CITY OF COBALT WIPED OFF MAP BY FIRE

Devastating Conflagration Starting in Lyric Theatre Last Night Baffles Combined Efforts of Three Brigades

(Special to Daily News.)
Montreal, June 6.—A despatch received by the Canadian Pacific Telegraph Company early this (Thursday) morning contains the report that the town of Cobalt, Northern Ontario, has been virtually wiped out by fire.

Toronto, June 6.—In spite of the efforts of the combined fire fighting arrays of Cobalt, Haileybury and New Liskeard, exerted without remission during the whole of last night and continuing still though with failing energy today, the town of Cobalt is ablaze. Throughout the main thoroughfares a devastating conflagration is passing, and trained firemen and volunteers are alike battling vainly to stay its raging progress. Cobalt is threatened with red ruin.

Theatre Started Fire.
Late last night a telegram was flashed to the newspapers that the Lyric Theatre at Cobalt was in flames, fire having broken out there during the show. The press flash said that the fire was not yet under control, but at the time of wiring no reinforcement of the brigade had been called for. A few minutes later a flash came through to the effect that the business section of the city, including the telegraph office, was threatened and that help was being wired for to the neighboring towns. Efforts were made by the newspapers to get in touch with Cobalt by wire almost immediately afterward, but by that time direct telegraphic communication had been cut off, presumably by the destruction of the Cobalt telegraph office.

Fire Still Raging.
Strenuous efforts to get in touch with the scene by the Toronto Mail resulted in a further flash from the nearest working telegraph instrument to the effect that at 2 a. m. the fire was still raging and that the aid of the fire brigades of Haileybury and New Liskeard had failed to make any difference to the baffled Cobalt force. The flash declared the damage appalling. The last message received reached Montreal to the effect that the town of Cobalt was practically wiped out early today.

THE ROYAL PATIENT

(Special to Daily News.)

Montreal, June 5.—6:30 p. m. Bulletin.—The Duchess of Connaught passed a comfortable day. Her Royal Highness suffers less and the symptoms which gave so much anxiety have improved materially during the last twelve hours.

RECORD PRICE IS REALIZED FOR REALTY

"Post Office Corner" on Third Avenue Changes Hands Today for $920 Per Front Foot---$46,000 Deal

Lots 23 and 24, block 20, section 1, have today changed hands, having been sold by J. N. McWilliams, their purchaser two years ago, to a Calgary syndicate for the consideration of $46,000.

This property has a fifty foot frontage on Third avenue, which brings the value of the property in terms of foot frontage to the interesting figure of $920 per front foot, very nearly the $1,000 mark. This is the record price yet realized in Prince Rupert for unimproved property. The sale was negotiated by Messrs. H. G. Helgeson, Ltd., real estate brokers, of this city, a firm whose name has been to the front in many of the biggest real estate transactions effected in Prince Rupert since incorporation.

Splendidly Situated.
This transaction is another showing the effect on uptown real estate of the removal of the post office premises from their old location on the G. T. P. reserve. The commanding corner faces the government block across Third street and is a superb site for business premises with the trend of traffic all converging toward the mail. There is no doubt that the property will speedily progress out of the unimproved class into that of improved in most modern manner, for the price at which it has been sold does not warrant a long period of non-remunerative tenure of it.

Good Investment.
It is interesting to note that when the property last changed hands, two years ago, Mr. McWilliams, its purchaser then and seller today, bought it for $13,500, so that the present transaction brings him a neat little profit on his investment. That the same property will within a short time probably reap for its present purchasers as good or better profit even at its present much enhanced price, is only to be naturally expected with the present average and uninflated conditions of the realty market in Rupert, and considering the approach of the city's great day when the G. T. P. gets through.

DES JARDINE ENDS CAREER

Veteran Statesman Passed Away After Long and Distinguished Career in Canadian Public Affairs.

Montreal, June 5.—Hon. Alphonse Desjardine, aged 71, died yesterday afternoon at his home, Terre-Bonne, from acute congestion of the brain. Senator Desjardine had a long and useful public career. He was a Conservative sitting for Hochelaga for fourteen years, until 1892, when he was appointed to the Senate. He was mayor of Montreal in 1893, and Minister of Militia in 1894, in the Bowell government. He was also Minister of Public Works in the Tupper Administration in the same year.

Big Halibut Hooked.

The Haysport and Princess Victoria, fishing schooners, discharged large catches of halibut yesterday at the Standard Fish Company's wharf. The fish was iced and shipped to Vancouver last night on the Chelohsin. The captain of the Haysport reports that there is a large number of ground sharks running in the fishing grounds off the coast of Graham Island. It is quite unusual to find sharks in that locality. The captain also says that one of the dories hooked a mammoth halibut, raised it to the boat, but were unable to handle it. It is stated that the big fish must have weighed upward of six hundred pounds.

Caledonian Football Club.

There will be a game tonight between the Callies "A" team, captained by S. Currie, and the "B" team, captained by J. Currie. The captains will select their players at the club rooms. All members wishing to play please meet there at 7:30 sharp. Kick-off at 8 o'clock.

PRINCE RUPERT TWENTY MINUTES AGO

Constable Adams believes that bull was on its way to present itself to Aid. B.-W. for the park commission zoo. Prominent visitor remarks that if the "Empire" had tried to shut up its tame knocker instead of to shut down the dry dock it would have been better employed. Enthusiastic realty man paces the fifty feet from Third street to the post office for the pleasure of feeling nearly $1,000 worth under each sole. Merely Mabel mildly suggests that the young ladies who advised Constable Adams regarding that quadruped this morning wouldn't do for dairy maids.

GREAT CHURCH SEASON

(Special to Daily News.)

LIKE LITTLE SEALS

Chicagoans to Bathe in Fur Lined Suits This Season.

Chicago, June 6.—Fur lined and fur trimmed bathing suits are to be the style for Chicago beachers this year. Furs of the new style water garments, of course, are taken from water animals. Seal skin, muskrat, otter, mink and beaver will be used principally. Unusually cold weather is said to have influenced the new ideas in bathing suits. It is also asserted that the water here is always a little too cold for perfect comfort.

Fur trimming is said by the dress makers to have an effect in maintaining an even temperature that is surprising to one who has never worn such a garment in the water.

SLASHED GIRL'S ARM

Maniac Scratched His Initial in Tender Flesh.

South Vancouver, June 6.—Determined to arrest the scabbard-brained monster who scratched the initial "R" on a young school girl's arm, the police rounded up a dozen or more men suspected of the crime and held them for identification by the little victim. The girl and several of her friends visited the police station and she pointed out one of the suspected characters as her assailant. The police are holding him.

BRITISH BUSINESS MEN BELIEVE IN B.C.

Prince Rupert's Prospects Particularly Please Princes of Pecuniary World---Impressions of T. R. Clougher

An interesting visitor to Prince Rupert at present is Mr. T. R. Clougher, head of the Clougher Syndicate in London, England. Mr. Clougher with his wife is travelling through the Dominion on one of his periodical extensive trips to keep himself well posted concerning the development of the country. His firm does more for Canada in keeping business relations brightly awake between the old land and the new than can be estimated for its business is to facilitate the relations between advertisers and the publishing houses of the whole Dominion.

Expert on Canada.

Formerly a resident in Toronto, and a newspaper man himself and publisher of long experience there, Mr. Clougher now devotes himself exclusively to the business of his firm. There are few men more intimately alive to Canadian affairs from sea to sea. Mr. Clougher makes his business Canadian only, on the principle of concentrating his energies where his knowledge is accurate. In close touch with a million and one sources of information throughout the length and breadth of the Dominion, he is in a position to estimate Prince Rupert's prospects in relation to other important points, and his optimism regarding Rupert is unbounded.

Believes in Rupert.

Mr. Clougher's offices are close to those of the G. T. P. in London, and the nature of his business brings him in constant touch with the authorities of this and of other great corporations in Canada. From no source has he ever heard disparagement of Prince Rupert's prospects, but always the strongest arguments for Prince Rupert's progress. Big capitalists in England believe in Prince Rupert, says Mr. Clougher.

While in Prince Rupert Mr. and Mrs. Clougher are staying as guests of their friends, Mr. and Mrs. R. L. McIntosh, on Fourth avenue. Mr. McIntosh is an old friend of Mr. Clougher's in Toronto. Mr. Clougher remains in Rupert until Friday, when he starts on his return journey to London by easy stages. He paid a visit yesterday to The Daily News office, being particularly interested in the Prince Rupert paper which through the Clougher Syndicate has become the best known Prince Rupert newspaper in Britain.

A BULL IN A CHINA-SHOP? NO, BUT IT MENACED A LAWN

A bovine invasion threatened Dr. Eggert's neatly laid out lawns this morning when a big bull belonging to one of the local dairymen wandered out of bounds and ambled along contentedly browsing on the wayside grass between McBride and Dunsmuir streets. Round the district ran the fiery cross and efforts were made to head the bounding buffalo in the other direction regardless of the fact that the Mayor himself has a nice newly laid out lawn area about his residence at the crest of the hill.

Bull Was Bulnecked.

But Sir Bovine proved bull-necked and refused to alter his direction for anybody. In case he might also prove bullheaded the anxious watchers made discretion the better part of their valor and, like Hannibal of old, contented themselves with harassing the enemy in the rear. No one felt like taking the bull by the horns and so literally proving himself a man of purpose in the face of a problem.

While some wildly considered the nearest fire alarm, someone else wisely rang up the police station. Presently there appeared on the horizon the tall form of Constable Adams, who took in the desperate situation at a glance. He diagnosed the case as one of bull pure and simple and noted that Dr. Eggert's pretty grass lawns were liable to be bulldozed. He sent for a trusty with a long rope and meanwhile declared the bull technically "under arrest." Sir Bull kept on grazing, never twitching a hair.

Ladies Not Alarmed.

Occupying a main thoroughfare like McBride street at a busy morning hour, when young women were passing to work and children going to school, the big animal constituted a real nuisance and had it been at all wild might have terrified tender nerves. As it was, when they saw the stalwart form of the cowboy constable standing sentinel over the beast the passing fair ones were not in the least afraid. Some of them didn't even take in the situation. In good time for the morning's court, the bull was led off unprotestingly to the police paddock. It was Constable Adams who proved hardy enough and skilled enough in the arts of prairie and corral to take the bull by the horns and securely lassoe him.

PROTEST AGAINST FOREIGN SHIPS

Continued Opposition to Allowing Foreign Boats to Use Canal at Panama—Predicts Canadian Pacific Will Have Big Trade.

Washington, June 5.—More protests against allowing foreign railroad owned ships to use the Panama Canal, while American railroad owned ships are prohibited, were registered before the Senate committee on inter-oceanic canals recently.

Representative Humphreys of Washington said the Canadian Pacific Railroad already was preparing to become a big figure in Panam traffic. He pleaded particularly that American coastwise ships be given the preference over foreign ships in this trade. If this were not done, he declared, the lumber business of Seattle would be transferred to Vancouver, B. C.

Maxwell Evans, representing the Southern Pacific Company, argued that instead of prohibiting railroads from owning stock in steamships traffic through the canal should be regulated to prevent abuses by combinations.

DAILY EDITION.

THURSDAY, JUNE 6

THE RIDDLE OF THE AGES.

The seriousness of Britain's industrial unrest is receiving recognition. The time when the riddle which successive empires have failed to solve must be essayed seems near at hand. That working man and poor man should be synonymous, that the yearly output should flow to non-producers instead of to producers, that the bulk of the nation should be disinherited before their birth and that the production of wealth by labor should be a privilege denied to many are social phenomena no longer accepted by the mass as normal. That many should want because there are too many capable hands ready to supply all wants is no longer regarded as an irremediable evil.

Some see the solution of the riddle and are working toward it with all the energy and strength they possess regardless of personal interests. Some see the solution and dread it, working with ingenuity to obscure issues and lead the public away from a perception of the truth. Both these active forces have their partisans who are not gifted with discernment as to principles at issue, but are led to participate by various impulses and prejudices. Outside these forces there is the great mass, poor and wealthy, but stolid in a common indifference. How the active forces affect this mass will decide the course of the nation. When discontent is aggravated by a sense of injustice, well founded or otherwise, it may change at any time to desperation. If the crafty and the foolish combine to seize the opportunity and land the nation in discredited fiscal quackery it will not avert or postpone the necessity of solving or failing before the industrial riddle of ages.—Toronto Globe.

There was an increase in the number of arrivals from the United States from 121,451 for the fiscal year 1910-1911 to 133,470 in the fiscal year 1911-12. Of the total immigration 211,266 were adult males, 82,922 adult females and 60,049 were children, the increase being 26,068, 11,884 and 5,201, respectively.

POPE BUILDS NEW PALACE

To Accommodate the Cardinals When They Elect His Successor—The New Edifice Will be Elaborate.

The new building will have 350 rooms, besides several halls, a kitchen, reception parlors, etc., and will be sufficient for the whole delegation with their attendant doctors and cooks.

The pope's decision to build a new palace is the result of his impression of the bad accommodation of the cardinals when he was elected to the pontifical chair.

Be Suspicious

BE suspicious of that of which nobody is proud. Be suspicious of the mere low-price argument offered in favor of an article with no reputation, no backer, no guarantor.

Better buy the thing you know and can trust, than an article unbranded and unvouched for.

The branded shoe, made by a maker with a reputation, is a safer shoe to buy than the one made in an unknown factory by an unknown maker.

The underwear made by a firm whose name is as familiar to you as your own, is worth more to you than underwear nameless or labelled by a maker of whom you have never heard.

Tea sealed in a packet bearing the name of a reputable firm is to be preferred to tea of which the packer is not sufficiently proud to advertise its quality.

That in which much money has been invested to make or keep it good is worth more than that on which nothing or but little has been spent.

Peace of mind is worth something, just as quality is. Buy peace of mind.

When you buy anything worth while buying, buy that of which you know— from advertisements, or from other dependable acquaintance. Buy the article with the "money back" guarantee—with the pledge of a known name behind it.

Put your faith in the advertisements appearing in good newspapers. Beware of the article that cannot stand the spot-light of publicity. The commodity an advertiser backs with his own money is something worth your buying.

Advice regarding your advertising problems is available through any good advertising agency or the Secretary of the Canadian Press Association, Room 503 Lumsden Building. Enquiry involves no obligation on your part—so write, if interested.

SWIMMING FOR BOYS

Enables Them to Save Life and is Also Good Sport

Swimming is an art in which everyone should be thoroughly proficient.
First and foremost because it enables you to save life in an emergency, and to save yourself as well.

You are, let us say, on the river in a boat with two friends. One of these can swim, and one can't; neither can you. The boat capsizes, and the friend who can swim will do his utmost to save one of you who cannot, but it will be almost impossible for him to save both.

Every day, almost, we hear of rescues from drowning, and we are full of warm praise for the splendid work in which So-and-so has acted. But we could all fit ourselves to be able to do the same, if we learnt to swim well.

Without that, however plucky you may be, you can do no good.

Besides that swimming is a first-rate sport and a particularly healthy one. It is especially useful for developing the chest and lungs, and everybody who has had the advantage of being near the sea or a river in summer-time knows that there is no better fun in the world than a good "dip."

There are several ways of learning to swim. Some unfortunate boys have just been taken up, and thrown into the water, and allowed to struggle as best they may to keep afloat. This is the very worst possible thing to do. The wrong chances are that the boy will learn nothing and will have to be pulled out of the water to save him. More than this, he will most likely be afraid of the water for ever afterwards. Human beings do not take naturally to swimming, like dogs and other animals.

The beginner should be taught carefully and slowly, and, above all, he must learn that once he has confidence in the water he can do well nigh anything. The best way to begin is to learn the simple and most important breast stroke, and this should be practised out of the water first. Get a stool or bench, and ask a friend to place his foot against it to keep it steady. Then he faces downwards upon the support thus given, so that only the stomach rests upon the wood.
It is absolutely necessary to maintain a sure and even balance. If you use a chair, it will be found that the back will get in the way of one of your arms.

With the palms of your hands downwards, your thumbs just touching, and your wrists close in to your chest, strike out your arms until they are straight before you. This may be called movement one. Two: Turn your palms out, and sweep your arms always fully extended, to either side as far as they will go. Three: Bend your arms back to their original position.

Learn to do this first of all by numbers, and when you are quite certain that you have got the movements right, make the three movements work smoothly and naturally.

Always remember that in swimming, as in most other athletic sports, it is very necessary to pay strict attention to details, and to make all these accurate. You will often see a man swimming for a short distance with a careless, slippish stroke, but that is not the man who in emergencies will swim a long way, or even a moderate way without getting exhausted.

Remember, also, that a man swims very like a frog, and a good lesson in swimming may be gained by watching one of these homely reptiles in a small pond. The leg movement is very much like that of the arms, only in this case you can quite easily practise one leg at a time, standing on the other, and leaning against the wall.

Draw up the leg as far as it will go, and then strike out strongly.
Bring your legs together, and repeat the process exactly.

If for this you use a stool or bench, as you did for the arm stroke, you can work both legs together. It is most highly important that your legs should come together again, and touch, after each stroke. This increases your pace in swimming, and makes the body like a torpedo, which cuts easily through the water.

WITHOUT CHAFFERING

"When I goes a-shopping," says an old lady, "I allers asks what I wants, and if they have it, and it is cheap, and it's suitable, and I feel inclined to take it, and it can't be got at any place for less, I most allers take it without chaffering al day as most people do."

DONKEY AND LOVER

He (after popping the question):
"Why do you cry, my angel? Did I offend you by my proposal?"

She (still sobbing): "Oh, no, d. ar.
It is not that; I am crying for joy.
Mother always said to me, 'May,' she said, 'you are such an idiot that you would not get even a donkey for a lover,' and now I have got one after all."

At first the outlay of furnishing a house looks alarming, but a thoughtful man realizes that the money he formerly spent in taking girls to the theatre or concert, sending them flowers or candy, and in indulging his own tastes to an excessive degree, he now puts into something tangible and lasting. Besides, he probably helped to support a boarding-house keeper and her family, and his board money now supports his wife.

Of course, there are extravagant young wives, too, so that it is dangerous to generalize on this subject, and advise anyone what course to pursue. However, we believe that a sensible girl will increase her husband's assets instead of diminishing them. She looks after his clothe and makes them last longer. She creates a cheerful atmosphere at home which makes him find his pleasure there in stead of spending much in amusements elsewhere, and in-countless other ways she increases his worth.

DO ATHLETICS KILL

Important Statistics Have Been Gathered by Dr. Anderson of Yale

A very important question, not only for all college men, but for all parents who have or propose to have son in college, is the one frequently debated whether or not athletics are good for the health in after-life, say, the Montreal Star. It is maintained by many that the strain put upon the body by the strenuous work, indulged in by college athletes, so burns up their vitality or so strains their organ that they do not live as long as those who exercise more moderately. No one enters for this competition the stupid and joyless student who ingines that he can get along without any exercise.

Dr. Anderson, of the Yale Gymnasium, has been collecting statistics as to the subsequent careers of the major athletes of that university from 1855 to 1905. He finds that fifty-eight have died, or 7.2 per cent., which contrasts favorably with the 12.9 per cent. of deaths among all the graduates in that period. This looks like a good score for the athlete; but it ought to be remembered that the athletes are drawn from the hardest and strongest members of their classes, and that their percentage of mortality should be much lower than the average. The effect of their various forms of exercise has been the same.

Dr. Anderson finds, however, that certain diseases play especial havoc among these ex-athletes. Thus, consumption caused twelve of the fifty-eight deaths in question, or slightly above one in five, while in the country at large for the census year 1900, it caused about one in ten. Heart disease was responsible for four of the deaths, or one in 14.7, while in the United States the proportion was one to 14.9. Typhoid caused five, or one in 11.6, as against one in 29 throughout the country. The question put by the New York World from which we quote these figures is—"Does severe athletics training, though it may fortify the constitution against disease in other forms, predispose to consumption and typhoid?" This is a question which can hardly be answered on so narrow a basis of data; but it is a subject worth looking into by all college authorities. Athletics would probably still survive, even if it were found that they killed; but they might not be "gone in for" by every young man who now rushes joyously to the fray. After all, few of us really want to class ourselves with the "good who die young."

TWO FAMOUS GRAYS

The Eel, 2,024, and Earl Junior, 2,02½

Canada is the home of the two greatest gray horses living to-day The Eel 2,024, and Earl Jr. 2,02½, have gained reputations on the turf that stamp them two of the fastest and gamest pacing stallions ever foaled.

Both are United States bred horses, and Earl Jr. has received all his development and raced entirely in that country. He is a product of Illinois, while the Eel, his speedy rival, was bred in Michigan, but has received considerable of his training in Ontario tracks.

Earl Jr. and The Eel resemble each other in a great many ways, although they are not built alike. The Eel, as nearly all horsemen know, is of the erect rangy sort, and very handsome, while Earl Jr. is of the direct open-cote built. He is what we would call a chunky built horse. He is shortly coupled, stands well leaped forward on short front legs; has a straight neck and carries his nose well out and tilted up. As race horses these two famous stallions are much alike.
They both have the best of manners.
Terrorific speed and will race all day.
Both made their debut on the turf in 1908. The Eel is owned by Frank Enrickson, of Tavistock, Ontario, and was driven to his record by Davey McEwen, while Earl Jr. is the property of P. M. Murphy of the End-rby, British Columbia, and was driven to his record by W. R. Cox.

TWO PEOPLE, ONE IN AN

Man Financially Better off With Wife Than Without One

A young husband was interested in the story of a girl who was supposed to require a big income to live upon.
His experience had been that marriage had improved his financial position, and he and his wife very kindly wrote down their ideas on the subject, which are as follows:—

Resolved that a man is financially better off with a wife than without one.

Taking for granted that the man gets a salary of fifteen hundred dollars, we consider it wise for him to marry. Most girls are willing to do a little economizing at first and try and help instead of hinder their husbands in their efforts to save money.

house looks alarming, but a thought-
formerly spent in taking girls to the
own tastes to an excessive degree, he
lasting. Besides, he probably helped
to support a boarding-house keeper
and her family, and his board money
now supports his wife.

Of course, there are extravagant
young wives, too, so that it is dangerous to generalize on this subject,
and advise anyone what course to
pursue. However, we believe that a sensible girl will increase her husband's assets instead of diminishing
them. She looks after his clothe
creates a cheerful atmosphere at
home which makes him find his plea-
sure there in stead of spending much
in amusements elsewhere, and in-
countless other ways she increases
his worth.
