HONG KONG, Dec. 10:—Some Japanese penetration of Hong Kong defences was acknowledged in a communique today but it was declared the attack was halted though fighting continues.

British forces apparently have lost Kota Bharu, northern Malaya air base, where Japanese landed strong forces just inside the Thailand frontier, but a communique indicated tonight that they have balked Japanese drives in that area and at Kuantan, 200 miles north of Singapore.

British military authorities last night said that a number of small Japanese landing parties on Malaya had been steadily mopped up.

SOLDIERS OF MANY NATIONS SAIL WITH CANADIANS

The traditional "thumbs up" and the "V" for Victory signals were everywhere in evidence as the most recent contingent of troops to arrive in Britain embarked for the voyage from a Canadian port. In these photos are represented soldiers from many nations who formed part of the contingent. In the upper left hand photo a group of Netherlanders, trained in Canada, proudly display the flag of their homeland. At upper right is a group of American Poles. Even the sailors of the ship's crew kneeling in the front row are Poles. Lower left a group of smiling members of an Ottawa mechanized unit. The photo at lower right shows a group of Czechs from Canada who have answered freedom's call.

PRESIDENT ROOSEVELT CALLS NATION UP FOR LONG AND HARD FIGHT

War Must Be Waged Against "Crafty and Powerful Bandits" Until Victory Is "Final and Complete."

WASHINGTON, Dec. 10:—Summoning the aid of every man, woman and child in the United States in a war which he said would be long and hard, President Franklin D. Roosevelt last night gave his first address to the nation since United States went to war. He listed Germany and Italy with Japan as "crafty and powerful bandits" against whom war must be waged until victory was "final and complete."

Neither Pacific or Atlantic coastlines were now safe from attack, declared the president. He scoffed, however, at Japanese claims that Nippon had already won naval supremacy of the Pacific. The attack on Sunday against United States by the Japanese had been the climax of a decade of international immorality and a treacherous violation of long standing peace between United States and Japan.

This is a "dirty war and we did not want to get into it," the president declared. But now that United States was in it, it would stay till the finish. He recognized Germany and Italy as "undeclared enemies."

Mr. Roosevelt said he had been studying wartime production, which would now have to be intensified, and announced that henceforth there would be a seven-day week and that new war industrial plants would be established an existing ones extended.

This war was not for conquest as far as the United States was concerned but for the preservation of freedom and security as against treachery and brutality.

Declaring that aid must continue to be given to the other warring democracies, the president suggested that victory would not be complete by defeating Japan in the Pacific while the Axis won the Atlantic.

PATROLLING OF LIGHTS

ARP Wardens Find Citizens Anxious to Co-operate With Regulations—Improvements Are Needed.

Activities of civilian protection workers in Prince Rupert last night was devoted principally to the checking up of lights showing up in the black-out. While much need for improvement was found and there were many glimmers through the hastily installed window coverings, general report was that the citizens were making a real and willing effort to comply with the regulations. In few, if any cases, were rebuffs received when the wardens called with their suggestions. To the contrary, most everyone welcomed the visitors.

No doubt, by tonight the black-out will be much more effective. This, of course, will be necessary if the citizens are to be allowed to retain the privilege of having electrical supply at their own will during black-outs.

Wardens were practically unanimous in complaint at the large amount of illumination thrown by automobile headlights. This was something, it was generally agreed, that tended to make the black-out effort futile.

JAPS' OIL RESOURCES VERY LOW

That Is Why She Is Staking Everything on Short War, It Is Believed.

WASHINGTON, D.C., Dec. 10:—Facing a grave shortage of oil supply, Japan is staking everything on a lightning war, the real objective of which is the resources of southern Asia, including the Netherlands East Indies, which she has long coveted, military observers here believe. She is concentrating now on means to eliminate British and American naval and military strength in that area.

NEW YORK ON ALERT

Atlantic Coast Stirred Up By Reports Yesterday That Attack Was Imminent

NEW YORK, Dec. 10:—There was varying unconfirmed reports of imminent attack by hostile planes as the great metropolitan area of New York was put on air raid alert twice within an hour shortly after noon yesterday.

The first alarm sounded at 1:25 p.m. Eastern Standard Time with the all clear twenty minutes later. At 2:05 p.m. the second alarm sounded but it was found to have been given in error.

Authoritative sources at Portland, Maine, said today it was reliably reported hostile forces were an hour outside of Boston at 2 p.m., the same time as Secretary of State Cordell Hull warned the United States to be ready for a sudden Axis blow.

Later Army officials said the New York alarms were just tests.

Were Victims of Air Attack by Japan—Prime Minister Promises Early Statement on General War Situation.

LONDON, Dec. 10:—Prime Minister Winston Churchill told the House of Commons today that he had bad news which he felt should be imparted without delay. "H.M.S. Prince of Wales and H.M.S. Repulse have been sunk while carrying out operations against Japan on Malaya," he said. Both were sunk by air attack.

The prime minister promised a brief and early statement on the general war situation which had undergone both favorable and adverse changes during the last few days. Lord Moyne gave a similar statement to the House of Lords.

The Commons was shocked with the solemn announcement by Mr. Churchill that the battleship Prince of Wales and the battle cruiser Repulse had been sunk in the Pacific in Great Britain's biggest naval loss of the war. The Prime Minister's statement was as follows:

"I have bad news for the House which I think I should impart at the earliest possible moment. Report has been received from Singapore that H.M.S. Prince of Wales and H.M.S. Repulse have been sunk while carrying out operations against a Japanese attack on Malaya. No details are as yet available except those in a Japanese communique claiming both ships were sunk by air attack.

"I shall take occasion at an early date to make a short statement on the general war situation which has from many points of view both favorably and adversely undergone important changes in the last few days."

DAILY EDITION

WEDNESDAY, DEC. 10, 1941

Bad War News . . .

As President Roosevelt said last night the war news, so far, has "all been bad." Like the United States did on Sunday, we today received bad news in regard to the war in the Pacific. H.M.S. Prince of Wales and H.M.S. Repulse, two first line battleships sent to guard Singapore against Japan, have been sunk.

It looks like the first round in the Battle of the Pacific goes to our treacherous foes. But that will steel us to more determination to see the thing through to victory "final and complete."

Loss of Prince of Wales and Repulse notwithstanding, our navy is stronger today than it was over two years ago when our war began. Our enemy have a long way to go before our mastery of the seas is overcome.

By the very nature of Japan's attack, we might have anticipated sudden and heavy losses. And it must be remembered that our "crafty and powerful enemies" fight like this and one of their principal hopes is to break down our morale even before we start to fight back. In receiving bad news we should keep that in mind.

Automobile Lights . . .

Civilian protection workers who continued the blackout patrol of Prince Rupert last night had good reason to question the real value of their work in going up to people's houses and asking them to douse even the slightest gleam that might have appeared through their hastily prepared window coverings while at the same time automobiles in considerable number travelled the streets throwing streams of lights that could be seen for blocks if not miles.

Willing householders, according to general report, were trying their best to comply with the regulations although possibly not such a wonderful job was done and there will have to be a considerable improvement if they are to continue having the privilege of turning the lights on and off for themselves.

The great weakness of the blackout was the matter of the cars. If the Defence of Canada Regulations permit the use of car lights such as those that were seen here last night, and the authorities tell us that they do, then it is high time such silly regulations were altered. There seems little point in having the houses so strictly dark if the cars are to be permitted to run that way.

And if the emergency is so real as we are told it is, there should be something done about the car lights and that right soon. We offer this suggestion in the belief that the authorities, who have the power to act in the matter, are as anxious as we are that it shall be made as difficult as possible for the marauding murderers finding us from the sky.

The A.R.P. Workers . . .

Appreciating the seriousness of the situation and the imminence of danger, civilian protection workers are doing a good job in various capacities these blackout nights. Scores of men and women are already working by night after busy days on their jobs and the community spirit in the face of the common danger is gratifying. More volunteers, however, could materially lighten the job for those already enlisted.

This is one of the jobs of war. There is no remuneration in it except the satisfaction there may be that even if in a small way something is being done to help in the defence of our very homes which are now endangered.

DEMAND OF QUISLINGS

Decree Guaranteeing "Satisfaction" Aim of Nasjonal Samling

NEW YORK, Dec. 10.—Nasjonal samling, the party of Major Vidkun Quisling in Norway, now wants to issue a decree guaranteeing "satisfaction" in various forms to persons who have "suffered" for having served Germany.

In NS circles in the ministry of justice it has been suggested that municipalities and private persons be compelled to pay reparations when, for instance, the income of an NS shopkeeper or physician has been reduced. Up to now the Germans have refused to issue such a decree but have sanctioned the suggestion that some measures be taken.

Thus, NS shopkeepers will be favoured in the distribution of food thereby compelling customers to buy at the NS places of business. And NS lawyers, boycotted by the general public, have been assured that the Nazi authorities will use them wherever possible.

A German counsel named Koch has written a letter to nasjonal samling in which these matters are mentioned. He advised the party to set up a special organization to work out ways and means of procuring reparations for NS members. Koch suggested that the nasjonal samling might use its administrative power for such purposes, and several such instances already are reported.

For example, the NS-dominated municipal council of Heddal decided that school books be bought from "NS friends" at Skien rather than from the customary dealer in Notodden. One of the minority members remarked that "next time we'll probably be buying from Namsos."

On watch and ward in two oceans, far from their own seaboard, Canada's naval men maintain ceaseless vigil.

GOODWILL BETWEEN U.S. AND CANADA TOOK NEW TREND IN THE PAST YEAR

Review of Trade and Defence Relations Between the Two Countries Shows Still Stronger Ties—Joint Defence Production Committee Formed.

OTTAWA, Dec. 10: (CP)—Canada and the United States tended to become industrial and economic partners during 1941 under the impact of war and its urgent demands for unlimited quantities of machines. The partnership trend which reversed a half-century of more or less restricted economic rivalry found its most concrete expression in the creation of a Joint Defence Production Committee, announced by Prime Minister Mackenzie King early in November.

This committee has as its function the planning of Canadian and American war production in such a way as to make the maximum possible use of the resources of the two countries in labor, raw materials and industrial capacity.

Thus the committee will keep an eye out to see that if one country requires supplies of a certain type and if they can be obtained more economically from the other the country needing the supplies will not plunge into the creation of additional plant facilities in order to produce them for itself.

Hyde Park Declaration

The two governments agreed to set up the committee following a recommendation of the Joint Economic Committee which was set up sometime earlier to study means of economic co-ordination generally and bring about co-ordinated action where agencies of the two governments were already operating along the same lines.

The policy of pooling economic and industrial resources was formally proclaimed at Easter in the Hyde Park declaration by Prime Minister Mackenzie King and President Roosevelt and followed the 1940 development of the creation of a Joint Defence Board to bring about the co-ordination of plans for military, naval and air defence of the North American continent.

The Hyde Park declaration had important financial consequences for Canada as under it the United States agreed to buy from $200,000,000 to $300,000,000 worth of war materials from Canada, thus aiding this country to maintain its exchange position with the United States. From the outset of the war Canada's financial position required close watching because of unusually heavy wartime purchases from the United States and a consequent drain on Canadian holdings of United States funds.

Mr. King's Visit

Mr. King made two visits to the president during the year, the Easter trip which resulted in the declaration and a personal visit in November when the two leaders exchanged views on a wide range of questions.

Munitions Minister Howe was a regular visitor to Washington throughout the year as his duties called him there to consult with officials of the Office of Production Management on purchases of war materials and priorities for scarce products.

Negotiations on the St. Lawrence Waterway were carried on early in the year and culminated in the signing of an agreement on March 19. Indications the project would be started during the year were not born out, however, as President Roosevelt did not submit the agreement to Congress for ratification.

Is Attacked In Black-Out

Major Lahiff Set Upon on Monday Night

Major R. Lahiff, while walking along Second Avenue opposite the Angus Apartments in the blackout Monday night, was set upon by a couple of unidentified footpads who approached from the rear and started to beat him. Indeed they did deal him several blows about the head and face but made off when the major broke a window in front of which the incident occurred and the occupant of the house came out. The object of the attack, Major Lahiff believes, was robbery.

Major Lahiff, as a result of the experience, believes that it might be particularly dangerous for unescorted girls in the black-out.

Wheat Estimates More Scientific

Moisture and Mercury Figures Combine to Better Human Predictions.

OTTAWA, Dec. 10: (CP)—Dominion bureau of statistics officials report that a full-scale test of a method of using precipitation and temperature data in estimating prairie wheat production had given encouraging results in 1941.

In the past, crop estimates have been based almost entirely on information provided by hundreds of correspondents scattered throughout the prairies and reporting on conditions in their localities. From these reports, progressive estimates were prepared by the bureau but the percentage of error was sometimes high when it was possible to check the estimates against the actual returns at the close of the season.

Investigation of the relation between weather data and wheat yields was started in 1937. After preliminary studies, the precipitation and temperature conditions were used in estimating returns for the prairies this year.

CANADIAN TANKS IN MASS PRODUCTION

Mass produced in a Quebec factory, these infantry tanks have trundled out of the shops and are being fitted with a powerful 2-pounder gun, machine gun, flame thrower and other equipment. Consisting of 49,000 separate parts and costing in the neighborhood of $90,000 each, these Valentines weigh around 20 tons and have a top speed of 25 miles per hour. More than 3,500 men are employed in their construction at the plant which produces them. The factory runs 24 hours a day, 6 days a week. "Valentine" is now the correct designation of this type of infantry tank. Canada has promised 100 of these to Russia.

MODEL IS SATISFIED

No. 1 Poser Has Ambitions, Came From Russia, Does Very Well And Pays Income Tax

By Ray Peacock
Associated Press Staff Writer
NEW YORK, Dec. 10: (AP)—Call blonde Irene Milinkovich a glamor girl and she would turn up her classic nose and laugh at you. Yet her name would appear in almost any American artist's "first five" ranking of figure models.

The green-eyed Russian-born miss is correct in her self-appraisal to the extent that an attractive face and figure are not her only assets. Articulate and ambitious, she regards modelling as a business, and makes no qualifications but one.

"What I do," she says, "I like to do well."

She paid an income tax last year, and is proud of it. She keeps a methodical ledger—diary, the pages divided into neat squares for morning, afternoon and evening appointments, with the week's income added at the bottom. One week this year she earned $65, but in order to make that much she had to work all day and evenings.

Lives Well

Normally her income from modelling ranges from $25 to $40. "I suppose," she says, "you could say I live well. I stay at a good hotel and have all the clothes I need."

Miss Milinkovich (call her Irene if it's easier) was the girl Louis Bets painted to win a medal at the National Academy last year. The work was called "Scarlet Throw."

Some other outstanding paintings she has posed for were "Seated Figure" by Gladys Rockmore Davis, wife of Floyd Davis, the illustrator, and "Quandry," a figure by Russell Cowles.

"Right now," Irene volunteered, "I'm posing for a series of heads by Carolyn Edmondson for some cosmetic ads. I'm also modelling for a milliner."

Irene is five feet, three and a half inches tall, and wishes she were a little taller because it would be easier to get work. Her measurements are bust 34½, waist 24½, and hips 37.

"My weight? It's 123 now. I don't have to diet, but I do get a massage twice a week. It helps the blood to circulate after holding poses."

Maybe To Films

I wanted to know what she thinks about—if anything—while posing. She laughed readily. "You have to think about something, or your face is expressionless and that is bad for the artists. Usually I watch them. They have different ways of concentrating and they're always interesting."

Irene does a great deal of costume modelling and conducts weekly life and fashion sketch classes of her own. She has her own studio and complains that good models are hard to find.

She and her family came from Russia as refugees. She stayed, but her father, mother and a brother went back to Yugoslavia. Irene became a citizen three years ago. Her knowledge of Russian, she hopes, may lead to a radio or film job.

Mostly New Yorkers

Most figure models, artist Reginald Marsh says, are native New Yorkers, and often of comparatively recent foreign origin. He says:

"Girls of American descent, and particularly those of the midwest, feel humiliated at such work. They might get turned down 40 or 50 times before they land a job. They're easily embarrassed and afraid they'll lose face by being

Mayor's Taste Boosts Prices

LYNCHBURG, Va., Dec. 10: (AP)—A concessionaire, seeking to increase the price of sandwiches at the Virginia Tech-Virginia Military football game, submitted samples to the mayor and council. The mayor munched a ham sandwich—and the price was hiked from 10 to 15 cents.

known as models. But girls still under the European influence, and living in crowded quarters, are less concerned about such things.

"Right now there are fewer girls modelling than in years but I don't know just why. More prosperity, maybe. They're earning all they need elsewhere.

"Models are a lonely group," he said reflectively. "If they come from outside the city and take up figure modelling in the hope of meeting people, which is to say men, they're often disappointed. If an artist is prosperous enough to hire a model, he usually is married anyway."

Britain's "ATS" Going Slimmer

New Uniforms to Improve Appearance of Old Land's Biggest Women's Army

LONDON, Dec. 10: (AP)—The khaki-clad girls of Britain's largest women's army—the Auxiliary Territorial Service—soon will appear in a new uniform. Its color will be the same but it will be what one officer described as "well-cut where the old one was n't."

The uniform will be slimmer with square-shouldered tunic and panel skirt. All tunics, instead of only the officers', will have belts and bright brass buckles. The sleeves will have cuffs.

"ATS" will get four shirts and four pairs of stockings, instead of two of each. The poplin shirts will have detachable collars. There will be a new great coat, fitted and smarter and requiring less material than the old.

In the changeover, there will be no waste. Each of the ATS will turn in one old uniform in exchange for a new. The old will be "rejuvenated" and with a new uniform will be issued to recruits as they are signed on. The ATS hope to double their strength by next June.

The uniform will come as a Christmas present to the ATS if only because its distribution throughout the service will coincide with Christmas.

SWATHMORE, Pa., Dec. 10: (AP)—Isabel Logan, 20-year old Swathmore College senior from Ashville, N. C., won a place in the Henry Memorial Collection in 1941 with a 1,500 word short story originally published as a filler in the college magazine.

Titled "The Visit," it was written three years ago and kicked around for some time before the Swathmore "Dodo" used it and paid the author $1. Later she submitted it in a magazine contest and came out with a $500 prize. Then the one-time filler brought home the O. Henry honor with a $100 check, making the total proceeds to date $601.

The eight plastic decoys he sighted from the air were still there.

VARSITY SOLDIERS KEEP FIT

Canadian universities have played an important part in the national war effort since the start of the conflict in training their students to become fit army men. Units of the Canadian Officers Training Corps have increased their activities and have been a rich source of officer timber for the Canadian services. Reserve battalions have also been organized to give university students basic training. McGill University's contribution is typical. This photo shows members of the M.R.T.B. Glance-Back at All-Canadian Football Current Season Shows
Game Going Out.

By SYDNEY GRUSON
Canadian Press Staff Writer
TORONTO, Dec. 10: ©—The chances are against senior football being played in Canada next year because of the war, but if 1941 was the wind-up for the duration of the blaze of glory at the finish will reflect the season favorably for years to come.

No definite decisions have been made yet for 1942 but it seems certain the Western Inter-provincial Rugby Football Union will close down and the situation in the east will be clarified only by the turn of events in the war. Football officials, however, are not overly optimistic of operating senior leagues in the east.

If they do manage to bring the Big Four (Eastern Inter-Provincial) out for another year, it's probable the national final will be retained, for the executive of the Winnipeg Blue Bombers club, 1941 champions after the stirring 13-16 victory over Ottawa Rough Riders, plan to keep a team together and play exhibitions against American clubs until an eastern champion is declared.

Give and Take Rules
In review, the 1941 season provided some of Canadian football's brightest moments, topped by the renewal of the east-west classic a year's postponement because of the drawn-out struggle over the sections' varying rules. A spirit of conciliation on both sides led to adoption of a standard code—with five-yard interference and the so-called professional forward pass.

Standardized rules brought the Bombers and Rough Riders together in a final before 20,000 fans that left strong men weak and weak men in a state of collapse as the western champions overcame Ottawa's early lead, withstood the Riders' late surge and George (Boom Boom) Fraser, Ottawa placement—kicking specialists, made his classic miss from 18 yards with what would have been the tying field goal.

The Bombers rode to the final over Regina Rough Riders, a young home-brew club that took the first game of the western final from the favored Winnipeggers but lost the next two. Edmonton had dropped out of the western schedule and Vancouver was brought in as a replacement, but the old rivals from Winnipeg and Regina dominated the season.

Good Old-Timers
The old stars were still the mail-carriers for the Bombers. Fritz Hanson came back in remarkable fashion to pace the Bombers, first to the western crown and then to the national title with a performance that reminded the fans of his palmy afternoon in Hamilton six years ago. Then Hanson practically whipped Hamilton Tigers single-handed to give Bombers their first national championship. In the east Riders took the eastern title by eliminating Hamilton Wildcats, champions of the senior Ontario union. When Toronto Balm Beach withdrew from the Ontario Rugby Football Union to replace the Tigers in a renovated Big Four, it appeared as if the O.R.F.U. was doomed. But Toronto Oakwoods, the Wildcats and Kitchener-Waterloo Panthers were put together to form a league in which Wildcats didn't lose a game.

They went on to give Riders tough opposition in the eastern final, losing 7-3. A week before, Ottawa had overcome an 8-point lead Toronto Argonauts gained in the first game of the total-points series for the Big Four round. The second game of that round, won by Riders 10-1 after they lost the opener 16-8, was rivaled only by the national final for excitement.

Eastern Star
The player of the year in the east was Tony (Golden Boy) Golab of Ottawa's backfield, a triple-threat star who was awarded the Jeff Memorial trophy as the Big Four's outstanding man.

Balm Beach won only its two games against Montreal's hapless Bulldogs but Beaches had to play their first three games without their star quarterback, Bobby Porter, who had been ruled ineligible because he played professional baseball. There were many, even at the season's close, who insisted the whole eastern picture would have changed had Porter been allowed to play from the start.

SMITHERS PREPARES

Considers Steps To Be Taken Under New War Conditions

SMITHERS, Dec. 10:—The newly developed war situation had an immediate effect on the interest in Civilian Protection work in this town, an emergency meeting being held here Monday evening to consider the probable or possible developments. The meeting was called with less than twelve hours notice and eighty people were present where hitherto it was difficult to get a turnout of more than ten or twelve.

Many points pertaining to the possible requirements of this town were discussed thoroughly, one of the chief points being the accommodation that might be required for housing and feeding evacuees from Prince Rupert in the event that it might become necessary to evacuate women and children from the coast city.

A canvass of the town is to be made today to ascertain how many could probably be handled in such a situation.

Arrangements were also made for first aid posts and also posts where air raid wardens could be found, all the officials for these posts having been arranged some time ago.

Black-out precautions and signals were also discussed at some length.

First aid lectures have been going on here for several months and it is felt that the town will now be well equipped for first aid helpers if the necessity should arise to call on these men.

Interest in all these matters was at a high pitch and there was a feeling that everyone was wishing to do everything possible in the event of any possible emergency.

PASSING OF CHIEF AZAK

Canyon City On Naas River Loses A Leading Man

Canyon City on the Naas River has lost one of its most progressive leaders in the death of Chief Henry Azak Gwikmaou who died early on the morning of December 1.

In the year 1918, the flood destroyed their village of Underleaf. Under his leadership his people returned to their former home on the banks of the canyon overlooking the famous lava beds.

In 1927 through his influence a Salvation Army mission was established for his people.

Further progress was made in 1940 when he made plans for the erection of a sawmill. In 1941, without any help from outside sources, his people purchased a sawmill. The government gave him authority to administer the law and men were appointed to enforce it.

Chief Henry Azak has always been interested in everything for the welfare of his people.
