Sinking Of Robin Moore Called Act Of International Outlaw In Presidential Congress Message

United States Does Not Intend to Yield Freedom of High Seas to Germany—Intention is to Maintain American Commerce

WASHINGTON, D.C., June 20: (CP)—President Franklin D. Roosevelt described the sinking of the Robin Moore as ruthless and the act of an "international outlaw" and declared that the United States did not propose to yield the high seas to Germany. The President made the pronouncement on the sinking of the American vessel in the Atlantic May 21 in a special message to Congress, permitting stronger language than the formal diplomatic note. He said the general appearance of the sinking "would appear to drive American commerce from the ocean wherever such commerce was considered a disadvantage to Germany's designs. It is a warning that the United States may use the high seas of the world only with Nazi consent. Were we to yield on this we would inevitably submit to world domination at the hands of the present leaders of the German Reich." The message, however, proposed no definite line of action or retaliation.

RUPERT IS OVER TOP

Sum Of $372,000 Is Subscribed In Local Victory Loan Campaign

Prince Rupert, with its total subscriptions of $372,000 to date in the Victory Loan campaign, is six per cent over the top of the original objective of $350,000 as compared with the over-subscription of five per cent for the Dominion with total of $631,096,100. A twenty per cent over-subscription of quotas is necessary for the loan to be a complete success so the mark of $420,000 must be reached here by tomorrow night when subscriptions close.

Prince Rupert yesterday passed its quota in the Victory Loan 1941 campaign. The quota was $350,000. The amount subscribed here up to last evening was $372,000. The day's subscriptions had been $29,000. Tomorrow night the subscription lists close and the local committee is hopeful of reaching the $400,000 mark.

J. J. Little, local unit chairman, hoisted an honor pennant on the Victory Loan flag pole last night, thus signaling that the quota had been reached and passed.

AMERICANS TO DEPART ARGUMENTS OVER MILK

A Moot Question— ARGUMENTS OVER MILK

Provincial Official Answers Points Raised Against Pasteurization

By DR. C. E. DOLMAN
Provincial Board of Health

There are some twelve points commonly raised by raw milk producers and consumers against pasteurization and I intend to refute each one of them. While certain of the claims are intrinsically of a trivial nature, they may loom large in the minds of otherwise quite unprejudiced persons. For instance, pasteurization is said to change the cream line in the milk bottle. But the cream line is much more affected by such variables as the breed of cow yielding the milk, and the time elapsing between bottling and delivery, than it is by pasteurization. In any event, the cream line is not a reliable index of the cream content; and even if it were, one should remember that more than half the full value of cow's milk, and nearly all its protein content, are retained by the generally-despised "skim" portion. The significance of the cream line is a fallacy deriving from the relatively high commercial value of the butter-fat content of milk.

A second claim often made is that pasteurization spoils the flavor of milk. Now, in recent years at the University of British Columbia, a large class of Bacteriology students has taken part in an annual testing competition. The class results have always shown that raw milk cannot be differentiated from pasteurized on the basis of flavor alone. Similar tests conducted elsewhere, on a larger or smaller scale, have given similar results. I suggest, if you are addicted to raw milk because of its taste, that you carry out a similar experiment in your own household, with an unprejudiced neighbor as referee. Some raw milks have indeed a special flavor and aroma; but this is due, as a matter of fact, to absorption of stable smells; and can be restored to a sample of pasteurized milk by addition of a drop or two of an infusion of cow manure.

Thirdly, you may have been told that pasteurized milk rots on keeping, whereas raw milk merely sours. This statement is false. Whether a milk sours or putrefies on keeping depends upon the relative numbers of souring and of putrefying bacteria initially present. Thus, if putrefying bacteria preponderate in a raw milk sample (as they may do) it will rot on keeping; while if souring bacteria preponderate in a pasteurized milk sample (as they usually do) it will sour on keeping. Kept under parallel conditions, pasteurized milk remains sweet longer than raw milk. If kept long enough, either raw or pasteurized milk will end in putrefaction, just as does meat, and many another foodstuff.

Fourthly, the vitamins in milk are often said to be destroyed by pasteurization. Now milk is an excellent source of vitamin A, and contains useful amounts of vitamin G. The vitamin A content of milk is absolutely unaffected by pasteurization, while the vitamin G content is reduced only very slightly. True enough, pasteurization may destroy up to 20 per cent of the vitamin C content of milk; but of what moment is this when, as every modern mother knows, even raw milk, even mother's milk, is an inadequate source of vitamin C for infants, who depend upon orange or tomato juice for their main supplies of this vitamin.

Fifthly, the valuable calcium and phosphorus content of milk is allegedly reduced, or rendered unassimilable by pasteurization. This contention is categorically untrue; and even if as much as one-half the calcium salts in cow's milk could be rendered unabsorbable by pas-

RUSSO-GERMAN SITUATION

EXPELLING OF NAZIS EXPELLED BY ITALY

United States Seeing That German Consular Agents Are Not Escaping to South America

WASHINGTON, June 20: (CP)—A strong German protest over the expulsion of Nazi consuls from United States has been rejected by the United States Department of State. Under Secretary of State Sumner Welles announced that steps were being taken to prevent infiltration into Latin America to continue their pro-Nazi activities there of German nationals from the United States.

United States Consular Agents Ordered to Leave That Country

ROME, June 20.—Following the example of Germany, Italy has ordered the expulsion of United States consular agents in this country although the United States has not yet taken such action against Italy. The American consular agents in Italy, like those in Germany, are charged with espionage as a basis for expulsion.

Guns for our Sons to beat the Huns!

Arrangements had been made, Welles gave assurance, whereby the return to Germany direct of expelled consular officials would be insured. Their immediate departure was being arranged for.

EDITORIAL

The Interior Road - - -

We endeavoured yesterday to bring to special notice of necessity of early action being taken on the construction of the highway from Prince Rupert to the interior as a military project. It would be well, we now suggest, for local bodies to get busy and make representations to the proper authorities and, if necessary, bring pressure to bear that no time is lost in giving attention to such a vital matter. There is reason to believe that defence authorities have already made recommendations along the lines suggested. If there is anything we can do to see that such recommendations are implemented, we should lose no time in acting accordingly.

A Blow On Britain - - -

Observers expect and signs portend that the Nazis are about to deliver some sort of a major blow against Great Britain. Quite likely a lot of this talk and reported action to the East around the Russian frontier is smoke screen. The recent easing up of bombing of Britain is ominous. No doubt, Britain is on full guard for some sort of a blow. Last summer it was expected but it never came. Germany, no doubt, considers herself stronger now for the blow than she was then. We must steel ourselves for news of big and important developments in the war very soon now.

Mr. Pattullo Renominated - - -

For the eighth time Mr. Pattullo has been nominated Liberal candidate for Prince Rupert. Twenty-five years now our member, he will go before the electors once again asking their suffrage.

As we have suggested before, the Premier might with good grace be given an acclamation as a fitting tribute to his quarter of a century of service for British Columbia and Prince Rupert. There is, of course, no very particular reason to anticipate he will get it.

Without being too complacent about it, however, there seems to be little likelihood of his being defeated. If, however, his political opponents feel constrained to do so and that they can afford to test the Premier's strength in his home riding, we hope the contest will be a worthy and clean one, not detracting in a disproportionate way from more, vastly more, important matters than a routine issueless provincial election, called merely because of a constitutional requirement which requires a new mandate for a government that is nearing the end of its legal period of tenure.

Barney Mulvany Preaches Hazelton Route; Spoke To Important Seattle Bodies

FRANCOIS LAKE, June 20.—Barney Mulvany has returned from a month's holiday in Vancouver and Seattle, his first trip "outside" in 25 years. At Seattle he was the guest of the Rotary Club, the Washington Athletic Club, the Arctic Club and the Buccaneers' Club, speaking on the Hazelton route to Alaska.

Telling of the impassable muskeg swamps to be encountered on all of the eastern routes Mr. Mulvany pointed out that a great American explorer, one Colonel Bulkley, who worked with a huge staff of cruisers for years in locating the Collins Overland Telegraph Line, was forced to abandon all the eastern routes as, after thorough investigation, he found miles of soft ground in which he could not get a telegraph pole to stand up. He was finally compelled to stick to the hard bottom of the Hazelton route. This applied in later years to the Trail of '98, and still later to the construction of the Yukon Telegraph Line.

Many old sourdoughs present at the Buccaneers dinner endorsed this from their own experiences and remembered many outfits which attempted the Liard and Pelly routes losing all their pack stock and outfits in the muskeg country. One outfit made through to the Yukon via the Porcupine but was three years in doing so.

Calling the attention of the dinner guests to the fact that Alaska was more westerly than north from Seattle and Vancouver and that every mile of road built eastward would have to be recovered and that Hazelton was the most north-westerly point at present reached by a fair road, Mr. Mulvany called forth applause from the many Alaskans who were present.

The slogan of all the western states, California, Oregon and Washington is now "Westward to Alaska" with a road that will be able to serve all Alaskan ports in their order, says Mr. Mulvany. All Alaskan and most Vancouver people decidedly favor the western route, especially Congressman Magnusson who is the most active member of the Alaska Highway Commission.

Calling attention to the road over Natchez Pass which has an elevation of over 5000 feet, Mulvany stated that the work on this road out of Seattle was heavier than any to be found from Hazelton to Alaska and that, already the people of Seattle had spent money enough on this and the Snoqualmie Pass road, to build the whole of the Alaskan Highway. The one question asked the speaker was difficult to answer. It was—"What is Canada doing about it?"—and the answer had to be "nothing."

BRIDGE IS GOING OUT

Less Play And More Attention To National Defence

By Adelaide Kerr
Associated Press Staff Writer
NEW YORK, June 20: (AP) — Mrs. Harold Milligan, president of the United States National Council of Women, wants American women to stop playing so much bridge and get to work on woman's role in Uncle Sam's defence.

A New York wife and mother, Mrs. Milligan recently was appointed head of the General Federation of Women's Clubs' new department of national defence, which will mobilize women throughout the country.

Across her busy office desk the other day, she said, "We have a great potential power for the civilian defence of this country in the womanhood of America. Women have tremendous creative ability, but too many are spending too much time on bridge. We want to harness their creative ability and put it to work for the country's defence preparedness."

Mrs. Milligan's lively interest in defence dates from a trip she made in the West and Midwest a year ago when she "was impressed by the fact woman seemed too unaware of the world situation and the war news." When she returned to New York she and a number of other women's club presidents delved into an extensive study of the role which women might play in the country's preparedness for defence. Result is a tentative plan for co-operation with a number of women's organizations which is yet to be worked out in detail after conferences with them.

Three Essentials
Mrs. Milligan is certain the program will cover three things: first, education of women in nutrition; second, training in nursing; third, building of women's morale and thus building morale for the country as a whole.

"That last is very important," she says with a chuckle. "Remember there are three great means of communication—telephone, telegraph and tell-a-woman."

Mrs. Milligan is a calm, smiling grey-haired woman with level grey eyes which can twinkle or sparkle. She sits at her desk, above which hangs an etching of the Pilgrim Fathers enroute to church, and works past a dozen interruptions with the calm of a wife and mother who is used to halting her own activities to settle family problems. This national leader neither hurries nor dawdles. Her hat is utilitarian blue without gadgets. Her frock the day I saw her was simple dark blue wool with a crisp white collar caught with a pretty little silver pin. Her handbag is big, roomy and not too full.

Mrs. Milligan was born Lucy Richardson on a Colorado ranch, attended school in New York, studied music in Berlin and then married Harold V. Milligan, who was for 25 years organist and choir director of the Riverside Church. She has two sons, one of whom received an M. A., the other a B. A. degree on Columbia University's last commencement day. For once she spent a whole day just being a proud mother.

Her hobby is still music—collecting American folk songs, chiefly cowboy airs. She swims, golfs and plays tennis and thinks nothing of hiking eight miles around a New England lake where she vacations. First, last and all the time, Mrs. Milligan says, she is "a tremendous believer in the American system, which must be kept alive."

R.M.R.'S "HOME TOWN"

The Victory Loan 1941 campaign in Kamloops city is well over the $200,000 mark. Over five hundred citizens have already bought bonds. The objective for Kamloops is $300,000.

BICYCLE HOLIDAY

Summer Days In Wartime Britain Find Revival Of Two-Wheel Touring

By LEN HARRIS Canadian Press Staff Writer LONDON, June 20: (CP)—Summer has once more come to Britain. But it is a different summer this year. Gone are the trips by motor car into the country. Gone are the pleasure cruises on the paddle steamers. Gone are many of the traditional summer amusements. Many seaside towns are now restricted areas, barred to the general public who delighted to visit them in bygone days. But there still are a few where the war-weary Londoner can take a day off from work and relax. There are still charabanc trips to all parts of England. And one can hire a boat for a week or so and traverse the winding rivers.

Head For Country Rationing of gasoline has made cycling holidays more popular than ever. Every week streams of cyclists leave London and head for the country. Young and old alike favor this recreation. Mingling with gleaming models of chromium, tandems and others, looking slightly the worse for wear, one can occasionally see tricycles driven by serious-looking old men and women clad in shorts. Cycling has been popular in Britain for years. It is one of the

SCIENTISTS REGISTERED

200,000 Experts Listed on British Rolls and Many of Them in Service

LONDON, June 20: (CP)—Every distinguished scientist in Britain is listed on the register of men with special scientific and technical qualifications kept by the Ministry of Labor.

The list contains nearly 200,000 names and some 21,700 of them have been appointed to war jobs. Most of the remainder are in positions where it is considered the best possible use is already being made of their special knowledge.

"Every scientific man of note in the country is on the register," said a ministry spokesman, "and the name of every qualified professional engineer, chemist and quantity surveyor has been recorded. Not a week goes by without numbers of these specialists being appointed to war posts—many of them to do secret work.

"The fighting services and ministries are continually applying to us for men with special qualifications and the register is so well indexed we can find the right man at a moment's notice.

"Only men with special qualifications are accepted for the register and for this reason we are compelled to reject thousands of applications. There is, however, no age limit, and a number of persons on the register are likely never to be called upon because they are too old. In one case a man of 94—a retired gas engineer—asked to be put on the register. He felt sure the country would be able to make some use of his services."

cheapest ways of spending a holiday. There are many cycling clubs in London and it is quite usual to see club members, sometimes 20 strong, riding along the road with their club emblem sewn to their cycling or lumberjack jackets. Some parents even take their babies along with them. They ride a tandem and the child is placed in a sort of sidecar on the tandem. Good Mileage Some clubs cover as much as 110 miles a day. They put up at inns for the night or carry tents. Tents have to be camouflaged nowadays and that has caused a few to give up their tents and rely on inns. Another reason is that after dusk no camp fires are allowed.

Although their range of travel has been restricted cyclists still find plenty of places to visit. A favorite spot, near London, is Runnymede, where King John signed the Magna Carta. They are often to be seen bathing there, with their bikes propped against a convenient tree. And though travel nowadays means carrying gas masks, identity cards and tin hats, still they head from all the cities in Britain every week, determined to have some much-needed fresh air and sun.

ARGUMENTS OVER MILK

teurization, such milk would still contain nearly twice as much calcium as does human milk.

Sixthly, you may have heard that the general nutritive value of milk is impaired by pasteurization, the argument having perhaps been illustrated by a pathetic picture of an emaciated calf with the caption "Fed on Pasteurized Milk" alongside a portrait of an extremely robust bullock entitled "Fed on Raw Milk." The words "Posed by Professional Models" are carefully omitted. The truth is that numerous studies at first-class universities have established beyond a doubt, that even calves thrive better on pasteurized cow's milk than upon the raw product.

Seventhly, much noisy argument has centred around the point that pasteurization encourages the pooling of dirt and of clean milk. This argument misses the real point, that only pasteurization will render any milk safe. Five hundred typhoid bacilli in a quart of milk from a clean environment are immeasurably more dangerous than 500 million harmless bacteria in a quart of milk from an aesthetically dirty source; and pasteurization alone could remove the menace to public health of the former sample. Moreover, under a system of compulsory pasteurization, the usual channels of advertisement would still be open to the enterprising and conscientious dairies which really had fine herds, barns and equipment to place before the public eye.

Eighthly, it is claimed that compulsory pasteurization is not feasible, and that no means are available for ensuring its proper carrying out. But many cities in the United States have enjoyed the benefits of compulsory pasteurization for years; and in the city of Toronto for example, these benefits have been so impressive that the Provincial government has enacted province-wide compulsory pasteurization. Why should British Columbia deny itself the benefits which Ontario will reap from this policy? As for checking on the pasteurizing plants, a very delicate test is available for determining whether milk samples have been properly pasteurized; and such tests could be regularly performed by your Provincial Laboratories.

The ninth argument to be refuted is that there are better alternative methods available, such as tuberculin testing, for ensuring safe milk supply. But even if the tuberculin test were being done regularly, and were fool-proof enough to ensure elimination of all bacteria, tuberculosis is only one of many milk-borne diseases. For instance, local attempts to eliminate the risk of raw milk-borne undulant fever by means other than pasteurization recently proved a complete failure. Moreover, even if a perfectly healthy herd could be secured by some culling process, pasteurization would still be required to guard against contamination introduced between milking and delivery.

The tenth untruth is that expert opinion is divided as to the desirability of compulsory pasteurization. Yet this measure has been officially recommended not only by the Vancouver and B.C. Medical Associations, but also, among others, by the Canadian and the American Medical and Public Health Associations, the United States

"As the old General used to say in India, 'Most gins are good, Bots, but Burnett's is simply topping.' He was frightfully fussy was the General; he never called for Gin, it always used to be 'Bots, the Burnett's!'"

It's that Dry London Flavour that counts

For three hundred years Burnett's London Dry Gin has been noted for its true dry London flavour, which, due to a secret process of distillation, is part and parcel of the gin itself. Burnett's London Dry Gin costs no more than ordinary gins.

PREVENT FOREST FIRES BRITISH COLUMBIA FOREST SERVICE, DEPARTMENT OF LANDS

"Control or Occupation by Nazis Would Jeopardize America"

Here are two of the outposts of Europe which, western hemisphere and which were specifically mentioned by President Roosevelt as areas which the United States could not comfortably envision passing into Nazi hands. At Top is Horta, capital of the Azores, and Below is shown St. Vincent in the Cape Verde Islands. "Only seven hours distance from Brazil by bomber or troop-carrying planes. They dominate shipping routes and from the south Atlantic." So said the President.

Public Health Service, the Ministry of Health of Great Britain, and the Health Organization of the League of Nations. What right has any layman to pit his prejudices against the united opinion of such authorities?

The eleventh point to dispose of, an eleventh-hour plea, as it were, from the raw milk addicts, is that the conscientious objector to pasteurization should at least be permitted his daily quart of raw milk. But in matters affecting the public health so closely as does this question of safe milk supply, there ought to be no compromise. All raw milk distributed represents a potential menace to your health, and to your children's health; while most of Vancouver's raw milk is repeatedly exposing those who drink it to a definite risk of contracting undulant fever.

The twelfth and last contention of the proponents of raw milk is that pasteurization is a costly process, and increases the price of milk. How odd, then, is the fact that most raw milk sells in Vancouver today for at least 11 cents a quart, while the just as nutritious, just as palatable, and much safer pasteurized product sells for a dime.

Decoration Day

These have won peace, beyond all earthly telling.
Here, in the land they loved,— beneath its sod;—
No more for them—War's loud
ajam, kneeling,
Their sons press onward where
the sires have trod,—
Lift high the Torch above stern,
youthful faces;
Yonne hands to guard our great
democracy,
Young France to march in measured,
rhythmic paces,
Young armies sweep to battle
oversea.

Sleep on Ye Brave!—Secure and strong and splendid,
The Empire 'holds the line' and still shall hold!
Rest in Remembrance, with our
homage blended,
Where droops the Flag, our Prayers in every fold;
"For Duty nobly done, the Faith
that saves,
"We place these flags and flowers
upon these graves!"

Getting Fine Spring Salmon Fishing at Kincolith With Sporting Gear—Salmon Prices Being Discussed Here

Former Indian Agent W. E. Collison has been having some great luck in trolling for spring salmon with light gear at Kincolith where he is spending a holiday according to word brought back by the Indian Department cruiser Naskeena which returned from the Naas River last night. On Wednesday alone Mr. Collison, trolling off shore with a minnow, using light rod and twenty pound line, caught three fine fish which provided plenty of action. The largest one weighed forty pounds and, of course, took some skill to hold but Mr. Collison was equal to the job. Mr. Collison and his daughter, Miss Joyce Collison, are due home on the Catala next Tuesday. The Naskeena made the trip to Naas River points with Indian Agent James Gillett and E. W. H. Husband in connection with the Victory Loan campaign and met with good results among the natives.

Skeena Indians Coming Down To Canneries Today

Henry Wilson and Jonathon Brown left Sunnyside Cannery last Wednesday for Kitwanga and elsewhere up the Skeena River to assemble fishermen for Sunnyside Cannery.

Wallace B. Morgan, representative of the Carlisle Cannery, and David Williams, representative of Sunnyside Cannery, returned home to Kitwanga on Monday after a brief business trip to Smithers. The motoring party driven by Morris Williams, Jr. stopped at Skeena Crossing, Hazelton and Moricetown to give passes to the fishermen for the special train to the canneries today. Over one hundred fishermen are expected to travel on this train.

Kitwanga School Give Up Recess

Have Been Knitting Blankets for Air Raid Victims in Great Britain

KITWANGA, June 20.—The native school children of the Kitwanga Reserve have been quite busy this spring with the Junior Red Cross Busy Bees who are supervised by their teachers, Mr. and Mrs. Havhurst.

After the school concert which was a great success, there was a sale of knitted socks, etc. knitted by the school children. Instead of having recess the children knitted blankets for the air raid victims in London. Since the boys have stronger wrists than the girls, they have proved the faster knitters.
