Gerry McGeer— CONCLUDES PATTULLO CAMPAIGN

Never Has a Premier Done More for His Province—Deserving of Prince Rupert's Proud Support Today.

Instead of disagreeing in Ottawa at the time of the conference on the Rowell-Sirois report, Premier T. D. Pattullo of British Columbia and Prime Minister William Lyon Mackenzie King had been in complete agreement, G. G. McGeer, K.C., M.P., of Vancouver, told an election eve audience in Prince Rupert when speaking at the Capitol Theatre last night in support of Premier Pattullo in the latter's home city.

"As a British Columbian I say that never in the history of the province did a premier do more for British Columbia than Pattullo did when he took his stand on the Rowell-Sirois report," declared Mr. McGeer.

Instead of belittling British Columbia's most distinguished citizen, Prince Rupert people should be proud that they had sent him to head the government of the province, particularly at this time when he too was doing such a valuable work in contribution to the war effort.

Mr. McGeer warned against the dangers of disunity and discord at this time when all freedom-loving people should be united in fighting against forces which threatened not only their liberty but their very existence. Experience and tested ability were essential for the safety and security of all.

Mr. McGeer asked the electors to consider who they had to replace Pattullo. Were they going to have chaos and confusion or a continuation of stable government? How was unity in Canada going to be improved at this critical time by sending either Maitland or Winch to take the place of Pattullo?

This war, declared McGeer, would make this Pacific coast a great maritime power and in its development the Pattullo government was playing an important part which it would be well not to disturb.

British Columbia had too much worthwhile to risk it being wrecked by an act of disunity. There was some mild and rather innocuous heckling which drew from McGeer in conclusion the remark: "Prince Rupert audiences are the kindest I have ever had to talk to and your hecklers are the softest I have ever met."

Rupert Men Rate High Mr. McGeer said that he knew something of public life in British Columbia and felt that Prince Rupert was to be thanked for the type of men it had sent to provincial and national councils. No more capable man had been sent to any parliament than Premier Pattullo.

As he saw it, Mr. McGeer said, democracy was a course midway between dictatorship and chaotic mob rule. The Liberal party did not believe in extremes. It believed in the democratic way.

Where were the dreams of peace and security that had been promised for the nations of Europe twenty-five years ago? On the one hand, there was the rule of ruthless force by the dictators. On the other, was the cha-

HITLER IS DENOUNCED

Attack On Kearney But Another Indication Of Plan To Control Seas And Continents, Says Hull

WASHINGTON, D.C., Oct. 21: (CP)—Secretary of State Cordell Hull yesterday characterized the torpedoing of the United States destroyer Kearney as another in a series of incidents illustrating Chancellor Adolf Hitler's known and confessed efforts to seize control of the seas as well as the continents.

Hull's outspoken denunciation followed the Navy announcement that ten of the destroyer's crew had been injured and eleven were missing after the attack by a German u-boat.

WEEK-END BOMBING

Royal Air Force Activities Include Germany, France And Norway

— GERMANY HIT AGAIN LONDON, Oct. 21: —Bremen, Wilhelmshafen and Emden were bombed heavily last night by Royal Air Force crews re-opening their offensive against Germany after three nights of idleness because of bad weather. Nine British bombers are missing from the attacking force which was described as strong. Today big formations of Royal Air Force bombers roared eastward across the English Channel at noon in an offensive foray apparently aimed at targets in Northern France.

LONDON, October 21: (CP)— The Royal Air Force made a successful sweep across occupied France yesterday during which it derailed an ammunition train, the Air Ministry announced. The British planes went across again at noon today, swarming off towards Boulogne and towards Northern France. The attack came after bad weather over the continent had kept British bombers grounded for the third successive night.

Royal Air Force bombers dropped explosives and incendiaries on targets at Duisberg and other objectives in the rich Ruhr industrial district in daylight during the week-end, the Air Ministry announced. Also attacked were invasion coast docks at Dunkerque, Calais and Ostend. Coastal aircraft attacked enemy shipping off the Norwegian coast during daylight.

In Rome Italian officials acknowledged the bombing of Naples at the week-end by British planes but claimed that fires which were started were quickly extinguished. Cairo reports had stated that the Royal Air Force bombed a torpedo factory, an arsenal, motor plant and aircraft factory in Naples.

The port of Great Yarmouth was attacked Saturday night by German bombing planes. Last night the Luftwaffe came over Liverpool and started fires, also staging nuisance raids in other parts of the country.

DAILY EDITION TUESDAY, OCT. 21, 1941

This Is Navy Week . . .

Canada is celebrating "Navy Week." Throughout the Dominion, from the Pacific to the Atlantic, through industrial centres and prairie provinces, the Navy League of Canada is calling the nation to pay tribute to the men of the sea who, in their ships of war, are winning the war of the free peoples.

Nowhere in Canada is there better right to mark "Navy Week" than in the loyal, Pacific-coast province of British Columbia—particularly Prince Rupert, an important strategical naval centre. From her cities and towns, villages and farms from the sea-coast and from inland, Canada's men have answered the call to man Canada's fighting ships in their war at sea. They have answered it so splendidly that today, from a province with less than ten percent of the Dominion's entire population, have come almost one quarter of the officers and one-eighth of the seamen serving with the Royal Canadian Navy.

It was only natural that the Pacific coast province should bear its full share in the rapid growth of the navy, for from the very inception of the Royal Canadian Navy, Esquimalt, on Vancouver Island, has been one of its two main naval bases. From here, at the outbreak of war, two destroyers steamed into the Pacific, warheads on their torpedoes and live shells in their ready-ammunition racks, on the first leg of a two-ocean cruise which was to help make history.

From here, too, a little later in the war, two more destroyers, shrouded in the secrecy which cloaks ship-movements in wartime, slipped quietly away from their base for service in the Atlantic which was to add further glory to Canada's naval participation in this war.

The departures of the destroyers were but interludes in the west coast's participation in the war. Strange ships steamed into her harbors, to steam out again upon their appointed missions and to return after successes at sea, gained during long patrols and days and nights of ceaseless vigil; of questing into far waters and interception of enemy ships.

There are tales that can be told of boarding parties, armed with modern revolvers where their fore-fathers had borne cutlasses, swarming into enemy ships. Their weapons may have been modernized, but they boasted the same spirit as that of their predecessors of yesterday who had made the fame of British seamen resound through the Seven Seas.

German prisoners were landed, but the silent service said nothing of how they had been captured and what had become of their ships. The navy at war was interested only in the job it had to do: to talk about that job was not in its tradition.

But, in British Columbia, which has its own seafaring tradition, the work and worth of the fighting ships of the navy was recognized with pride, for in their operations men of British Columbia were playing their full part.

Even as they had played their full part in building up Canada's navy, in two years of war, from less than 2000 officers and men to 25,000 officers and men—of whom British Columbians formed a quarter of the officers and an eighth of the men!

Which is one of the reasons why Navy Week, sponsored by the Navy League of Canada, means much to the Pacific coast province.

CONCLUDES CAMPAIGN

tle between world slavery and world freedom.

Mr. McGeer warned against the dangers of inflation. It was easy to criticize governments for what they had not done. He himself in younger days had had ideas about monetary and financial questions. But experience had taught him it was easier to talk than to accomplish. The war, however, was showing that things which it had been taught could not be done were being done, things that gave hope of eventual peace and comfort in a freedom based on goodwill. Barriers were being broken down as witnessed by the all-out aid professed by Great Britain to Russia when the latter country had been invaded by the aggressor.

Hitler would force his doctrine of national socialism on all peoples, setting up the master race and the master class. Under his order power, backed by military force, would remove all freedom and security. If this war was to be won, it was essential that there should be unity among all liberty-loving people of the world. Now was no time for disunity, discord, disagreement and disparagement. Not that way would come victory. "Surely we are intelligent enough as a people to unite in one great force."

C.C.F. and Defence

In regard to defence and the lateness of the start which had been made, Mr. McGeer recalled that C.C.F. members had been the most denunciatory of defence measures. Premier King had committed his government to support of Great Britain when this war began. The C.C.F. would have denied co-operation in the war to Great Britain.

Premier Pattullo, at the outset, had pledged British Columbia's support to the Dominion war effort and that co-operation had been freely and fully given. The income tax had been relinquished for the war period but he it to Mr. Pattullo's credit that he had insisted that the right of the income tax, the province's greatest source of income, should not be permanently given over to the Dominion. He had also been courageous enough to refuse to accept the Siros report which would have involved the sacrificing of the province's financial power and brought British Columbia, with its standards higher by thirty percent than the east, under the control of the east. The same Siros report had provided for the re-writing of the constitution of Canada, a mighty task requiring intellect, energy and capacity which could not well be spared from the job of winning the war.

Mr. McGeer also credited Premier Pattullo with laying the foundations of a defense highway system through British Columbia between United States and Alaska in which Prince Rupert would play an important part.

Yes, Prince Rupert people would be well justified in again expressing their preferences for a distinguished citizen, one who had taken over the helm of government during the storms of 1933, bringing the ship through the period of depression and who was tried and tested to navigate the province through the storms which faced it today. Mr. McGeer warned against carelessly voting without regard to the dangers which might result from division and inexperience. If never before, experience and courage were needed today for the safety and security of all. A little good work here, a little good work there, humble and unimportant as it might seem, would all combine to defeat Hitlerism and bring the world back towards peace and security.

Liberal War Effort

Pattullo asked the voters at this election to support him in co-operating in a program of Liberalism which was carrying on a war effort in Canada which even Prime Minister Winston Churchill himself admitted was essential to a victory for British arms. Even here in Prince Rupert, with its ship-building, was to be seen one of the phases of that war effort.

Mr. McGeer warned against internal disruption and discord such as the Nazis counted upon to soften the resistance of their enemies and make them easy victims for conquest when the time came. Indeed, this was no time to breed controversy and dispute. To the contrary, all should unite and move together in these dangerous days. "Let us follow the example of unity as exemplified by Winston Churchill who went so far as to pledge immediate aid to Russia."

In this war there were many jobs to be done even in the capitals of the provinces. People did not allow themselves to be diverted at this time by irritating differences. Too much worthwhile had been won to risk it being lost by disputes and experimentation at a crucial time such as this.

Mr. McGeer expressed confidence that he would be able to again congratulate Mr. Pattullo on the support accorded by his home riding—a support which he believed Prince Rupert people were intelligent enough to give without any persuasion from him.

Deserving of Support

P. H. Linzey, speaking briefly, declared that any government which had come through the period of economic depression as the Pattullo government had done deserved whole-hearted support. Supporting Pattullo was supporting a system of evolution and progress. Supporting the C.C.F. was supporting ephemeral dreams based on revolutionary ideas.

"Socialists are dreamers," remarked Mr. Linzey.

"How about the nightmare of the last ten years," inquired a voice in the audience.

George B. Casey, who presided, spoke of Mr. Pattullo's fidelity to Prince Rupert over a period of many years. He had been a leading factor for thirty years and more in the life and growth of the city. There had not been a movement or an enterprise here which he had not consistently given his support.

R. E. C. IN SESSION

Season Opened at Enthusiastic Meeting Last Night.

Last evening marked the enthusiastic opening of the season's activities of the Religious Education Council of Prince Rupert. After the regular evening services representatives from the Presbyterian, United, Anglican and Baptist Churches met at First Baptist Church with the chairman, Miss Kay Watson, conducting the meeting. Miss Joy Green acted as secretary pro-tem.

Reports of the summer camps at the Queen Charlotte Islands formed the chief business discussed. Capt. E. E. Brandt reported for the boys' camp and Miss Kay Watson for the girls'. Frank Skinner presented the financial report and Ken Harding the camp committee's report. These reports all expressed appreciation to those who in any way helped make the camps the success they were. Larger and better organized camps are planned for next summer.

The chairman's report submitted by Miss Kay Watson illustrated the successful work carried on by this organization during the past year. It was decided to send a letter of greeting to Capt. R. C. H. Durnford who is somewhere in England and who was an active member of the council while in Rupert.

Officers for the following year were elected as follows: President—Kay Watson. Vice-President—Ken Harding. Secretary—Eileen Hamblen. Treasurer—Frank Skinner. Head of Children's Work Board—Pat McClymont. Head of Young People's Board—Florence Wilson. Head of Superintendent's Board—P. H. Linzey. Refreshments were served at the close of the meeting.

MARY ORME IS MARRIED

Becomes Bride of Toronto Doctor in Victoria.

VICTORIA, Oct. 21.—In a seasonal setting of bronze chrysanthemums, arranged on the altar and along the chancel rails, the marriage of Mary Helen, only daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Cyril H. Orme, 687 Mount Joy Avenue, to Dr. Clare Horwood, son of the late Mr. C. G. Horwood and Mrs. E. L. Bruce of Kingston, Ont., took place at 12 noon last Thursday at St. Mary's Church, Oak Bay.

Ven. A. E. de L. Nunns, archdeacon of Columbia, performed the ceremony, and F. T. C. Wickett was at the organ, playing the traditional wedding music.

A lovely gown of ivory satin, with shirred bodice in the new torso style, finished with deep "V" neckline, calla lily sleeves, and full gathered skirt with train, was worn by the bride as she walked to the altar with her father, who gave her in marriage. Her long, filmy veil of tulle hung from a coronet of orange blossoms which had been worn by her mother on her wedding day, and she carried a sheaf of white chrysanthemums. Her bridal retinue included Miss Patsy Watson, maid of honor, charmingly gowned in pale primrose yellow taffeta fashioned with long-waisted effect, full gathered skirt, sweetheart neckline and puff sleeves, and the Misses Joyce Scurrell and Barbara Hutchings, as bridesmaids, similarly gowned in pale lily-leaf green taffeta. In place of the conventional hats they wore short veils of tulle to match their gowns, caught to the hair with posies of fresh bronze chrysanthemums, and carried sheaves of similar flowers.

Temple Keeling of Vancouver, was groomsmen, and Sub-Lieut. M. Pretty of Victoria, Dr. T. B. Orme, Port Townsend, Wash., and Eric Orme, the two latter brothers of the bride, ushered the guests to pews designated with posies of autumn flowers.

After the service a reception was held at the home of the bride's parents, where the rooms were massed with autumn flowers. Mrs. Orme received the many guests in a floor-length afternoon dress of mineral blue crepe with black accessories, her flowers being red roses.

For the wedding trip to Banff the bride donned a brown tweed suit, with dark brown accessories, a fox fur scarf and a corsage bouquet of mauve orchids. From Banff Dr. and Mrs. Horwood will proceed to Toronto to make their home.

Whifflets From The Waterfront

With a large list of passengers on board, consisting largely of Alaskans and Yukoners going south for the winter, C.P.R. steamer Princess Louise, Capt. S. K. Gray, arrived in port at 3:15 this afternoon from Skagway and other northern points and sailed at 5 p.m. for Vancouver. The passenger list of the Princess Louise totalled 253 of whom twenty-three disembarked at Prince Rupert while three went aboard at this port. The through list consisted largely of White Pass and Yukon route employees including river boat crews, among them Captains D. M. McKay, J. Gardner, M. Marion, M. Campbell, C. M. Coughlan and Ewan Morrison and Chief Engineers John Scotland and F. L. Young.

The season for the shooting of geese and ducks opened in this district at the end of the week. Despite stormy weather, a few parties went forth to try their luck. Bags, evidently, were not very substantial. B. J. Bacon, president of the Prince Rupert Rod & Gun Club, and his friend, A. K. Nelson, were out. They made no boasts but explained that the local birds had not yet arrived from the interior because the weather was mild there. The flight southward of the northern birds continues but they do not seem to tarry in the vicinity of Prince Rupert.

Word is being awaited from the Queen Charlotte Islands as to the progress which has been made in connection with the raising of the local halibut boat Unome, Capt. Bert Sheppard, which sank recently while engaged in fishing for dogfish in Massett Inlet, about ten miles above Massett. A week ago last Sunday Capt. William Bussey left for Massett Inlet with a view to assisting Capt. Sheppard.

Union steamer Catala, Capt. Ernest Sheppard, is due in port at 4:30 this afternoon from Stewart and other northern points and will sail soon thereafter in continuation of her voyage to Vancouver and waypoints.

LAUGH HIT IS COMING

Merle Oberon and Melvyn Douglas In "That Uncertain Feeling" At Capitol Theatre

Merle Oberon and Melvyn Douglas are co-starred in a rollicking comedy romance with an odd theme which is being shown on Wednesday and Thursday of this week at the Capitol Theatre in "That Uncertain Feeling." The mood of the picture, sophisticated in type, is sprightly and gay. A human, if somewhat daffy comedy, it is full of unexpected twists. Miss Oberon and Douglas are a blissfully happy couple whose marital sate runs into complications of misunderstandings and compromise until it finally culminates in a happy reconciliation after many vicissitudes.

Supporting Miss Oberon and Douglas are Burgess Meredith, as a wild-haired pianist; Alan Mowbray, as a scheming psychoanalyst; Eve Arden, as an unconventional private secretary, and Sig Rumann, as a prosperous Hungarian mattress merchant.

Miss Oberon is seen in an elaborate wardrobe with numerous smart costumes.

Most of the action of the story unwinds on New York's Park Avenue.
