EDITORIAL

There were only minor criticisms of the government in the debate on the conduct of the war in the British House of Commons this week. Three members were opposed but all others supported the general policy, a few being critical of the information department, a job usually handled by a person who knows nothing whatever about publicity.

Looking across at this distance from the field of battle, it seems to us that the British reluctance to give out news until every doubt as to its authenticity has been set aside has given the German a great advantage. The Germans tell the world about any advantages the moment it happens, and sometimes even before it happens. They manage to give the first impression which often sticks. A little more speed in the propaganda department would be decidedly advantageous. We would like to see a man like Beverley Baxter placed in charge of the ministry of propaganda. If he were given a free hand there would be little opportunity for complaint, we feel sure.

THIS IS THE FLAVOUR
FOR ME TRA-LA!

you know you're getting Kellogg's
Corn Flakes, and no other!

If you didn't see the package, you'd still know Kellogg's by the grand taste! No other corn flakes have that mouth-watering flavour that is the secret of Kellogg's enormous popularity.

Impartial investigators found that 4 out of 5 housewives voted Kellogg's first for flavour. Taste experts agree... your palate tells you why!

And remember, that grand flavour gives you the kind of appetite that actually helps digestion. Serve Kellogg's Corn Flakes regularly. Order two or three packages from your grocer tomorrow.

Made by Kellogg's in London, Canada.

4 out of 5 vote for Kellogg's!

During the last three years more than 5,000 women have been asked: "What is your family's favourite cereal?" And each year Kellogg's Corn Flakes have won by a large majority. Last year, when housewives were asked specifically: "Which brand of corn flakes do you think tastes best?" 84%, or 4 out of 5 of those interviewed, said "Kellogg's!"

Your family, too, will enjoy Kellogg's Corn Flakes. When you eat out, ask for the triple-wrapped individual package.

Hint for the thrifty! The "30-second breakfast" comes in two sizes. Only costs a few pennies a serving for all the family's breakfast.
