HOTEL MEN ARE MOVED

Changes in C.N.R. Service Are Announced.

OTTAWA, Oct. 15:—Several changes in the management of various hotels of the Canadian National system are announced today by Jos Van Wyck, general manager of the company's hotel department.

Robert S. Pitt, manager of the Nova Scotian Hotel at Halifax, has been granted leave of absence on taking up military service.

Robert Sommerville, manager of the Bessborough Hotel, Saskatoon, is transferred to Halifax as manager of the Nova Scotian.

C. A. Mann, hitherto manager of the Prince Edward Hotel, Brandon, is transferred to Saskatoon, as manager of the Bessborough.

A. R. J. Hodson is appointed acting-manager of the Prince Edward Hotel at Brandon.

The appointments take effect today.

Going Into Army
Mr. Pitt has received a commission in the Royal Canadian army service corps and his first appointment is that of catering and messing officer, military district No. 6, Halifax, a post for which his training and experience has admirably fitted him. He is a native of Brighton, Eng., and after wide experience in the hotel business in Great Britain came to Canada in 1928 when he joined the hotel department of the Canadian National Railways. He served in various capacities at Jasper Park Lodge and the Chateau Laurier, Ottawa, before taking the management of the Nova Scotian in 1936.

Mr. Sommerville, born at East Calder, Scotland, interrupted a law course for military service in the first great war, serving in France, Palestine, East Africa, Egypt and India. Entering the hotel business he gained a wide experience in Europe, California and Canada. His first service with the Canadian National Railways was with the MacDonald at Edmonton, and subsequent service included Jasper Park Lodge and the Chateau Laurier.

Mr. Mann, who now takes over the management of the Bessborough at Saskatoon, is a native of Westmount, Quebec, and was educated in the Westmount schools. He has been with the Canadian National Railways hotels since 1934, being night manager at the Chateau Laurier, Ottawa, before his appointment as manager at the Prince Edward Hotel, Brandon.

Mr. Hodson, who has been with the Canadian National Railways hotels since 1934, being night manager at the Chateau Laurier, Ottawa, before his appointment as manager at the Prince Edward Hotel, Brandon.

A manifesto which accompanied the premier's announcement of a fall election said the chief reason of it was "to co-ordinate provincial taxation with Dominion proposals" to abandon the income tax field to the federal government. To do this, the manifesto said "it will be necessary to bring into effect appropriate measures. The matter is of such importance that I feel the government should have an expression of the wishes of the electors."

The manifesto added, however, that following the war it was the premier's "earnest desire" to agree upon a formula with the Dominion government enabling British Columbia "to enjoy a fair and equitable proportion of the income tax so it may adequately participate in development policies, and at the same time establish a single system of tax collection by the Dominion."

Highway Program
Included in the "development policies" set forth by the Liberal party are the completion of main highways in British Columbia, including the British Columbia-Alaska highway; the discovery of oil in the Peace River district, where a government-owned well is now down to the 6,000-foot level; extension of the boundaries of British Columbia to include the Yukon and establishment of an iron and steel industry.

Premier Pattullo is also on record as favoring increased old age pensions and a lowering in the age limit, as well as a cost-of-living bonus for pensioners, but has said that old age pensions are a matter of federal concern.

The party's manifesto said three main tasks confronted the British Columbia government:

1. To do all possible to assist in the war effort.

2. To keep the home front functioning as adequately as the war effort will permit.

3. To bear in mind post war problems and act in relation thereto as far as items one and two will permit.

KENNEY'S CAMPAIGN

The Smithers meeting was held on Monday evening and was well attended. J. P. Downey was chairman of the meeting and the speakers were Olof Hanson, M.P., Frank Foster and C. F. MacLean of Smithers, and E. T. Kenney. William S. Henry was also on the platform but left the meeting early. The various speakers dealt with all the subjects that are being discussed in this campaign, and there were no questions asked at the end of the meeting.

A meeting was held in Usk last night and there will be one at Terrace on Wednesday night.

He was called to the Ontario bar in 1906 and practised in London for one year before moving to Cranbrook. In 1912 he moved to Vancouver and was a member of the firm of Russell, Macdonald and Hancock. He was an unsuccessful candidate for the legislature from Cranbrook in 1909, but was elected from Vancouver in 1916 at a by-election and re-elected at the head of the poll in the general election later in the same year. He was appointed attorney general in the government of H. C. Brewster following that election, but retired the next year. ## Russo-German War—ADVANCE ON MOSCOW IS CONTINUING Appears to Have Been Slowed Down, However, at Certain Points—Position Grave.

LONDON, Oct. 15: (CP)—The Nazi advance east of Mariupol along the S. a. of Azov shore has been halted it was announced today, but whether the stopping was deliberate by the Germans or because Russian resistance was not made clear. Meanwhile, the three-pronged advance toward Moscow continues, it is admitted, the pressure from a new direction—the northwest—being the most particularly heavy. Snow and rain have slowed up large-scale movements in the Ukraine. While the general drive of Nazi convergence on Moscow has not been halted, it is claimed to be at least slowed down. The Germans, in the centre prong, are sixty miles distant from the capital and about 100 miles from the northwest and southwest.

Reuters, in a Moscow dispatch today, stated that the German advance east of Mariupol on the Sea of Azov had been stopped. Mariupol is 190 miles west of Rostov, which is at the mouth of the industrial Don Valley. Russian forces managed to withdraw and establish themselves in new positions, the agency said.

At the same time an authoritative source said it was possible the Germans have captured Rzhnev, 125 miles west of Moscow, while heavy fighting appears to be continuing around Mozhaisk, 60 miles west of the capital, although the Germans "do not seem to have succeeded in capturing the town."

The Red Army declared today it had wiped out parachutists and nipped off German wedges thrust deep into its lines in the great and spreading battle for Moscow, but said that the Germans continued to advance over heaps of their own dead and presented a new threat to the capital from the northwest where they sought to turn the upper Volga line.

Using lightning war combination of masses of tanks, armored cars and planes, the Germans reinforced the drive on the approaches of Kalinin, railway centre 95 miles northwest of Moscow on the upper Volga in tightening the semi-circle around the city.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 15: (CP)—The United States Department of Justice announces that twenty-two Axis aliens, including one woman, who were landed at Boston yesterday following the capture of a Nazi radio station on the coast of Greenland and a small Norwegian wireless service steamer, have been placed in internment for the duration of the war. The Nazi radio expedition ship, which had been captured by the United States navy off Greenland after a secret wireless station had been set up there, arrived at Boston yesterday in custody of the United States naval ship Bear.

President of Canadian National Speaks Of Railway Into Pr. Rupert

Is Not Paying Its Way Yet Says Mr. Vaughan, But It Is Showing Some Measure of Service and Progress.

VANCOUVER, Oct. 15: (CP)—R. C. Vaughan, president of the Canadian National Railways, told the Vancouver Board of Trade today that the line into Prince Rupert was "not yet profitable to the railway" but abandonment of the line as suggested in some quarters was "unthinkable." He said: "To abandon this line, which was built at great cost, would be to dry up that part of the country and greatly retard development of your province and cost the country many millions of dollars to re-establish settlers elsewhere."

Service on the Prince Rupert line was at a minimum, Mr. Vaughan said, "yet we spent on that line in 1940 several hundred thousand dollars more than we earned without taking into account interest on the cost of construction, etc. The results obtained may now be seen not only by increased settlement which has taken place but in improved agricultural practices and greater diversification of field crops and livestock production."

The Candidates . . .

While we feel quite satisfied that Premier T. D. Pattullo will again be chosen to manage the affairs of this province and look after the interests of this constituency during the next few years, we suggest it would not be wise to be too complacent about the outcome. It is sometimes when we lie back and think everything is fine that we are taken by surprise.

We can hardly imagine how a Vancouver music teacher could walk in and take so important a seat at this from a man who has served so well for so many years. Mr. Pattullo may not be perfect but we know him whereas his opponent is practically unknown and, if elected, will be only a voice crying in the wilderness. Just at a time when we are, as a city, making a forward move it would be simply folly to make a change.

We realize that Mr. Pattullo is a stranger to many people now residing in Prince Rupert. Owing to the position he holds he is unable to live anywhere except at Victoria. However, he was a prominent Prince Rupert citizen when he was first chosen and, as he was at once taken into the cabinet, he had to move to the capital. Since then he has kept in close touch with the city and its problems and has always used his influence in a helpful manner.

It is said that comparisons are odious but, when we are asked to choose between two such men, it does not take much thought to come to a decision. It is not suggesting anything derogatory about Mr. Weaver to say that we think Mr. Pattullo the more suitable choice. It is largely a matter of tested governmental ability that makes us choose the Premier of the province over a man who had no experience in public affairs and whose training as a music teacher does not tend to make a statesman.

Now I have quit my job, she was lonely and dreary;
We were batching, I and my cat,
Square away for the town, where it is jolly and beery;
With squirrel tail stuck in my hat.
Three, four months' wages is quite a sum.
I walk around until my feet are all blisters.
So yo hol for some beer and a bottle of rum.
And a meal at those lovely "Three Sisters."

I feel like I did in my old sailor days,
Maybe six months from port to port;
With head winds and calms, storms and other delays,
But once in harbor, oh boy! we had sport.
When broke take a ship under any old flag,
Aye, such was a sailor man's fate,
And your troubles are packed in the good old kit bag
Unless you're killed by some tough bucko mate.

But tempora enim mutantur is right,
From Cape Stiff to beyond London river,
Now our bosses are mostly nice and polite.
Not like boatswain's: "G— blast your d— liver!"
So I shall likewise be extra modest and nice
And just hope my old girl may kiss me,
Though I think she won't have me at any price,
I hope my old friend will miss me.

Some Liar

A Series by Charlie Durham

"Say, Frenchy, you said you were working for the C.P.R. once didn't you?"
We were sitting around the store as usual in the evening. Somehow, everybody had fallen silent but the storekeeper, being a man of resources, knew he could start something by stirring up the old prospector who could always be depended upon to relate something that would give us food for thought.
"Did I work for C.P.R.? Why I was the champion locomotive engineer. Vancouver was little village then. Pacific division was divided into four subdivisions—Vancouver to North Bend, North Bend to Kamloops, Kamloops to Revelstoke, Revelstoke to Donald. Six hours for each subdivision. One train a day. One day there was something wrong and train was eleven hours late in leaving Vancouver. Superintendent, I think his name Downey, he comes to me and says: 'You take this train out. Make time and don't stop at small stations. No passengers anyhow.' I say 'All right' and jumps on the cab and opens her up strong. By gar I bring that train into Kamloops on time."

it? That is as far as you should go or how?"
"O well, I had such speed on I just keep going, without stopping. The superintendent wanted me to make time and I make time."
"I should say you did," remarked the storekeeper. "According to you, you made those 240 miles in an hour. You know, Frenchy, that is impossible."
"There you go again. What do you know about railroading anyway? I tell you I drove her. I gave her steam. I tell you when I slowed up at Kamloops sixty-seven hats fell off the cars. They had been stuck on by what you call suction. The train, whizzing by the stations, picked the hats off the people standing on the platforms and the hats stuck on till I slowed up. I tell you true."

MORE SOLID FRONT NOW

C. C. F. Opposition Group Unites In B. C. Election Campaign

VICTORIA, Oct. 15: (C)—Party lines are more clearly drawn in the present provincial election, culminating in voting October 21—than in the provincial election of 1937.

The Liberal government of Hon. C. Pattullo is seeking return to power for a third administration. Today the C. C. F. group presents a solid front whereas in 1937 it was split by the Constructives, a group which broke away from the party because of what they considered a "left-wing" plank in the party program. Although the Constructives held four seats at dissolution none was re-elected.

Also absent from the 1941 campaign platforms are the Social Credit League representatives who failed to elect a member when they made their first bid in British Columbia in the 1937 voting.

The Conservatives are being led into the election fray by R. L. Maitland, Vancouver barrister who succeeded Dr. Frank Patterson, former party leader, who died in February, 1938.

Another Conservative stalwart who died since the last election is Hon. S. F. Tolmie, Conservative premier from 1928 to 1933. His death occurred October 13, 1937.

Cambrai Chapter Is Keeping Busy

Much Activity in Regard to Refugee Clothing—$25 to Civic Centre.

The regular monthly meeting of Cambrai Chapter, Imperial Order, Daughters of the Empire, was held in the Canadian Legion Hall last night.

Among letters read was one from a woman out of town thanking the chapter for much-needed clothing.

Mrs. L. A. Swain, in charge of Cambrai workroom, gave an instructive talk on what was required for war work and urged each member to be responsible for at least one article of clothing between now and next meeting.

A call was made for red buttons, buckles and zippers for refugee dresses in the making. Also an order was put through for more wool.

It was decided the chapter should donate $25 of its funds towards the Civic Centre. Also four members volunteered to assist in the public canvass towards the civic fund.

A telephone bridge was decided for November 14.

BRITISH DESTROYER TAKES OVER U-BOAT CAPTURED BY PLANE

Most unusual incident of the Battle of the Atlantic to date revolves around the capture of a German submarine by a Royal Air Force plane. After bringing the sub to the surface in a damaged condition from air bombs, the plane, a U. S. built Lockheed, radioed for British ships. This radiophoto from a London source shows the British destroyer about to put a boarding party on the U-boat. This was done and the submarine towed to a British port.

Mr. and Mrs. W. J. Crawford, who went south to Vancouver recently with the remains of Mr. Crawford's father, the late Alex Crawford, were here aboard the Catala Monday morning returning to Stewart.

VOTING BY SOLDIERS

Fighting Men Of Sea, Land Cast Ballots

VICTORIA, Oct. 15: (P)—British Columbia's 20,000 sailors, soldiers and airmen on wartime service outside the province, in Canada, Newfoundland and overseas, are the first to cast their ballots in the forthcoming provincial general election.

Balloting in British Columbia takes place October 21 but the servicemen are casting their ballots several days before—those in the United Kingdom have already voted and those in other parts of the Dominion started with special polls at various points in Canada where British Columbia servicemen are in training or on defence duty. One of the most important British Columbia military polls is at Brantford, Ont.

The result of the extra-provincial military vote will not be known until several days after October 21 and it is possible it may alter party standings in tightly contested constituencies. Soldiers, sailors and airmen in British Columbia will vote along with the civilian population.

Pre-Registration
Machinery for taking the service vote was set up at the last Legislature in the form of the British Columbia Active Service Voting Regulations. The regulations provide that all servicemen who vote must be British subjects who resided in the province at least six months before joining up. They must have registered as voters prior to enlistment.

All minors in the service who have residential or naturalization qualifications will be entitled to cast their ballots despite their age. The vote of the servicemen will be allocated to the district in which they lived for the last month before joining the colors.

Men in the forces will be allowed to attend political meetings—if the meetings do not interfere with their duties—but they cannot take part in the proceedings. If, however, they are candidates for election, they will be granted leave of absence without pay and may take part in the campaign.

Overseas Voting

Voting in Great Britain and Northern Ireland was under the direction of Geoffrey Ward, president of the Canadian Board of Trade at London. Special deputy returning officers have been sent to various points outside the province where British Columbia servicemen are stationed.

Each serviceman eligible to vote is being given a ballot and a small envelope. After marking the ballot, he hands it—in the envelope—to a special deputy returning officer who places it in another envelope, this inscribed with the voter's name and affidavit. These are placed in the ballot box which is opened at the end of each day's polling and the contents sent to the supervising special deputy returning officer for that area.

With completion of voting, sorting of envelopes to their proper electoral districts will commence. All boxes will then be locked and sealed until October 21 when the ballots will be counted.

Women Workers Cheer Bennett

Former Canadian Prime Minister Gets Good Reception In Wales

LONDON, Oct. 15: (P)—Viscount Bennett, former Canadian prime minister, was almost mobbed by enthusiastic women when he visited a Welsh munitions factory. The women lined the roads inside the factory grounds, sang Welsh songs, cheered the viscount, grasped his hands and shouted affectionate greetings. Viscount Bennett, deeply moved by the demonstration, said he had never seen anything like it in his long political career.

CANADIAN UNIONISM

Amalgamated Building Workers Head Addresses Meeting Here

Declaring that the Canadian union with no foreign affiliations was the logical one to represent the workers of this country, Bernard Braithwaite of Vancouver, general president of the Amalgamated Building Workers of Canada, was the speaker before a meeting of forty or so shipwrights, carpenters and other tradesmen in the Eagles' Hall Sunday afternoon.

R. J. Glazebrook, president of the local union, was in the chair and L. G. Hilder, secretary, took a prominent part in the meeting which he organized.

Later carpenters, shipwrights and joiners' helpers were called together for the purpose of organization. Stating that the Amalgamated Building Workers of Canada was the continuation as a Canadian organization of the Society of Carpenters and Joiners of Great Britain, Mr. Braithwaite stated that there were three major labor organizations in Canada but this was the only purely Canadian one. The other two were foreign and there was no government jurisdiction over them or were they registered in this country. The funds were not under control in this country. Their only claim to internationalism was that they were milking the public and taking the money across the line.

The purpose of this meeting, said Mr. Braithwaite, was to consider the advantages of the Canadian organization. Vancouver shipyards were signed up 100 percent and 80 percent of them were closed shop with the other yard coming in. The Amalgamated Building Workers had a good majority in Prince Rupert. Unions here were working fairly well together from a local if not an executive standpoint. There was no necessity for friction but the time might come some time when this could not be avoided.

Describing experiences he had had in Vancouver, Mr. Braithwaite urged the importance of being fully organized—not merely half organized and just getting by. There was a war today but it would be finished some day and it was important when that time came that labor should be in a unified position to take an intelligent stand and give advice on problems.

Interests Opposite
Industrial interests in this country and the United States were exactly opposite, said Mr. Braithwaite. There should be a democratic organization in Canada. Unions of the American Federation of Labor had to do what they were told or lose their charters. Nor was the Congress on Industrial Organization responsible in Canada. This was the only country in the world where the labor movement was exploited by outside foreign organizations. It was "unheard of and unthinkable."

Unless the labor people of Canada were properly organized, they would be in a tough spot. They would not only have the business interests but other labor organizations against them.

He just wished, Mr. Braithwaite said, to leave the question of the necessity of a Canadian organization to his listeners for them to weigh. The Amalgamated Building Workers considered itself a closer knot and more efficient organization. There were no officials paid $50,000 a year. Such highly paid officials no longer retained the labor viewpoint.

The importance of helpers being organized was urged by Mr. Braithwaite.

The day of the odd man was gone, the speaker declared. It was essential now that every man be organized.

In answer to A. Wallin, Mr. Braithwaite said that the Amalgamated Building Workers of Canada took in all construction trades, not only shipyard workers. The ultimate aim was to organize all trades into one unit. This did not imply, however, a universal union.

The advisability of unanimity and co-operation between all unions instead of competition was discussed. Certain difficulties which now existed in bringing this about were mentioned. Suggestions had been made of a central committee between all unions. There had been difficulty in getting one of the organizations to co-operate on a friendly basis.

There was also discussion of the new recently-enacted federal order-in-council providing for supervised strike vote in the event of conciliation boards failing in connection with the settlement of labor disputes. Considerable power, it was felt, was left in the hands of the minister in this connection.

SOCIALISTIC EXPERIMENT

Louis D. Brandeis Was Broad-Minded on Bench.

WASHINGTON, D.C., Oct. 15:—Louis D. Brandeis, dead former justice of the Supreme Court of the U. S., was a vigorous defender of social experimentation and in dissenting from the majority when the court in 1932 invalidated an Oklahoma law regulating competition in the ice business.

"It is one of the happy incidents of the federal system that a single courageous state may, if its citizens choose, serve as a laboratory and try novel social and economic experiments without risk to the rest of the country."

"This court has the power to prevent experiment . . . But in the exercise of this high power we must ever be on our guard . . . If we would guide by the light of reason, we must let our minds be bold."

This opinion often was recalled in the New Deal years. Brandeis voted to uphold the Roosevelt administration in seven of the first 13 cases of that category.

Six Months' Dispute
Unlike the great majority of supreme court justices, Brandeis had no experience on the bench when President Wilson in 1916 nominated him to succeed Joseph R. Lamar of Georgia. Instead he had been practising in Boston since 1879 and was known to the public chiefly because of his activity in the Zionist movement and his battling, in and out of courts, for labor unions, protection of wage earners' insurance policies, the legitimacy of laws establishing minimum working hours for women and against "high finance," especially the project of uniting all the rail, trolley and coastal steamship lines east of New York.

This background, coupled with the fact that Brandeis was the first Jew nominated to the supreme court, brought about a long controversy. The nomination went to the senate January 28, hearings began February 9 and the nomination was not considered until June 1, the vote being 47 to 22. He took the oath of office June 5.

Brandeis was born in Louisville, Kentucky, November 13, 1856, the son of Adolf and Frederika (Dembitz) Brandeis. His father, a native of Praha, now capital of Czechoslovakia, came to the United States in 1848 and built up a successful grain business.

The son went through the Louisville schools, and then studied in Dresden, Saxony. He entered the law school of Harvard in 1875, when Longfellow, Lowell, Dr. Holmes and Ralph Waldo Emerson still were on the college faculty, was graduated LL.B. in 1877, took a year of post-graduate work, practised in St. Louis in 1878 and then moved to Boston.

On March 23, 1891, he married Alice Goldmark of New York. Two daughters were born to them.

FILIAN PENNIES SHORT
AUCKLAND, Oct. 15:—Popular with New Zealand garrison troops in the Fiji Islands for use as poker chips and souvenirs, the native filian penny is scarce and its value has risen to a level which has been proclaimed legal tender.

Whifflets From The Waterfront

Only fair hunting was reported by a party which made a trip to Kwinmass and Khutzamateen over the Thanksgiving Day holiday week-end aboard Dr. R. G. Large's Soogwills. Weather was rough and this did not improve conditions for the pursuit of ducks and geese. Making the trip in addition to Dr. Large and his son, were Joe Scott, Roy Nichols, Arnold Flaten and Otto Young.

In connection with trial runs of new local ship construction, W. E. Baillie, former well known chief engineer of Canadian National Steamships and now a Lloyds inspector; Capt. A. J. Gilbert, pilot; John Cochrane, compass adjuster, and naval officials arrived here on the Prince George this morning from Vancouver and Victoria.

C. N. R. steamer Prince George, Capt. H. E. Nedden, with a comparatively light list of passengers but substantial freight cargo, arrived in port at 9 o'clock this morning from Vancouver, Powell River and Ocean Falls and will sail at 10 o'clock tonight for Ketchikan whence she will return here tomorrow evening southbound.

Northbound from Vancouver to Skagway, C. P. R. steamer Princess Louise, Capt. S. K. Gray, arrived in port just before 8 o'clock this morning from the south and sailed a couple of hours later for Skagway and other northern points whence she is due back here next Monday afternoon southbound.

"BLACKOUT" IS MYSTERY

With Conrad Veidt and Valerie Hobson playing the stellar roles, "Blackout," a spy melodrama set in present-day London, commences today as the mid-week feature on the screen of the Capitol Theatre.

The story starts aboard a Danish freighter which is steaming across the English channel when it is halted by a British patrol ship seeking contraband. Since the ship is to be delayed in "blackout" London, the captain, played by Conrad Veidt, is given landing permits which are stolen by a mysterious but beautiful woman passenger on the ship and a man who has been posing as a talent scout. When the captain discovers the theft, he immediately rows ashore, beginning a chase with the conviction that his ship had been harboring spies. The action speeds through the dark in the great metropolis. There are many mysterious scenes in a counter-espionage hide-out, a night club, Waterloo station and a large London house. After much tense action and drama, the story ends aboard the captain's ship with a romantic denouement.
