British Successes In Sea Fighting Three Quarters Of Million Men Trained In Winter Fighting Are Arriving To Strengthen Line

Naval Action Going On off African Coast Seven Ships Boarded

French Charged With Carrying German Supplies Are Intercepted by British Fleet and Five Ships Boarded—Prevent Scuttling of Three.

LONDON, Nov. 4: (CP)—British sailors have intercepted and boarded five Vichy French merchantmen and prevented the scuttling of three of them in an action which is still proceeding off the South African coast, the Admiralty announced today. It charged the French with attempting to convey supplies for the Germans from the east.

At the same time a night battle in the channel was announced in which the Admiralty said patrol vessels engaged warships protecting a large Axis supply ship.

A ship commanded by a Canadian, C. E. Bonnell, shot two torpedoes into the supply ship.

Another American Naval Vessel Torpedoed More Than Once But No Loss of Life

WASHINGTON, Nov. 4: (CP)—The United States Navy announced today another torpedoing in North Atlantic waters, that of the United States naval tanker Salinas, but said happily there was no further loss of life added to the 97 men presumed lost on the sunken destroyer Reuben James.

The Salinas was torpedoed without warning, the navy statement said, but seriously damaged she made her way to port. She was also hit the day before and in the same general area as the Reuben James, the first American warship lost in the battle of the Atlantic.

Counted also as victims of the ocean warfare were twelve men killed in the crash of a big patrol bomber, somewhere at sea.

Veteran Shipmaster Retiring—

Capt. Harry Nedden, Commodore Of Canadian National Fleet, Is Finishing Off Fine Marine Career

By G. A. HUNTER

One Saturday afternoon at the end of November, Capt. Harry Nedden, commodore of the Canadian National Coast Steamships fleet and one of British Columbia's best known and most popular shipmasters, will step ashore at Vancouver into retirement from the steamer Prince George, the same vessel in which he sailed out from Newcastle-on-Tyne to this coast as second mate thirty-one years ago this fall. Capt. Nedden, although his appearance today would belie the fact, has reached his sixty-fifth year which is the retirement age. During his long career he has sailed the Seven Seas and visited every continent. A familiar figure in every Pacific coast port from Seattle to Skagway and out to the Queen Charlotte Islands, he sums up his career as "just storms and fair weather like the ordinary seaman." Authorities who have followed navigation on this coast over the years will say, however, that Capt. "Harry's" career on this coast has been a remarkable one for freedom from trouble of any kind. "The way in which he has been able to bring through his ships on schedule, despite stress of weather and traffic, has long been a matter of comment. There is something more than luck to this sort of an achievement when it has been so long sustained as in the case of Harry Nedden. He has travelled a million and three quarter miles on this coast and has often walked from Prince Rupert to Vancouver, pacing the bridge of his ship. Although his paternal grandfather was an Anglican Church clergyman, Capt. Nedden came from a family of seafarers on both sides. He was born at South Shields near Newcastle, the son of Capt. Henry Nedden, a shipmaster first in sail and then in steam for Pyman & Bell. His older brother, Capt. James Nedden, who was also in his early days with Pyman & Bell, now lives in retirement in Vancouver after having served with the Coastwise Steamship and Barge Co.

Going to sea at the age of fifteen as a deck apprentice for the Island Line out of Glasgow, Capt. Harry Nedden also served his time in sail. After receiving his second mate's ticket in 1898, he turned to steam for Pyman & Bell, sailing at first as second officer in the freighter Pernambuco to the Mediterranean in the winter and to the Baltic in summer. In the service of various companies, successively, the Boer War found him plying between South America and South Africa with troops, cattle and horses. Eventually came command of tramp ships, the first being the Dauntless belonging to Alfred Brewis of Newcastle. Capt. Nedden's interest was aroused in the Pacific coast as he saw the steamer Prince George under construction for the old Grand Trunk Pacific Steamship Co. at the Swan, Hunter & Wigham Richardson yard in Newcastle-on-Tyne. He decided to make a change and signed on as second mate to come out via Cape Horn to this coast. The voyage took seventy-three days.

Remaining with the Prince George on the coastal service between Vancouver and Prince Rupert, Capt. Nedden was assigned to the duties of third mate. His superior officers at that time were Capt. George Robertson, master; Capt. F. T. Saunders, chief officer, and Capt. Dan O'Brien, second officer. The maiden voyage from Vancouver to Prince Rupert the service of various companies,

PLUCK OF AIRMAN

After Having Almost Every Bone in Body Broken New Zealander Fears May Be Sent Home.

A letter arrived at the weekend from a Canadian officer in England who said he had called at the Overseas Club and met a couple of New Zealand airmen and together they did the town up brown. One of them had been the rear gunner in a bomber, which had been badly battered over France. He just got across the channel on his return and crashed as they hit the English coast. All but himself were killed and he came out of it with almost every bone in his body broken. One leg was broken in six places, the other ankle was broken, both arms, the collar bone, seven ribs and the jaw also had been fractured. He had been in hospital since January 3 and had just got out walking with canes. He was particularly worried because he thought they were going to send him home and not give him another chance to get even.

ROAD TO SEAL COVE

Considerable Discussion Takes Place And President McAfee Appoints New Committee

After considerable discussion last night the Chamber of Commerce decided to appoint a small committee to discuss with various authorities the question of widening the road to Seal Cove.

John Gurvich thought $40,000 was too much to pay for this work. What he suggested was that the present road should be improved and widened by six feet, not necessarily finished but made safe for traffic as it was breaking away on the sides and was worse every day. It could be rough graded, he thought, for about $11,000 and finished to make a very good road for $20,000 or less.

Theo Collart suggested that the city call for tenders, then they would know.

Mr. Gurvich suggested that the proposed sidewalk in order to cost $6,000 would have to have a coarse rock fill. It was not necessary to tear up the old road but simply to widen the present road.

T. W. Brown said it was not the policy of the city to call for tenders unless they were prepared to let the contract. He thought if a small committee were appointed to discuss the needs with the city authorities, the air command and others they might arrive at some definite decision as to what were the actual requirements and be ready to report to the next meeting. Mr. Collart then withdrew his motion and Mr. Brown's suggestion was adopted.

The committee will be appointed immediately by president McAfee.

Weather Forecast

Moscow to Rostov Line Is Weakest Spot in Present Defence of Russia Against German Invasion—750,000 Troops Moving Up.

LONDON, Nov. 4: (CP)—A Russian winter army of three-quarters of a million men especially trained in Arctic Siberia is moving up to reinforce the hard-pressed Moscow-to-Rostov defence line, a usually reliable source said tonight. About 200,000 have already arrived in Moscow, it was said, and another 200,000 are on the way "to help out where most needed."

In sending these winter troops as far south as Rostov, the Russian command would be bulwarking one of the main danger spots of the war. The port is the gateway to the Caucasus and is now threatened by a possible short-cut across the Crimea.

Hanson, Conservative Leader, Urges Full and Immediate Review Manpower Situation in Canada

Invasion of Europe Not at Present Possible and Then Only With Aid of United States.

OTTAWA, Nov. 4: (CP)—Britain contemplates the invasion of Europe some time but it is impossible at this time, Conservative Leader Hanson told the House of Commons today. Only the combined efforts of all the democracies including the United States could make the invasion possible with a force superior to the enemy in men, training, equipment, striking power and mobility, he said.

As he began his speech, Mr. Hanson expressed regret that Mackenzie King did not take the House of Commons into his confidence in regard to the government's proposals in the face of a grave international situation. He appealed for an immediate review of the whole manpower question, saying that Canada should enlist every man fit for service in the forces, "whatever system of enlistment is employed."

DELEGATES RETURNING

That Voluntary System Be Replaced Soon As Possible By Conscription

VICTORIA, Nov. 4:—Impressed by the critical need for substantial immediate reinforcing enlistings for the Canadian Army, the voluntary recruiting convention representing a cross-section of British Columbia citizenry, Monday night assisted military authorities it would continue efforts on behalf of voluntary enlistment by impressing on young men the need of offering their services.

At the same time an expression of opinion was emphatically given that the voluntary enlistment plan should be replaced as soon as possible with conscription. Two hundred delegates spent the day hearing addresses from military leaders and Col. Mess, civilian director of recruiting for Canada. This was followed by afternoon visits to Colwood Military Camp and the Officers Cader School at Gordon Head Military Camp. Manoeuvres were staged and army life depicted. L. H. Kenney of Smithers led a discussion by advocating conscription. The Prince Rupert delegation—J. J. Little, D. G. Borland, A. McKenzie, G. A. Hunter and Captain Crocker left Victoria Monday night and most of them will be home Friday morning.

Circumlocution Seen at Ottawa

An interesting case of circumlocution was reported at the regular monthly dinner meeting of the Chamber of Commerce, President McAfee in the chair, last night. The secretary said he had written to the Department of National Defence seeking help in the rebuilding of the road to Seal Cove. The city was ready to spend $20,000 on it and it was suggested that the Department of Defence should put up another similar amount.

The National Defence Department referred them to the Department of Munitions and Supply and that Department referred them to the National Defence for Air. A reply has not been received from the last mentioned department.

Gasoline Problem . . .

Canada must have crude oil, aviation gasoline, light and heavy fuel oils and motor gasoline. A small part of Canadian used gasoline is produced at home and this is severely restricted. Why? Seventy-four percent comes in by tanker but many of the tankers are now carrying gasoline or oil for the war. There is 22 percent coming in by pipe line and four percent by rail. Why not use more of the home produced oil and thus save importations. Alberta supplies almost fifteen percent of the nation's needs. Why not more? If it is not economical to use it up too fast, the probability is that long before it is used up, the war will be over and we can get our gasoline from elsewhere.

Of course we must economize in our joy riding but why not produce more at home?

Odds Against Invasion . . .

You cannot land a force with merely rifles and bayonets to face all the artillery and tanks available in France," said Lord Moyne in the House of Lords, speaking for the government, according to the Ottawa Journal.

To land an expeditionary force with enough men and enough equipment to defeat Germany's waiting armies is to accomplish what is almost the impossible. We have been hoping to see Germany try an invasion of England, confident that Britain's forces would administer a terrific defeat to the Nazis because of the odds against the seaborne attacker. How much greater are the odds, then, against the success of Britain's relatively small and probably relatively ill-equipped army against the land might of the Hun? As Lord Moyne has said:

"I cannot imagine anything which would suit Hitler's move better than if we adopted the Chinese method of committing suicide on your enemy's doorstep."

Dollars for Freedom . . .

Finance Minister Illsley in urging the purchase of War Savings Certificates says purchase of these certificates will produce three important results:

1. It will assist in carrying on the war and is the most convenient way to put your dollars into the fight for freedom.
2. It will curb unnecessary spending, and so help to avert disastrous inflation.
3. It will provide a nest egg for the inevitable period of economic readjustment after the war.

Baseball's Georgia Peach, Ty Cobb, resigned as player-manager of Detroit Tigers 15 years ago today. Cobb joined the club in 1926. His debut was an auspicious one, cracking out a double in his first appearance, which was a harbinger of a record-smashing performance that is baseball history. Cobb's diamond career ended with the Philadelphia Athletics in 1928.

Bob Fitzsimmons won a 30-round decision from George Gardner for the light-heavyweight boxing championship of the world last night. CARD OF THANKS

Mrs. P. Laporte and family wish to express their thanks and deep gratitude for the many kind expressions of sympathy extended to them in their recent bereavement.

No records in the province show the all-out war efforts of B. C. women more than those of the Red Cross Provincial Warehouse. It is just two years now since it was opened in the Marine Building with only a staff of three. Today there is a daily average of 40 workers, only five being paid. The original space was one room. Today it now covers two complete business floors, exclusive of large storage space in another building. "The warehouse runs on oiled wheels," was the tribute paid to the efficient organization work of its capable manager, Mrs. L. Stewart, who has been there since the beginning.

The tremendous Red Cross provincial turnover since the war began is shown by the following statistical highlights: More than 80 tons of wool and 355,916 yards of flannelette have been distributed to the branches. There have been sent overseas: 130,000 pairs of socks, 32,000 sweaters and 18,000 pairs of pyjamas to the Services, 400,000 garments for civilian relief. More than half a million surgical dressings.

G. C. Derby, provincial Red Cross president, is asking that all Red Cross branches launch their annual membership drive as soon as possible.

LOCAL NEWS NOTES

The Chamber of Commerce last night elected Olier Besner as a member.

Tonight's train, due to arrive from the East at 11 o'clock, was reported this morning to be on time.

It was announced at the Chamber of Commerce meeting last night that next month the supply of gasoline would be reduced by 20 percent.

In the police court this morning Helen Syrak was sentenced to four months in jail for stealing the sum of $2,168 from the Royal Hotel safe, and Jerome Baert was sent down for four months for having stolen money in his possession.

Attendance at the Chamber of Commerce dinner last night was not very large. Those present included President Weidon McAfee, R. G. Hopkins, C. G. Minns, Frank Skinner, Laurie Lambley, William Watts, W. O. Fulton, James Clarke, Theo Collart, John Bulger, Bert Morgan, G. R. S. Blackaby, A. Flaten, Roy Winslow, T. W. Brown, H. F. Pullen and Jack Boddie.

Mrs. T. Yule, Ninth Avenue West, has received a cablegram from her son George who is in the navy informing her that he had arrived safely in Britain.

There was only one case before the County Court at its sitting yesterday and it was stood over to next month. It was William J. Wainwright, William Wainwright and George Wainwright versus Alex Wyle. There were also two naturalization applications.

The Chamber of Commerce last night heard a request from the War Time Prices Board that they aid in making it clear that all stores must be licensed in order to sell most articles of merchandise.

The department of naval affairs replying to a protest from the Chamber of Commerce replied that the navy could not help some interference to radio reception in the building in which their apparatus was located but that they planned soon to remove to some place from which there would be no interference. They are now in the Besner Block and it is understood they plan to move to a part of the city that is not at present used for residential purposes.

Mineral Tax Turned Back To Vancouver

The question of the tax on the output of coal and other mines was reported on last night at the Chamber of Commerce meeting. It seems that in the past when the provincial government collected two percent on the output of the mines they allowed that much off the income tax. Now if the income tax was turned over to the federal government and the provincial government continued to collect the mineral tax it would be like a new tax. It was now a question which would be better in war time, the extra money collected in taxes or the increased production of mineral resulting from lower taxation. That should be a matter for the Mining Committee at Vancouver to decide so it was turned back to them for consideration.

City to Build Sidewalk to Seal Cove

The city has decided to build a sidewalk along Third Avenue northeast from McBride Street to Cow Bay. George A. Hood, inspector of motor traffic, in his report to the city commissioner recommended that this be done. As there is considerable heavy flow of traffic in this area, quite a large amount of which is pedestrians, this sidewalk will assist to eliminate the present accident hazard.

CAPT. HARRY NEDDEN TO RETIRE AT END OF MONTH

was made in September, 1910. Finishing twelve months as third mate of the Prince George, Capt. Nedden was transferred to the old Prince Albert as second officer and it was not long before he became chief officer. A good part of the First Great War saw him master of the Prince Albert. Then followed command of the Prince John for four years. It was during these years that Capt. Nedden became particularly well known on the Queen Charlotte Islands.

In 1921 Capt. Nedden went to the command of the Prince George and a great deal of the time since then he has been associated with that ship. Interludes, however, included return to the old country in connection with supervision of the steamers Prince Henry, Prince David and Prince Robert at Birkenhead on the Mersey. In 1930 he brought the Prince David out to this coast and in 1931 was away again to fetch the Prince Robert from Halifax. In 1932, with the death of Capt. Dan Donald, he became commodore of the Canadian National Coast Steamships fleet, serving as master of the Prince Robert on the Alaska route during the summers and back on the Prince George during the winters. With the commandeering of the Prince Robert by the navy two years ago, Capt. Nedden returned permanently to his habitual command, the Prince George, from which he will retire.

Capt. Nedden will make his home in retirement in Vancouver where his wife and daughter reside. Mrs. Nedden came out from Glasgow in 1911 aboard the steamer Prince John which was brought out from the old country via Cape Horn by the late Capt. A. M. Davies in 1911.

Still active and able, Capt. Nedden is already wondering how he is going to content himself on shore after these many years for, if there ever was a confirmed salt, it is he. Fond of sailing, he is an ardent yachtsman, never happier than when the "gun" is under.

Capt. Nedden's successor as commodore of the Canadian National coastal fleet will be Capt. Neil McLean of the Prince Rupert. Capt. Edward Mabbs will step up from the chief officership to take over command of the Prince George.

Reidun Kildal Becomes Bride of Wallace Seymour

Picturesque Event With Number Of Men From Navy Taking Part At Lutheran Church

At the St. Paul's Lutheran Church a beautiful wedding ceremony took place last Thursday when Reidun Henrietta, eldest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Ole Kildal, Ninth Avenue East, was united in marriage to Wallace Edgar Seymour, son of Mr. and Mrs. William Seymour of Edmonton. Alta Young Mr. Seymour is serving as wireless operator in the Navy. Rev. J. H. Myrskog, the pastor of the church, officiated.

The bride was escorted to the altar by her father, Miss Lillian Domreis, formerly of Edmonton, now of this city, was the bridesmaid, and Harry Irving, also of the Navy, was the best man. The ring ceremony was used.

The bride was attired in a blue velvet dress, with turban to match and corsage of roses. The bridesmaid wore blue with a corsage of roses.

After the ceremony in the church the invited guests assembled at the ball room in the Commodore Cafe, where they waited for the bridal party, and where the tables were beautifully decorated under the general management of Mrs. Chris Jensen, who served as the hostess of the evening. During the wedding dinner, in which fifty guests took part, the toast to the bride was first proposed by the pastor, who also served as the toastmaster during the evening.

The youth and happiness of the bride and bridegroom created an atmosphere of joy and refined jubilation during the entire course of the dinner period. Informal talks were given by the best man, Mr. Irving, as well as by the young bride and the bridegroom, who revealed that in spite of their youth, they are possessed of much common sense and determination to shoulder the problems of life with courage and definite purpose to build on a firm foundation. Briefly appropriate talks were given by the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Kildal, and by Gunnar Selvig, and Mr. Underwood, a friend of the bridegroom, also in the Navy.

A large number of useful and valuable gifts to the young couple had been brought by guests and friends, and were on display during the evening which was devoted to social enjoyment.

War Services Fund Questioned

Chamber of Commerce Would Have Full Statement Issued to Allow Any Public Uneasiness.

After hearing a letter read in which it was suggested that the War Services fund be asked for in the spring would amount to from seventeen to twenty million dollars the Chamber of Commerce passed a resolution asking that a detailed statement be issued for the purpose of allaying any uneasiness in regard to how and where the money was being used.

It was pointed out by the secretary of the Red Cross Society that so far as his organization was concerned he believed all the money was needed and was well spent. The amount to be asked would not be so very much more than that collected last year.

Another Helper to Be Engaged and a Second Wicket Opened
During Busy Hours.

As a result of a protest from the Chamber of Commerce the local postmaster reported yesterday that he had orders to put on another helper and to open another wicket when necessary.

The question of having a mail delivery around the city was discussed but it was pointed out that as long as there were only three train mails a week from the east it was not very feasible. On some days the postmen would have nothing to do while at others they might be overloaded.
