Public Men Of Quebec Speak For State And Church of War Effort Of French Canadian Province

In order to set forth to the rest of Canada what is being done by the Province of Quebec in connection with the war, the Montreal Herald has just issued a special number from which are culled a few selections:

THE EDITOR—"Here in Quebec both French speaking and English speaking Canadians are one in their essential loyalty to Canada and the Empire."

PREMIER ADELARDE GODBOUT—"The flocking of our sons to the colors, the devotion of our entire business and industrial organization to the end of the war effort, our outstanding contribution to war financing have together been a revelation of Quebec's innate loyalty and her zeal in the national and imperial cause of liberty and justice."

CARDINAL VILLENEUVE—"I am happy to proclaim the loyalty and enlightened patriotism of the French-speaking Canadians in the present war effort, and I am proud to do so. French Canadian names are in their place on the rolls of honor in recruiting or voluntary service, in auxiliary works, in war savings and loans to the state."

COL. FRANK KNOX, U.S. SEC. TO NAVY—"I especially congratulate and facilitate this great province of Quebec on its noteworthy contribution to Canadian war effort to help defeat the Hun, and may I employ the sterling example which you men of Quebec have provided to cry shame upon the numerically few but noisy isolationist minority in my country, who cry out for an impossible isolation for us, while Quebec, having far more profound reasons for an isolationist posture, is setting an inspiring example to the free men of other bloodstreams in Canada and United States."

MAJOR GENERAL LA FLECHE—"The first regiment to reach full strength in Canada when war broke out was French Canadian."

HON. ERNEST LAPOINTE—"Nothing should be allowed to divert our minds from the hard and dangerous battle we are fighting for our survival."

Question Of Titles - - -

The granting of a title to Right Hon. R. B. Bennett evidently on the advice of the British Minister, has once more raised the question of whether the granting of titles on the advice of the Canadian Prime Minister should be revived. Here is what Bruce Hutchison has to say about it:

"Now that Mr. Bennett, of Ottawa, has become Lord Bennett, of Calgary and London, the voice of nobility is raised once more in the land. Undoubtedly the Ottawa Journal speaks for a considerable body of people who expect to get a knighthood when it says that we should restore titles in Canada.

"Obviously, our need of titles is very great. Far too many of our aged politicians are walking the streets without a title to hang their coat on—and some without coats either. Far too many of our larger campaign fund contributors are without honor in the land when surely, after their public services, they should be called 'Sir' or 'My Lord.' When I think of all the money advanced by these self-denying fellows it makes my heart bleed that they have no House of Lords to go to and enjoy their well-won ease.

"There once was a better time, before the first World War. If a man became Premier of British Columbia he got a knighthood. If he built a large enough brewery and knew his way around in legislative circles, he was elevated to the nobility. That was before the modern nonsense of social equality got abroad. We had then a definite caste system, approved by law and patent, where our present castes, at best, are flimsy and have no legal recognition.

"We should set up a group of men apart, with special privilege and honor, to rule over us and to supply the campaign funds. I can think of many Canadians worthy to enter this garden of the elect. I positively know a number who would give their eye teeth and a substantial part of their fortunes for a title, and the Canadian people would like to see them made happy. The people want some men they can really look up to."

Precious Titles - - -

"Sergeant Alvin C. York is the most noted American hero of the last war," says the Vancouver Sun and it is worth repeating. "This Tennessee mountaineer, single handed, captured a German machine gun battery and, with seven privates, killed or captured 152 of its defenders.

"A few days ago Sergeant York told the young men of America what he thought about war and his little speech answers better than most of the orations of statesmen some of the great questions of our times. He said:

"There are those in our country today who ask me and the other veterans who fought in World War No. 1: 'What did it get you?' Let me answer them now. It got me 23 years of living in America where a humble citizen from the mountains of Tennessee can stand on the same platform with the President of the United States. It got me 23 years of living in a country where the Goddess of Liberty is printed on men's hearts, and not only on the coins in their pockets.

"People who ask us that question, 'What did it get you?' forget one thing. True, we fought the last war to make the world safe for democracy, and we did for a while.

"The thing they forget is that liberty and freedom and democracy are so very precious that you do not fight to win them once—and then stop. Liberty and freedom and democracy are prizes awarded only to those peoples who fight to win them and then keep fighting eternally to hold them."

Canada Increases Trade With India

Canada Has Benefits From War As European Supplies Cut Off

OTTAWA, July 10: (CP)—Trade between Canada and India has increased sharply since the war started and the heavy balance of trade enjoyed by India in pre-war days has been almost wiped out, the Dominion Department of Trade and Commerce reports.

According to statistics collected by the Indian government, Canadian exports to India during the 11 month period from April 1, 1940 to February 28, 1941 were valued at 25,418,630 rupees ($10,642,324) compared with 13,660,300 rupees ($4,644,500) in the preceding 12 month period.

Paul Sykes, Canadian Trade Commissioner at Bombay, points out that India has held a heavy balance of trade for many years due to Canadian demand for Indian tea and jute products and the limited market in India for Canadian forestry, agricultural, mine and fishery products because of local competition and competition of European exporters.

Since the war started, however, European sources of supply have been cut off from India and this together with special wartime demands has given Canada opportunities in India never before enjoyed.

BALL GAME WAS SPORTY

Dry Dock Snatched 8 To 5 Victory From Rocky Mountain Rangers

Last evening at Acropolis Hill the Dry Dock ball team snatched an 8-5 victory from the Rocky Mountain Rangers. For the first four innings the R. M. R.'s held the boys of the Dry Dock scoreless and at the end of the first part of the fifth were leading 3-0. The last part of the fifth inning, however, saw the Dry Dock tally five runs. McIntyre, catching for the Dry Dock, put the ball game on ice when he knocked in three runs in the sixth inning with a beautiful three bagger far into centre field. Green, pitching for the Rangers for the first three innings, allowed but one hit, held the Dry Dock from scoring.

Croizier, finishing for the Rangers allowed five hits. Arlington started for the Dry Dock and held the Rangers to one run and one hit for the first four innings.

Warner finished, allowing five hits, the Rangers tallying four runs. The long hits of the game were made by Green of the Rocky Mountain Rangers and McIntyre of the Dry Dock who both hit three baggers.

Dido Gurchich called the balls and strikes, Joe Ratchford the bases and Jim Wilson of the Y. M. C. A. kept the score.

Posthumous Award For Brave Sailor

LONDON, July 10: (CP)—Able Seaman Robert Percival, who remained aboard a sinking ship to help save his wounded skipper, has been posthumously awarded the British Empire Medal, it was announced in the London Gazette.

The captain, Harold Hewson, suffered two broken legs when the vessel was damaged six days after the outbreak of war. A few minutes before the ship sank he ordered the crew into the only available lifeboat, but the young seaman refused to desert his captain.

"He was one of those men who could not leave another to die," Hewson said in paying tribute to Percival who subsequently was lost at sea.

VOTE FOR AIR RAID VICTIMS

The Prince Rupert branch of the Canadian Legion of the British Empire Service League held their regular monthly meeting last evening with president H. A. Breen in the chair.

Letters of thanks from various individuals and organizations indicated the wide range of activities in which the Legion is interested. It was agreed to assist in the production of another garrison song sheet and also with the camp being run by the Religious Education Council at Queen Charlotte Islands this year. Uniforms will be obtained from surplus stores of the Canadian Army ordnance Headquarters at Ottawa to outfit the local Legion pipe band.

In view of the urgent need in the Old Country for so many of the necessities for children it was agreed to forego the usual Legion picnic this year and instead make a donation of $150.00 towards the Queen's Canadian Fund for Air Raid Victims. At the same time it was agreed to arrange for a local children's sports day, possibly in collaboration with other local organizations. A grant was also authorized to the Women's Auxiliary of the Canadian Legion to purchase materials for their splendid work in supplying clothing for children in the British Isles.

When Conscripted When Gas Fails

LONDON, July 10: (CP)—St. Bartholomew's Hospital received the gift of a set of eggs. It was suggested when the chickens were hatched they should be sent the nurses' country home to provide eggs for the winter.

The eggs were put in a gas incubator in the pathological laboratory. Then bombs cut off the gas supply. The eggs were in danger of going cold.

A resourceful hospital official appeared with a hen in the sidecar of his motorcycle and the newsmen proceeded to hatch out the eggs.

It is hard to credit the 30 years she claims for she has an out-of-doors, streamlined look which, with her hair hanging loosely on her shoulders, makes her look many years younger.

brothers and sisters that you've really grown up," she said in an interview at Earncliffe where she is hostess for her brother, Rt. Hon. Malcolm MacDonald, British High Commissioner to Canada.

The other four children of the late Ramsay MacDonald are Ailsa, a London architect, Malcolm, a doctor whose married name is Mrs. A. MacKinnon.

"One would gather from our names that we might be Scots," she laughed. "The others were born at Lossiemouth, our place in north-west Scotland."

Miss MacDonald firmly believes that environment rather than heredity plays the most important part in formation of a child's character and is herself an example of her theories and the politico-social background which was her home.

As a child she went to the North London Collegiate, a large school for girls which is "public in the same sense as a Canadian "public" school. From there she went to Oxford where she studied economics, politics, philosophy and international affairs. She travelled on the continent where her interest led her to some investigation of social welfare and political problems.

"But there is no doubt that I was greatly influenced by my father and his interest in social questions," said Miss MacDonald. "Our house was one in which we all discussed and debated and had our own opinions."

Having finished school, Miss MacDonald became deeply interested in prison reform and the fate of boys and girls who were brought into the juvenile courts upon charges of delinquency. As a "probation officer" she found the work of advising these boys and girls a "fascinating" occupation.

"I visited their schools and homes and I am convinced that boys and girls who get into scrapes are in the vast majority of cases the victims of poverty, bad environment and unhappy homes," she said. "Their response to a little friendliness and confidence is wonderful."

Miss MacDonald plays tennis and golf and "was a fiend for field hockey" at college. Most of all she enjoys walking and cycling.

While she plays the piano she prefers pictures to any other expression of art and her favorites are the works of the old Dutch masters and modern water colors.

In Canada she hopes to acquaint herself with Canadian art. "I was thrilled by the exhibition of Canadian pictures shown in London a year or two ago," she said. "I was struck by the virility and qualities of originality."

After the outbreak of war Miss MacDonald worked for some months in a hospital supply depot in Hampstead. The problem created by evacuated children returning home to London after the vacated schools had been used for other purposes led her to open a school in Cambden Town and soon she had three other teachers and more than 75 children.

In June 1940 the influx of refugees from the continent and the solving of the school situation led her to devote herself to the organization of the Hampstead War Refugee Centre where people from the Nazi-occupied European countries were welcomed.

Until she left for Canada in May, 1941, she was occupied in obtaining hostels and homes for refugees, organizing classes to teach them English, book-keeping, first aid and many other subjects in placing people in industry and clerical positions.

KISS YOUR TIRED FEELING GOODBYE!

Pepples Many Suffer Low Blood Count—And Don't Know It.
The baffling thing about low blood count is that you can work as hard as you ever did—even look healthy and strong, yet you can feel as if you had lead in your legs, doped, tired and peevish.
Low blood count means you haven't got enough red blood corpuscles. It is their vital job to carry life-giving oxygen from your lungs throughout your body. And just as it takes oxygen to explode gasoline in your car and make the power to turn the wheels, so you must have plenty of oxygen to explode the energy in your body and give you going power.
Get Dr. Williams' Pink Pills today. They are world-noted for the help they give in increasing the number and strength of red corpuscles. Then with your blood count up, you'll feel like bounding up the stairs as if you were floating on air. Ask your druggist for Dr. Williams' Pink Pills today.

Man in the Moon

When asked to define poverty Jake declared: "It is something I have in my pocket but it is difficult to describe."

A man who neglects to pay a debt is just ordinarily cursed but the man who refuses to worry about it is damnable.

I bought a fountain pen a few days ago. Yesterday I took it back and told the man in the shop that it leaked all over my fingers.

"Ah!" he said. "What you need, sir, is a pair of our patent rubber writing gloves. Only 4s. 11d. a pair!"

"But," I said, "you told me it would last a lifetime."

"That's right, sir. But you looked pretty sick when you bought it."

There is said to be quite a run on handkerchiefs looking forward to the near approach of the time when the Rocky Mountain Rangers leave.

Jake says he has been wondering if he can think up an excuse that gets past the city commissioner for not paying his taxes on the first of next month.

We understand the city commissioner is very lenient as long as the property owner pays the extra cost.

What I like about falling to pay the tax bill is that there are a lot of other people in the same boat.

I wonder how many people could say "I could easily pay all my debts if only other people would pay me."

CHARGE OF MAORIS EFFECTIVE

Germans Broke Before New Zealand Natives in Greece and Crete

AUCKLAND, N.Z., July 10: (CP)—The Maori troops New Zealand has sent overseas have always earned an enviable reputation, more particularly in hand-to-hand fighting, which appeals to the warrior traditions of the race. Reports reaching New Zealand of the fighting in the Middle East show that the Maori Battalion of the New Zealand Expeditionary Force was in its element in the desperate fighting in Greece and Crete.

Time and time again they proved to the Germans that the bayonet, far from being archaic, is as effective as ever in the hands of a soldier who fully understands its use, even against modern methods of war. To the Maori the bayonet is a natural weapon and though he quickly masters modern means of warfare, he fairly revels in a bayonet charge.

Many stories have been received of how the Germans broke and ran before Maori bayonets. On one occasion the enemy had penetrated the protective wire in front of a Maori position. They advanced boldly and in one sector were almost through.

Chanted Tribal Song
There was no hesitation. A decision was made. While some were singing their famous Maori battalion song, a detachment of Maoris fixed bayonets. They began to chant an ancient tribal haka and then charged, led by a prominent "All Black" rugby footballer.

The rushed into blazing tommy gun fire, never for a moment hesitating. At the bayonet point the forward elements met their death while mortars cleared others out of the wire.

Another detachment bringing up ammunition found the way blocked by Germans who had penetrated the lines. The party charged into the enemy tommy guns and the Germans turned and ran.

An artillery officer told how he passed a Maori unit going forward carrying rifles and machine-guns. "Going duck shooting Hori?" he called to one of them. "No by korry, we no shoot," replied Hori with a grin. "The bayonet plurry good medicine."

Whifflets From The Waterfront

J. A. Motherwell, chief supervisor of fisheries, writes as follows:

"I have now to advise those interested that up to and including August 2 next, export permits will be available for all spring salmon, no matter how caught, except that permits will not be issued for such salmon if they are being exported for canning purposes. The new arrangement is on the understanding that, in the meantime some modification appears necessary, export permission may be withheld at a date earlier than August 2. On that date, depending upon the volume of canned salmon of all varieties in British Columbia, it may be found necessary to prohibit the issuance of permits for all salmon except frozen and mild cured springs, no matter how caught."
