ESSENTIAL, DECLARES PRESIDENT OF UNITED STATES, THAT DEFEAT OF AGGRESSORS BE ASSURED

Asks For Free Hand In Aiding Of Democracies

CALLS UPON PEOPLE OF COUNTRY TO CO-OPERATE AND SACRIFICE SO THAT WAR BE KEPT AWAY

WASHINGTON, D.C., January 6: (CP)—President Franklin D. Roosevelt told Congress today that the United States faces unprecedented "foreign peril" and demanded "swift and driving increase in our armaments" both for defence and for use of the fighting democracies abroad. In his annual message delivered to a joint session of both bodies of the new Congress, the President said the need of the moment "is that our actions and policy should be devoted primarily—almost exclusively—to meeting this foreign peril.

"All our domestic problems are now a part of the great emergencies," said the President who said that the United States purpose and pledge should be to send the democracies ever increasing numbers of ships, planes, tanks and guns.

Mr. Roosevelt said he would ask Congress for greatly increased new appropriations to carry on the defence program and for "authority and funds sufficient to manufacture additional munitions and war supplies of many kinds to be turned over to those nations now in actual war with aggressor nations."

The President forecast increased taxation to carry on the national defence and warned Americans all that they must be prepared to sacrifice in meeting the emergency.

Mr. Roosevelt was given a tremendous ovation when he appeared in the Chamber. His address was punctuated with applause, particularly at frequent points where he pledged aid to Great Britain as the first American line of defence.

The President wore a double-breasted grey suit. As he mounted to the rostrum he had his customary broad smile despite the seriousness of the words which were to follow.

At no time in history had American security been as seriously threatened as it was today, asserted the chief executive. Most of previous crises had related to domestic affairs. At no time had the national safety or continued independence been so seriously threatened.

"Today, thank God, 130,000,000 Americans in forty-eight states have forgotten points of the compass in the cause of national unity," he asserted.

Mr. Roosevelt declared that isolation of the United States was today an entirely impracticable policy.

Never before had any single nation aimed to dominate the whole world. Only once before had a foreign nation sought to establish itself in North America, said the President in referring to Maximilian in Mexico. A new order of tyranny threatened every continent today. The American people were setting their faces against that tyranny.

The British naval power Mr. Roosevelt referred to as still a "friendly strength," this remark being greeted with a round of applause.

The democratic form of life was being subjected to direct assault in every part of the world—in some places by arms, in some places by insidious propaganda and in others by stirring up discord and internal strife.

This nation was still at peace but the President said he found it an "unhappy necessity" to report that its future safety was threatened and we are overwhelmingly involved in events far beyond our borders."

If the present defences of democracy failed, Mr. Roosevelt described the resultant effect upon United States. Should Europe, Asia, Africa and Australia be dominated by conquest, there would be an array of population and resources greatly exceeding those of the whole western hemisphere many times over.

No peace with safety or liberty could ever be expected from the dictators.

Mr. Roosevelt sounded a note of warning against "isms and appeasement" in this country. "Beware also of those who would sacrifice the national warfare to further their own aims."

No one could tell in the tempo of modern warfare when physical conflict might be brought even to these shores. As long as the British Navy retained its power there would be no danger of invasion of the United States. Nor would there be much danger of invasion unless there were strategic bases from which to operate and here Mr. Roosevelt referred to the lessons of treachery and surprise in Norway. There were already great numbers of secret agents and their dupes in America.

"We face a great responsibility and accountability," said the President. "Our actions and policy must be formulated to meet the foreign menace."

Bardia Falls, Giving British Forces Their Most Important Win

Advance Continues Uninterrupted Towards Flaming Tobruk—Fascist Army for Invasion of Egypt Shattered

ITALY IN PERIL EVERYWHERE
BARLIA, January 6: (CP)—Military sources said today that Italy's position in all eastern Libya is in peril as a result of the fall of Bardia. Not only have British forces taken a main stronghold of Libya's eastern defences and destroyed another big Italian army but there are indications of swiftly growing demoralization among Italy's North African forces. British units already dominate inland regions almost 100 miles from the western Egyptian frontier.

CAIRO, January 6.—Bardia, important Italian Libyan coastal base, fell into British hands yesterday afternoon with the capture of thirty-five thousand Fascist forces including the commander-in-chief, General Berganzoli, a corps commander and four generals as well as millions of dollars worth of war equipment. British advance units, with tanks and mechanized forces, are pushing on towards Tobruk, seventy miles to the west. Italy's principal Libyan port, British general headquarters here announce, and some armored reconnaissance parties have already reached the outskirts of that city.

Empire's Steel Plays Big Part

Supplies From Dominions Will Ensure Ample Equipment for Forces

SYDNEY, N.S.W., Jan. 6: (CP)—Speaking at a luncheon given in his honor by the Millions Club, the Canadian Trade Commissioner in Australia, L. M. Cosgrave, said that the vastly increased steel output in Canada and Australia had made an important contribution to the Empire's war effort. The continued efforts of Australia, Canada, India and Africa, would ensure ample equipment for the forces when the great offensive against the Germans began, he said.

RAILWAYS AND WAR

Canadian National Railways Official Delivers Inspiring Address To "Knights Of Road"

WINNIPEG, Jan. 6:—When Canada, as a free sovereign state, proudly ranged herself on the side of freedom and declared war it was of vital importance that the railways should be capable of bearing the strain that war would inevitably place upon them. The railways were efficient and ready and have functioned 100 percent in Canada's war effort, declared A. A. Gardiner, assistant general passenger traffic manager, Canadian National Railways, at the annual banquet of the Northwest Commercial Travelers in Winnipeg Saturday. Mr. Gardiner came from Montreal to reply to the toast to "The Transportation Companies," a time honored toast at the annual gathering of "The Knights of the Road."

Mr. Gardiner made a careful review of the general railway situation in Canada prior to the war and as far back as fifty years ago. During the last period known as the "depression days" times were difficult, he said. "However, despite all hardships and difficult times, the railways were maintained at an effective standard. In spite of all obstacles and general financial difficulties the start of the present war found Canada with a much better railway machine than she had when the war of 191-18 broke upon us."

Track equipment, power, management and the body of workers "staff, and line" all were fit to go. It was known that the demands would be heavy. "It perhaps could not be anticipated that they would be as heavy as they have been. Much less could it be anticipated that we could, even now, calmly and with confidence, look to a future of even greater demands and face it unafraid."

"Over fifteen months of war effort, however, has failed to develop one weak link. There may have been anxious moments and many problems. There will be more anxiety and other problems. Management and men have both been tested. They have been called upon for their best for their utmost endeavors.

"Man and munitions, supplies and material, movements within the country, movements through the country, movements enroute overseas, and movements, from overseas, each has produced its own peculiar problems. Each problem, even the most complicated and the most exacting, has been solved."

Mr. Gardiner paid high tribute to the development of air service in Canada which, he declared, would be an influence for good. Even now, and more so in the future, it was impossible to overestimate the value of air passenger and air mail service.

The speaker also had words of high praise for the work of the air service and Navy and pointed out proudly the tremendous contribution in personnel that the transportation companies had made to all these services.

"Men whose training and experience in our many-sided activities have particularly fitted them for war service have been called and the response has been generous and inspiring."

"Overseas once again are being added to the annals of the old world glorious pages written by the sons of the new world. Our airmen are wresting renown from the very sky. Our soldiers stand four square, awaiting—no challenging the invader. Our sailors, upon the broad expanse of the two oceans that lave our shores and upon many another sea, are making good their claim to the sonship of our Nelson and at home we of the transportation companies—yes, our whole country, carry on" concluded Mr. Gardiner.

Amy Johnson Mollison Feared Drowned While Flying In War Service

LONDON, January 6: (CP)—Amy Johnson Mollison, one of the Empire's outstanding woman fliers and divorced wife of the transAtlantic pilot, James A. Mollison, is feared to have been drowned in the Thames estuary yesterday after bailing out of an airplane she was ferrying for the air transport auxiliary. Ever since the war began, Mrs. Mollison has been engaged in connection with the delivering of planes from the builders for war service.

Mrs. Mollison was the daughter of Will Johnson of Hull, England, and niece of T. H. Johnson, formerly of Prince Rupert and now of Victoria.

BATTLE OF BRITAIN

LONDON—The German Luftwaffe subjected a northwest English town to a series of bombing attacks during Saturday night. Fires were started and some persons were killed and injured. South Wales and other parts of England had light raids. Sunday afternoon London had its first air raid alarm in weeks but no enemy planes appeared and there was no bombing. A lone bomber came over an East Anglia town and dropped a few missiles, damaging some houses. In addition to visiting Liverpool, Hull, Darlington and Lincoln, last night, the Germans attempted another "fire raid" on London but protective measures in which men, women and children manned roof tops and extinguished the bombs as they fell prevented heavy damage. There were three air raid alarms today and enemy planes came over with the third but were beaten off in half an hour.

ENEMY SUFFERS LOSSES

LONDON—The Royal Air Force continues active over enemy territory. The port of Brest was bombed last night and British planes also visited Norwegian bases yesterday. An enemy cruiser was believed sunk at Brest and two German supply ships off the southwest Norway coast.

THE BALKAN SITUATION

MOSCOW—In view of German military movements in southeastern Europe, Russian envoys to Rumania, Bulgaria, Yugoslavia and Hungary are returning home to Moscow to confer with head Soviet authorities. There are reports that an agreement may have been reached between Russia and Germany where there will be no interference with Nazi forces marching through Bulgaria enroute to Albania to assist the Italians in their losing war against the Greeks. Russia would be given a free hand in Finland. All communications out of Rumania were sealed last night and it was reported that German armies would march into Bulgaria by Wednesday.

GREEKS STILL WINNING

ATHENS—There are new victories in the Greek offensive in spite of reinforced Italian forces. Further advances have been made by the Greeks and Elbassani is in imminent danger of capture. Near the coast the Greeks have captured new points of vantage on heights in the Kilisra region and claim to be in control of the road to Valona. All along the front the Greeks continue to win fresh victories.

BRITISH CABINET CHANGES

LONDON—Announcement is made of new cabinet changes. Arthur Greenwood is made minister for post-war reconstruction. A war production "brain trust" composed of Lord Beaverbrook, Ernest Bevin, A. V. Alexander and Sir Andrew Ray Duncan is announced.

PARITY IN 1942

NEW YORK—C. C. Wright, American aviation expert, predicts Great Britain will have naval parity of 49,000 planes with Germany and Italy by the spring of 1942. At present Axis planes number 41,000 and British, 25,000.

THAI VS. INDO-CHINA

BANGKOK—Violent new fighting has broken out between Thai and French Indo-China and it shows every indication of becoming a full dress war.

PROTEST IS LODGED

BERLIN—William Warnock, charge d'affaires for Eire, visited the Foreign Office today to present the government's protest against flights by German planes over Eire territory.

NEW WARSHIP LAUNCHED

LONDON—The Duke of York, fifth of Great Britain's 35,000-ton King George V. class of battleships, was launched last February, seven months ahead of schedule, it has just been disclosed. Four other greater ships are under construction.

HAVE ALREADY LOST

LONDON—H. G. Wells declares that Germany has already lost the war. He foresees the formation of a new world federation.

Wheat Is Waiting . . .

We were told only a few days ago that the German port of Bremen had a line of elevators along its waterfront which had been used for storing grain. These elevators must now be hungry for grain. So are the store houses at the French ports and the ports of Belgium, Holland, Norway and Denmark.

Canada has eight hundred and fifty million bushels of wheat it wishes to export. Yet one continent has to go hungry while the other is overflowing with grain in order to satisfy the ambition of a brute.

Ireland . . .

Ireland is in a rather difficult position. The northern part is at war with Germany and Italy and the southern part is trying to remain neutral. So neutral is Eire that she will not allow the British the use of any of her ports in connection with the submarine menace. Now the neutral section of the country has been attacked whereas the part that is at war has escaped damage.

Opinion is divided as to the wisdom or otherwise of the Irish position. One local Irishman expressed the wish that Hitler would blow every blankety-blank Irishman into the sea. Others, of course, feel differently about it. De Valera, not being an Irishman, may feel different from the average man from the Emerald Isle. He also knows that he has quite a job on his hands with so many Irishmen who hate England.

Hating England . . .

That hate for England, which so many Irishmen have inherited from their forefathers and faithfully cultivated, seems as if it would never die. It seems to be the expected attitude for Irishmen in Ireland to take and it has transplanted a considerable amount of that hate to America. Many of the hating Irishmen live in England and their fathers lived there because they could make a better living than was possible in their own country. They still cherish that hatred wherever they go and no matter what they do. Happily the broadening effect of living in Canada seems to have obliterated that ill-feeling to a large extent. So far as Englishmen are concerned they generally have a most wholesome respect for the Irish people and we find that they have so intermarried and mixed socially and intellectually that the average person knows no difference between English or Irish. A few Irish even acquire the Oxford accent.

Assimilation . . .

There is a great job of assimilation for Canada to do. The difficulty is that the average French Canadian objects to assimilation and wants to retain his own language, laws and customs. To a certain extent this is all right. They must realize, though that the language of this continent is English and the person who does not know the language of the continent is badly handicapped. This has been proved in Quebec with the result that today many of the French Canadian leaders are strongly advising young men to perfect themselves in the use of the English language while at the same time retaining their own language. This is very wise. In Prince Rupert we do not know a French-Canadian from any other Canadian. All are good citizens and that is what counts.

MASSETT WEDDING

A charming event took place in Massett on New Year's Eve when Olof Anderson of Prince Rupert and Miss Betty Hoeks of Massett were united in marriage. St. Paul's Church was crowded for the occasion by the many friends of the bride and groom. The happy couple entered to the strains of the Wedding March and the ceremony was performed by Rev. J. R. Murray.

The youthful bride chose a floor length gown of white chiffon with smocked bodice. She wore a chapel veil and carried a bouquet of carnations.

Attendants were Miss Esther Ormbrok and Olof Anderson. The bride was given in marriage by her father.

A large gathering later sat down to supper in the Earlscourt Hotel. Among those present were the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. A. Hoeks, and the groom's parents, Mr. and Mrs. A. Anderson, and the Rev. and Mrs. J. Murray. Toasts were drunk to the bride and groom and songs and speeches were enjoyed by all.

In the evening the groom's father held a reception in honor of his son and the bride in Massett Community Hall. Practically everyone in the community was present. The bride was born in the inlet and is a favorite with all, while the groom is also well known among the fishermen.

At the sumptuous lunch a giant wedding cake was produced and the groom assisted the bride in cutting it.

The Show Boat Orchestra supplied the music for the frolic which followed.

The young people carry the good wishes of all to their new home.

ROOSEVELT IS ALL OUT FOR BRITAIN

States foreign policy as decent respect of the rights and dignity of other nations.

"Justice and morality must and will win in the end," declared Mr. Roosevelt.

Mr. Roosevelt called upon the United States for:

First, an impressive expression of the public will for an all-inclusive national life.

Second, an impressive expression of the public will in support of all resolute people everywhere who were resisting aggressors and thus keeping the war away from this hemisphere.

Third, an impressive expression of the public will that "we are committed to the principles of morality and security and that we will never acquiesce to a peace dictated by aggressors and sponsored by appeasers."

Mr. Roosevelt referred to the fact that there had been no difference of opinion between the two parties at the recent election in regard to foreign policy. It was abundantly evident that the American people recognized the imminent danger.

First Importance

The first matter of importance was a great increase in arms production. Industry and labor had already responded to this but "I am not satisfied with the progress being made," said the President. Nor were the military leaders of the nation satisfied. The objective should be quick and better results.

The country was behind schedule in turning out finished airplanes. Mr. Roosevelt disclosed, but was ahead of schedule in building warships. It was essential that all should work to get further ahead.

The President announced he would call for greatly increased appropriations to carry on the defence program at home and to manufacture and supply all munitions required by nations who were today at war with aggressors. "We must act as an arsenal for them as well as for ourselves."

"And we cannot and must not tell them that they must surrender because of their present inability to pay," declared the President. "For the weapons we know they must have. This country should do everything in its power to make it possible for those nations to obtain the materials they need in the United States. These nations, he said, were giving United States time to make ready its own defences.

Mr. Roosevelt asked for freedom to decide how much of the nation's war production should be kept at home and how much sent abroad.

In fulfillment of the pledges to supply the nations fighting against aggressors, Mr. Roosevelt reiterated that this country would not be intimidated by threats of dictators who might talk of breach of international law. Such aid by the United States was not an act of war. "And anyway had the dictators waited for an act of war against them to attack another nation. Had there been acts of war by Norway, Holland or Belgium against Germany?"

Future Depends On It

The happiness and future of America might well depend upon the immediateness and the effectiveness of the aid now given.

"The nation's hands must not be tied," asserted Mr. Roosevelt, "when the nation's life is in danger."

All must be prepared to make sacrifices and the country had a right to expect full co-operation from leaders of industry and labor to take the lead in stimulating the defence effort.

The best way of dealing with slackers and trouble-makers was, first, to try and shame them, and, if

At least twelve persons are dead in France.

The Sydney Sun refers to the dash, courage, spirit and eagerness for battle of the Australians. He trusted and believed that Bardia was but the prelude to greater successes to come.

that failed, to exercise the power of the government.

There must be belief in the cause for which the fight was being made and he was confident the people of the United States had that belief. There must be faith and strength and devotion to the causes of democracy.

Once the maintenance of democracy was assured by the winning of the war against the aggressors, there must follow such rights as equality of opportunity for youth and others, jobs for those who can work, security for those who needed it, ending of special privilege, civil liberty for all, enjoyment of the fruits of scientific progress and a constantly rising standard of living.

Meantime, no one must be allowed to get rich at the expense of the defence program. Patriotism must be put ahead of pocket books.

Future Ideals

Essentials of the future democratic state Mr. Roosevelt enunciated as freedom of speech and expression in every part of the world, freedom of every person to worship God as he wished in every part of the world, freedom from want and security of every person in every part of the world.

This was no millennium, declared the President. It was the very antithesis of the "new order of the tyrants" who would impose their will by the crash of a bomb.

With strength, unity of purpose and high conception there should be no end but victory.

The consensus of opinion is that the President will be speedily given a free hand to exercise his policy of national defence and aid to the democracies.

BARE LEGS DISAPPEAR

LONDON, Jan. 6: (CP)—Bare legs have all but disappeared from London streets. In many cases they have been covered by slacks, synthetic silk stockings—and even cotton ones.

The bare leg fad, which had been increasing rapidly during the warmer weather, reached its peak just after the government announced that silk stockings in future would be available only for export. But then the cold weather had to come along and spoil it all for the girls.

So then the girls in slacks began appearing in greater numbers, especially during week-ends. Those who remained loyal to the stocking habit began appearing in coarser silk hose. The only ones who got a break at all were the elderly women who were able to pull on their dull-colored cottons without feeling they were disobeying any edict of fashion.

Silk stockings still are available but the average girl feels she cannot afford to pay the equivalent of $1.25 a pair for hose that she would have scorned prior to the war. The result is that they cling to their best silk hose even though they may display a couple of "runs."

Even that, however, is to be remedied if plans materialize for certain silk stocking "repair shops." The idea for establishing the repair shops comes from Frederick George Philpott, former manager of a concern controlling $44,500,000 worth of real estate, who figures "this hobby" will help him pass his time and at the same time help innumerable women as well as giving employment to hundreds of others. More than a score of menders are being trained now and within a few months he hopes to have personnel sufficient to staff shops all over the country.

Whifflets From The Waterfront

Herring in seining quantities are reported to have appeared at Laredo Sound during the week-end and seiners are converging on that area. Laredo Inlet is a little far removed from Prince Rupert but, if fish do not soon appear in closer waters, herring will, doubtless, be brought from there to the Tucks Inlet and Port Edward reduction plants.

Union steamer Cassiar, Capt. James Watt, arrived in port at 2 o'clock Sunday afternoon from Vancouver via the Queen Charlotte Islands and will sail at 10 o'clock tonight on her return south over the same route. The Cassiar brought in a capacity list of fifty passengers which crowded all available accommodation. The list included Capt. Pollock and a large party of Irish Fusiliers from Aliford Bay.

Having been delayed by making an extra call at Ocean Falls with school teachers and other passengers returning to the paper town after spending Christmas and New Year vacation in the south, Union steamer Catala, Capt. Ernest Sheppard, arrived in port at 1:30 this morning from the south, sailing a few hours later for Stewart and other northern points whence she will return here tomorrow afternoon southbound.

Northland Transportation Co.'s steamer North Coast, Capt. A. J. Borklund, arrived in port at 4:30 yesterday afternoon from Alaska, having on board fish from Ketchikan for transshipment East over Canadian National Railways. After discharging, the vessel sailed last night in continuation of her voyage to Seattle.

Mrs. Joseph Bell and daughter, Marion, are leaving by this evening's train on their return to their home at Usk after having spent the past week in the city. Mr. Bell left last week for the West Coast of Vancouver Island where he will be engaged in mining.

SONG PAIR ON SCREEN

Jeanette MacDonald and Nelson Eddy Are Here in "New Moon"

Jeanette MacDonald and Nelson Eddy, with their wonderful voices, are together for the sixth time in "New Moon," which is the feature picture on the screen of the Capitol Theatre here for the first half of this week.

Set against the colorful background of New Orleans in 1780, the plot sketches the story of a lady of noble French birth and a man who, masquerading as a bondsman, manages to elude the guillotine was dropping his official title as a duke. His dream of a republican form of government is realized when, cast upon the shores of an island remote from shipping lanes, he sets up a community with the members of the shipwrecked crew and the passengers of a boat, the New Moon, which he and his men had seized on the high seas. The action moves from New Orleans to the island and is replete with many romantic as well as comedy situations.

The musical score has been arranged to fit the voices of Miss MacDonald and Eddy which are advantageously and generously used and a number of well known songs are sung.
