Vichy High Commissioner Tells Vichy To Fight Against Britain

Insurance Companies Place All Salesmen at Disposal of Campaign Committee

TORONTO, Ont., May 19.—The fight of over 40 Canadian life insurance companies will be thrown into the forthcoming Victory Loan campaign. This was announced today by Leighton Foster K.C., of the Life Underwriters Association of Canada, who stated that a selling force of nearly 4,000 full-time life insurance salesmen would be placed at the disposal of the Victory Loan Committee during the time of the Victory Loan drive. Already 600 branch managers located throughout the Dominion have been advised to co-operate with the Committee during the time of the Victory Loan drive. Organization and management of this selling force will be left with the Victory Loan committee.

Pleased with this offer of assistance, a spokesman for the War Loan Committee pointed out that such a group of experienced salesmen do much to promote interest in the campaign.

KIEL HIT AGAIN

LONDON—The Royal Air Force inflicted further damage on shipbuilding yards at the Nazi naval base of Kiel last night and also raided the port of Emden. The address by General Steffens was the highlight of a gathering which featured a memorable observance of Norwegian Independence Day in Prince Rupert. Also participating in the program were the regimental band of the First Battalion Rocky Mountain Rangers, under the direction of Lieut. O. W. Sjoquist, and the Varden Singers, conducted by Peter Lien. Rev. J. H. Myrwang, pastor of St. Paul's Lutheran Church, was master of ceremonies and John Dybahn, Norwegian vice-consul, introduced General Steffens in the course of whose address interesting moving pictures were shown depicting men of the Royal Norwegian Air Force in training at Little Norway, Toronto, and of the Norwegian merchant marine service.

In introducing General Steffens, John Dybahn told of the prominent and trusted place he had held in the life of Norway for many years, particularly in connection with military and international affairs. It was indeed a pleasure and privilege, said Mr. Dybahn, to be identified with the welcome to a visitor of such importance as General Steffens.

General Steffens, speaking from a rostrum in the centre of the stage which had been specially decorated for this occasion with British and Norwegian flags, commenced by reviewing the situation in Norway prior to the night of invasion, April 9, 1940. For over 100 years the country had been at peace, having maintained its neutrality in the First Great War. Having no quarrels with any nation, its people living an idyllic and peaceful life far to the north and in no fear of hostile entanglements. Norway had devoted itself to building up one of the greatest merchant marines in the world. It had built roads, railways, schools, provided social benefits for its people. It had devoted itself to the pursuits of peace and national defence had been a negligible factor in its spending. Only with the invasion of Poland in the fall of 1939 had there been an inkling that even Norway might be in danger. Appropriations were made for defence but even then it was too late. It was difficult, if not impossible, to get materials so great was the rush of nations to purchase. Nevertheless, the army and navy were put on war establishment. Dark clouds continued to gather and in April came the incidents of the City of Flint and the Athmark. Norway, quite apparently, was no longer far away from war. The mining of Norwegian waters by the British was another development. Germany had come to "protect" Norway (Continued on Page Five) very moment Nazi transports were on their way to Norway with large numbers of troops and war materials. Then came the assault on the night of April 9 of all the important cities of Norway, an assault which had, apparently, been planned for years with consummate German precision. All-German people in Norway participated, having been organized in advance.

Here General Steffens made the declaration that there were not very many quislings in Norway. Preparations for the invasion of Norway had been made not by Germans but by Norwegians but by Germans.

General Steffens went on to describe the brave resistance of the Norwegians against overwhelming odds. Even with the old and obscure methods of defense, the hurriedly organized army had taken great toll of the Nazi forces and not all had been as smooth sailing as the enemy had apparently contemplated.

Germany had evidently planned to capture the King, the Crown Prince, the government and the country with a minimum of effort. Blaming Great Britain and France for extending the war to Norway, the Germans claimed they had come to "protect" Norway (Continued on Page Five)

Little More Light . . .

According to special correspondents in Portugal, to American Newspapers, the Vichy government is being blamed for the sudden appearance of Panzer divisions of German forces in North Africa just at a critical time in the war in Greece. These correspondents say that German ships sailed from French ports and German planes flew from a French airport and, in order to escape the British fleet along the African coast, the troops continually violated French territory. Using Marseilles and Toulon as well as Italian ports no fewer than 150 ships with men and supplies left for North Africa and 1600 tanks were also used. The French officials either co-operated or were blind and the troops were landed in Algeria and Tunisia or, as seems to have been done in most cases, they entered French territorial waters, crossed along the coast and landed the Panzer forces in Tripoli. No fewer than 30,000 officers and men flew from the Marseilles airport, it is alleged, the people there being told they were French troops on their way to Morocco. A thousand German tanks were taken across the Mediterranean, some of them huge machines of the latest types.

All this time the best men and most up to date fighting mechanism was being taken from the British held section to help defend Greece and when the Germans advanced westward there was nothing to do but to retreat.

Supply Of War Planes . . .

According to word received from Washington, there are in order for supply to Canada and the Royal Air Force 16,000 planes and 3,800 bombers while about an equal number are being built for the American army and navy. Some of these will be used for training purposes. The rest are fighting ships. Long range bombers are said to be most needed and steps are being taken to meet this need. By September it is expected the output will reach as high as five hundred a month. These figures have nothing to do with the output from Canada and other parts of the Empire including Great Britain.

An American Opinion . . .

A writer at Washington in a recent article sees the key to the fatal battle of the Mediterranean which is about to burst in full fury is not the Suez Canal, but Britain's great naval base at Alexandria, 125 miles west of the canal entrance. It is the capture of Alexandria that the Nazis are after, for this would deprive the British of their key "bridgehead" in northern Africa and ensure Axis domination of the western Mediterranean. So in coming days, watch the war messages from Alexandria. Already, the Suez Canal base has been of little value to the British for months. It was out of use as the so-called "life-line of the Empire" when the Axis air attack that severely damaged the aircraft carrier Illustrious proved it was unable to attempt to carry shipping through the long and narrow Mediterranean Sea.

Since then the Mediterranean has been a "no man's land" for all the belligerents. While 2000 miles in length, its narrow width at certain places has made it extremely hazardous for both sides and the British have been routing their shipping around the Cape of Good Hope for some time.

LEN HARVEY ORGANIZE NOW AIRMAN BASEBALL

Bomber Crews In Flying Kit For Germany Line Crowds At Bouts

SOMEWHERE IN ENGLAND
May 19. (CP) — Boxing, always popular in the Royal Air Force, is being stimulated still more by visits Pilot Officer Len Harvey, British and Empire heavyweight champion, is paying to Air Force stations. Harvey is a physical fitness officer in the R. A. F. Volunteer Reserve.

One of his most successful exhibitions was given in a hangar at a bomber command station. Harvey was the feature attraction of a long boxing program in which airmen from many other stations took part.

Spectators included the air officer commanding the group, many members of the W. A. A. F., bombardier crews and ground staff. Altogether more than 1200 spectators crowded the hangar for the show.

The hangar was cleared of aircraft and a ring set up in the middle, brightly lighted by lamps swung from the high roof. Bomber crews in flying kit stood at the edge of the crowd, waiting for orders to send them over Germany.

The army co-operated by providing a demonstration of "doos" and
"boots" of boxing, an amusing and instructive item in which illegal fighting was exaggerated to point out the moral and explain the duties of a referee.

Officers and airmen came from other stations by bus and car and one station sent its orchestra.

CANADA CALLS

Canada has reason to count her blessings in these days of trial.
Canada is three thousand miles away from the sound of guns which are devastating Europe.

The broad Atlantic Ocean rolls between us and the ruthless savagery of the German armies.

The strongest fleets in the world—British, American and Canadian—patrol the sea between us and the enemy.

We have a great friendly nation, probably the richest and most powerful in the world, at our side.

CANADA CAN AFFORD HER SACRIFICES

This war is a mechanized war.

We have the nickel... copper... lead... zinc and other metals the war industries need. We have access to the iron. We can make the steel.

We have the organized industries to fabricate these metals and make the trucks, and tanks, and guns, and planes, and the ships.

We have skilled workers and the plants for mass production.

Canada has the wheat and the food supplies.

Let us count our blessings, and tighten our belts.

Canada is rich—one of the richest countries per head of population in the world. Let us lend our strength to the utmost of our power. Our national future depends upon Victory.

We must win to live.

THERE WILL BE FURTHER CALLS

There have been many calls upon the people of this country for money since Canada entered the war at the side of Great Britain.

There will be further calls.

Let us face the future unafraid.

Canada can carry the load.

But every Canadian must shoulder his and her share.

This is the most critical hour in our history. Let the future historians say of Canada, as they will say of our Mother Country: "This was their finest hour."

Preparing For Eternal Life

This is Principal Business of Religion, Says Presbyterian Pastor

Honesty, industry, enthusiasm and promptitude, essential factors in good and successful business, had their counterparts in character, service and decision in religion which was the business of preparation in this life for eternal life, said Rev. Dr. Alexander Esler in preaching at morning service in First Presbyterian Church yesterday morning. Dr. Esler emphasized the importance of prompt decision. "Do It Now, Free Thyself. Behold Now is the Accepted Time" was the pastor's subject.

Theatre Prices Are Up Tonight

New Admission Charges, Due to Federal Tax, Become Effective Now

Due to the new twenty per cent federal tax on theatre tickets, rates go up at the Capitol Theatre here tonight. Henceforth the new admission price for adults will be 48¢ at night. Other prices go up accordingly. Cashier box staffs are not looking forward to the necessity of making change in coppers. The theatre, as it has done in the past, continues to absorb the provincial tax.

General Steffens Church Speaker

Another of the many appointments which have been making the program in Prince Rupert of General William Steffens, commander-in-chief of the Norwegian forces in Canada, a very full one included the giving of a brief address following morning service in St. Paul's Lutheran Church of conditions in the homeland of Norway. General Steffens paid touching tribute to the memory of Norwegians who had already given their lives in defence of the country. He spoke of some conditions in Norway since the invasion.

Rev. J. H. Myrwang, the pastor, was in charge of the service and gave a sermon appropriate to the occasion. The Varden Singers sang selections and Mrs. Myrwang gave a solo.

'CHUTE JUMP IS COMMON

Thousands of Pilots of Royal Air Force Leap and Fight Again

OTTAWA, May 19.—Thousands of pilots of the Royal Air Force and the Royal Canadian Air Force have jumped from shattered aircraft by parachute and have lived to fly and fight again.

The long drop from the sky under a billowing canopy of silk has become a commonplace to aerial fighters. Perhaps the most vivid description of a wartime parachute jump is that written by Flying Officer Ralph Hope of the Royal Air Force. Flying Officer Hope, a nephew of the late Prime Minister Neville Chamberlain, was subsequently killed in action.

His story, as related in a British Air Ministry news bulletin, follows:

"Saturday was not such a successful day from my point of view," he wrote.

"As on our third patrol I lost my aircraft."

"We were at about 21,000 feet when we got involved with a squadron of Me. 109's. They got me even before I saw them which was very annoying.

I first felt a curious sort of bump and as I turned to see what was up my controls felt funny a lot of red sparks and black smoke appeared around my feet, and a cloud of white smoke—probably glycol began streaming back from the engine. The aircraft began going downhill fast. I slid back the hood and began to get out; my goggles were whipped off and my helmet began to lift up in the slipstream.

"I realized I had not undone my straps so I pulled out the retaining pin and stood up, standing on anything which came handy (the seat, the instrument panel, or the stick. I don't really know.) The air seized hold of me and there was a wrench as my oxygen tube snapped off (I had forgotten to undo it), and I shot out into the sky.

"The aeroplane disappeared. It was nice and cool falling. I was head down of course, but found the position quite comfortable. There was no sense of speed, or any feeling of falling. I had a look at the clouds below me (they were at least about 4,000-5,000 feet) and then collected the odd bits of my helmet and had a look around. My parachute was still on my seat, both my boots were on, and I didn't seem to have lost anything except my goggles and a handkerchief and man. They must have fallen out of the pockets in my knees when I first went upside down.

Pulls Cord

"After a while I thought about pulling the rip-cord. I seemed to have fallen a good way, so I pulled. The canopy streamed out, there was a hard jerk, and there I was right side up, quite comfortable, and floating slowly—oh, so slowly—earthwards. I was at about nine to 10,000 feet then, so I had fallen for about eight to 3,000 feet (from about 18,000 feet) and might have fallen further with advantage.

"When I looked up I could see the shining white canopy above me, and little silver specks having no end of a dog-fight in the clear blue above me. A Spitfire dives down past me with a high-pitched whine, but that was the only disturbance. The parachute began to swing me about and it was not long before I felt sick—very sick, in fact, by the time I landed.

"It was fun going into the clouds as the sun played a sort of 'Séguin of the Brocken' effect on my shadow as I approached them. When I emerged, the countryside looked pleasantly open, and after drifting quite a way I thought I saw where I should land. Two farm hands had the same idea. We were all wrong as, in spite of attempts on my part to avoid it, I came down in a spinney of young oak trees, pulling up short about 20 feet from the ground, hanging in my harness.

"I managed to get hold of a trunk, pull myself over to it, get out of the parachute harness, and climb to the ground where I remained quite still until I was found. The Army soon took charge of me, gave me a drink and some lunch and drove me back to my base.

"The only damage I sustained was a hefty bruise on my right shoulder from hitting the tail as I jumped, and a bruise on my leg and a torn trouser from the somewhat uncanny descent through the upper branches of the oak tree."

The writer was killed on his first

German deceit and trickery. The general told of his own defence of Bergen and the retreat therefrom. The people were anxious to fight and, in spite of huge difficulties, had given all the resistance possible. It was a black day when Great Britain decided to take its forces out of Norway. The Norwegians had done their best but it was an impossible battle. Even then there were hopes of resistance.

Without going into detail, the general idea is to throw in all vegetables available—they even suggest some not available—and then serve under a crust or pastry.

in the north but the air bombing, particularly, made all this impossible. General Steffens told how he himself was driven from home and headquarters, having to take shelter under rocks in the mountains. He told how he had printed his own money and then was supplied with more legal tender than he knew what to do with.

Losses Inflicted

General Steffens described in detail the losses that had been inflicted upon the German navy, army and air force by the Norwegian resistance. Between 70,000 and 80,000 naval tonnage, four to five hundred airplanes had been lost by the Germans.

The utter hopelessness of being subjected to aerial bombing with

Rev. J. H. Myrvang, at the conclusion of General Steffens' address, expressed appreciation for the first hand information which had been brought. He paid personal tribute to General Steffens. All those whom he had met had fallen in love with his personality. All would wish him Godspeed and success with the hope that, when next he visited Prince Rupert, the forces of the British Empire and her allies would have put Hitler and his hordes where they belong.

Musical Program

The Rocky Mountain Rangers Band played two fine descriptive numbers—a hunting tune "Lightning Switch" (Alford) and "The Smithy" (Alford)—with splendid effect. This fine band also played a half an hour of incidental music before the opening of the regular program.

The Varden Singers appeared in national costume and were also highly pleasing. They sang "In Spring When the Fjords are like Violet Blue" (Paulsen) and "The Pilot" (Wendelborg), both being in Norwegian.

The proceedings commenced with the singing of "O Canada," closing with "The Norwegian National Anthem."

Man in the Moon

In the bird kingdom the young ladies dress very neatly and avoid anything in the form of decoration and in this way they attract the gaudy males that prefer neatness, cleanliness and naturalness to paint and powder and extreme colors.

But they tell me I'm old fashioned and do not know the male and female mind.

Jones is still wondering why his wife gave him that black eye. It appears that the good lady said: "I've used up my fat ration so I can't make any more cakes." "That's right," said Jones. "After all you can't make bricks without straw."

Going into an ironmonger's shop in occupied France, a Frenchman asked for a really strong padlock. "What do you want it for?" asked the shopkeeper.

"Well," said the bloke, "when I go to bed at night I padlock my gasmask firmly over my face."

"But why?" asked the shopkeeper.

"Hush," whispered the bloke, looking around to see that no Nazis were listening. "You see, I've got three gold teeth!"

The R.A.F. flew over while Hitler was in conference with Goering.

"It's all right," said Goering. "You never hear the one that hits you."

"Really?" said the Fuehrer, and looked hamper. But when the planes passed and the noise stopped, Adolf went white and rushed for the door, gasping: "Let's get out of here . . . I can't hear a thing!"

"I am glad to see your husband at church so often, Mrs. Mooney."

"Yes, he says your sermons is doing 'im good."

"That's good to know that my words are bringing peace to a troubled soul."

"Bless 'ee, sir. It ain't 'is soul, it's 'is insomnia."

A young man asked an old actor to have a drink. As soon as it was served it was gone.

"I say," said the host, "that was quick work. Have another?"

"I will, laddie," said the actor.

The drink came, and went in the same rapid fashion. The young man was fascinated.

"You'll pardon me," he said, "but would you mind telling me why you consume each drink so rapidly?"

"Laddie," said the actor, "I had one knocked over in '96."

ADDRESS TO COUNTRYMEN

General William Steffens Speaks To Norwegians on Anniversary of Independence Day

Between four and five hundred of his own countrymen in Prince Rupert gathered Saturday night at the Moose Hall to hear General William Steffens commander-in-chief of the Norwegian forces in Canada, give an address at a memorable celebration of the anniversary of Norwegian Independence Day. General Steffens spoke intimately and earnestly, inspiring his listeners in the sentiments and spirit of the Motherland which still clung to its traditions and ideals despite the oppressive yoke of aggression which now bound it.

Rev. J. H. Myrwang, pastor of St. Paul's Lutheran Church, presided and General Steffens was introduced by John Dybhavn, the Norwegian vice-consul here.

"Well," said the bloke, "when I go to bed at night I padlock my gasmask firmly over my face."

"But why?" asked the shopkeeper.

"Hush," whispered the bloke, looking around to see that no Nazis were listening. "You see, I've got three gold teeth!"

The evening's proceedings were entirely in the Norwegian language.

"ESCAPE" IS AT CAPITOL

Norma Shearer And Robert Taylor Head Cast In Picturization Of Best Seller

A group of eleven outstanding character actors, headed by Norma Shearer and Robert Taylor, brings to the screen at the Capitol Theatre for the first half of this week the picturization of the best-seller novel "Escape."

Miss Shearer is seen as the countess who finds herself involved in the desperate attempt of an American artist to rescue his mother, a former actress, from death in a concentration camp.

Taylor enlists the artist with Nazimova, star of the silent films, returning to the screen for the first time in fifteen years as the mother.

The baleful Conrad Veidt appears as a general and the menace of the mother's safety.

Others appearing in important roles are Felix Bressart, Albert Basserman, Philip Dorn, Bonita Granville, Edgar Barrier and Blanche Yurka. Each of these became involved in the action of a thrilling story.

PAPERS ARE KEEPING ON

Newspaper Industry Foresaw Problems of Blitz and Insured Continuity

LONDON, May 19: (CP)—Britain's newspaper industry, anticipating heavy German air attacks, foresaw all practical problems which would hinder production and planned effective steps to obviate them, said J. H. Brebner, director of the news division of the Ministry of Information at an Authors Club luncheon.

He paid tribute to reporters and photographers who risked their lives so people should "know the truth with which to combat hearay."

But for the newspapers fifth columnists would quickly become active causing despondency and confusion, he declared.

During last November's Coventry raid the newspaper offices were wrecked but publication was arranged at Birmingham. Plymouth papers had been printed at Exeter, Southampton newspapers at Bournemouth and so on.

Foresight of the industry had insured continuity of newspapers—despite failure of gas and electricity during the fire of London national newspapers appeared as usual the next morning.

Brebner said the press was one of the largest of British manufacturers.

Elected to the board, which later appointed J. J. Fitzgibbons of Toronto to succeed Mr. Nathanson, were: Wendell Farris, Vancouver; R. W. Bolstad, Noel G. Barrow, Toronto; Angus McCann, N. S. Robertson, Lawrence G. Gerrings, all of Toronto, and Barney Balaban, Stanley Griffis and Austin C. Keough of New York.

"I walk out of there gladly and happily," Mr. Nathanson said after the meeting, "because I am doing what I think as a Canadian I should do."

Canadians should control the exhibition and distribution of such an important element of propaganda as moving picture film in wartime. American shareholders as demonstrated at these several meetings disagree; very well, I quit."

Mr. Nathanson will retain the presidency of Regal films.
