles both economically and in regard to raw material. Far and away the biggest of the new markets is British India, where the new cheap yarns which are now being specially produced in Great Britain will be much needed.

In South America no less than 57,000,000 square yards of rayon cloth are being thrown open to competition. There are 37,000,000 yards to be replaced in Central America and Mexico; 6,000,000 yards in the United States and Canada; 25,000,000 yards in Africa (mainly in Egypt); 24,000,000 yards more in Australia, despite the large trade already done there by Britain and Japan; and 18,000,000 yards in the Far East, half of it in the Dutch East Indies.

The value of this former European output of rayon now handed over by Adolf Hitler to the outside world is approximately $55,000,000, and the making of the rayon would employ more than 50,000 workers for a full year. The moral in all this, of course, is that the Britain which down through the years has had to accommodate herself to all sorts of unexpected circumstances is able to devise ways and means of getting new business while Nazi bombs continue to fall on her metropolis.

BEACH UMBRELLA IN DESERT WARFARE

The crew of a British armored car on patrol in the desert near the Libyan frontier takes it easy during the really hot hours of the day. They have a "brolly" (beach umbrella) as standard equipment, but the frowning muzzles of the car's machine-guns indicate that this is one umbrella that doesn't mean appeasement.

WANDERERS WIN AGAIN

Second Game Of King Edward School Football League

In the second fixture of the King Edward School football league the Wanderers scored another win, this time by beating the Maple Leafs two goals to nil.

There was little to choose between the teams generally but the Leafs were very weak forward. In goal a newcomer, Joe Hogan, played a fine game. Alex McIntosh and Ken Brocklesby were two good backs. Gomez and Hamilton were good at half back. Pifford played hard but was out of his position. Wilson was the only forward who could shoot. Stacey tried hard. For Wanderers Eyclifson stopped a good drive from Wilson. Hebb and Bugg were safe at back. Murray and Immie Intermela were good at half back and Antonsen, Bagshaw and Ole Skog were the best of the rest. Murray scored and Brocklesby was unlucky enough to turn a second goal past his own goalie.

Teams: Maple Leafs—Joe Hogan; Alex McIntosh, Ken Brocklesby; Bill Prince, W. Gomez, J. Hamilton; P. Wilson (captain), D. Woods, R. Stacey, C. Pifford, George Thomas, Aneus McIntosh, R. G.Hker. Wanderers—Eyclifson; J. Hebb, W. Bugg; Flaten, D. Murray, Jim Intermela; Ole Skog, A. Bagshaw, S. Antonsen (captain), Nikow Tanaka, G. Prince.

Dr. Carter Entertains Parent-Teachers With Colorful Scenes

The regular monthly meeting of the Prince Rupert Parent-Teachers' Association was held last evening in the Booth Memorial High School with the president, Mrs. George Hill, in the chair.

Following the business meeting Dr. Neal Carter showed colored moving pictures he had taken along the recently opened Jasper-Banff Highway. They were remarkably clear, colorful true to nature and gave a splendid idea of the topography of the land forming the British Columbia-Alberta boundary in the vicinity of Jasper and Banff. Turbulent streams on their separate courses to Hudson Bay and the Pacific Ocean, huge mountains etched against blue skies, a slow melting glacier by the roadside, the wild animal life of the government natural park, the modern ferry on Kootenay Lake—such scenes passed in leisurely procession before the eyes of the deeply engrossed audience.

The business routine included the reading of the treasurer's report and letters from the principals of the local schools thanking the association for its donations to the school funds.

During the evening Miss Peggy Large rendered a delightful piano solo.

At the close refreshments were served by a committee consisting of Mrs. Wood and Mrs. Perkins.

Were United In Marriage

Miss Heding Carlsen Becomes Bride Of Fusilier Isaac Dick

A very pretty wedding was solemnized last Tuesday evening at 7:30 in the Anglican Church, Capt. (Rev.) Durnford officiating, of Miss Heding Carlsen, youngest daughter of Emil Carlsen of Digby Island, to Fusilier Isaac Dick of Vancouver. The witnesses were Mr. and Mrs. Harry Paulson of this city.

The bride was a pretty picture in a sky blue crepe frock. She wore orange blossom wreath and carried a bouquet of pink and white carnations. She was given in marriage by her father.

A reception was held at the home of Mr. and Mrs. C. H. Doane, Sixth Avenue West. The rooms were tastefully decorated for the occasion with white and pink streamers and a white bell was suspended in the centre of the room under which the bride and groom stood for the toast which was proposed by Corporal Garscaden of the Royal Canadian Army Medical Corps, being suitably responded to by the groom. The bride then received a present from the groom. This was a bracelet of green and white gold.

Refreshments were served at midnight. The bride and groom sat at their table especially arranged and decorated with white and pink sweet peas and foliage. The wedding cake was cut by the bride.

Some seventy-five guests were present. Dancing and singing were enjoyed until the early hours of the morning. The music was furnished with piano accordion by Jack Bond and violin and banjo by two Fusiliers.

The bride and groom received hearty congratulations from relatives and their many friends. They also received many beautiful and useful gifts.

Fusilier and Mrs. Dick will reside at the Palmer Apartments.

TWENTY-FIVE YEARS AGO HEAVY MAIL FOR TROOPS

Edith Cavell Faced German Firing Squad After Trial By Military Court in Brussels

By H. H. GORDON
Canadian Press Staff Writer
On the scroll of the world's heroine's the story of Edith Louisa Cavell adds a golden lustre to the record of British womanhood's bravery and sacrifice. Twenty-five years ago Saturday the gracious English nurse died a martyr's death at Brussels—shot by a German firing squad.

Today Nazi bombs rain on the countryside where Edith Cavell's body lies enshrined in Norwich Cathedral. It was brought back from Belgium in 1919 and interred there after a memorial service in Westminster Abbey. Near London's Trafalgar Square a statue stands as an enduring memorial and, at the same time, a reminder of one of the world-shocking incidents of the First Great War.

Edith Cavell, then 50 years old, went unflinchingly to her death October 12, 1915, after being found guilty by a German military court of aiding more than 100 British, French and Belgian soldiers to escape from Belgium in the first year of the war.

In no sense was she a spy and all her activities sprang from a desire to help the distressed and injured. Her execution has been described in many quarters as "judicial murder" and, even if legally justifiable according to German military standards, it was nevertheless a blunder.

Political considerations may have figured in the German court's decision. Against deference to her sex and allowance for humane motives, her judges may have weighed a demand for a severe sentence to assure obedience of the Belgian population.

Cared For Wounded

As head of the Birkendael medical institute in Brussels, Miss Cavell led a band of nurses and others in caring for German wounded as well as soldiers of the Allies. Included were a number of British and French soldiers stranded in Belgium when they were cut off from their units in the 1914 retreat.

Suspicion fastened on the Englishwoman when Allied soldiers were successfully spirited out of the country into Holland. On August 5, 1915, she was arrested and placed in solitary confinement in St. Gilles prison.

Nine weeks later Miss Cavell was one of 36 prisoners arraigned before a military tribunal. The proceedings were conducted in German though a French interpreter was provided. The English nurse was defended by Sadi Kirschen of the Brussels bar. His defence was hindered by the fact that he had not been able to see Miss Cavell before the trial and was not allowed to inspect documents.

The prosecution appears to have had no evidence that she had succeeded in enabling military refugees to reach Britain, but her admission at the trial that she had received letters of thanks from repatriated men was made much of.

The interval between the imposition of the death sentence, October 11, and her execution the following morning found United States Minister Brand Whitlock and the Spanish minister active in Miss Cavell's behalf. They pleaded vigorously for her life before German officials.

Baron von Lacken, civil governor of Belgium, and General von Sauberzweig, military governor of Brussels, proved adamant. It was General von Sauberzweig who gave the order that "in the interests of the state" the execution of the death penalty should be carried out immediately.

Visited by Clergyman

The United States minister succeeded in obtaining permission for Rev. H. S. T. Gahan, chaplain of Christ Church, Brussels, to visit Miss Cavell before the end. It was in a talk with her after he had given her Holy Communion that the brave woman made the remark, "patriotism is not enough"—words that rang around the world. She faced the firing squad with the same dignity and fortitude that marked her deportment throughout the long imprisonment and trial.

Reared in the quiet atmosphere of a Norfolk vicarage, there was nothing in her early life to portend the event that only intensified previous reports of German ruthlessness. Edith Cavell was the daughter of Rev. Frederick Cavell, vicar of Swardston and his wife, Louisa Sophia Walming.

Postal Service Looks For Very Big Business With Overseas At Christmas

OTTAWA, Oct. 17: (CP)—The flow of mail into the United Kingdom from parents, relatives and sweethearts, to those serving with the Canadian Active Service Force, has added tonnage to the mail bags to be sent by men of the Canadian postal services.

The outlook, according to C. C. McGrail, district postal director, is for an especially brisk time during the Christmas season when volume of mail takes a big jump anyway.

"The Christmas season will be a tough assignment but there's no need to fear that holiday mail won't reach the men overseas in plenty of time," said McGrail.

He would make no estimate of increased mails that might be expected, summing it up this way: "One word does it—tonnage."

When war broke out extra help was taken on in the postal service to be ready to handle the "mail blitz" that would come when the Canadian troops went overseas and the base post office was organized in Ottawa to take care of this flow of mail.

Ottawa's base post office, handling mail for men overseas, dealt with 7,886 bags during August. The mail bags are forwarded from Ottawa to Montreal for shipment overseas. They are "two-in-one" affairs. The outside bag serves as protection to the inner one which contains the letters.

An official of the Post Office departments said the base post office now handles 255 bags a day as compared with 15 bags daily a short time after war started.

So strenuous has the work been up to date, McGrail stated, that a few members of his staff have been confined to bed from injuries suffered while loading base post office packages.

held various positions in England and in 1906 went to Brussels to assist in establishing a modern training school for nurses. A year later she was appointed the first matron of the Birkendael institute, the success of which soon made it of national importance. Miss Cavell was in charge of the institute when the Germans overran Belgium. They gave her permission to continue her work and the institute became a Red Cross hospital.

FRANK TALK ON SUBJECT OF DISEASE

One of British Columbia's Major Social Problems Discussed Before Local Service Club

Veneral disease constitutes one of British Columbia's major health problems but the provincial board of health is realistically attacking the menace which has been a long-neglected public health tragedy, one which defeatism, prudery and vesting interest have kept the citizens from seeing in its true light, the Prince Rupert Gyro Club was told in a luncheon address yesterday by Dr. Donald H. Williams, director of the provincial veneral disease control board. Dr. Williams spoke frankly on "Problems of Veneral Disease Control in British Columbia," gave some startling facts in regard to the incidence of syphilis and gonorrhoea and then some reassuring revelations as to results being obtained by means of government-sponsored efforts to check the ravages of these treacherous maladies. Incidentally he unqualifiedly advocated, through eradication of the third party aspect, the elimination of bawdy houses which he described as "strategic bottle necks through which virulent syphilis and gonorrhoea is imported into Canada and spread throughout the western provinces by the migrations of diseased women." Declaring that the danger of the house of prostitution could not be overemphasized, Dr. Williams condemned commercialized prostitution as an "alien fifth column" which assisted Hitler by undermining the health of potential recruiting material in British Columbia. It was one of the purposes of the Provincial Board of Health, the speaker declared, to associate in the public mind the inseparable intimacy of veneral disease and the bawdy house or public fornicatory.

The enormity of the problem of veneral disease Dr. Williams impressed upon his listeners by figures from the report of the Division of Veneral Disease Control for 1933. There were 2613 new notifications of veneral disease during the year. Admissions to the public clinics totalled 4,689 of which 1639 were found to be diseased. In addition to free clinical services, free medication amounting to 32,203 doses was distributed to private physicians for their patients. During the past ten years 390 persons with syphilis-riddled brains had entered the Provincial Mental Hospital at Essondale. Each year the Provincial Division of Laboratories performed over 100,000 tests for syphilis and gonorrhoea. Ten percent of deaths from heart failure were attributable to veneral disease. The disease also resulted in numerous miscarriages, still births and imbecile births.

British Columbia Program

The Scandinavian countries, the League of Nations health department and other health experts had demonstrated how the appalling public health situation outlined might be readily and satisfactorily dealt with. A four-point program, based on public education and enlightenment, was being launched which would reach every community in British Columbia.

First, Dr. Williams said, the prevention of innocent infection of young married women with syphilis could be accomplished by pre-marital blood tests for both parties. Much syphilis acquired by young men had such mild early signs that its presence was never suspected. Its presence could only be detected by a blood test. Adequate treatment by the family physician would permit marriage with safety at a later date.

Congenital syphilis, the most tragic of all forms of the disease, could be eliminated almost completely, continued the speaker, if every expectant mother would visit her physician before the fifth month and request a blood test. Regular weekly treatment until the baby was born would guarantee the child almost a 95 per cent chance of being healthy and non-syphilitic.

Suppression of quackery was a move to prevent the exploitation of diseased, fear-ridden citizens by unqualified persons whose remedies drove the disease deeper in and the only benefit of which was the monetary one accruing to the quack.

Another line of campaign was the suppression, as provided for in the Criminal Code of Canada and approved by health authorities, of commercialized prostitution. This unsavory commerce which by fraudulent and deceitful means clothes its highly diseased state with a superficial veneer of apparent good health, was the principal cause of the high incidence of veneral disease in the male occupational groups including loggers, miners and fishermen.

Soundness Proven

The institution of the Provincial Board of Health program in many communities was already proving its soundness. There had been great results in Vancouver and Nanaimo. Veneral disease was being strikingly reduced by public education and co-operation.

Dr. Williams was thanked for his address by the president of the club, G. A. Hunter. Guests were Ted Harcastle, Dr. Neal M. Carter, William Garriek and Dr. C. H. Hankinson. The attendance of Gyro members was large.

W. M. Watts read to the club a letter he had received from one of the members, Lieut. Orme Stuart, now on convoy service with the Royal Navy on the Atlantic. Lieut. Stuart gave some impressions of visits to London and Edinburgh including experiences in air bombing.

A letter from Greg Yorke of Vancouver, district governor, Vancouver,

MOULDED LAWS FOR DOMINION

Sir Percy Sherwood Has Left Imprint on Enforcement Machinery

OTTAWA, Oct. 17. (CP)—In a 40-year career as a police officer Sir Percy Sherwood, former commissioner of Dominion Police, who died in Ottawa this week, did much to mould Canada's present-day law enforcement machinery. He initiated the criminal investigation bureau with its immense library of finger prints now operated by the Royal Canadian Mounted Police.

Sir Percy was then commissioner of the Dominion police force with which he served for the greater part of his adult life. The Dominion police are now merged in the Royal Canadian Mounted Police. In the days when the Mounties were still the "Royal Northwest Mounted" the Dominion force was maintained by the federal government to enforce federal legislation throughout Canada.

Born in Ottawa March 18, 1854, Arthur Percy Sherwood was a son of Edward Sherwood, registrar of Carleton County, and a grandson of Judge L. P. Sherwood of Brockville, Ont. After attending the Ottawa grammar school young Sherwood joined the staff of the Imperial Bank. In 1877 he was appointed deputy sheriff of Carleton county. That was his start in law enforcement.

In 1879 he was appointed chief of police for Ottawa. The national capital was then a small city and the centre of a booming lumber and logging industry. The police force was small and, while law enforcement was a simpler matter than today, it required vigor and vigilance. In Sir Percy's time it was unsafe to send a constable alone into some parts of the city where lumberjacks from the woods were ready to take on all comers. Policemen patrolling that area always went in pairs.

In 1882 he resigned to accept a position as superintendent of Dominion police and assume the responsibility of re-organizing that force. He became commissioner in 1895 and chief commissioner in 1913, retiring in 1918.

Much of the history of Canada rolled by during Sir Percy's service with the Dominion police. His first out-of-town assignment was when the prime minister, Sir John A. Macdonald, instructed him to deliver personally to the lieutenant-governor of the Northwest Territories the order for the execution of Louis Riel, half-breed rebel leader convicted of treason at Regina in 1885.

International Investigation
Sir Percy advocated formation of a criminal investigation bureau to operate on a nationwide scale and co-operate with similar bureaux in other countries at the first meeting of the Chief Constables' Association in 1905. He was appointed chairman of the committee to discuss the matter with the minister of justice. The suggestion was approved in 1908 and the bureau was established in 1910.

The bureau since has developed into a valuable agency for keeping track of criminals. The finger print division alone has been responsible for the solution of many crimes.

One of the leading movers in the organization of the Chief Constables' Association, Sir Percy became its president in 1914. He was a charter member of the International Association of Chiefs of Police of the United States and Canada and regularly presented a paper on police activities at the association's annual meeting.

As chief of the Dominion police force Sir Percy twice was responsible for the safety of King George V. on his visits to Canada. In 1901 he made arrangements for the tour of the future King and Queen through Canada when they were Duke and Duchess of Cornwall and York. For his services then he was made a Companion of the Order of St. Michael and St. George. In 1908 when the royal prince came again, Sir Percy was in charge of arrangements. He was made a member of

WAS GOOD SAMARITAN

In his more than four decades of unceasing medical and social service, Sir Wilfrid Grenfell, who died last week, saw his humane mission expand from a single ship to a chain of hospitals, nursing stations, community centres and schools. His work drew approbation and financial support from Canada, Great Britain and the United States and brought him renown as "the Good Samaritan of Labrador."

Edward VII made him a companion of the Order of St. Michael and St. George in 1906 and George V advanced him to knighthood as a commander in that order in 1927. Harvard, Williams, Princeton, Middlebury, New York, Bowdoin and Berea in the United States, Toronto and McGill in Canada and Oxford in England gave him honorary degrees and scientific and medical organizations on both sides of the Atlantic voted him into membership.

He was born February 28, 1865, at Parkgate, near Cheshire, England, the son of Algernon and and Georgina Grenfell and was christened Wilfred Thomas. He was educated at Marlborough Boys' School, Oxford University and London Hospital. As an interne he worked to alleviate distress among the poor of London and Sir Frederick Treves, personal physician to Edward VII and one of his medical mentors, helped start him on his missionary work by aiding him in fitting out the first hospital ship in the North Sea of the Royal National Mission.

This work took Grenfell cruising with the fishing fleets from Iceland to the Bay of Biscay. It lasted three years and then he met Sir Francis Hopgood who, in 1917, became Baron Southborough. Hopgood, a distinguished barrister and head of a mission board, had just returned from one of several trips to Newfoundland, knew the need for medical aid there and in Labrador and persuaded Dr. Grenfell to undertake the work. A hospital ship was outfitted and reached the sparsely settled coast in 1892.

Sewing Machine Needed

The local Red Cross rooms could use another sewing machine if any one has one to loan. From twenty-five to fifty more women could also take out refugee garments to be made up at home. The women who are coming to the workrooms every day are doing a wonderful work but it would both assist and encourage them a great deal to see considerably more garments being made at home. Help along this line will be greatly appreciated.

Refugees in Britain
Word has been received of the urgent need of 500,000 garments for women and children for refugees and evacuees in Britain. The high standard of workmanship achieved in the making of hospital supplies should be maintained in this new work. Clothing should not in any way resemble uniforms and every effort should be made to show originality in trimming and detail. All clothing should be as well made and attractive as possible. These things are needed now and include all articles which can best be done by amateur sewers.

80—STILL GIVING STRONG

MANCHESTER, Oct. 17. (CP)—An 80-year-old bachelor has given $222,500 to the government for the war effort. At the start of the war he gave six ambulances for service in France.

HALF A PRESENT ANYWAY

OSWESTRY, Eng., Oct. 17. (CP)—Absent from court because she was being married, a 20-year-old girl was fined $4.45 instead of the usual $5.90 for blackout breach. "A wedding present," the judge remarked.

Big Organization

At first Grenfell worked only from the ship. He held a ticket as master mariner and navigated the craft up and down the coast. But soon the first store station was established and the work thereafter grew. In 1912 it was incorporated as The International Grenfell Association with members in three nations.

When its guiding spirit retired from active work in 1934 it operated five hospitals, seven nursing stations, two orphanages (two others had burned), 14 industrial centres, four summer schools, three agricultural stations, 12 clothing distributing centres; four hospital ships, one supply schooner, a dozen community centres, several co-operative stores, a co-operative lumber mill and a haul-up slip for ship repairs. The staff included 60 surgeons, dentists, nurses, teachers and welfare workers. Upwards of a hundred volunteers worked each summer in the various mission stations.

Lady Grenfell, who long shared her husband's labors, was Miss Anna Elizabeth MacClanahan of Chicago. They were married in 1909 and became the parents of two sons and a daughter.

It's interesting to know when reading the Daily News that the people of the whole district are doing the same.

ONE OF 133 DOWNED NAZI RAIDERS

A German Messerschmitt fighter plane is shown on a truck being trundled past the Houses of Parliament in London after it was shot down during one of the raids on the British capital. The deadly fire of R.A.F. fighters and anti-aircraft guns forced 132 other Nazi planes to join this one to make a total bag of 133 German planes shot down in the one day.

LAST 'NEXT' FOR 'LOUIE' Scatter Dogs But Save Them

Itinerant Barber Dies at Alice Arm — Had Colorful Career

British Woman Breeder Tells of Efforts To Preserve Pedigreed Animals

ALICE ARM, Oct. 17.—Louis Reynolds, ("By Gummy" to most of the boys here) prospector, undertaker, pioneer cook, a soldier of two wars, journeyman barber from the Ohio to the Columbia and from Mexico to Fort Norman, answered the last call of "Next" himself some time Saturday night. For the past several years Louie had lived alone in a shack across the bay with his only neighbor a mile away. But he was always contentedly cheerful and the passerby who happened by when the hands of the clock were propitious was insistently made to sit in and the caller for a hair cut came away gratis. A neighbor Sunday morning called a greeting through the paneled door but the figure in the chair did not answer back—"Journey's End" had been reached.

Born in West Virginia, Louis had a "Huck Finn" boyhood along the Ohio within the reach of his home. Mastering the barber trade, as it was called then, he became one of that varied and versatile class known as a journeyman barber. And forty years ago a journeyman barber had a unique relation with the times, whatever its status today. To the writer who pens these notes, as now and again he sat on a milk box for a hair cut and listened to Louie reminisce while he plied the shears—years of working in shops and now and again owning shops, the acquaintance made of prize fighter, and boss gamblers and other notables from the lighted stage of a leading barber shop, soldiering at many places, a life of bright lights and activity—yes, all this seemed in strange contrast with his present hermit like life of existence. But the notions of men are various and they have a habit of living within themselves.

The immediate cause of Louie's death will be perhaps attributed to a congestion of the lungs, maybe a result of a dose of gas inhaled in Flanders Fields.

The police have been notified and should arrive today or tomorrow and file their report. Then, when the tide is high, we will take a row-boat and go to his house and bring the body over. Here it will be lashed to a go-devil sled and the few of us will walk behind while Dolly hauls him the last bumpy mile over the river flats and up to the gravelled hill. But we think Louie will not mind the bumps for, with his whole life lived neighborly, he will have known that his last rites would be in the hands of kindly folk.—A.D.Y.

STEWART

A local defence corps has been formed in Stewart under the auspices of the Canadian Legion and a goodly number of men have enrolled for drills and lectures which will be conducted during the coming winter.

An enjoyable at home was held last Saturday night for members and invited guests of the Canadian Legion.

NEW YORK, Oct. 17. (CP)—According to a letter from Miss D. W. Langston who lives in the southwest suburbs of air-raided London, pure-bred dog fanciers in the British Isles, despite all the blizzards, intend to preserve the blood strains they have been improving for generations. The letter was written to Mrs. B. B. Cooley of Hillsboro, Oregon, and is published in the Kennel Gazette.

"All my young stock have been given away on breeding terms—scattered all over the British Isles with people who have sworn to stick to their dogs through thick and thin so I hope some may survive," says Miss Langston.

Many records of Miss Langston's kennels—photographs that cannot be reduced, books of pedigrees, and other notes on her Shetland shepherds—have been sent to the United States where she hopes they will be safe until she needs them again.

LOMBARD IN NURSE ROLE

"Vigil In The Night" Is Current Feature Picture On Screen of Capitol Theatre

With the greater part of the stirring action taking place in two English hospitals during the months just preceding the current war, "Vigil in the Night," filmization of a sensational novel written by Dr. A. J. Cronin of "The Citadel" fame, is the feature picture at the Capitol Theatre here tonight and Friday. Carole Lombard, Brian Aherne and Anne Shirley have the stellar roles. Miss Lombard is a loyal nurse of high ideals. Aherne is a humanitarian doctor. Miss Shirley is a young student nurse. Miss Lombard's sister, who is temperamentally unsuited to the profession.

The story starts with the dismissal of Miss Lombard when she assumes the blame for her sister's negligence which resulted in the death of a child. In another town she joins a hospital which is insufficiently staffed and equipped. Here she meets Aherne who becomes interested in her when she saves him from losing a patient on the operating table. A feeling of understanding is born which lays the foundation for a romantic association. Meantime, the weaknesses of the sister are involving her in several disasters. The story reaches its climax in an isolation ward during an epidemic which is taking heavy toll of patients and nurses. The denouement is a heart-touching sacrifice which Miss Shirley makes to redeem herself.

GHOULISH LOOTING

LONDON, Oct. 17: (CP)—Told by the bench that it was a "ghoulish" thing to do, a 49-year-old man was fined $44.50 in court here for looting a bombed house after an air raid.

A startlingly authentic revelation of a duel of love and honor in the cloistered code-bound world of the nursing profession . . .

Calls Muslims To Help Cause

Germany and Italy Enemies of Islam Says Leader in Sermon to Faithful

PESHAWAR, India, Oct. 17: (CP)—"If the Italian march towards Alexandria means anything, it is a call to the Muslims of the world to resume the crusades after seven centuries," said the Mullah Sahib of Bhutan in a four-hour sermon preached to a huge congregation at 5 p.m. for Vancouver.

at Bagh in the heart of the Tirah district which is dependent tribal territory on north west frontier, added Germany and Italy were enemies of Islam and he ordered the Muslims to do what they could to aid the government.

C. P. R. steamer Princess Louisa is due back from regular voyage to Skagway at 2:30 this afternoon from other Alaska points and will be at 5 p.m. for Vancouver.
