ITALIAN MOVE IS FAILURE

Counter-Offensive at Tepelini Is Shattered — Greeks Gain New Positions — Valona Useless

ATHENS, February 6 (Canadian Press)—An Italian counter-attack yesterday in the Tepelini sector of the Albanian front is reported by the Greeks to have been shattered, putting the Italians again in the defensive. The counter-attack failed despite support of tanks and armored cars. The Italians suffered heavy casualties. Previously reinforcements had been rushed by air to the Italians at Tepelini. Greek planes dropped leaflets on the Italian troops, pointing out that their position was hopeless and suggesting that they surrender.

Increasing pressure all along the front, the Greeks have occupied important new positions around Xilivra as well as in the Tepelini sector.

It was reported last night that the Greeks had taken another important town and it was thought that Tepelini might have fallen to them.

On account of heavy damage which has been done to the place by Greek and British aerial bombing the Italians. It is reported, are no longer using Valona as a base but have moved to another place below there.

Democratic Members of Congress Bidding for Increased Support For "Aid to Britain" Bill

WASHINGTON, D.C., Feb. 6 (CP)—Democratic members of the House of Representatives foreign affairs committee, in a bid for increased support of the "Aid to Britain" bill so that it may be assured of an overwhelming majority, agreed today to an amendment to put a five-year limit on the President's power to make contracts under statute.

The House concluded general debate on the bill yesterday and is today engaged in the consideration of amendments. Final vote is expected to come tomorrow. Other proposed amendments would limit the amount of money to be spent on munitions to be supplied to Great Britain and insure that United States ships stay out of the war zone and that the President be denied authority to order United States warships to convoy ships carrying war materials to Britain.

Meanwhile, hearings on the bill before the Senate foreign relations committee are continuing. Col. Charles A. Lindbergh was to appear today with Former Governor Alfred M. Landon on Saturday and Wendell Willkie possibly next Monday. Colonel Lindbergh contended before the senate committee that, by aiding Great Britain and other countries, United States was "encouraging war, prolonging it and increasing bloodshed in Europe without materially affecting the course of the war. Lindbergh said in a prepared statement that, if the United States was ever invaded, "the responsibility will lie with those who send our arms abroad."

PROGRESS IN DRIVE ON LIBYA

British Forces Are Two-Thirds of Way Across—Fast Headway in Eritrea

CAIRO, February 6: (Canadian Press)—British forces in Africa are closing in on Cheren, important Eritrean railway town, general headquarters announced today. In North Africa the advance on Bengasi is progressing satisfactorily and the British are expected at the gates of the Fascist stronghold in about forty-eight hours.

CAIRO, Feb. 6: (CP)—British columns have now driven two-thirds of the way across Eastern Libya in less than two months and are closing in on Bengasi, the principal port of the Italian Mediterranean colony. Bengasi may be reached within 48 hours, it is thought.

In Eritrea the British continue to close in on Asmara, the capital.

The main Italian army in Libya appeared last night to be in frantic flight toward Bengasi, being only sixty or seventy miles away from there with the British and Australian forces close on its heels. Apparently, the Fascists have given up an intention they might have had of making a stand east of Bengasi.

In Eritrea the Italians also continue in pell-mell flight, leaving the road toward Asmara, Massawa and the Red Sea littered with trucks, tanks and guns. In Ethiopia the Italians are falling back on Lake Tana before the rapidly advancing British, South African and native Ethiopian forces.

Further still to the East, the British forces have penetrated forty-five miles into Italian Somiland. During the past couple of days the Italians have lost twenty-five planes in the African campaign, the British losing only two—a fighter and a bomber.

MONTREAL - WINNIPEG BOUND TRANSPORT PLANE MISSES AIRPORT AT ARMSTRONG EARLY THIS MORNING AND CATASTROPHE RESULTS FROM FORCED LANDING

WINNIPEG, February 6: (CP)—The civil aviation branch of the federal Department of Transport announced today that a TransCanada Air Lines plane, which had been missing for several hours with crew of three and nine passengers, had been located from the air about one mile south of the landing field at Armstrong in northwestern Ontario. All on board were killed in the crash.

The plane was piloted by Capt. W. E. Twiss, formerly of Vancouver, with the passengers believed to include E. C. Manning, chief forester for British Columbia and Mrs. R. D. Carter of Vancouver. There was no immediate word as to the safety or otherwise of those on board but later it was announced they had perished.

The plane was on its way from Montreal to Winnipeg. It left Montreal last night and the last word received from it was early today when it was nearing Armstrong with the intention of landing there which, however, it failed to do.

Mr. Manning is very well known in Prince Rupert, having several years ago been district forester here. He was a member of Tyee Lodge A.F. and A.M.

It was at 3:47 this morning that the pilot advised Armstrong airport by radio that he was making the usual routine landing there. Therefore, it is believed to have been a short time after that that the crash occurred.

Besides Manning and Mrs. Carter, passengers are believed to have included Ian E. Davidson of Vancouver, secretary of the Master Bakers' Association; F. W. F. Gasston of Winnipeg; E. Malone, Toronto; H. Moss, Toronto; Prof. Robert McQueen, Winnipeg; Lieut. Commander H. H. Harlowe, Ottawa; J. F. Freer, Winnipeg.

The crew, besides Twiss, included First Officer C. E. Lloyd of Winnipeg and Miss M. G. Maybe, stewardess.

Leads "All Canadians" . . .

A squadron leader of the "All Canadians" in England is a man without legs. He has taken part in a number of engagements including the affair at Dunkirk. He has had an extraordinary career in the Royal Air Force. Soon after he was commissioned he lost both legs in a crash and was invalided from the service. Metal limbs were substituted and he used them so skillfully that on the outbreak of war he was again accepted for flying duties. His superb leadership has been largely responsible for the squadron's success over Britain. A fearless fighter, he has led his men into battles in which the odds have been overwhelmingly against them and has brought them through with flying colors.

Who Are The Wreckers? . . .

It is about time the dissensions over the Ottawa conference stopped. The same people who are keeping up the campaign to try to oust the British Columbia premier are the ones who are asking for unity of purpose in this war time. They perhaps do not realize that the dissension is injuring the war unity and it is time it came to an end. Let us fight it out when the war is over. No matter who was right or who was wrong, the outstanding feature of the controversy is that Pattullo had the courage to stand out against not only the opposition but thousands of his own supporters in favor of something he believed to be right.

In the past Pattullo has usually been right and he is probably right this time. To use Hitlerian methods against him just now is to destroy that spirit of fair play for which our men are fighting in Europe. Let us turn to the war effort and forget this wrangling. Those politicians and others who have an axe to grind should be compelled to vent their petty spite at some more opportune time.

Right Kind of Politician . . .

Wendell Willkie is a politician of the right kind. During the recent presidential campaign he fought Roosevelt to the limit of his powers. When the big fight was over and he was defeated he swung in behind the President and used all his influence in support of the President's policy of full support to Britain. He has shown himself to be a real man.

DODGING OF NAZIS HIS LONG SUIT

Neutral Sailors Strafed in France, "Sunk" Twice in Atlantic, Reached Canada on a Warship

By DOUG HOW Canadian Press Staff Writer AN EAST COAST CANADIAN PORT, Feb. 5: (CP)—A new chapter in seafaring life lies before Martin Kovacevic and, after eight hectic months, the amiable Yugoslav skipper is jubilant.

In this Canadian port, he parted company with the small group of men who went with him through the worst of the Battle of France, the sinking of two ships on the Atlantic and a four-month stretch in Canadian immigration quarters.

Kovacevic was to take command in New York of a "good ship" but he found the greatest pleasure in the fact that he will again be master of a vessel—the Milena—that flies the colors of his native land. His companions were to ship aboard the first Yugoslav craft to enter this harbor in months.

Their's is a long story. Last May 13, Kovacevic led a band of 26 men from Yugoslavia to take over a ship at Boulogne. In France, however, they were informed that the vessel had been sunk by the Nazis. Stranded, they reached Dunkerque and found themselves plunged into a terrific multitude of civilians seeking only to flee before the armies of Germany. So the Yugoslavs joined the refugees, walking 57 miles, through a constant aerial bombardment to Calais.

There they found work and the food they had lived without for three days. Officers and men alike helped load a Polish boat that finally sailed without completing its cargo. Kovacevic and the remnants of his little band—those who decided not to turn back—crossed to England with her.

Polite But Definite

There Kovacevic was posted with others of his group to the Panamanian vessel Saint Marguerite and sailed for North America. Hundreds of miles at sea, sailing alone in the daylight hours, they were accosted by a Nazi U-boat. A polite captain gave every man time to take to the lifeboats, inquired of their supply of food and water and then torpedoed their ship. The climax of his gentlemanly conduct was his advice as to the direction they should take to cross the path of a British ship.

Darkness had fallen when their lifeboat—carrying 18 men—heard another ship and signalled it with a torch. It proved to be the British vessel King John. That was July 2. Eleven days later as they crept nearer America, they ran across a ship with several Swedish flags painted on her side. She carried the name "Narvik."

As an engineer-survivor described: "She came to within 400 yards of us when suddenly down went the Swedish flag, up went the swastika and bang went the guns." German machine guns swept the King John's defensive weapon and no responding fire was possible.

Kovacevic was standing with the British skipper on the bridge when the latter was wounded. The men were ordered to the boats and the Germans finally ceased firing when they saw the ship was being abandoned.

Quietly the King John was deserted except for one man—an ordinary seaman—and he raced to the bridge to wave to one of the three lifeboats to wait. Nazi machine-gun fire mowed him down. The Yugoslavs explained that the Germans may have believed he was the wireless operator left behind to call for aid.

The British captain, his chief engineer and two wounded Yugoslavs were taken aboard the Narvik. Once again, the fact that Yugoslavs were victimized seemed to inspire a German captain to excellent manners. The explanation, they believed, was that the Nazis didn't wish to do anything to chafe relations with that Balkan nation.

Provided Lifeboat

When one of the survivors shouted that they had seen a ship sunk for the second time in two weeks, the captain bellowed "I'm sorry—good voyage." A more tangible gesture was his gift of a lifeboat to relieve the others of excess cargo. Kovacevic's boat was adrift four and a half days in a hurricane-lashed Atlantic before it reached the French island of St. Bartholomew in the West Indies. Forty-one men thus were saved.

From their landing place, the Yugoslavs got to the British island of St. Kitts where they were given new clothes. They came to Canada aboard a British warship.

They lived in immigration quarters here for four months, although, Kovacevic said, London had ordered that they be repatriated. Authorities, he added, said lack of shipping space made their return to Europe impossible.

Then suddenly things began to break their way. A vessel skippered by a man who went to school in Croatia with Kovacevic entered harbor and offered to take on the eight officers and men.

The offer was swiftly accepted. Kovacevic planned to go along too, but an unexpected wire from New York gave him a ship of his own.

Through Heart Of Africa By Talkie Film

By means of interesting talking pictures, members of the Prince Rupert Gyro Club and guests were taken on an 11,000-mile trip through the heart of "Dark Africa" by Cecil Brind, local manager of the Imperial Oil Co., at yesterday's regular weekly luncheon of the club. The pictures followed a motor safari which started at Algiers, crossed the Sahara Desert, went through Nigeria, Kamerun, French Equatorial Africa, the Congo and ended up at Nairobi. The trip took six months' time and the pictures depicted some of the difficulties of travel, the native peoples and their customs, natural life and odd incidents. The past president, G. A. Hunter, expressed the appreciation of the club to Mr. Brind.

Guests, besides Mr. Brind, were Ernest Meadows, Andrew MacDonald (Terrace), Robert Sutherland and City Commissioner B. C. Bracewell.

KISS YOUR TIRED FEELING GOODBYE!

Peppless Many Suffer Low Blood Count—And Don't Know It.
The baffling thing about low blood count is that you can weigh about as much as you ever did—even look healthy and strong, yet—you can feel as if you had lead in your legs, dopey, tired and peppy.
Low blood count means you haven't got enough red blood corpuscles. It is their vital job to carry life-giving oxygen from your lungs throughout your body. And just as it takes oxygen to explode gasoline in your car and make the power to turn the wheels, so you must have plenty of oxygen to explode the energy in your body and give you going power.
Get Dr. Williams' Pink Pills today. They are world-famous for the help they give in increasing the number and strength of red corpuscles. Then with your blood count up, you'll feel like bounding up the stairs as if you were floating on air. Ask your druggist for Dr. Williams' Pink Pills today.

GAS TALK IS HEARD

Corporal Gray of Irish Fusiliers Interests A.R.P.

A very interesting lecture was given at the Fire Hall last evening to the members of the Auxiliary Fire Service of the local Air Raid Protection organization by Corporal Gray, war gases instructor of the Irish Fusiliers. He dealt with his subject in a very interesting and practical way and, at the conclusion, received a hearty invitation to continue his lecture next Tuesday evening which he readily consented to do.

Some discussion took place on the inefficiency of the general alarm system which was so apparent at the last practice and it was felt that an efficient alarm system was the first essential to success in A. R. P. services.

A snappy overall uniform and rubber boots were issued to each of the personnel at the close of the evening, these being supplied by the A.R.P. of Canada.

INSPECTOR IS HEARD

Alex Turnbull Interesting Speaker Before Teachers' Meeting

Alex Turnbull, inspector of schools, guest speaker of Prince Rupert and District Teachers' Association at the regular monthly meeting on Wednesday evening at the Borden Street School, gave an address on summer school education. This proved interesting to a considerable number of members present. Reports were read by Miss Eileen Gibson, Secretary, and J. H. Nordan, treasurer. J. S. Wilson chairman, read circulation carriers from the Teachers' Federation. There was a discussion among members concerning new report cards to parents. This matter of report cards was considered so vital that it was decided to reserve it for full consideration at the next meeting.

Inspector Turnbull introduced his topic by pointing out that teachers contemplating summer school work should determine their choice of courses with three points in mind—first, improvement of professional rating; second, consideration of the pupils under their care; third, opportunity for obtaining recreation and for advancing themselves educationally.

The inspector went on to describe his enjoyable summer in a teachers' college at Columbia University in 1937. His account of his trip to New York by car and his experiences while in New York was punctuated with descriptive, interesting and amusing incidents—how his alarm clock went off in his luggage while at the customs, his trip through the Chrysler assembly plant at Windsor, the bilingual character of the population between Ottawa and Montreal, taking wrong roads, getting caught in traffic jams, receiving unfavorable notice from police for driving too slowly, unexpected and unwanted interview he had to give before a mike, his visits to the Bronx Zoo, Harlem, Empire State Building, and the Jones Beach with its five parking spaces, one alone built to accommodate 3000 cars.

The appreciation accorded Inspector Turnbull by members was genuine and enthusiastic.

At the close of the meeting refreshments were served by the lady members.

Gardening

A happy gardening year to all who stir the soil and grow things! While I am not pretending that winter is over, there are flowers blooming in the garden and the days are getting longer.

The spring catalogues are arriving and their bright illustrations make us dream of what we might do if conditions were just right and there was no war going on.

As this is war time a good many people will be thinking of growing vegetables and salad materials. But that does not mean that flowers will be neglected. We must keep our gardens trim and neat and see that they are cheerful and bright during the summer season, especially during the tourist season.

I said there were flowers blooming in the garden. I have yellow jasmine in bloom, a few mauve primroses and I have already picked a yellow wallflower. The Christmas roses are later. While the blooms are formed and well above ground it will be at least a week or two before they begin to open. In this climate they are usually at their best in March.

OLD DAYS IN GOTHAM

Lusty, romantic drama of the very early boisterous days in New York is brought to the screen of the Capitol Theatre here tonight and Friday in "Little Old New York," starring Alice Faye, Fred MacMurray, Richard Greene and Brenda Joyce with Andy Devine, Henry Stephenson and Fritz Feld also featured in the cast.

Alice Faye is cast in this robust story in the colorful role of a fiery waterfront belle who falls headlong for Robert Fulton, the steamboat pioneer, played by Richard Greene. MacMurray is seen as the burly shipbuilder who makes Fulton's ship. Brenda Joyce, however, is the girl of the hero's dreams and it is she whom he marries.

The picture is, of course, periodic in its settings which are elaborate and true in detail. Background photography was taken on the Hudson River itself. Much research of the early history of the town was involved in the production. Not least interesting to the ladies is the period wardrobe.

This matter of report cards was considered so vital that it was decided to reserve it for full consideration at the next meeting.

Inspector Turnbull introduced his topic by pointing out that teachers contemplating summer school work should determine their choice of courses with three points in mind—first, improvement of professional rating; second, consideration of the pupils under their care; third, opportunity for obtaining recreation and for advancing themselves educationally.

The inspector went on to describe his enjoyable summer in a teachers' college at Columbia University in 1937. His account of his trip to New York by car and his experiences while in New York was punctuated with descriptive, interesting and amusing incidents—how his alarm clock went off in his luggage while at the customs, his trip through the Chrysler assembly plant at Windsor, the bilingual character of the population between Ottawa and Montreal, taking wrong roads, getting caught in traffic jams, receiving unfavorable notice from police for driving too slowly, unexpected and unwanted interview he had to give before a mike, his visits to the Bronx Zoo, Harlem, Empire State Building, and the Jones Beach with its five parking spaces, one alone built to accommodate 3000 cars.

The appreciation accorded Inspector Turnbull by members was genuine and enthusiastic.

At the close of the meeting refreshments were served by the lady members.
