Russo-German Battles Are Fiercer

POSITION IMPROVED

British Make Some Advances In Egypt—Decisive Battle Is Yet To Be Joined

LULL CONTINUES
CAIRO, July 20.—An ominous lull in the Battle of Egypt continued today after a week-end of skirmishing and consolidation of positions in the course of which the British made some advances. Heavy sandstorms curtailed air operations of both sides but British planes were able to make reconnaissance flights Sunday by means of which they ascertained that particularly heavy damage had been carried out Saturday. Three ships were sunk by direct hits at the port which has now been renamed Rommel for the Axis commander in the African campaign. Four thousand enemy soldiers are reported to have been captured during the past week. There have been heavy arrivals of British and American guns to reinforce the Allied equipment in Egypt. General Sir Claude Auchinleck, Allied commander-in-chief, keeps in the thick of the fight, eating and sleeping out of doors and dashing about from point to point in a jeep.

CAIRO, July 20.—Taking advantage of a continued lull in the general situation, the British made advances in all three sectors of the forty mile Egyptian front from the Mediterranean to the interior. Thus they were able to improve their positions generally on the north, in the centre and to the south.

The Axis is still attacking British positions in Egypt heavily but has made no further headway.

The Royal Air Force continues its effective pounding of Axis supply lines and has bombed Matruh, Domba and Tobruk effectively.

London says that the decisive battle of Egypt has yet to be fought and admits that the Nile Delta is still in grave danger.

GIGANTIC BATTLE
MOSCOW, July 20: (CP)—The Red Army fell back toward Rostov today in the gigantic Battle of the Don Steppes as the Germans rushed up superior numbers of men, tanks and other weapons in an impressive bid for that key to the Caucasus. Marshal Semeon Timoshenko was assembling all his available forces in an orderly retreat for a stand somewhere along the forty-mile stretch from abandoned Voroshilovgrad to the battleground south of Millerovo. The Russians today reported new successes around their anchor bastion of Voronezh to the north where hand to hand fighting is going on.

Advancing through the wheat fields of the Ukraine towards the oil fields of the Caucasus, the enemy are now eighty miles from Rostov and a little further than that from Stalingrad. The banks of the lower Don have now been reached by the Nazis. There have been local victories for the Russians in the Kalinin and Leningrad areas.

Looking To Future . . .

We are assured that Canada is not suffering very severely from inflation. Be that as it may, there is as big a boom in Canada today as the country has ever experienced and, as surely as night follows day, there will be some sort of deflation some time.

There is to be heard a good deal of wishful thinking and ill-considered talk about how an economic change will provide for everybody when the boom is gone and the jobs. But what really will happen to the people who are now developing spendthrift habits and extravagant tastes?

Probably the advice is wasted but we would suggest that the best way to secure one's self for the future is to save now when there is a chance to do it.

One may save by investing in war securities or one may save by buying some sort of insurance. There is even still the good old savings bank. The important thing is not how to save but to save.

With Big Missouri gone and Premier going, the old camp of Stewart may get a little cheer out of the new find on the L. L. & H. even though gold may not be as intrinsically valuable these days as it used to be.

Winning Without Sacrifice? . . .

With authorities telling us, and the slightest economic sense confirming it, that we will have to tighten our belts and save our money if we are to win this war and retain the way of living to which we have become accustomed and which every one of us in our hearts cherish above all other ways, it is somewhat incongruous to hear a responsible organization criticizing the new federal budget because the taxation measures contained therein will make it impossible to maintain present living standards.

The example of other nations seems to go unheeded in the scramble for temporal ease and pleasure. It would be interesting, for instance, to know just how many people in Prince Rupert, despite the gravity of the situation which faces the world, are today living any less pleasantly and less easily as far as the material things of the world are concerned than they were a year ago.

Can anyone possibly believe that the present standards can be maintained and at the same time a full war effort be made? Maybe some see a way this can be done but, even if the much revolutionary changes in the economic set-up were made we cannot see how we can beat the forces which we must conquer today without material sacrifice ourselves.

No nation in the world which is really making a war effort—Great Britain, Russia, China, Germany, Italy, Japan, any of them—are finding it possible to "maintain present living standards."

As for the government, whose budget is objected to, it has already warned Canadians that living standards cannot be maintained at the present level. To the contrary, it has given warning that some very real changes and sacrifices must be made.

There has been bad news at the front lately and heavy taxation at home but both must be faced with courage. We are involved in the most costly war in world history and we will win it only at the cost of the most severe sacrifices.

If they are to avoid defeat and slavery, the democracies must resort to some frugalities for the time being at least.

Bitter as the prospect may be, we are powerless to avert the reality. The only sensible way to reconcile ourselves to such an unpleasant situation is just to remember the far worse fate to which we would be subjected should we be defeated.

Like many other people, we are now entering the painful road of compulsory self-denial. If the world had only practiced more the voluntary self-denial, it would have been spared the present lamentable catastrophe. But now increasing hardships may be by no means the worst way of winning the war.

BALL GAMES DRAW MANY

Edmontons and Dry Docks Win Over Yanks and Co-ops

Before a record crowd at the Acropolis Hill the Edmontons defeated the Yanks 11 to 4 in a bang-up ball game yesterday. The Dry Docks had an easy time in the second game, shellacking the Co-ops 8 to 1.

Osborne, on the mound for the Yanks, was up to his neck in trouble from the start of the game. The Edmontons slapped him for eight runs before the Yank manager waved him to the snow-ers. Ellison then took over and, although he allowed three more runs, had the Edmontons fairly well under control.

The Dry Dock had things all its own way in defeating Co-op 8 to 0. The kids tried hard but the breaks were not with them. They loaded the bases in the third inning but just couldn't push across a run. Dry Docks had two big innings, scoring four runs in the third inning and the same number in the fourth.

Gate receipts were the biggest this season.

The teams: Yanks—Lowe, Blanford, Nigro, Joline, Fernandez, Evers, Banky, Cerra, Aubry, Ellison, Osborne.

Edmontons—Dodge, Wyatt, Whittaker, Barker, McLaughlin, Boyer, Nimcan, Spooner, Westland Co-op—Hingston, Grace, Zbura, Pauls, Gillis, Davies, Mentenko, Pavlikis.

Fit Young Women For War Service

LONDON, July 20 (C)—The first 100,000 recruits now, are wearing the navy and white uniform of the National Association of Girls' Training Corps. They are Britain's young women nearing conscription age and their association is the little sister of the uniformed auxiliary services, the W. R. N. S., the A. T. S. and the W. A. F. The movement to form the association got under way only last February and Miss Grace Browning, chairman, and Miss K. Curlett, the organizing secretary, preached the gospel of the movement in tours throughout the country. They stressed the need of giving all girls nearing conscription age some sort of pre-service training. So far as the girls themselves were concerned they apparently needed no urging to join the movement. It was the parents who had to be convinced. The girls clamored for the same opportunities which are provided their brothers in the various cadet movements. The Women's Voluntary Service helped the girls obtain their uniforms—the girls have to get them themselves—and classes now are under way in signalling, first aid, and physical exercises designed to fit the girls for quick acclimatization when they are called up for full-time service.

SPORT CHAT

Joe DiMaggio cracked out three hits—one a ninth-inning home run with the bases loaded—to pace New York Yankees to a 5-1 victory over Bob Feller, Cleveland Indians' pitching prodigy five years ago today. Feller allowed seven hits and struck out seven but failed to stop the Yankees' hard-hitting outfielder. Henry Armstrong, welterweight boxing champion, stopped Lew Jenkins, lightweight titleholder, in the sixth round of a scheduled 12-round non-title bout at New York two years ago last night. Armstrong took a pasting in the first three rounds but weathered the storm to win when Jenkins couldn't come out of his corner for the seventh round.

SHARP BID FOR UNITY IN NATIONS

U. S. Correspondent Condemns Careless Thinking and Selfishness in America

NEW YORK, July 20.—(A) A red-headed young foreign correspondent who saw the fire of Nan bombs forge a new British spirit has taken time to off tell America that we are going to lose the war "unless we clear out of our minds several fundamental illusions which are minimizing our effort."

In an admitted "outburst of temper," James E. Reston says that America has underestimated the price it must pay for freedom. He aims his anger at careless thinking, bureaucratic officialdom, selfish "special groups," irresponsible citizens, newspapers and politicians; people who want to "get back to normal," people who think time and money are on our side; and people who are afraid to win because of post-war problems.

For most of four years in London, "Scouty" Reston was with the Associated Press. He joined the London staff of the New York Times and in 1940 after seeing the worst of the "blitz" was transferred to the Washington staff. In his early newspaper days he was noted as a "news-digger," now the foreign correspondents rate him as one of the most penetrating reporters among them—a research expert who can write fresh, clear copy.

Slaps Britain's Critics
 This 23-year-old American writer says the British have not done too little but have tried to do too much.

He criticizes the illusion that the British are getting every thing from the United States, doing little for themselves and giving nothing in return and the charge that the British are keeping all their men and equipment at home and letting the Dominions do the fighting. He quotes a few facts to back his arguments.

In his first book, "Prelude to Victory," Reston writes a plea unity.

"The prelude to victory lies in some mysterious mighty way."

our ability to remove those differences which divide us from each other and from our allies and to concentrate on those great and fundamental things that unite us. We are united in our desire to win this war in our love of true democracy, and in our desire to bring about a wise and lasting peace. We are divided by our personal selfishness, by our lack of faith, by our politics, by our bureaucratic inefficiency and by our fear of the future. Promote those things that unite us and you help win this great conflict, promote or even condone those things which divide us and you prolong the war and jeopardize our cause."

Fighting Spirit Needed
 Reston cites charter and veto for saying the U. S. government "is the best democratic government in the war," but says the administration is hampered by these factors: (1) by a hangover from peacetime procedure and personnel; (2) by the fear of Congressional inquiry; and (3) by "departmentalism." "It is inefficient that it might be because it is administering the war instead of fighting the war."

Here are Some of His Complaints
 "We have fallen far more nonsense about our unconquerable strength and perpetual peace than any other great nation in the world. We have debunked everything from hard work to Christianity—we have been too slick, selfish and materialistic and we haven't got away with it."

"Our early failures in this war have been due mainly to faulty political thinking. We have not been outthought so much as we have been outthought. Our war effort is still being hampered by political thinking on military strategy, and we are still failing to take fully co-ordinated action with our allies in the major theatres of the war."

"If we are not strong enough to win this war our enemies will certainly write a lasting peace. It may not be a wise peace, and it certainly will not be a fair, but it will last."

"For the Germans and the Japanese and the Italians have this great advantage over us: they want to run the world and we don't."

Revisit Uncertain
 Reston derides the idea that the occupied nations will rise in is the most dangerous kind of wishful thinking to believe that all nations will rush manfully for the kind of democracy they have had in recent years. Norway would—for Norway had political and economic democracy. But France's democracy was irresponsible and selfish; the Burmese led Rangoon at the first bomb; the people of India nursed their grievances against the British even with the Japanese at their borders.

The inspiration for the Second French Revolution, says Reston, must come from the United States. The British have tried too often to solve the European problem and have failed. But the United States must sell itself to Europe. "Either you believe in liberty, justice and right, or you do not. If you do, then appeal to the revolutionary spirit of the world will be heard, but if you do not, all the Atlantic Charters in the world will not inspire the conquered nations to fight for the principles which we proclaim but do not follow."

Time is not on our side because geography is against us. There is only one way we can get time back on our side. And that is by concentrating now on the vital theatres of the war, by backing up the Russians directly with equipment, and by helping the British create a diversion by invasion in the west. "So long as we divert planes and tanks to minor theatres of war time will never be on our side."

Suggests Aiding Spinsters at 55

Will be one of "Post War Tragedies," Says Member of British House

LONDON, July 20.—Sir Percy Harris, Liberal whip in the House of Commons, addressed the National Spinsters' Pension Association, and expressed concern over the future of single women over 50 who now are engaged on war work. He said one of the forthcoming post-war tragedies was who would want these women over 50. He added: "I think you can put a strong case for pensions at 55, at any rate for women who went in for war work at this critical stage of the nation's history."

"SOUP IN SUMMER?"

By all means! . . . just cook it in YOUR ELECTRIC REFRIGERATOR"

says Reddy Kilowatt

"We all need nourishing soup, year 'round," says Reddy Kilowatt. "Make soup 'cooked with cold' a regular feature of your hot-weather menus. Put consommé or some other thin soup in your electric refrigerator next to the freezer—and out comes a shimmering, flavourful jellied soup to give a party touch to your meals." Here's hearty nourishment in light, appetizing form . . . just one of the many dishes—soups, frozen desserts, meat moulds—that you can prepare in your electric refrigerator."
