Churchill Speaks— Expresses New Confidence In Victory Although Road Will Be Long And Arduous

LONDON, April 28.—Speaking Sunday night in a broadcast to the Empire, Prime Minister Winston Churchill said he had just come back from a tour of the ports and cities that had been most heavily bombed, where the poorer people had suffered severely, and was thoroughly reassured and refreshed. He had made the same view of some uneasiness in the country having been reported to the gravity of the war. He had found the morale of the people most high and true. It had been like going to a stuffy hothouse to the fresh breezes on the bridge of a ship—this trip to the front. The British nation was moved in a way it had never been before. It was resolved to conquer or to die. The worst fire and bombs could do was to bring only to even more exhilarating the spirit of the people. It was true that he had seen many signs of havoc but where savagery of the enemy had done its worst, there he had found morale most high and splendid. There was an animation of spirit and joyous serenity one might expect in a better world than this.

Mr. Churchill declared he had never thought or dreamed of such success as had been extended to him by the people he had visited. "We will not fail the people or be unworthy of their faith," the Prime Minister declared.

Devotion to Ideals

What triumph could there be from the worst bombs or fires could be asked Mr. Churchill, where there was such proof as existed among the people today of their devotion to the ideals of free institutions, customs and society. Yes, the people had even been exhilarated by fire and bombs. The entire population—women, children, old men, veterans of previous wars—were sharing the battle today with those on active service. All were proud of being under fire of the enemy. "This is a grand and heroic period in our history," asserted the Prime Minister in reiterating that the war would be fought out to the end. As for himself, he fully realized the responsibility of bringing the people safely out of a long and stern battle. In fighting in this difficult period many important decisions had to be made in regard to policy of conducting the war but it had been agreed that the highest level of honor should be the guide.

Mr. Churchill paid tribute to General Wavell whose army had never exceeded two divisions or 30,000 men. He told the story of how the Army of the Nile had been removed to Greece when that nation had turned to Great Britain for succor. Had that appeal been refused, Britain could not have deserved or hoped to win the war. It had been realized that the forces were not sufficient to stem the German tide of invasion but there had been expectation of a greater stand by the neighbors of Greece.

Detailing the transfer of the Army of the Nile to Greece, Mr. Churchill described how General

OUT FOR BRITAIN

John D. Rockefeller Would Die Fighting Hitlerism Rather Than Live Under It

NEW YORK, April 28.—John D. Rockefeller II, in a letter to the publisher of the New York Times, which he authorized for publication, expresses the firm conviction that the people of the United States should stand by the British Empire, old and at any cost. The issue of the war, Rockefeller declared, was simply freedom vs. slavery. He called upon Americans to stand firmly behind President Roosevelt in his "Aid to Britain" plan.

"I would rather die fighting Hitlerism than live in a world dominated by that force," says Rockefeller.

MAGNESIUM IS SCARCE

Germany Being Forced To Skimp On It In Airplane Manufacture

NEW YORK, April 28.—Germany is running short of magnesium which plays an important part in airplane manufacture. An examination of a captured Messerschmidt, brought down in the Battle of Britain, shows about only one-third of the amount of magnesium ordinarily required had been used. Information to this effect has been received here.

DIVIDING OF SPOILS

BUDAPEST, April 28.—Under German auspices, the dividing up of Yugoslavia into Bulgarian, Hungarian and Italian spheres of influence is proceeding and similar action is expected to be carried out in the case of Greece. Those opposing are being ruthlessly punished.

The war might spread to Spain and Morocco, to the Black Sea, Turkey, Russia and Ukraine but "we shall do our best to meet and fight the enemy everywhere we can." One thing was sure Hitler could not find safety from avenging justice in the Near East, the Middle East or the Far East. "To win the war he must conquer this island by invasion or by cutting the ocean line to us from the United States. The invasion had not yet started and every week that passed "makes us stronger on sea, in the air and on land." Providing there was no let-up in exertion and vigilance, "we are confident of giving a good account of ourselves." More than that it would be foolish to say. Less than that it would be foolish to believe. The ultimate decision of the war would be in the Battle of the Atlantic which held first place in the thoughts of those who were responsible for the winning of the war. Mr. Churchill said he had been indescribably relieved by the decision of the United States in regard to naval and aerial patrol of the western Atlantic, a decision which would enable Great Britain to concentrate its protective forces closer to the home shores.

Six weeks ago, Mr. Churchill recalled he had said: "Give us the tools and we will finish the job." It appears now that United States was to do that. That was why he believed that, while victory was not yet discernible, the war had taken a more favorable turn, even though it was more grim. Nothing had happened or could happen now that would bring about a situation comparable in gravity to that of last year.

Mr. Churchill urged the people not to lose their sense of proportion and be unduly discouraged or alarmed and predicted ultimate defeat of Hitler and his 70,000,000 malignant huns by 200,000,000 Britons and Americans with their superior resources and equipment.

There were great dangers yet to be faced, admitted Mr. Churchill.

FATE OF BRITISH SOLDIERS

This Is Main Concern Now Following Nazi Overwhelming Of Greece—Little Being Said Officially

LONDON, April 28.—Following the occupation of the Greek capital city of Athens by the Germans at 9:30 Sunday morning (midnight Pacific Standard Time) and the continuation of the Nazi advance into the Peloponnesus Isthmus, principal concern is still manifest today as to the fate of the British and Anzac Expeditionary Force. From Sydney today came a dispatch of the announcement of Hon. P. C. Spender, treasurer and army minister, that the evacuation of Australians from Greece was under way and had proven successful so far, although Mr. Spender did not confirm or deny that their had been losses.

Berlin, on the other hand, claimed that heavy casualties had been caused among the British and Australian forces in attempted embarkation and that mangled bodies of British and Australian soldiers were being washed ashore after destruction of evacuation vessels. German claims were that 700,000 tons of British shipping would be found to have been destroyed in Greek waters. At least one-half of the British Expeditionary Force would not get home and ships destroyed in the evacuation of Greece would exceed the losses at Dunkerque by 250,000 tons. Many prisoners had been taken and much equipment lost in the British flight.

Little was said in official British quarters. The only news from Cairo was a terse statement that "our troops are continuing their withdrawal." The British were still fighting a rearguard action as the withdrawal continued, other sources indicated.

There was no formal resistance to the occupation of Athens by the Nazi forces. It was the eighth European capital to fall to Adolf Hitler after opposition. First German motorcycle units entered the city to be followed by a main body of mechanized forces. A victory parade followed and the Swastika was hoisted from the Acropolis. The Nazis had reached the gates of Athens Saturday night.

Scenes In Athens
As the British troops withdrew from the city, people of Athens shouted: "We'll see you again soon." Then they retired to their homes to quietly await the arrival of the Germans.

A strict curfew law has been enforced upon the Greeks. The Greek government, now in exile at Crete, gave assurance that the Greek merchant marine and war planes would be placed at the disposal of the British in continuing the war against the Nazis.

In connection with the Greek campaign, the Germans claimed that one British cruiser had been sunk and two damaged with one 5,000 ton transport vessel and ten others damaged by bombing. It was claimed that units of the German fleet were co-operating with the Luftwaffe in the Eastern Mediterranean. These might be speedboats shipped overland or possibly submarines it was thought in London.

MILITARY MARRIAGE

Sunshine streaming through the stained glass windows of St. Andrew's Anglican Cathedral and military ceremony made colorful the nuptial rites on Friday afternoon last of Miss Marjorie Beryl French, only daughter of Mr. and Mrs. T. H. French of Hedley, and Corp. W. E. W. Lloyd of the Rocky Mountain Rangers, second son of Mr. and Mrs. W. G. Lloyd of Kamloops.

Rev. (Capt.) R. C. H. Durnford, area padre, read the service and the bride was escorted to the altar by Capt. S. A. Wallace, medical officer of the Regiment and an old friend of the families of the contracting couple. The groomsmen was Corp. D. McMillan. During the signing of the registrar Band Sergeant Edward Docker sang "Because."

A twenty-four man guard of honor with flashing bayonets crossed formed an arch through which the couple passed to leave the cathedral. The regimental band escorted them through the camp to the sergeant's mess where Mrs. Lloyd cut the wedding cake with her husband's bayonet. The toast to the bride was proposed by the groomsmen and replied to by the groom.

Corp. and Mrs. Lloyd will reside in Prince Rupert. Many friends will wish them every happiness.

Dog-Collar Girls Know Their Stuff

LONDON, April 28; (CP)—Vicky Smith, 21-year-old "dog-collar" girl of the Women's Auxiliary Air Force, bathes a patient's septic arm in the sick-bay of an R.A.F. station in Middlesex where many WAAFs are stationed.

Miss Smith is from Montreal but she was a hospital nurse in England before she became a sick-quarter attendant of the WAAF.

"I had four years' experience so the work came easy," she said with a smile.

"The 'dog-collar' girls get their nickname from the small brass badges they wear. The badges are the same as the Army Medical Corps emblem—the caduceus (wand entwined with two serpents) of Mercury.

Four girls were on duty in the sick-bay but only one of the seven beds was occupied—by a bronchitis case. Other patients were "walking cases" with only minor complaints.

"Jen" Agger, farmer's daughter from Huntingdon, said: "We are all trained at an R.A.F. hospital, and we have to pass an examination before we get our 'collar-dogs.' But we were there for just a fortnight and into that we crammed what used to be a year's training before the war."

"It's easily the most interesting work in the service," declared stout, cheerful Corporal Riley, a masseuse before the war, who was the N.C.O. in charge.

RELIEVING SHIPPING SHORTAGE

Recommendation Of Inter-American Financial And Economic Committee Move Of Significance

WASHINGTON, D. C., April 28;—The recommendation of the inter-American financial and economic advisory committee to take over by requisition 160 foreign vessels lying idle in various North and South American ports is seen as a move of significance aimed at relieving the acute shortage of shipping owing to the European war. German, Italian, French and Danish ships are among the vessels concerned.

Already Congress of the United States has moved towards authorizing President Franklin D. Roosevelt to purchase or requisition idle ships in United States ports and put them to such use as he deems necessary in the national interest. Mexico and Chili have moved similarly.

The purity of Pacific Milk is stressed in a letter from M. K. G. Cranbrook, B.C. "When you cut the top of the can and empty it you get the evidence. ## STRENGTH TO RULE

Relaxation by British and United States Caused Situation in Shanghai, Declared Speaker

The necessity of Great Britain and the United States being strong and maintaining that strength if they were to be the policemen of the world had been illustrated in the case of Shanghai where they relaxed their strength to a point where their word had meant nothing, permitting a situation, through usurpation of authority by Japan, which, if they had kept up their end, could never have happened. So declared Capt. G. W. Marsden of the Royal Canadian Engineers in conclusion of an interesting address before the Prince Rupert Rotary Club at dinner Saturday night. In his capacity as a consulting engineer, Capt. Marsden spent several years in the Orient, having returned home to Canada at the start of the present war to enlist. He is now stationed at Prince Rupert.

Capt. Marsden gave an interesting discourse on the history of the international settlement which had been founded in 1854 by Great Britain and the United States. Its administration and control through the years was described by the speaker and he gave an insight into the circumstances leading to the assumption of control by the aggressive Japanese in 1937 when, in their offensive, they had assumed control of the whole port, usurping the authority of the municipal council, taking over the whole waterfront, permitting the use of the Whangpoo River only to the Japanese and paralyzing trade by stopping all imports and exports.

Capt. Marsden spoke at some length, giving an enlightening insight into various conditions over the years with more particular reference to recent developments.

At the close of his address, the speaker answered a number of questions.

Col. J. W. Nicholls, general manager of the Canadian Fish & Cold Storage Co., will sail tomorrow afternoon on the Catala for a two weeks' business trip to Vancouver, Seattle and elsewhere in the south.

FREEDOM OF EVIL

United Church Pastor Urges Congregation to Get Down to Fundamentals

Speaking from the words "Let us alone," as uttered by the demoniac to Christ, Rev. J. C. Jackson gave a challenging talk last evening in First United Church. The incident was an example of the antagonism of Christ to all forms of evil, spiritual, mental or moral. While it was revelation of the power of Christ it was no less an indication of the power of evil. And the power of evil was increased by its wily defence of itself. It based its claim at times to its right to freedom. Slavery, the lottery, the liquor traffic all cried to be left alone but they did not leave their victims alone.

On the same plea of freedom, economics life asked to be left alone. The capitalist and the strike-breaker, the civic iniquity and the politician wanted the preacher to confine his talks to the Gospel and leave them alone. But Nature did not let the weeds alone. Freedom was not given to infection. Insects were not allowed to go unlimited nor was it proposed to let Hitler go unchecked. So the specious cry for freedom of speech and action must not let the forces of evil run riot in the world. There must be distinguishing between those who attacked the evils of a system but did not attack the system itself for often those who attacked the evils were the best friends of the system. "Finally," said Mr. Jackson, "if we find that Christ does not fit into our lives we must be prepared to change our lives so that He may fit into it and, when the end of life draws near, may we be proud that, though our flag staff may have been small we always flew the right colors."

In the morning service the junior choir sang well the anthem "Soldiers of the Master" (Dr. E. Nicholl) while, at the evening service, Mrs. H. T. Lock and J. S. Wilson gave a sympathetic and effective rendering of the duet "Father in Heaven" (Eliza Doun).

Goodwill Shown— KETCHIKAN ROTARIANS PAY VISIT

Interesting International Affair Illustrative of American-British Bonds in Face of Crisis

Rotarians of Ketchikan and Prince Rupert mingled Saturday night in a fine spirit of international fellowship, exemplifying in this outpost of the northwest the bonds that throughout the world are uniting America and Great Britain closer and closer together in goodwill and mutual assistance for the preservation of such ideals and principles as Rotary stands. The occasion was a fraternal visit of twelve members of Ketchikan Rotary to the Prince Rupert club. The principal event of the visit was a dinner in the Commodore Cafe when greetings were exchanged in a delightful atmosphere of hospitality and goodfellowship with reciprocal expressions of warm sentiments both individual and collective.

Dr. Neal M. Carter, president of the Prince Rupert Rotary Club, was in the chair and with him at the head table were Edward Elliott, vice-president and president-elect of the Ketchikan Rotary Club; William Spalding, mayor and prominent Rotarian of Ketchikan, and Capt. G. W. Marsden of the Royal Canadian Engineers, the latter being a special speaker of the evening, giving an address on Shanghai.

The background for the head table consisted of two large flags—one the Union Jack and the other the Stars and Stripes, below the crossed staffs of which was a large Rotary Wheel emblem centred with the words "Welcome Ketchikan."

Rotary Under Trial
The spirit of the Ketchikan visit was appropriately enough expressed by President-elect Elliott who, after due sentiments of welcome had been expressed by President Carter and other opening formalities disposed of, spoke as follows: "It is particularly fitting that visits such as this should be undertaken during this period in world history when democracy and Rotary, as ways of life, are being restricted and threatened as they have never been threatened before.

"We Alaskans and Americans with the rest of the free world, have looked with something more than admiration at the way that Canada and the other nations of the British Commonwealth have rallied to cause of the Mother Country. The spirit of the British people during the terrible ordeals of war calls forth the earnest gratitude of all free people.

"In our country there is a feeling, becoming more pronounced every day, that our gratitude shall be expressed in something more tangible than expressions of sympathy. We are increasingly showing our sympathy in terms that Hitler can understand.

"Speaking of the burdens imposed by war all of Rotary has been inspired by the manner in which British Rotarians have carried on. There are indications that Rotary ideals are not diverted when subjected to the anti-Rotary atmosphere generated by war. While our fellow Rotarians are united with the nation in prosecuting their duties as citizens, their eyes are on the future when peace again will come and when the spirit of Rotary will have to permeate the council of nations—if peace and goodwill are to be more successful than they have been in the past.

"We Ketchikan Rotarians recognize this and our visit to you will in this small corner of the world, serve to aid in the maintaining of Rotary ideals.

"You Prince Rupert fellows have been carrying heavy burdens in this community. We appreciate your faithfulness and we trust that our meeting with you will infuse each of us, hosts and visitors alike, to keep alive in our lives the ideals that brings us together today—Rotary fellowship and International goodwill."

Mayor Spalding
Mayor William Spalding of Ketchikan spoke briefly and in vein somewhat similar to that of Mr. Elliott. He, too, expressed appreciation of the fine hospitality that had been extended here and reiterated the statement that the United States was in an ever-increasing way getting behind the British Empire in the war effort as opposed to Hitlerism and the menace which it symbolized.

Another Ketchikan speaker, Adjutant Nick Belkovitch, Salvation Army commandant and seaming "life of the party," also spoke strongly along the pro-British line. He made it clear that, while he was a believer in peace, he felt the immediate necessity was to do everything possible to promote and support the British war effort by supplying ships, tanks and guns. As far as he personally was concerned he declared that he was willing at any time to change his Army uniform for the military uniform to serve in any capacity or rank in which his services might be best used. Adjutant Belkovitch's remarks were punctuated with buoyant and happy witticisms.

Other speakers from among the Ketchikan Rotarians were George Beck, the treasurer of the club, Hal Brennan, the baby member, and Casey Moran, owner and skipper of the yacht Arrow which brought the party to Prince Rupert.

Col. J. W. Nicholls, being called upon, gave some impressions of Rotary as he had seen it in various parts of the world, including Great Britain, Australia, New Zealand and Germany and of certain of its more serious implications. He expressed the hope that the time would not be far removed when Prince Rupert would be able to return Ketchikan's visit but, until the war was won, this could not be done in view of the necessity of Canada conserving all its financial resources in order to obtain the sinews of war.

Entertainment Features
A feature of the evening's entertainment program was a radio skit performed by several members of the Ketchikan club from an enclosure and transmitted through an amplifier. It was a humorous satire on a Rotary business meeting discussion which proved very entertaining.

Another amusing diversion of the evening was a quiz contest in which various questions were presented to the Rotarians and fines imposed, the whole resulting in a collection of $26 being obtained for the Rotary fund to provide blankets for Britain.

Piano-accompanied selections by Mike Colussi and cornet solos by Adjutant Belkovitch were much appreciated and community singing under the direction of Adjutant Belkovitch and Lieut. A. F. Graves of the Rocky Mountain Rangers, the latter a Kamloops Rotarian, was enjoyed. A C. Small was piano accompanist.

The Ketchikan visitors were Edward Elliott, William Spalding, A. M. Spaeth, Adjutant Nick Belkovitch, H. S. Brennan, Ralph Bartholomew, Lee Dickenson, George Beck, J. W. Mendenhall, A. F. Bethe, A. W. Sundstrum, Paul J. Wingren and Casey Moran.

Other dinner guests were Major M. A. Burbank, Lieut. A. F. Graves, C. C. Mills and G. A. Hunter as well as the speaker of the evening, Capt. G. W. Marsden.

SKIDEGATE MARCHING

Queen Charlotte Island Village
Hears Tramp Of Fighting
Feet Again

SKIDEGATE, April 28.—For the first time since the olden days of the aboriginal Haida warriors, the march of fighting men has been heard in the historic Queen Charlotte Islands village of Skidegate.

It is beyond the span of a lifetime now since Skidegate roads heard the tramp of the Haidas when, to the throb of war drums, the native warriors of old responded to the call of arms and, calling their slaves to outfit and man the great war canoes, they put forth not only to repel invaders from their own shores but to meet them on the high seas, the large sixty or seventy foot craft sometimes travelling as far as the mouth of the Columbia River.

One Sunday recently Skidegate roads heard the tramp of fighting men when men of the Rocky Mountain Rangers regiment came over from Aliford Bay to attend a service especially for them in the Skidegate Mission Hall, the hall being used because Spencer United Church, in itself, was not large enough to accommodate all the congregation. An impressive sermon, appropriate to the occasion, was preached by Rev. Basil Hartley and the Skidegate Mission choir, under the direction of Matthew Williams, rendered several anthems. Weather was perfect with warm bright sunshine and there were visitors from the East Coast of Graham Island, Queen Charlotte City, Skidegate and Aliford Bay.

The fire department was called at 5 o'clock Saturday afternoon to McBride Street between Third and Fourth Avenues where grass had caught fire on the side of the retaining wall. No damage was done.

FORMBY IN FUN FILM

Making fun of Adolf Hitler and starring George Formby, the popular British wartime comedian, "Let George Do It" is the feature offering on the screen of the Capitol Theatre for the first half of this week commencing tonight.

George is a screwball ukuleleplayer who suddenly finds that he has become a spy who has been smuggled into an enemy submarine that is about to attack a British merchant ship. By knocking out the enemy sailor who is left with a boat, George manages to get the submarine to submerge and points his chamber toward the target. In a flash George knocks down, upsets the controls of the submarine spinning over. Then follows some suspenseful action.

One of the funniest, funniest is that where George sneezes and punches Der Fuehrer's nose.

The English comedian has a number of his latest popular pictures, accompanying himself as usual on the ukulele.
