FIGHTING IS HARD

But No Major Changes As Result Of Yesterday's Action In Russo-German War

LONDON, Nov. 14.—There were no major changes in the Russo-German war situation today after continued heavy fighting on all fronts yesterday.

Moscow admitted that the position of the Russians in the Crimea was precarious. German long range guns continued to pound Kerch on the Black Sea. However, the German offensive was being held back in the Kerch area. There have been torrential rains in Crimea.

London believes that the Nazis may commence any day a great new offensive against Rostov and the Don in their drive against the Caucasus oil fields.

Shattering new Nazi attacks in the Leningrad and Moscow sectors were claimed by the Russians to have been frustrated.

All along the whole front, said a noon communiqué from Moscow, the enemy is being held and at some points driven back.

Continued hard fighting in the Tula and Kalinin areas is reported.

Both wings of a Nazi drive on Moscow from the west and southwest have been hurled back.

In air fighting Moscow claimed that twenty-seven German planes were brought down Thursday, the Russian loss being only five planes. Two enemy planes were brought down near Moscow.

ARMING OF U.S. SHIPS

No Time Being Lost In Action Following Amendments To Neutrality Act

WASHINGTON, D.C., Nov. 14.—Atlantic navy yards are ready with ordnance crews to swing into action installing arms on merchant vessels of the United States following passage yesterday of the important amendments to the neutrality act. Now that the American vessels are to be permitted to carry war supplies right into combat zones, they will have to be prepared to resist submarines and combat magnetic mines.

In addition to the ports of belligerent nations, United States vessels will be legally enabled to use Canadian harbors both on the Atlantic and Pacific.

The amending measure is expected to be signed by President Franklin D. Roosevelt Monday.

CAIRO—Further widespread raids have been carried out by the Royal Air Force over Libya and Sicily, various military objectives having been successfully hit. The enemy is using tanks again in action against the defences of the besieged port of Tobruk. Four British planes have been lost.

HELSINKI—Finland, it is officially stated, does not consider the door closed to further negotiations with the United States despite refusal of the request made by United States that Finland make peace with Russia. The request of the United States was rejected merely as an exposition of position.

TEHERAN HEARS NOTHING

TEHERAN, Nov. 14: (CP)—The Soviet embassy said tonight it had no news of a plane in which Maxim Litvinoff, Sir Walter Moncton, Lawrence Steinhardt, Quentin Reynolds and others are reported missing enroute here from Kuibyshev, Russia.

VICTORIA, Nov. 14: (CP)—Hon. John Hart, minister of finance, said today that he favored a coalition government for British Columbia for the duration of the war either of two or all three parties.

ARMING OF U.S. SHIPS

London—A statement by the Admiralty today said that the Ark Royal, aircraft carrier, carried down with her an undisclosed number of the crew of about 1600 who remained on board in a struggle to save her, but a very large number of the crew were taken off. The three-year-old vessel was torpedoed late yesterday east of Gibraltar by a submarine and sank early today despite a desperate effort to bring the listing 22,000-ton ship safely to port. The loss was a belated fulfillment of many previous enemy claims that the carrier had been sunk.

DEFENCE OF TOBRUK IS AN EPIC—AIR TRAINING SCHEME CARRYING ON—MEN AND MONEY GIVEN IN DEFENCE OF EMPIRE.

Australia's Part in War Is Outstanding Especially For Help in Defending Africa

Defence of Tobruk Is an Epic—Air Training Scheme Carrying On—Men and Money Given in Defence of Empire.

MELBOURNE, Australia, Nov. 14:—Nearly half a million men under arms for service at home or overseas, the great majority of whom joined the forces voluntarily; a magnificent battle record on land, on the sea, and in the air; an industrial revolution which has led to the production of high-class munitions, airplanes and ships, and which has astonished British experts; about 200,000 men and women engaged directly and indirectly in such production, compared with fewer than 5,000 before the outbreak of war; hundreds of "voluntary workers"—men, women and children—contributing time, energy and money to the prosecution of war behind the scenes. After two years of war, Australia can claim these achievements.

SHIPS COME AND GO

British possession of the harbor means that British ships have been able to take supplies and equipment to the garrison. British ships come and go, in spite of daily bombing attacks of which there have been more than a thousand.

British possession of the harbor also means that the enemy's lines of communication are stretched over hundreds of miles. His supplies have to be taken overland from Tripoli, Bengazi or Derna.

Most of the garrison's offensive work is done at night, when the men emerge from their underground trenches and stalk forth on their deadly and successful patrols. It is a type of warfare which the enemy does not relish, and all reports reaching Australia outside this scheme can be made to emphasize the ineffectiveness of the enemy's siege.

It is a strange life, a hard life, but the British troops are cheerful and determined to stick to it. Sea bathing is their principal recreation. The food may be a little monotonous but there is no shortage.

Epic of Tobruk

Men of the A.I.F., together with British and Indian troops, are taking part in one of the epics of the war—the gallant defense of Tobruk.

Ever since April, 1941 they have held Tobruk against violent enemy assaults, and, in the words of one Australian war correspondent, Ian Fitchett, never once have they looked like losing it.

The men of Tobruk are achieving fame, not merely for their defense of this isolated fortress, but for their brilliant and successful policy of offensive defense, and also for their high morale in extremely difficult conditions. The enemy outside Tobruk has been reduced to a state of nerves.

When the Germans took Cyrenaica in less than a fortnight, Tobruk was left as the only remaining evidence of British occupation.

The Australians dug in there with the object of holding the harbor, which many experts regard as the best natural harbor in the world.

Demand for Invasion . . .

People who know nothing of the true position of affairs and who sit at home and try to manage the war for the Empire have been urging that the British authorities invade Europe or at least open a new enemy front. They know better than Churchill what should be done. We may be pretty sure that when the proper time arrives there will be an invasion, but prominent Canadians who have gone to London to investigate have arrived home to say that the present time is not opportune.

Total War . . .

This country, God knows, must make "total war," says the Ottawa Journal. No other kind of war is going to help beat Hitler. This is not something about which there should be party or other kind of division in this country. It is the government's duty, the government's responsibility, and if or when the government faces up to that responsibility the Canadian people, we feel certain, will support it unitedly.

There are those, we know, who say that an election or plebiscite on what is called "conscription" would result in its rejection. Perhaps that is true—though we doubt it—but assuming that it may be true, what is the answer? Isn't it simply that our people have not yet been told and do not yet fully understand the desperate seriousness of the war? Do not understand that we are in deadly peril of losing it? That we are faced with the terrible danger of a stalemate—meaning British and democratic defeat?

Let our Canadian people be told the truth, let them be told that they will answer with the full strength and full heart of them. Will stand by their government, no matter what it asks of them. Any other answer would mock all our professions, all our beliefs and convictions; mock our past and heritage. It would invite for all of us disaster and degradation and the reproach and condemnation of history.

Diet for Soldiers . . .

Many persons probably still believe that the way to make a man ferocious is to feed him on raw meat. They would accordingly recommend, if asked, says the New York Times, that if we want a ferocious army its diet should rest on a solid basis of slightly warmed beefsteak. They would be wrong on both counts. Mr. Stefansson and others have demonstrated that life can be supported comfortably on fatty meat alone, but the Eskimos, living on this diet, are not notably pugnacious. Nor is ferocity what a modern army mainly needs. It needs good health, steady nerves and intelligence.

It should be a surprise, therefore, that the army is weaning away many of its recruits from a too exclusive dependence on meat, fat pork, potatoes, corn and coffee, and inducing them to take an avid interest in carrots, lettuce, fruits and milk. According to Col. R. A. Osmun of the quartermaster corps, our soldiers are gaining weight and getting into better condition on this more varied diet. He believes that they will carry their new eating habits back into civilian life and that the general health will gain thereby. Farming will be benefited, too, for new and varied food demands will make for varied and more profitable agriculture.

Not all soldiers, of course, have come under Col. Osmun's enlightened sway. There are still some bad army cooks and some uninstructed army quartermasters. No soldier in his right senses is ever going to be completely satisfied with his food. But the outlook is improving. The "embalmed beef" scandals of the Spanish War and the canned "goldfish" surfeit of the World War are not likely to be repeated.

Man in the Moon

Jake says it's a treat looking over some of the former anti-war journals and finding them boasting for an all-out war for Russia. He also says it's a treat to see some of the hide-bound Tory and Liberal papers boasting for Stalin and his forces and even speaking well of the Russian people.

With the war pressing on us on the financial front as well as on the European front we are not worrying much what the commission says about the route for the high-way to Alaska.

Jake says he's been fighting on the financial front ever since he can remember.

"As I understand it," said the heathen in the South Seas, "you propose to civilize me?"

"Exactly so," said the white man.

"You mean to get me out of habits of idleness and teach me to work?"

"That's the idea."

"And then lead me to simplify my methods and invent things to make my work lighter."

"Yes."

"And next I shall become ambitious and get rich, so I shan't have to work at all!"

"Naturally."

"Well, what's the use of taking such a roundabout way of getting just where I started? I don't have to work now."

Clerk—A gift, madam? Do you want it to be something useful or ornamental?

Shopper—No, neither! It's a wedding present that I want.

The singing teachers were discussing the troubles of one student.

"What, in your opinion, is wrong with her?" asked one.

"Why, it seems to be another case of voice displacement," replied the other.

"Hm-mm, possibly. But just what do you mean by that?"

"Well, there is only one place for that voice that I can see—a deserted island."

"What time does the 11 o'clock train come in?"

"If you can figure out what time the 12 o'clock whistle blows you can answer your own question."

Husband: "Darling, this steak tastes like burnt leather."

Wife: "My, what strange things you've eaten in your life."

GOOD PILOT, POOR DRIVER

TRAIN FOR WAR WORK

Col. Fairey Interesting Speaker Before Prince Rupert Rotary Club.

Yesterday afternoon Col. Frank Fairey, regional director for British Columbia of the emergency training program, told the Prince Rupert Rotary Club something of the work that was being done in training young men of non-military ages to carry on the work of shipbuilding, airplane manufacture and manufacture of guns in this province. He said he was here particularly to see if he could help the local shipyard in training young men for the work there.

Present as guests at the luncheon were Arnold Flaten, Captain Stewart, Major Sutherland, Alex. Turnbull and J. O. LaFrancois of Montreal.

Col. Fairey told of the starting of the technical education plan designed to educate unemployed lads for jobs. This has been the basis of the present scheme for preparing young men to help in the war work. Young men who were fit between the ages of 18 and 33 were accepted only if they were in the army already and wished to learn some trade that would prove useful in connection with war work.

Just now there were 20,000 men needed and about half of these were now in the schools. The most popular course was electric welding. In addition to the school course it was planned to install a testing centre for the examining of students which must be passed by pupils from private schools before they would be granted certificates.

There were classes in Vancouver now for practically all the technical trades, machinists being most in demand. There were several other centres including one in the Okanagan. Most of the manual training centres were not of much value in training just now because they were not equipped for the metal trades. Whenever it was possible it was found that school boards were always willing to co-operate.

Just now the Dominion Bridge concern was installing a plant for the manufacture of guns and men were being trained especially for that work. Men were also being specially trained for positions with the Boeing air plant. The students, while being trained, were given a living allowance. Young men going south to take a course in Vancouver would be provided with transportation.

not taken so far, but it was probable that they would be included before long. Army men were taken at Nanaimo and, when the course was completed, they were sent to Hamilton. The C.C.A.F. was particularly short of mechanics. These must be between the ages of 18 to 33. After acceptance they spent 18 weeks at Vancouver and mostly were sent to St. Thomas. Many Canadians trained at Vancouver were already in England and were doing excellent work.

To become a pilot or observer, higher education was necessary but already special courses in mathematics were given likely men.

Before closing Col. Fairey said that the total cost this year for the British Columbia section of the scheme would be $260,000.

SMITHERS IS HURT OBSERVES HIT BY CAR; BY BULL BADLY HURT

Remembrance Day Celebrated in Jimmie George Sustains Painful Fitting Manner There. Injuries At Round Lake Farm

SMITHERS, Nov. 14: — One of the finest Remembrance Day services yet held in Smithers took place in the United Church on Tuesday morning when the veterans of the district, accompanied by the Smithers High School Cadets and the Girl Cadets, met at the Legion Hall and marched to the church for the occasion.

The church was filled to capacity and the service was conducted by Rev. C. E. Motte and Rev. J. E. Birchall.

An augmented choir rendered exceptionally fine music and a vocal solo was sung excellently by Mrs. George McKenzie.

The parade was marshalled by Capt. K. G. Houghton, president of Bulkley Valley Branch of Canadian Legion, and was headed by Constables Todd and West, with Constable Todd providing marching music on the bagpipes, from the Legion Hall to the church.

"Last Post" was sounded at 11:02 a.m., after the two minutes silence by Cadet Corp. Harry Kennedy, and was followed immediately with the "Lament," played by Constable Todd on the bagpipes.

A very fine address was given by Rev. C. E. Motte who performed chaplain service at many bases for miners in Scotland during the last war.

After the service the veterans and cadets marched back to the Canadian Legion where they were thanked for their attendance by Capt. Houghton and then dismissed.

The regular Armistice dance which has been an annual feature put on by the Legion was not held in Smithers this year but, instead, the event was put on by the Junior Red Cross of Smithers and a very successful dance was held during the evening in the big hall.

The sale of poppies exceeded all previous years in the number of emblems being disposed of in this district.

NO BEAU BRUMMELL

LONDON, Nov. 14: — Pilots of a beaufighter squadron of the Royal Air Force have named each aircraft with the word "Beau" as the basis. There's a "Beau-Peep," "Ann Beau Lynn," "Beau-Nana," "Beau - Dicia," "Beau-Na-Fide," "Beau-and-Arrow," "Beau-Kay," "Greta - Gar - Beau," and "Beau Legs."

Claude Symes Sustains Serious Injury At Smithers—Other Accidents

SMITHERS, Nov. 14: — Jimmie George, a young native of Telkwa, had a narrow escape from death on Tuesday while assisting "Buck" Morris and John Fulsoakke to load a bull onto a motor truck on the farm of John Fulsoakke near Round Lake, for transport by train.

George had got into the corral to put a rope onto the animal when he was knocked down and trampled into the muck. The animal was driven off by the other men and George got up and ran for the fence. While trying to climb the fence the bull charged again and caught him on his horns and threw him more than six feet into the air. He fell back into the garage but an immediate attack on the bull with pitchforks kept him at bay while the injured man was removed from the corral. His leg was badly ripped and torn by the animal's horns and it was necessary to put a tourniquet on the injured limb before he was even removed from the corral. Also in being thrown into the air he had fouled some barbed wire around the top of the fence and his face and neck were lacerated by the wire.

George is now in the Smithers hospital where he is doing as well as might be expected.

After considerable hard work the animal was finally trussed up and gotten onto a railway car, after he had driven a horn through the floor of the motor truck and doing damage in general.

VANDERHOOF

Remembrance Day was appropriately observed in Vanderhoof on Tuesday. Rev. J. Miller McCormick was in charge of a remembrance service in the Canadian Legion Hall, delivering the principal address. School children, as well as war veterans, attended in a body and there was a community choir with Mrs. R. M. Taylor acting as accompanist. During the afternoon the Women's Auxiliary of the Canadian Legion held a cabaret entertainment for which an excellent program had been prepared under the direction of Mrs. P. Brown. At night there was a big dance with music by the Fort Fraser Orchestra. On Sunday there were special patriotic services in Holy Trinity Anglican Church at Vanderhoof in observance of Remembrance Day. Veterans attending in the evening. There was a poppy day appeal on Saturday.

Tie contracts have been awarded throughout the central interior district. While the quantities are about the same as last year, operators welcome an increase of three cents in price for No. 1 ties and five cents for No. 2 ties. Specifications remain unchanged from last year. George Ogston of Vanderhoof, has again been awarded the contract for settlers in the Nechako district.

Gordon Holmes, an employee of the Consolidated Mining & Smelting Co. in the Omineca district, has had the misfortune to sustain a fracture of the right leg.

John H. McMillan and Edward D. Roberts have been recent patients at the fine new St. John Hospital at Vanderhoof.

Sergeant Air Gunner Robert Moore, son of Mr. and Mrs. R. H. Moore, and a native son of Vanderhoof, has arrived safely in Great Britain for service with the Royal Air Force.

Fred Nash, B.C.L.S., of Terrace, has been in the Omineca district north of Vanderhoof recently engaged in the surveying of mining properties.

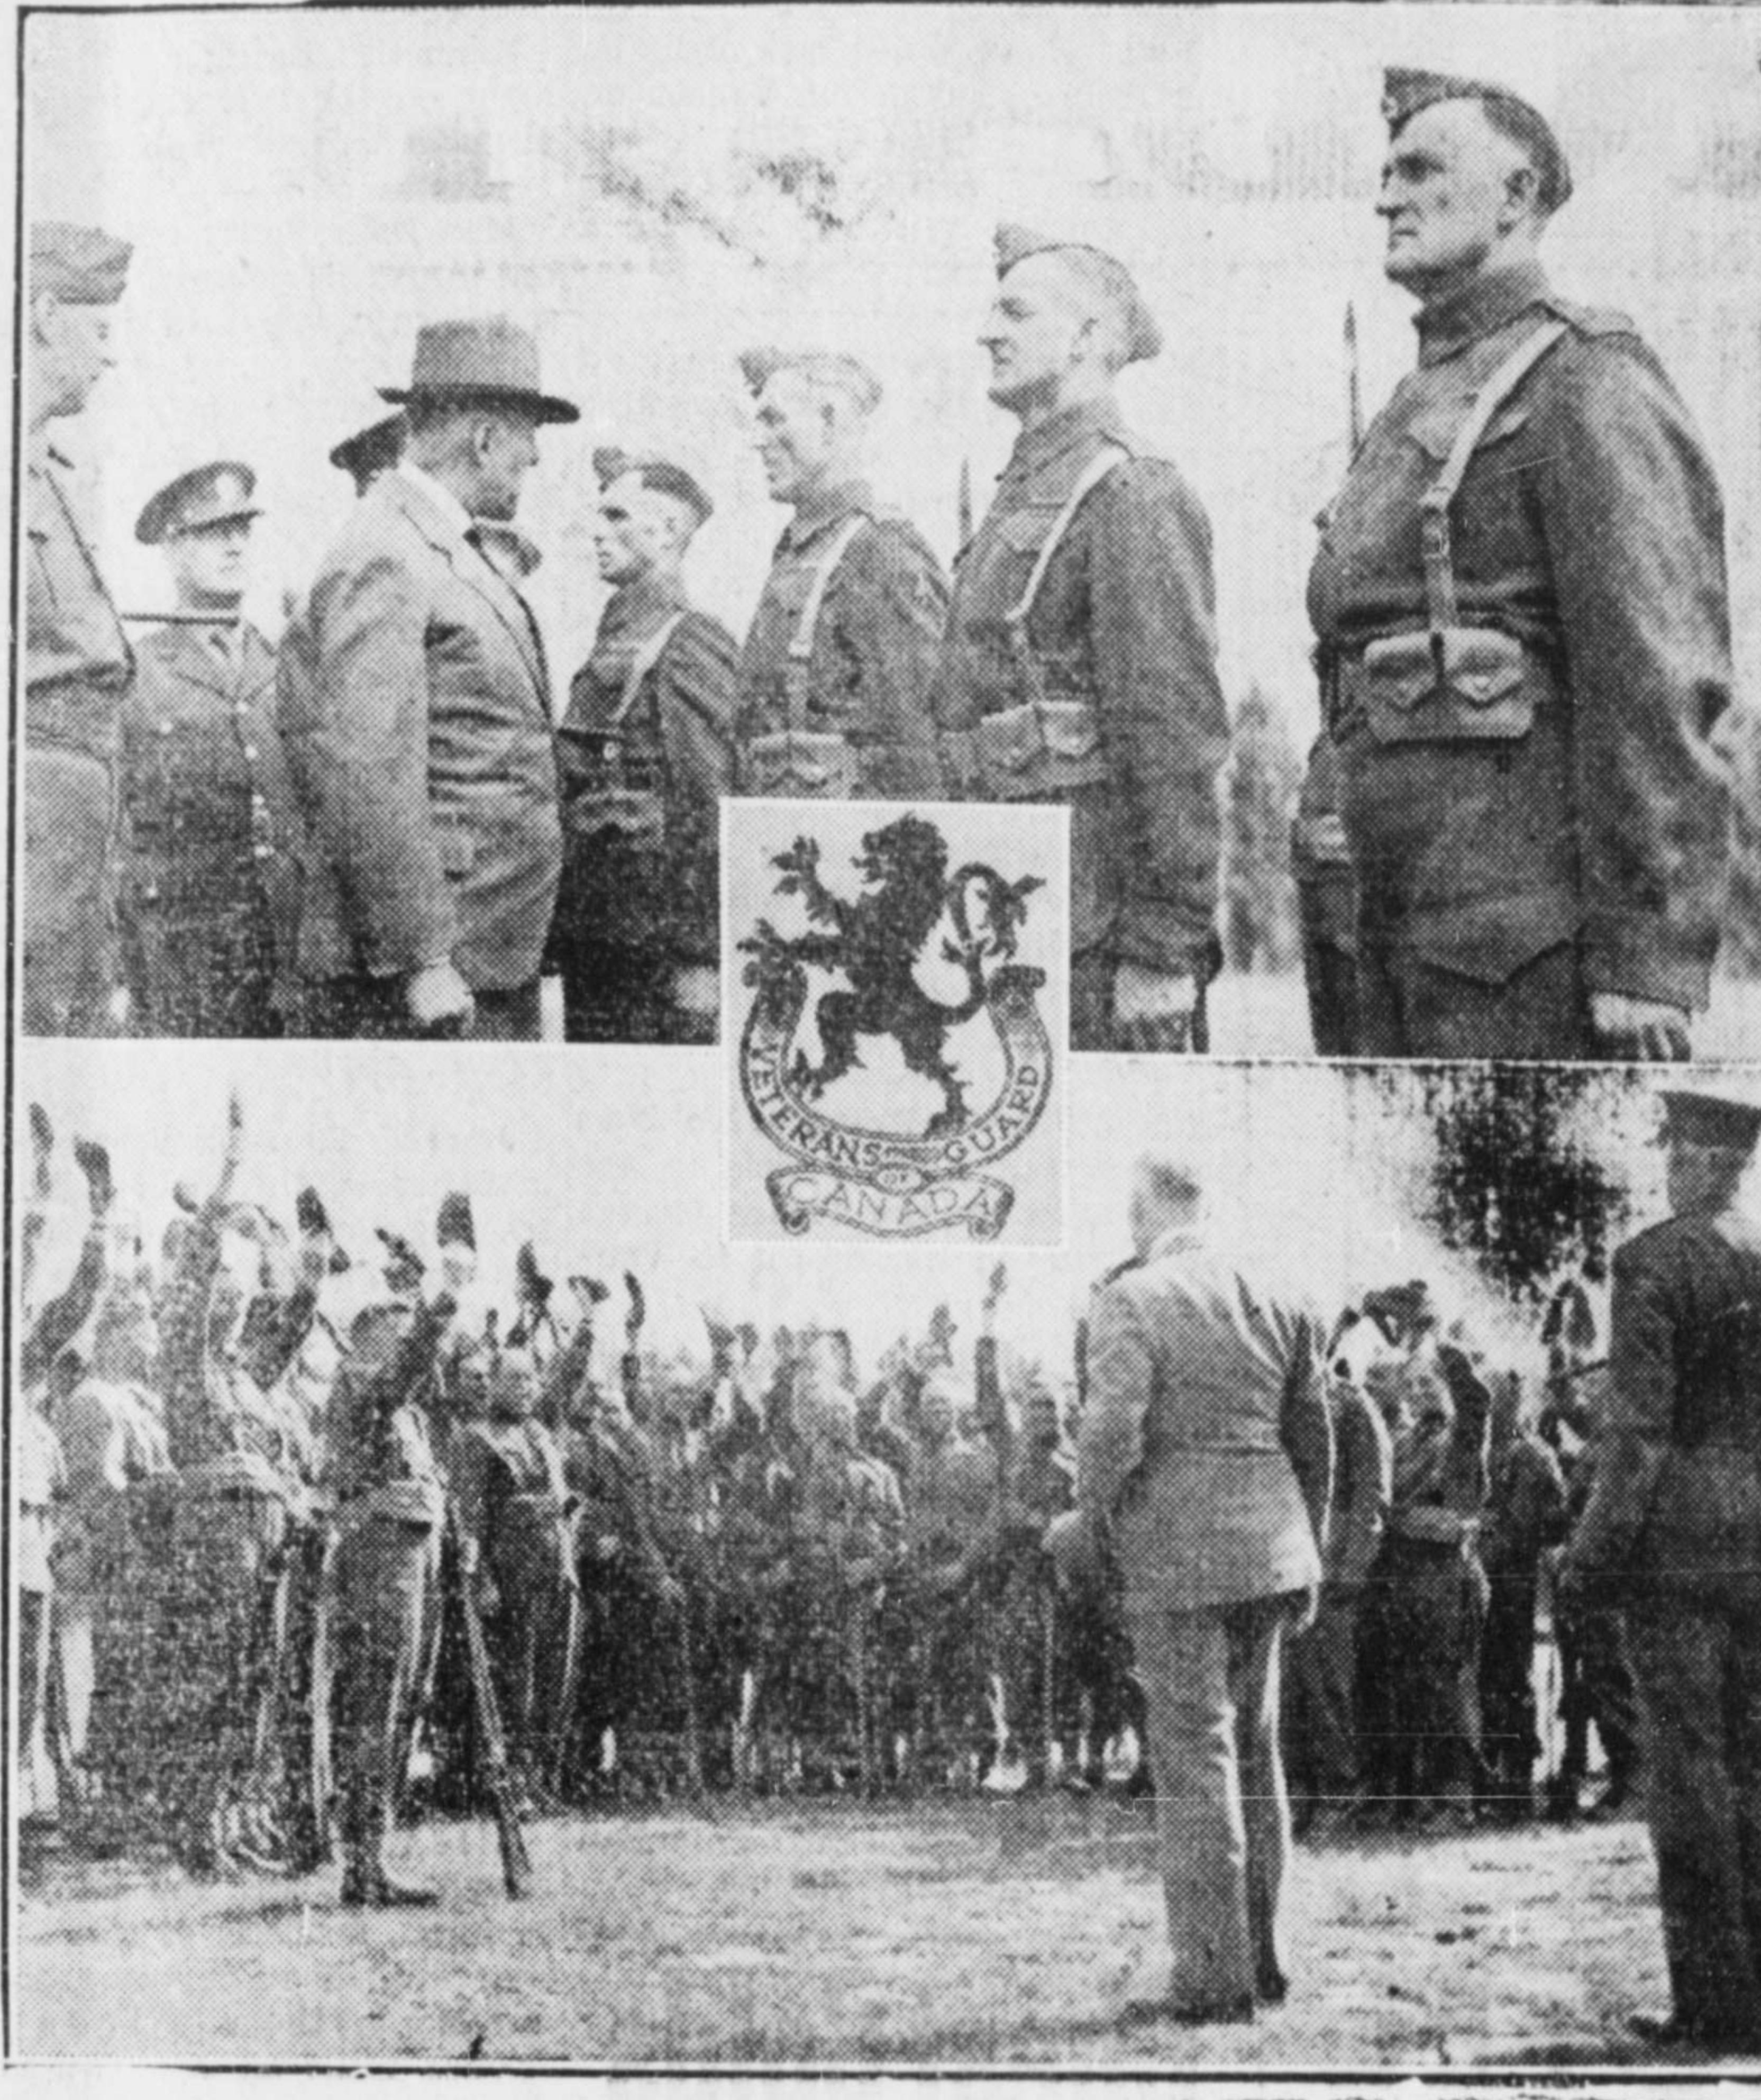

Guy Braman and four children have left Vanderhoof for Prince Rupert. Mr. Braman will follow the carpentering trade in Prince Rupert.

The official inspection of Defence Minister J. L. Ralston of the First Company of the Veterans Guard of Canada to go overseas was a strictly private show between old soldiers. The minister's inspection was held at Ottawa. Immediately above he is receiving three resounding cheers from the proud group of ex-soldiers. On top, Col. Ralston is seen talking to Pte. K. A. Ritchie, who won the D.C.M. with the 42nd Battalion in the last war. Behind the minister is Col. H. R. Alley, O.B.E., officer administering the Veterans Guard, and Major H. A. Hedley, M.C., commander of the overseas company.

MOUNTAIN BOY WORK

Operator of Well Known Stewart Property Is Well Satisfied.

An important gold mining property on Bitter Creek about eighteen miles from Stewart up the Bear River valley is being developed by the Mountain Boy Mining Company under direction of a mining engineer, J. O. La Francois of Montreal, the vice-president of the company. Mr. La Francois is in the city for a day or two on his way east for the winter, having been driven off the property by snow.

While diffident about telling of the results of the work done so far on the property, Mr. La Francois admitted that he considered it something better than a prospect. The tunnel so far had gone 43 feet through mineralized rock and they were expecting to strike another vein soon and until that was cut he did not care to say anything about it. The ore was arsenical pyrites.

Mr. La Francois said he was planning to spend the winter in the east and would return to Stewart in April to continue work on the property.

SMITHERS HAS SNOW

Four Inches Fell Unexpectedly Wednesday Night.

SMITHERS, Nov. 14: — The people of the Bulkley Valley awoke yesterday morning to find about four inches of snow on the ground, which looks as though it may be the first that will stay and may be added to by future falls of snow that will be here for the winter.

After two days of regular Indian summer weather it was rather a surprise to find that so much had fallen during the night when there was so little indication that it was about to come.

The ground is not yet frozen unless some pretty cold weather comes immediately, the ground may stay fairly soft all winter, which would handicap those who work in the woods on poles, logs and firewood.

Australia's Part in War

much to make the garrison's lot a happier one, and a daily news sheet lives up to its motto—"All ways appears."

Australia's first V.C. winner was a hero of Tobruk—Corporal J. H.
Edmonson, a young farmer from Liverpool, New South Wales. During an encounter with the enemy Edmonson's officer was attacked by two Germans and called for help. Though already wounded in the neck and stomach, Edmonson answered the call and killed both of the enemy.

"This action undoubtedly saved his officer's life," said the official declaration.

The V.C. was awarded posthumously to Edmonson, for he died of wounds shortly after the attack.

Tobruk is one of the great jobs of the war.

Armored Division

Australia's formation and equipment of an armored division is the most important army project ever attempted in Australia.

It is both a military and an industrial problem of the first magnitude. Two years ago the establishment of such a division would not have been a practical project, because Australia had not then reached a sufficiently advanced stage of industrial development.

Today the project is taking shape, and training is being speeded up to make the division ready for service overseas.

The division will comprise armored brigades, a support column, armored divisional troops, and will include tanks, universal carriers, mechanized artillery and other mechanized units.

Air Training Scheme

Australia is a partner in the Empire Training Scheme, the greatest undertaking in aviation history. This agreement was signed at Ottawa in November, 1939 with the immediate aim of providing 20,000 pilots and 30,000 crew personnel annually. The Dominion agreed to supply slightly more than half.

Australia's objective is to supply 10,000 fully trained air crew personnel by March 31, 1943; to build up an organization capable of furnishing 10,000 each year thereafter; and to provide 27,500 ground staff personnel considered necessary to service Empire air squadrons formed from Australian personnel in the first three years. Australia's share of the Dominion quota is 40 per cent. Canada's is 48 percent, and New Zealand's 12 percent.

The scheme will probably cost Australia considerably more than the original estimate of $172,250,000. Already the Australian estimate of expenditure for the scheme is $195,000,000.

Seven-ninths of Australia's quota are being wholly trained in Australia. The remainder are partially trained in Australia, then sent to Canada to complete training before going to war stations. Pots also are sent to Rhodesia on completion of initial training courses to do all their flying training there. Since the agreement was signed Australia has kept pace not only with the original program but with a substantial expansion of it.

About 85 percent of all new training establishments needed to train men under the scheme have been completed. The total building program involves expenditure of $15,250,000 of which more than $3,000,000 already has been spent.

SPORT CHAT

LADY CHAMP MAT POISON

You can't talk to her long without knowing why the cops call her "Smiley."

Has Husband, Too

Her smile is widest when she talks about her husband, Walter Kauger, a sandy-haired, blue-eyed steel worker to whom she was married last June.

"He's a wonderful husband—big, broad-shouldered," she says. "And I never have to wear clothes."

Grace Costello, lady wrestler from Hoboken, N. J.

When she climbs into the ring a lot of other lady wrestlers would just as soon climb out. During her brief career she has won every match except two—one loss and the other a draw.

Grace has liquid, Latin eyes, berries that would jar you and a reputation for fighting clean. If there is anything in the world that makes her sore, it is a dirty fighter—a fighter who punches, gouges, bites or pulls hair.

"The meanest thing that was ever done to me was in a match in Paterson, N. J.," she said. "The girl I was wrestling knocked me down and jumped on my stomach. But I got up and gave her the flying mare—grabbed her by the back of the head and threw her over my shoulder—and pinned her."

"There are some pretty bitter struggles in the ring. You can be the best of friends in the dressing room, but in the ring you want to win. The girl you are wrestling does something to you, you do something to her. And all of a sudden you're at each other's throats."

Boy Oh Boy!

"The hold I like the best is the head lock. You hook your arm around the other fellow's head, give 'em the hip, knock 'em off their base and they flip over. Then you pounce on them and pin their shoulders back. I think every girl ought to know a little bit about wrestling. It teaches you to take care of yourself."

Grace, who is 21, was the third of nine children. She was the family tomboy. Knew all the cops and everyone else in town. She answered to the name of "Smiley" and captained the women's softball team. She began wrestling a little more than a year ago.

"I was talked into it," she said. "John Fazio, a wrestler I know, wanted to give me lessons and manage me—after a few months he booked me for an exhibition and then a match and I won. So I kept on. I needed the money."

(Grace says she and her opponent generally divide 12 percent of the gate.)

For all her wrestling, Grace doesn't look masculine. She shows a touch of the tomboy still, but she isn't mannish. Feminine? Yes.

Not the femininity of frills, but of warmth, friendliness, gentleness—steely courage when the going is rough. She has a big full-figured figure, curly black hair, a soft voice, a quick friendly smile.

EDUCATION CAMPAIGN

Ottawa Survey Finds Malnutrition Prevalent In Canada With Mother Worst Fed Of All

OTTAWA, Nov. 14: ©—Recent surveys which show that malnutrition is prevalent in Canada despite plentiful food supplies, will form the basis of a nation-wide educational program to be launched by the Department of National Health within the next two months.

Preparations for the campaign, the result of two years' study, are practically complete, Dr. R. E. Wodehouse, deputy minister of pensions and national health said. Final details will be worked out at a conference of the Canadian Council on Nutrition to be held shortly.

About 40 percent of the people studied were considered adequately fed, with another 40 percent getting three-quarters of what they required and 20 percent getting little more than half of what they needed.

"Food is not fairly distributed in the family," their report stated. "The worst fed member is the mother; the best fed the father or wage earner. Of the children, except for vitamin C, worst fed is the teen-age youngster, who, few people realize, needs more food than the average adult."

The surveys which illustrate the need of nutritional education were made in Halifax, Quebec, Toronto and Edmonton and showed serious lack of some important elements in the diets of the families studied.

Deficiencies Evident

In a summary of the four surveys it was reported: "All of the low-income surveys show that there is a shortage of protective foods which can be relied upon to furnish minerals and vitamins. Three marked deficiencies are evident; calcium, particularly for the children, the B vitamins for all individuals and iron for the women and children.

"The higher income families had definitely better supplies of food but even in these families, there was a deficiency of the B vitamins. One conclusion is clearly evident from these surveys—many families in Canada are not securing supplies of food adequate for health, for proper growth of children and for working efficiency."

Lack of nutritional information ranked with economic restrictions in responsibility for unbalanced diets, it was found. The campaign which is now being planned will be designed to provide this information.

Throughout the four surveys care was taken to assure accuracy in the findings with individual helpings being weighed in some cases. At Halifax, where the survey was made by E. Gordon Young of Dalhousie University, 82 families with annual income of from $450 to $1,500 a year were studied.

The families had an average income of $19.68 a week and most spend only from 30 to 60 percent of their income on food. The findings showed only 10 percent equal to or above a specified standard. 20 percent ranged down to 70 percent of the standard and 70 percent were below that figure.

40 Percent On Food

Dr. J. E. Sylvestre, Quebec director of nutrition, and Dr. Honore Nadeau of Laval University, made the Quebec study among 76 families with an average income of $21.44 a week. They found the families spent on an average 40 percent of their income on food.

"Low income, the large number of individuals per family and lack of knowledge concerning food values have been given as reasons for the inadequate food intake," they reported. "The high infant mortality rate in Quebec has been lowered through educational effort."

NINE DIED, NINE LIVED

LONDON, Nov. 14: ©—A. V. Alexander, First Lord of the Royal Admiralty, in tribute to Britain's Wilhelmina, Netherlands' Queen, told how nine outside Netherlands territory were kept alive for 15 days on a raft with only three tea-spoonsful of water daily, while nine others died.

There are about 4,500 native reindeer owners in Alaska. Last bank failure in Scotland was in 1878.
