The objective of British strategy appears to be to divide the Italian East Africa forces by driving a wedge through to the sea.

British forces are continuing the drive into Ethiopia from Kenya and into Eritrea from the Sudan. Italian counter-invasions appear now to have been definitely foiled.

BERLIN, Jan. 21.—Berlin now claims that not one but two British cruisers were sunk as a result of the recent naval engagement in the Straits of Sicily. (Only one cruiser, H.M.S. Southampton, is admitted, so far at least, by the British Admiralty to have been lost.)

Eighteen Men Perish in Harbor Tragedy at Boston

BOSTON, Jan. 21: (CP)-Eighteen men were drowned today almost within sight of their homes when a Boston fishing schooner, the beam trawler Mary E. O'Hara, homeward bound from a week on the fishing grounds with a catch of 50,000 pounds of mixed fish on board, was split open in collision with some unseen object as it approached Boston Harbor and Five half-frozen survivors were dragged from the protruding mainmast of the sunken schooner. Their companions had gradually lost their grip, the remainder of the crew of twenty-three having fallen from the rigging one by one as their hands froze.

At least one vessel passed during the night without observing the plight of the men who were finally picked up by another trawler, the North Star.

It is believed the Mary E. O'Hara struck a barge. The tragedy occurred off Finn's Ledge near Gray's Light.

MARINE TRAGEDY

Killer Whales Washed Up On Shore Near Massett

Word received from Massett is that a curious marine tragedy took place close to the native village last week. Eleven finback whales were washed up on to the sandy beach at a point on Massett Inlet right across from the village. Nothing is known as to what caused the tragedy. It occurred during a storm but the natives thought the whales had been chasing seals and had got so far up the beach that they were unable to return into deep water.

Some of the whales, known generally as killers, were 25 to 30 feet long and four feet through. Two were quite small ones.

Pattullo believes it would be had for the province of British Columbia for it to be party to a pact based on the Sirois report. Evidently the people of the province, most of whom have never read? the report but have been led to their conclusion by articles based on their own political beliefs, have been in favor of the report. That fact did not mean anything to the British Columbia Premier. He felt that it was right to oppose the plan and he did so and, for so doing, he has been branded a "wrecker" not only by extreme conservatives but also by socialists. Many of his own party have been led to the same conclusions. Practically all the newspapers of the country were against his line of action but that meant nothing. He evidently said to himself: "The seople and the newspapers and the financiers be damned. This is the right course and I am going to take it, no

Those who have not read Mr. Pattullo's brief as submitted at Ottawa should do so today. It is published in this paper.

It's interesting to know when reading the Daily News that the people of the whole district are doing the same.
