This Figure Reached In Prince Rupert As Third Day Of Campaign Ends

Prince Rupert's Victory Loan 1941 subscriptions reached the $105,000 mark with the ending of the third day of the campaign last night. This is getting well along to the one-third mark in the $350,000 objective for the city. Canvassers are getting along with their job although there are many who have not been seen as yet. Some bond purchases are being made at the dug-out on Third Avenue where members of the Women's Service Club are in attendance during the day. Others are buying their bonds from the banks.

Much of the money so far raised came from the business section of the city and there is still a quarter

It has been pointed out that the appeal is particularly directed to those who have money in the savings banks. They would benefit from the change over to Victory Bonds.

Must Have Results - - -

The people of England are evidently getting restive. They do not like their armies having to retreat. They are demanding more action and yet more. For months there, has been some criticism of the conduct of the war and newspapers have been outspoken. The dynamic personalities of Churchill and Eden have kept them from being even more outspoken.

Five or six weeks ago one paper published an article by Major General J. F. C. Fuller in which he was critical of the Greek campaign. He makes it clear that his criticism was intended to be constructive and that there was no desire to cause disunity. He quoted Mr. Menzies:

"But the greater our difficulties the more imperative it is that we should stand firm, that we should be united, resolute and energetic. It is our job to fight the battle and to win it and we shall do that best by looking forward and; not back." That is his idea to fight to win and not to fight to lose. He asks for greater frankness on the part of the government: "The truth, the whole truth and nothing but the truth is what we want. If good we will embrace it; if evil, we will face it like men."

General Fuller urges that all our strategy be based! on the fact that we are an empire of the sea, whereas Germany is an empire of the land. That means that the most important thing is the winning of the Battle of the Atlantic. The second is the security of Egypt.

An outstanding feature of the article is stress laid upon the value of machines rather than men just now. He argues that an army of four million men is not needed but, instead, there should be an army of 20,000 tanks and at least 20,000 aircraft. Every move should be measured in terms of shipping and the nation as a whole must follow suit.

Concluding the general says: "We are besieged. This is an invested island. Yet better starve than surrender. Therefore, we must be prepared to eat less, wear less, and; enjoy less, all so that we may win more and more."

Sweet Simplicity - - -

Thornton Purkis, a Toronto advertising man who, takes a wide interest in national affairs wrote an article for Toronto Saturday Night in which among other things he says:

"Canadians are being asked to participate in their own defence without risking so much as a pin prick--by buying Victory Bonds.

"We don't know how lucky we are! So far we have suffered very little from this war. If we had to endure, however briefly, some of its danger we might come back filled with enthusiasm for the 'sweet simplicity of the three per cents'.'

"The simple fact is that most of us are better off financially than ever we have been . . . We havn't gone without a cigarette or lipstick as the result of war. We should be grateful that we have a Victory Loan to invest in. We shouldn't need persuasion to invest.

May Be Last War - - -

The same writer believes that if Canadians don't buy! Victory Bonds to the tune of at least a billion dollars, we don't deserve to be in this war. "Think of it!" he says. "It may be the last war that any of us will ever have a chance to do anything about. If the Germans win (which I refuse to consider possible) it will. And when the democracies win, which they will, despite their stupidities, it is to be hoped that the lesson given to the totalitarian states will last for generations.

"The present conflict is not only a war, it's a revolution; and the revolution is taking place concurrently with the war. We either put up the money to keep the war overseas or we face the consequences. As Mr. Churchill said 'without victory there can be no survival'."

He irritated Great Britain during the Boer War by telegraphing "Oom Paul" Krueger his best wishes for defence of the independence of the Transvaal, but, nevertheless, maintained strict neutrality throughout the war.

He cultivated the friendship of the Czar of Russia and the Sultan liance with England and France.

Neverthejubilee, he asserted he had only less, he issued a proclamation urgtwo aims-avoidance of armed conflict and the advancement of his people's welfare. He was greeted by some as the preserver of peace in Europe.

The assassination of the heir to the Austrian throne at Sarajevo in July 1914, seemingly did not impress Wilhelm as serious. He went on a yachting trip to the Baltic convinced there would be no international complications. When he came back Austria and Serbia were at war; Russia was mobilizing. He sent a personal telegraphic appeal to the Czar; exchanged messages with his cousin, King George of England; advised Austria to accept British mediation. Nothing developed. The Kaiser sent a 12-hour ultimatum to St. Petersburg.

Factory Inspector Says Number of Small Mills Help to Increase Employment

There is a great deal more general activity in the interior of Northern British Columbia than there was last year according to W. F. Ironside, assistant inspector of factories for British Columbia, who is in the city today and will probably be leaving for the south activity. QUEEN'S FUND GIFT

The first contribution of the Queen's Canadian Fund for Air Raid Victims to the Lord Mayor's National Air Raid Distress Fund has been flown to England and in this picture is being presented to the Lord Mayor of London, Sir George Wilkinson, at the left. The check—the first it is expected of many to follow—is for £20,000, approximately $88,000. The national collections of the Queen's Fund now amount to well over $260,000. Presenting the check to the Lord Mayor is Ralph Bell, centre, Canadian Director of Aircraft Production, who flew it across the Atlantic.

Routine business was dealt with and returns from the Battle of Jutland tea and also the spring sale were reported satisfactory. Resignation of Mrs. Dan Parent as secretary was accepted, Mrs. F. Barber being appointed in her stead. Mrs. H. Oden, the standard bearer, also retired and Miss Dolly Smith succeeded her. Arrangements for the Citizen's Parade were discussed and settled.

An outstanding feature of the meeting was the announcement of Mrs. William Goodsell, the convenor of the Sewing Club, of two huge cartons of clothing for refugees in bombed areas of Britain having been dispatched to provincial command this week. This represented devoted work by the members and materials and garments supplied by | generous donations from outsiders. One in particular from Mrs. Collier of Billmor was especially acceptable. Miss Edith Gandy again; made a handsome contribution of children's clothes and knitted garments made by herself. Mrs. William Goodsell was succeeded as convenor by Miss Dolly Smith and Mrs. Frank Ellison.
