When all is said and done perhaps there is no cause for happiness comparable with the sense of duty well performed. Happiness and content are fairly synonymous and sustained happiness must have content as its bed-rock basis. There cannot be true content where there is disregard of duty. Conscience is the watch-dog of duty. If we are recreant to duty our conscience will not let us; be content and happy. Duty challenges us at all timesin time of peace and in time of war. In time of peace we? have our duty to our family, to our neighbors and to our community. In time of war our duty to our country is paramount over all. This duty presses heavily and more heavily upon us as the peril of our country becomes graver and graver. Unhappiest of all are those who know that they are not pulling their weight in this struggle for survival. Their own conscience reminds them daily, hourly, as to what they should be doing and they will not have real peace or content until they have undertaken the particular duty they know to be theirs. Someone else cannot perform our duty in this present grim war for survival. We must do it ourselves.

Philadelphia Athletics in Yesterday's Big League Play

NEW YORK, July 18: (P)- No changes of consequence occurred in the Major League baseball standings as a result of yesterday's play. In the American League the New York Yankees had an easy eight to one win over the Cleve-Indians while the second place Boston Red Sox kept pace seven-an-a-half games behind by winning a close two-to-one'r over the Chicago White Sox. A doubleheader victory over the Philadel-
