Board May Build Houses In Prince Rupert Soon If Plan Approved at Ottawa

Most encouraging correspondence was read last night in regard to improved housing conditions in Prince Rupert indicating the probability that the housing department of the federal government might undertake the building of houses to accommodate the men working at the shipyard. A telegram from Olof Hanson told of the activities of the member for this district in connection with this matter. He had been aided by W. Lloyd Craig, director of the department of industry stationed at Ottawa who stated they had secured a promise that G. T. Parmenter would visit Prince Rupert soon and in the meantime a local committee would prepare a brief, setting forth the need for government action in dealing with the local situation. Mr. Craig's letter follows:

PORTUGUESE EVACUATION

LONDON, June 3.—There are reports that Portugal is evacuating its army to the Azores in fear of a German invasion.

ASKING 75c FOR SALMON

Kitwanga Natives Have Suggested This Figure As Minimum For Profitable Operation

KITWANGA, June 3.—The Kitwanga branch of the Native Brotherhood of British Columbia is asking that 75c per fish be paid to the owners of the Skeena River for sockeye salmon this season. They feel that they can operate nets at less than the 75c per fish season without going in the hole.

A copy of the sockeye net prices as proposed by the canners for the season was received by the Kitwanga branch of the Native Brotherhood from the grand secretary of the Native Brotherhood, H. D. Bailey of Port Simpson. Boat rentals for the season suggested are $707.45 and $596.10. If the prices for nets can be fixed by the canners at this time, the Kitwanga brotherhood wonders why the price of fish could not also be fixed. The Kitwanga fishermen reckon that they will be lucky if they are able to catch 1000 fish to the boat this summer. Therefore, at least 75c per fish will be required. If this is not obtained, they fear they will be running the risk of being in the hole with little chance of earning much to keep them going through the winter.

The total collections for last May were $13,047.15, barely more than one-tenth of the total for this May.

INVENTIVE WAR FOLK

Britons Working Their Genius Overtime, Refugees Help Too

LONDON, June 3. (CP)—The war has made thousands of scientifically-minded Britons inventive geniuses. Scores of novel suggestions, 95 percent of them connected with warfare, are offered daily to various government departments. "Britain needs all the new war inventions she can get," said the honorary secretary of the Chartered Institute of Patent Agents. "Every device, however fantastic, is given consideration, because from the most extraordinary suggestions often come the germs of a revolutionary idea." A spate of suggestions and inventions to combat night bombers comes after every heavy raid, no matter what part of the country is affected. These ideas so far "can be numbered by tens of thousands." European exiles, skilled technicians in their own countries, are trying to repay some of their debt to Britain by using their creative genius to combat the aggressor. Many valuable suggestions have come from them.

VICTORIA, June 3.—Premier Pattullo announced yesterday that the British Columbia government is buying a million dollars worth of Victory Loan bonds.

TWO WRECK BODIES ARE BROUGHT IN

Remains Of Peter Lorenzen And Frank McRae Here From Bentinck Disaster—Some Particulars

The bodies of Peter Lorenzen and Frank McRae, two of three victims in the stranding of the Armour Salvage Co.'s service boat Bentinck on Sardonys Rocks, Queen Charlotte Islands, arrived at Prince Rupert shortly before 11 o'clock this morning aboard the Daly. Capt. Reg Green, another vessel of the Armour Salvage Co.'s fleet, an inquest opened this afternoon and, after viewing of bodies, adjourned. The search for the third victim, John Barker, is continuing. The four survivors—Capt. C. J. Couture, A. E. Richards, William Notation and Robert Morgan—are still in hospital at Queen Charlotte City recovering satisfactorily from the effects of shock and exposure. They will arrive later. The Armour Salvage Co. announces that the Bentinck is a total loss, her wreckage being strewn along the beach. According to word brought by the Daly, the stranding of the Bentinck occurred some two-and-a-half miles off shore in a patch of rocks. It took the survivors four hours to struggle ashore together on their makeshift raft. They were chilled and soaked. There was a twelve mile south-east wind blowing at the time of stranding and the sea was moderate.

It was four hours after stranding that the Bentinck was abandoned as the tide rose and filled her. In the excitement of the launching, the small lifeboat was lost. All seven men aboard left the vessel together but there was not sufficient room on the makeshift raft for all. Evidently Lorenzen, McRae and Barker were unable to hold their grasp and slipped into the sea. The bodies of Lorenzen and McRae were washed ashore. The Bentinck was quite evidently off her course some distance at the point of stranding. It was stated at the salvage company offices this morning that a plane passed over the wreck but evidently failed to spot it.

STRANDED IN NORTH

Some Anxiety Expressed As To Well Being Of Ben Nelson, Veteran Prospector And Packer

Commenting on a statement from provincial police headquarters in Victoria that Ben Nelson, veteran prospector and packer, may be stranded without food somewhere in the northern wilds around the headwaters of Stikine and Skeena Rivers in one of the most inaccessible and little traversed parts of the country, Inspector Ernest Gammon states that Nelson, accompanied by two other men, one named Dieter and the other Murray, started out for the north. Their destination was Chukachida Lake at the head of a river of the same name which is a tributary of the upper Stikine. First Dieter turned back and came out and later Murray left Nelson, the latter going on by himself. When last reported Nelson was at Spatsizi River, another tributary of the Stikine, equipped with a toboggan and the spring break-up coming. Evidently, there was some sort of an understanding that a plane would be sent in for him. Police at Prince George state that Nelson was seen by Ed. Borders, University of Alaska skier, who recently made a trip via the old Ykon Telegraph line over the north of Hazelton route of the Aldaska highway. Nelson was expecting that a plane would be sent for him at Spatsizi. There seems to be some uncertainty as to just where Nelson may be at the present time. Nevertheless, there appears to be basis for some anxiety as to his welfare.

BLOCKING OF NAZIS

Great Britain May Take Swift Action in Syria—Evacuation of Cyprus Commences

ANKARA, June 3. (CP)—A dozen freighters flying Swastika flags have been assigned to carry German troops and heavy military equipment from Rumanian ports to French Syria, it was reported today following landing of five hundred men at Latakia last Thursday. Sailing from Constanta on the Black Sea, the ships were expected to stop briefly at Rhodes in the Italian Dodocanese Islands and continue by night to Latakia and Tripoli in an effort to thwart the British blockade. Germans in civilian clothes recently passed through Turkey to Syria with Bulgarian passports, it was unofficially reported today at Istanbul.

LONDON, June 3. (CP)—Qualified observers last night expressed the belief that Great Britain is prepared to take swift action in Syria both to block a substantial German foothold being obtained there and to bolster up Turkey's stand.

Cairo reported that telephone and telegraph communications between Egypt and Syria had been suspended by order of the Vichy government.

Indicating that some British troops are still left in Crete despite the major withdrawal, British bombers have been dropping medical supplies and food to isolated bodies of troops, it was announced by the Royal Air Force at Cairo yesterday.

Removal of British women and children from Cyprus to Egypt and withdrawal of native families to the hills has been started by British authorities as defences of Cyprus are rushed in anticipation of a quick Axis assault following their conquest of Crete.

Meanwhile German motorized infantry was landed by coastal freighters at the Syrian port of Latakia May 29, it was authoritatively learned yesterday.

Immediate invasion of Syria by the British is advocated in some quarters.

Civilian Parade Thursday Evening And Dancing Tonight Expected To Draw Crowds

Another event in connection with the Victory Loan 1941 campaign which gives promise of being quite colorful is the civilian parade to be held Thursday evening. Already a number of appropriately decorated trucks and cars are assured and Robert Parker has some ideas for persons who might desire them in connection with their decorating. All civilian marching units in Prince Rupert are expected to take part in the parade which will include four bands—Rocky Mountain Rangers drum and bugle band, Sea Cadets drum and bugle band, pipe band and Prince Rupert Boys' Band. The street dancing and jitterbug contest to be held on Third Avenue tonight is also arousing considerable interest.

Regrettable Accident . . .

A regrettable accident took place Sunday when several local people lost their lives. It is one of the sad events that happen here periodically and which it seems difficult to prevent. The waters adjacent to Prince Rupert are difficult to navigate and especially along the east and west coasts of Queen Charlotte Islands. Yesterday even the evacuation of Crete seemed to have sunk into insignificance in view of the interest in the local tragedy.

Dictators Discuss . . .

Two of the dictators of Europe met yesterday to see what part of the world is to be their prey next. They undoubtedly have their eyes on the oil fields of Asia Minor and on Gibraltar. Then they have not by any means forgotten Britain, the one little island they fear to attack. It reminds one of Satan and his cohorts conspiring to overthrow the wonderful work of the creator. Many hope they will decide that an attack on Britain is to be the next attempt.

Study the Prospectus . . .

Yesterday we published the prospectus of the Victory Loan bonds now being sold in Prince Rupert. They are being sold for cash or on easy terms. The long term bonds are the best and it is presumed that most people will take them. They pay a higher rate of interest than the short term bonds. We suggest that intending purchasers look over the prospectus. It is quite brief.

Fight For Freedom . . .

"While there are free men in the world they will fight for their liberty." Those were recent words of the Prime Minister. They are words to remember. The person who will not fight for his liberty and the liberty of his friends is not much of a man. He certainly is not worthy of the word "Canadian."

No Defeatism . . .

The Ottawa Journal suggests this is our war job, that of loaning our money for war purposes. It says "that we Canadians say often, and believe, that German morale will crack. We have now been presented with an opportunity to prove that our own morale won't crack. We have that opportunity in the war loan which the government has announced.

"There must be no faltering about this loan; no possibility of its failure, for once, regardless of party or of politics, regardless of class, creed, racial origin or of anything else that can be conceived of, we Canadians must unite to put over this loan overwhelmingly. United to send word across the seas to England—and to Germany—that the people of this land are a solid rock of resolution to put every last ounce of their substance into the winning of this war.

"Let us, therefore, from this day until this loan is over-subscribed work for it, talk for it, give for it. Let there be no criticism, no bickering, no complaining, and no defeatism. This is our war job, a vital front we've been asked to hold, and we just can't fail in it."

RACE IS TIGHTER

Both St. Louis in National League And Cleveland in American Are Now Hard Pressed

BROOKLYN, June 3: (CP) — Continuing a crucial series as far as the supremacy in the National League for the time being is concerned, the first place St. Louis Cardinals yesterday won a close 5 to 4 victory over the second place Brooklyn Dodgers and the margin between the two teams is now a full two games. The third place New York Giants fell further behind by losing to the Cincinnati Reds.

In the American League the Cleveland Indians got back a one game lead by winning from the New York Yankees while the running-up Chicago White Sox were losing to the Washington Senators. The Detroit Tigers, who had been riding in third place, lost to the Boston Red Sox and have now dropped to sixth position. The Red Sox are now in the third spot with New York Yankees fourth and Philadelphia Athletics fifth. The four teams are waging a hard fight for third place and shuttling back and forth daily.

Yesterday's Big League scores:

National League
Cincinnati 4, New York 3.
St. Louis 5, Brooklyn 4.
Chicago 2, Philadelphia 3.
Pittsburgh 0, Boston 2.

Mr. and Mrs. Lou Gehrig

"Iron Horse" Dies—

Lou Gehrig, One of Greatest Figures of Baseball Diamond, Succumbs After Long Illness

NEW YORK, June 3.—Victim of a rare and incurable disease which caused his retirement two years ago, Henry Louis ("Lou") Gehrig, who was known as the "Iron Horse" of baseball and who, as first baseman for the New York Yankees, made many notable diamond records, died last night at 6:10 p.m. Pacific Standard Time at his home in the Bronx. He had been in a critical condition for three weeks and yesterday fell into a coma. While it had been long realized that Gehrig had no hope of recovery, he himself never gave up but fought until the end. His widow was present as he died.

Gehrig was voted in baseball's "Hall of Fame" in 1939.

Notable features of Gehrig's great baseball career were the following:

Played 2,130 successive regularly scheduled American League baseball games in 14 years.

Participated in 34 world series contests.

Twice chosen as the most valuable player in the American League.

Made four home runs in one game.

Held the record for batting in for than 100 runs for 13 years.

On 23 occasions he hit home runs with the bases full.

Led the American League in batting in 1934 with .363.

In 1931 he made a League record by batting in 184 runs.

Earned about $400,000 during his baseball career.

Peak salary, in 1938, was $39,000.

Fine Example

Lou Gehrig was synonymous with durability, clean living and clean play in baseball.

During his sixteen seasons other players came and went, but he was the "Iron Horse," an institution as unflinching as time itself.

Over a period of 14 years he appeared in every game the New York Yankees played—American League, World Series, Spring training or exhibition—and it was because of this "incomparable record that his voluntary withdrawal from the lineup May 2, 1939 was so dramatic and the subsequent discovery that he was suffering from a form of infantile paralysis so shocking.

A pall was cast over the sports world and the fact that his team continued on its orderly course to a fourth consecutive world championship had no effect on the opinion of most fans that his forced retirement ended an historic era in baseball.

He was a holdover from the halcyon days of Babe Ruth, Rogers

Hornsby, Frank Frisch and the other heroes.

A Part Of New York

He was as much a part of New York as Central Park. Born in Manhattan June 19, 1903, he grew up in and with the metropolis. As a high school athlete he attained some prominence and was an all-round sports star at Columbia University. Throughout his career he was called "Columbia Lou."

At the age of 20 he left Columbia in 1923 and signed with the Yankees. Except for parts of 1923 and 1924 seasons when he was sent under option to Hartford in the Eastern League, he never played with any other club.

After his withdrawal from baseball he retained his identity with New York by accepting a position on the city's prison parole board.

"THIS IS WHY I AM BUYING VICTORY BONDS"

WHEN I WAS A BOY I learned that, "Where a man's treasure is, there will his heart be also."

Today, as never before, I know my greatest treasure in all the world and where it lies. It's right within the circle of my own family.

And tomorrow I would go out into the fields or woods, armed with a shotgun and willingly fight and die for my family's sake.

But I am not asked for that, yet. Instead, I am urged to buy Victory Bonds to defend my home — Bonds to guarantee the safety of wives and families and children.

How little to ask of me when others are doing so much. Every uniform, every war headline, every news broadcast from Europe, reminds me of what I should do.

Yes! I'll buy until I can buy no more. I may not be in the front line myself, but my dollars are certainly going to be.

HOW TO BUY—Give your order to the canvasser who calls on you. Or place it in the hands of any branch of any bank, or give it to any trust company. Or send it to your local Victory Loan Headquarters. Bonds may be bought in denominations of $50, $100, $500, $1,000 and larger. Canvasser, bank, trust company or your local Victory Loan Headquarters will be glad to give you every assistance in making out your order form.

WORK IN COUNTRY

Ottawa Civil Service Folk Also Eat In Country And Find It Good Going

By Gladys Arnold
Canadian Press Staff Writer

OTTAWA, June 3: (CP)—Seven hundred employees of the Dominion Treasury and Dependents' Allowance Board now doing their work "for the duration" in the Records Building at the Dominion Experimental Farm have had their lunch problems solved by the newly opened "Eight Bells" cafeteria "in the country."

A "land-office" business is the way Mrs. Donald Gordon, famous for her work in organizing the Ottawa Red Cross tearoom, describes the daily service of which she is in charge. It is suggested similar projects might be worked out in other Canadian centres where mass luncheon facilities are needed for war workers and where large groups of women are organized to handle some phase of war services.

When it was decided to move the office staff and workers of the Treasury and the Dependents' Allowance Board out to the farm it was realized that so large a staff would need some provision made for a mid-day meal.

Employees are mostly single young men and women from all parts of Canada. Many were not enthusiastic about the idea of "going to the office" at the "farm" until they discovered that it lay within a few minutes bus ride of the centre of Ottawa and they could still live in the city. Now they are delighted with the gardens and lawns, they told the Canadian Press. "Like working in the country and living in town."

Two-Way Benefit

A model scheme designed not only to provide money to carry on "war services" but to fill this urgent community need was Mrs. Gordon's idea to open the cafeteria, the proceeds of which are earmarked for the sailors. Mrs. Gordon and her committee, convinced that the men of the Royal Canadian Navy on active service were lacking in much that could be provided for their comfort, offered to operate the cafeteria voluntarily, providing meals at advantageous prices for the government employees and at the same time realize a profit for war work.

Naval Services Minister Angus L. MacDonnell, accompanied by Deputy Minister Col. K. S. MacLachlan, Rear Admiral and Mrs. Percy Nelles and Mrs. E. S. Brand visited the cafeteria, praising its attractive appearance and congratulating the women in charge on the rapidity of its organization.

Meals were already being served before the dining room was finished so great were the needs of the staff. A small experienced staff of volunteer workers was supplied by Mrs. Gordon but they were fairly swamped by the demands. Immediately a number of girls employed in the Records Office volunteered part of their lunch hour to help out.

All except the kitchen staff give services voluntarily. Owing to the efficiency of this staff a high degree of economy is possible and wastage of perishable supplies and other foodstuffs almost is nonexistent.

"This permits the very low prices to the purchaser and still leaves a margin of profit for the Navy," Mrs. Gordon said. At prevailing prices a good mid-day meal is obtainable at about 20 cents. Price examples are: beverages and soup, 5 cents; desserts, pie, cake, ice cream, five cents; a special dish such as beef stew or baked beans with bread and butter, 10 cents. Salad 10 cents, or a cold plate with salad 25 cents.

Dollars will win the war. Dollars will end it sooner. Invest in Victory Bonds.

ONE BOOK PER YEAR

Sir Hugh Walpole Was One of Foremost Authors of His Time

LONDON, June 3.—Sir Hugh Walpole, who is dead in England, was frequently termed "the modern Anthony Trollope." He tried home missionary work and schoolmastering before his first novel appeared in 1909, when he was 25. Thereafter, except for 1917, he wrote at least one book a year.

From the outset he was recognized as a writer who would take a place among the foremost authors of his time. He was made a commander of the Order of the British Empire in 1918 and was knighted May 10, 1937. His "The Secret City," published in 1919, was awarded the James Tait Black prize, one of the foremost recognitions for English letters.

Walpole, a confirmed bachelor, was born in New Zealand in 1884, the only son of an Anglican clergyman who afterwards became the Rt. Rev. G. H. S. Walpole, bishop of Edinburgh.

When he was eight he lived in New York where his father was a professor of theology. Then the family returned to Britain and Hugh was sent to King's School, Canterbury. To this, the oldest school in England, claiming foundation by St. Augustine in A.D. 597, he later gave his personal and collected manuscripts and books, together with a goodly sum for endowment, to found a literary museum.

From King's School Walpole went to Emmanuel College, Cambridge. Following his graduation, he preached for a short time at a Liverpool waterfront mission for seamen. His father wished him to continue in the church, but he soon gave it up, becoming successively a private tutor and a schoolmaster.

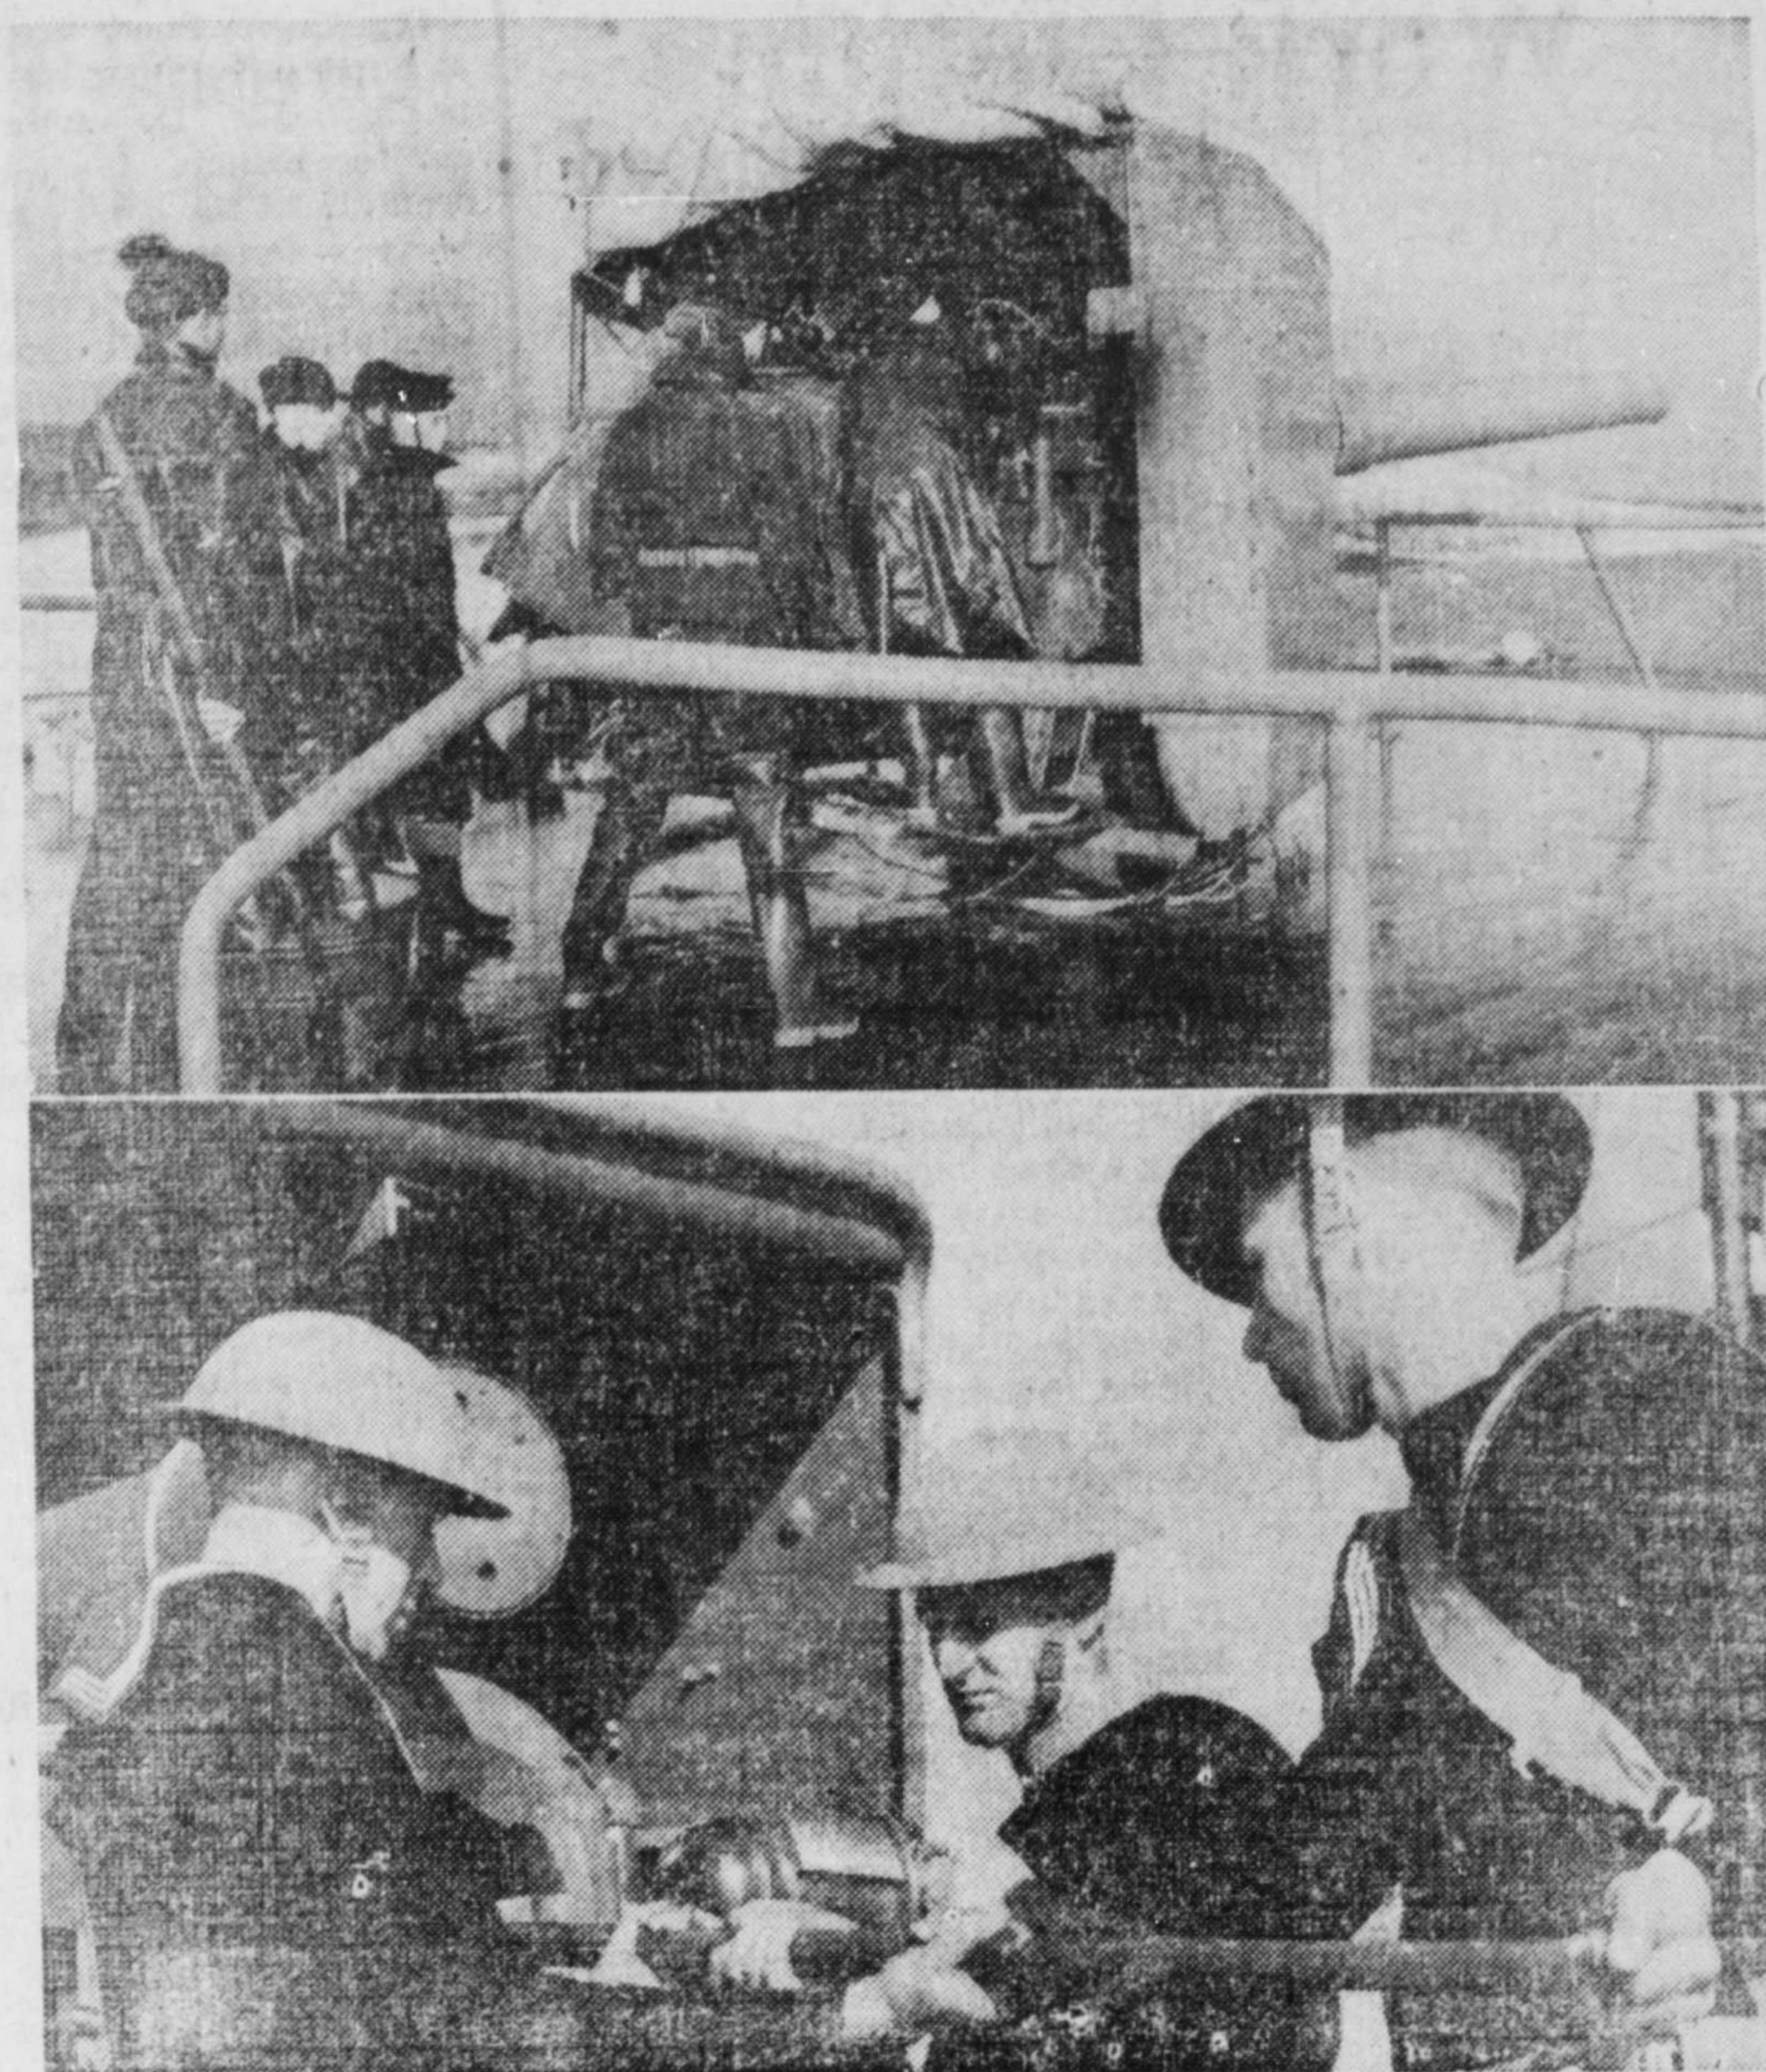

Labored in Basement

The urge to write, inherited from Sir Horace Walpole, whose "Castle of Otranto," published in 1764, started the romantic revival in English literature, quickly became the dominant factor. He quit his schoolmastering job and, with only $150 in his pocket and the half-finished manuscript of his first novel, migrated to London.

Taking a basement room, which cost the equivalent of $1 a week, he started to break into the world of letters. Work as a part-time book reviewer developed into a whole-time position at $750 a year. Soon his first book, "The Wooden Horse" appeared. Five others followed before the World War.

When that conflict started Walpole was vacationing in Russia. He joined the Imperial Russian Red

CANADIAN SEAMEN KEEP SEA LANES OPEN

Playing a vital role in the Battle of the Atlantic, members of the Royal Canadian Navy are pictured here manning a six-inch gun mounted on an armed merchant cruiser operating somewhere in the North Atlantic. It is on men and armaments such as are shown here that Britain's life line depends. The top picture in the layout shows the crew awaiting orders to fire while below is shown the gunnery crew loading a shell into the breach. It is to purchase equipment such as this that the Canadian government is launching its $600,000,000 Victory Loan drive on June 2.

Cross saw two years of service and won the Georgian medal. Then, foreseeing the collapse of the Czarist regime he escaped from the country just before revolution gripped it.

Despite his Red Cross duties, he found time to write "The Golden Scarecrow" in 1915 and "The Dark Forest," based on his war experiences, and "Joseph Conrad" in 1916.

His post-war works enjoyed a popularity that never waned. They included the "Jeremy" books—"Jeremy," "Jeremy and Hamlet" and "Jeremy at Cradle"—generally believed to have been based on Walpole's experiences as a schoolboy. His historical studies at Cambridge were reflected in the "Herries" saga and several novels were written about life in a Cathedral city, an insight gained from his father's tenure at Edinburgh.

Interested in Dramatics
One of the notable works in this last classification was "The Cathedral," which was published in 1922 and dramatized ten years later. Other books which were made over for the stage were "The Young Huntress," "Portrait of a Man With Red Hair" and "The Old Ladies."

The plays met with varying success, but Walpole had a liking for things theatrical and in 1934 and 1936 was summoned to Hollywood as a consultant on films with English themes.

He also did considerable lecturing in the United States, making half a dozen tours in the decade following the World War.

Walpole created some kind of a record by the number of prefaces which he wrote for other authors' books. The total was a mystery, for he himself said he had no idea how many he had turned out.

He once claimed for himself "thousands of enthusiasms, ceaseless conversations, ignorance of facts and love of long walks." He spent many years at his home near Keswick, in the heart of the Cumberland Mountains in northwest England. A broad-shouldered, compactly built man, with dome-like forehead, receding gray hair and clear, humorous gray eyes, he strode over the Cumberland slopes on jaunts which ran from 12 to 15 miles, regardless of the weather.
