Rock Landmark Crumbles Away

PORT ARTHUR, Ont., July 31—The Sea Lion is no more. The unusual rock formation located in Silver Inlet on Lake Superior about 50 miles by road from Port Arthur has crumbled in sufficient quantity to destroy the contour which gave it the name of Sea Lion.

Thousands of people have admired and photographed the Sea Lion in its day and picture postcard views of the formation have travelled all over the world.

WINS V.C. AND D.S.O.

LONDON, July 31:—Within three weeks of being awarded the V.C. for removing two unexploded bombs from the submarine H.M.S. Thresher, Lieut. Peter Roberts, Royal Navy, has won the D.S.O. for "gallant and distinguished service" during patrols.

The Prince Rupert Trades and Labor Council has passed the following resolution in regard to the local municipal situation and is seeking endorsement of other bodies:

Whereas the City of Prince Rupert is to shortly return to a mayor and council form of government, and,

Whereas certain public bodies are requesting the provincial government at the next meeting of the legislature to grant a special charter to the City of Prince Rupert whereby a city manager may be appointed through and by an honorary mayor and council, and,

Whereas the provincial government has made provision in the Municipal Act for the appointment of a city manager where necessary, and,

Whereas city managership, commissioner, or any one man form of government be it for city, province or dominion savors too much of a dictator, which form of rule we are making great sacrifices to overcome.

Therefore be it resolved that we the Prince Rupert Trades and Labor Council representing a large body of workers and property owners in the City of Prince Rupert to, therefore, request the Provincial Government of British Columbia to grant local autonomy and the right to elect a mayor and council to the citizens of Prince Rupert and so show faith in the much needed and published form of democratic government.

Copies of the resolution have been sent to the Premier of British Columbia, Attorney General and leader of the C.C.F.

ROLLING OF TANKS

Ordnance Workshop Plays Important Part in Servicing Equipment of Armored Division

By Frank Flakerty (Canadian Press Staff Writer)
AN EASTERN CANADA ARMY CAMP, July 31—Back of every armored division stands the ordnance workshop where the tanks and other equipment are kept in repair.

It is a huge building the form of an "H." One side is the tank workshop and the other the place where other vehicles, trucks, motor-cycles, carriers and armored cars as well as smaller pieces of equipment get their servicing. The cross bar contains offices and stores of tools and parts.

The big "Ram" tanks used by the division in training get a complete overhaul after every 100 hours of operation and in order to keep them rolling the job is done as quickly as possible.

Four men give the tanks their periodic checkover and it is a 24-hour stretch of steady work for them. Two are regular ordnance workshop men and the other two are members of the crew which operates the tank. They work on the overhaul so that they will know what the tank needs and be able to compare notes on its performance before and after overhaul and thus see what defects have been corrected and what have not.

PASSING OF GEO. TITE

Sudden Death Yesterday Afternoon of Well Known Local Business Man

George D. Tite, one of Prince Rupert's best known pioneer business men, having been in the furniture line since the very early days, passed away suddenly at his home on Second Avenue early yesterday afternoon. He collapsed and soon succumbed to a heart attack. News of his passing came as a great shock to his numerous friends.

Born seventy years ago, Mr. Tite spent his early life in Victoria and it was from that city that he came here in 1910 and established in the furniture business. For years he took a prominent part in public affairs as well as in the Masonic Lodge. He was for a long time one of the local leaders of the Conservative party.

Mr. Tite is survived by his widow as well as two sons, George and Ted, and two daughters, Mrs. Fred (Lorna) Clendenning of Vancouver and Miss Eleanor Tite at home.

ROLLING OF TANKS

Ordnance Workshop Plays Important Part in Servicing Equipment of Armored Division

By Frank Flakerty (Canadian Press Staff Writer)
AN EASTERN CANADA ARMY CAMP, July 31—Back of every armored division stands the ordnance workshop where the tanks and other equipment are kept in repair. In the case of the 4th armored division the workshop has the proportions of a large factory, complete with a wide range of tools, spare parts and skilled operators.

It is a huge building the form of an "H." One side is the tank workshop and the other the place where other vehicles, trucks, motor-cycles, carriers and armored cars as well as smaller pieces of equipment get their servicing. The cross bar contains offices and stores of tools and parts.

The big "Ram" tanks used by the division in training get a complete overhaul after every 100 hours of operation and in order to keep them rolling the job is done as quickly as possible.

Four men give the tanks their periodic checkover and it is a 24-hour stretch of steady work for them. Two are regular ordnance workshop men and the other two are members of the crew which operates the tank. They work on the overhaul so that they will know what the tank needs and be able to compare notes on its performance before and after overhaul and thus see what defects have been corrected and what have not.

The job starts at seven o'clock in the morning and it is usually well on in the next morning before it is finished. After it is done the weary, greasy working soldiers get a day off.

Jobs Become Drills

Removing the engine from a tank is a big job in itself. It is lifted out with a block and tackle and bolted into a movable stand in which it can be turned upside down or to any desired angle for working.

The repair jobs in this workshop are reduced to a drill. A definite time is laid down for each operation and a definite order of procedure is prescribed. By this means it is possible to get the quickest possible movement of equipment through the shop and at the same time have a check on all operations.

Opposite each tank undergoing overhaul is a blackboard on which the operators chalk the time log of their work, the time each operation is completed. Their objective is to keep each single operation within the prescribed time so that they will finish the whole in the time laid down without being unduly rushed on any particular operation.

Lieut. Edmond Cox of Windsor, Ont., is in charge of the tank wing of the shop. Before joining the army he worked on the manufacture of Bren gun carriers with the Ford Motor Company.

In charge of the administrative work of the shop, keeping records of the tanks coming in and going out and of the repairs and parts they require, is Lt. E. K. MacEachern of Ottawa, a graduate of Queen's University in engineering with several years' experience in mechanical engineering behind him.

The men in the shop who do special repair jobs work in pairs. This gives two men a complete experience on every job. The ideal situation in a tank workshop is to have every man able to do any job on a tank but as a start that is not possible.

Cripps Makes Statement—American General Arrives—Speculation Aroused

LONDON, July 31 (CP)—Speculation that an allied invasion of the continent is in the offing was stirred anew today with the debarkation of a new contingent of Canadian troops. Cripps' statement in the House that the government had certain "intentions" coupled with the arrival of the thousands of Canadian fighting men again brought second front discussion to the fore.

Burma's Oil Not For Japs

LONDON, July 31—The British did no mean job of destroying anything of value in Burma before they relinquished the country to superior Japanese forces. Sir Reginald Dorman-Smith, who was governor of Burma told here of the "absolute devastation" wrought in Burma and said the job of destroying the oilfields and plant was in charge of W. L. Forster. He described Forster as the "greatest saboteur in history."

"Whatever little mistakes he made when he destroyed oil fields in the Dutch East Indies he corrected in Burma and I am told some of the Burma oilfields may never come back into production," said Sir Reginald.

Inventors Are Still Very Busy

LONDON, July 31—After three years of war the public still is sending details of "war-winning" inventions to the Ministry of Supply at the rate of nearly 300 a week. And the inventions, instead of being frivolous as in the early days of the war are of a more serious character now. A staff of 800 is kept busy sifting the suggestions.

Improve Defence Of South Africa

Millions Spent For Construction: Building Program Still Incomplete

CAPE TOWN, July 31—Since the outbreak of the war, the Union of South Africa has spent £20,000,000 ($89,400,000) on defence buildings. Public Works Minister C. F. Clarkson has announced. As yet the program is by no means complete, and construction has been limited to the most essential buildings.

A number of evacuees are expected to arrive shortly in South Africa from Egypt. Natal Administrator H. G. Watson has asked all holiday makers in Maritzburg, Durban and the coastal districts to return home as soon as possible to make room for them. The residents have been asked to accommodate the 4,000 refugees for two weeks until the government finds quarters for them inland.

A government decree has been issued to the effect that Italian war prisoners in South Africa may now be employed by private individuals.

PROJECT IS CONSIDERED

Recreational Centre Plan of War-time Housing Not Very Warmly Received by Local Association

The Prince Rupert Civic Centre Association had a special general meeting last night to consider a proposal whereby it would put in a stake of $25,000 in connection with the construction of a $75,000 recreational building in the vicinity of Hays Creek in collaboration with Wartime Housing Limited and the Canadian National Railways, each of the latter also putting up $25,000.

The plan did not meet with the approval of the meeting which was presided over by Dr. R. G. Large, president of the Association, but two alternative suggestions were made.

One of the resolutions of the meeting, moved by W. F. Stone and Dr. J. J. Gibson, was that the site was not acceptable.

Another resolution, moved by S. E. Parker and seconded by W. J. Scott, was that members of the Civic Centre Association should have access to any such joint project from the outset and that after the war full control of the building should be placed in the hands of the Civic Centre Association with the Canadian National Railways Development Co. have representation on the executive equal to that of the Prince Rupert Gyro Club, Prince Rupert Rotary Club, Junior Chamber of Commerce and Sons of Norway—namely with two members.

SINGS TO RESCUERS

SOUTHAMPTON, Eng., July 31:—Thirteen-year old Pamela Bunn takes rank as one of the heroines of a June air raid on Southampton and a neighboring town. With her parents and other relatives she was trapped in a concrete shelter which collapsed when hit by a heavy bomb. Her mother was killed. Her father was injured. But she chatted bravely with rescue workers and when one of them told her it would help them with their work if she sang, the little girl responded with "The White Cliffs of Dover," and "The Band Played On." Not long afterwards the workers got her out after removing a piece of concrete which had pinned her foot to the shelter floor.

SPORT CHAT

There's no shortage of athletes among the Canadian volunteer firemen serving in Britain. Best known is husky Tony McCarthy who helped Ottawa Roughriders to several football championships with his all-star play at outside wing. Section Leader Roy Chilton of Toronto, almost as burly as McCarthy, isn't as well known nationally as the Ottawa athlete but made a name for himself in firemen's track meets as a sprinter. Head of the overseas firemen, Column Officer W. E. Graham of Ottawa, will be remembered by old timers. He played professional lacrosse in Ottawa for 12 years but won't say when because "that would be giving an idea of how old I am." Anyway Tommy Gorman was a team-mate and Newsy Lalonde an opponent.

The Royal Air Force has cleared up an outstanding matter that worried plenty of people, including cricket umpires. To shorten a lengthy yarn, the Bedser boys, Surrey's cricketing twins, now can be distinguished by their rank. Eric, the batter, has been promoted to flight sergeant while Alex, the bowler, remains a sergeant. Alike as two peas in a pod, the Beters often upset cricket officials who never could tell them apart. They are compared with the Rippon twins of the Somerset Cricket Club. The Somerset scorer had Dudley Rippon wear a brilliantly colored belt to distinguish him from brother Sidney.

War workers in a large west-of-England plant really put punch into their production. At noon hour the employees spar with boxing gloves and plant officials say this keeps them in trim to maintain their high production level. The exercise has produced so many would-be champions that a tournament was held at the biggest hall in town with competitors and audience made up of employees. Each fighter, victor or vanquished, receives a cup as a souvenir.

Flt. Lt. Christopher Stainbank Staniland, 36, who devoted his life to the quest of speed records on land and in the air, was killed in a flying accident while acting as chief pilot to the Fairey Aviation Company in Britain. He was a famed Brooklands racing motorist before the war, later turning to the air as a test pilot. Capt. Len Brown, outstanding cricketer and soccer player, has been wounded seriously in action. A South African, he toured Australia with the South African cricket team in 1931-32, then went to England where he played in the Lancashire league. During the winter season he played soccer for Huddersfield.

A coroner's jury investigating the death July 13 of Burton C. Miller of Peterboro, found that he died from natural causes after a three weeks illness. The inquest was ordered by the Attorney-General because Miller was the driver of a car involved in collision with a car driven by Police Chief Draper of Toronto. The latter, found guilty of dangerous driving, was fined $300.

Mrs. Rena Thompson has recently been appointed superintendent of the United Counties Home.

Local golfers are making preparations to welcome pros expected to compete for the Miller Trophy.

Q. C. ISLANDS

It has been reported that the pinks are showing up in Massett Inlet, Langara and at Sandspit Point. Art Robertson, well known pioneer of Massett, is a visitor here.

Max Sutton, pioneer sawmill operator of Vancouver, is visiting Skidegate on business.

Canada's War Chiefs

MAJ.-GEN. C. B. PRICE

Commander 3rd Canadian Division

(By Ross Munro, Canadian Press War Correspondent)

A leading Montreal businessman in peace time, Maj.-Gen. C. B. Price has had equal success in his military career. He is now in command of a Canadian infantry division—the only divisional commander overseas who was not a permanent force soldier when the war began.

His division has had less overseas experience than the other infantry formations yet it is making an enviable reputation for itself in England.

General Price is a man of great charm and humanity. There is no kindness he will forego in handling his men, yet he can also be stern and powerful in command.

He deals with army problems with cordial good nature; a man who has been a success in most tasks he has undertaken, he has confidence in his decisions.

In the last war he served in the rank and won the D.C.M. He was commissioned in the field, awarded the D.S.O. and wound up as major, second in command of his battalion. He knows, then, the problems of the ordinary soldier.

After the war he was president of a dairy in Montreal. He is heavily built and looks like a businessman in uniform — which he is. He is soft-spoken and a gentleman through and through. General Price is one of the most approachable senior officers overseas. He is 53 and a native of Montreal.

At the start of the war he was appointed brigadier commanding the 3rd infantry brigade. He brought it overseas with the 1st division and returned to Canada to take command of his present division and bring it to England.

In an order of the day when his division landed in England, General Price showed he could turn a neat phrase. The order urged hard training and good discipline so his troops would be "a curse to the enemy, a blessing to our friends, and a credit to Canada."

Sqdn.-Ldr. Lyall B. B. Price of the R.C.A.F. overseas is a son of General Price.

DAILY EDITION FRIDAY, JULY 31, 1942

Give the Government a Chance . . .

Canada has undergone a long and weary argument over conscription. Whether this argument should ever have been allowed to occur is doubtful. Whether it should have been prolonged, to the nauseous degree it was, is even more questionable. But the law is now passed. The government has power to apply complete conscription whenever there is need for same. There is no further point in prolonging public debate on the matter.

During the next two months Canada will call up the largest number of men ever enlisted under any plan in a similar length of time. If the need for sending any or all of these men overseas becomes apparent in the meantime, there is no doubt that the government will act, or be forced to act.

The News-Herald has strongly criticized the present King government for what it regards as its dilatory and negative attitude towards certain important national issues. Overseas conscription is the most important of these issues. But the News-Herald believes that the King government is entitled to the benefit of the doubt as to its immediate future course of action.

Mr. King has said his new policy is "Conscription if necessary."

The present war outlook indicates that if conscription is ever to be necessary, the need will become as clear as crystal in the next two or three months. Meanwhile all available men are being put in uniform.

The government itself has therefore given a clear lead to the country:

If it acts within a reasonable number of weeks, there is no justification for acute public dissatisfaction.

If on the other hand, the government failed to act, there would be real and acute need for mass demonstrations and the use of every other avenue of protest open to a people saddled with a government false to its national obligations.

Canadians Try Out New Techniques Involving Aircraft Co-operation

By Frank Flaherty (Canadian Press Staff Writer) AN EASTERN CANADA ARMY CAMP, July 31.—New techniques in artillery shooting are being tried out by the gunners of a Canadian armored division.

While they cannot be described in detail for military reasons the first tests in actual operations with the guns have been considered so encouraging that further work is to be carried on.

One of the new techniques is an application of principles applied for some years by the Dominion Geological Survey. It is designed to make possible reasonably accurate firing in unmapped country and involves co-operation of aircraft.

BAR-LE-DUC
(Red Currant Jam)
8 cups prepared red currants (2 lbs.)
3 cups sugar
2 cups corn syrup
½ cup water.
Carefully wash and stem currants, rejecting any spoiled portions. Measure sugar, Crown Brand corn syrup and water, place in large saucepan, bring to a boil and boil five minutes. Measure or weigh prepared currants and add to syrup on stove. Bring again to a boil and boil for five to ten minutes or until currants are tender, stirring frequently. Then skim the currants out and put them in hot sterilized jars (about two-thirds full). Continue boiling syrup on stove about ten minutes longer or until thick and jelly-like, then pour over currants in jars. Seal, cool, label, and store in a dry, dark, cool place.

Yield: approximately 2½ pints.

Of Map-Making There's No End With a War On

Expert Must Be Prophet and Military Strategist and Still Do Some Guessing

Written for the Canadian Press
By FRANK RASKY

TORONTO, July 31: — Although he has no dictatorial ambitions, William C. Parlane, partner and chief cartographer of a map-making company here, can blot out any foreign power with one sweep of his brush. He controls the designing of his firm's war maps, a business now booming as never before.

He has revamped the map of Europe more than 10 times, from Hitler's annexation of Austria to the tracing of Russia's mercurial borders.

Working with colors and air-brush, the cartographer must combine the knowledge of prophet and military strategist. He is kept on the pump by the warring armies' movements. He must guess their intentions ahead of time. "My trade requires an inch of courage and a mountain of guesswork," says Mr. Parlane, a soft-spoken gentleman of 40 who bears a marked resemblance to Hollywood's Melvyn Douglas.

When drawing a map in advance of shifting borders by first shading in the area of battle with a heavy patchwork and then adding detailed cities and towns. "Since I paint on acetate paper, which is like cellophane," he says, "I can alter the boundary before the presses roll by merely extending or erasing the patchlines."

Some Preferences
Most people order outline maps which give a general impression of the conflict and can be read in 15 minutes, says Mr. Parlane. "They want a bird's eye view—not a geography lecture." Arm-chair generals prefer detail maps printed on a washable surface so battle fronts can be revised with the stroke of a colored pencil. Some would-be-strategists follow the war fronts with a zigzag of thumb tacks.

Men and Women
Behind the Raid

LONDON, July 31: — This gives an idea of what extensive preparations there are behind a 1,000 bomber raid. It takes 56 men (and women) to fly and look after one Stirling bomber and only eight of that total constitute the air crew. The others are a meteorological officer, parachute packer, flying control officer, maintenance men and the bombing-up team of 11 men.

I hold the key TO THE WORLD'S FINEST GINS

My London dry
Gin Formula is 200 YEARS OLD

WHEN I was a youth, in London, England, I was already familiar with the famous old formula that was used for distilling "London Dry" gins that had become famous the world over.

Later, I obtained exclusive use of this centuries-old recipe, which I brought to Vancouver in 1923. This document is now locked up in a vault here and I have the key. By including in this formula the pure, non-alkaline water from Vancouver's mountain watersheds, I have even been able to improve upon the high quality of the gins I was producing in London years ago.
