Public Auction GAME OF CRAPS

by Alienist in Game-Stakes Were Steel Die Pieces.

Rochester, N. Y., May 13 .-The game of craps was used recently as a brain test. The subject of the experiment was William Twinman, a Scottsville negro, who is in jail awaiting trial on the charge of having murdered Deputy Sheriff Berming-

Twinman has been posing as an insane person. An alienist! suggested that if the prisoner could play craps it was a pretty | good sign of a fair average mentality. Steel die pieces were used in the experiment instead of pennies.

The negro brightened up the moment the game began, and he played a winning game throughout the contest. He watched his opponent sharply and never missed a chance with the dice.

Who is Your Customer?

LIAVE you ever met your real customer? Have your salesmen a speaking acquaintance with him? Have you told him about the merits of your product? Have you explained why he should give your goods the preference? Have you done anything to stimulate his desire for your goods?

In short, have you made any attempt whatever to sell your goods to him?

"Most assuredly," you say. "Every dealer in Canada is known to our travelers, and we certainly wouldn't pay a salesman who couldn't tell our customers all-"

One minute, please. The dealer isn't your customer. He's simply a part of your sales organization, and a decidedly independent part of it at that. He is distributor for other concerns in whose goods he is just as much interested as he is in yours. And he isn't particularly interested in your product, any more than in your competitors'.

The dealer realizes that he can serve six who order their goods by a well-known trade name as quickly as he can serve one to whom he has to demonstrate that a product is good.

Your real customer is the Publicthe Public who wears your clothing, eats your pickles, uses your safety razor. You've got to sell your goods to the Public.

When the user wants your goods and won't take any other-then you are independent of all but him, your real customer.

To make the user want your goods, you must do two things:

(1) Produce an article of value. (2) Tell him what you make, and why he should prefer it.

That's advertising.

When are the makers of piano actions, for example, going to discover that they do not know their real customers; and, what is worse, that their real customers do not know them? So the public have to buy pianos in blind ignorance of the quality of the most important mechanical part of the piano.

What is it going to be worth to the piano-action maker who first discovers that his real customer is the Public, and not the piano manufacturer who incorporates the action into the complete instrument?

Advice regarding your advertising problems is available through any recognized Canadian advertising agency, or through the Secretary of the Canadian Press Association, Room 503 Lumsden Bldg., Toronto. Enquiry involves no obligation on your part-so write, if interested.
