Third Victory Loan...

The adoption of the commando dagger as the symbol of the Third Victory Loan campaign, organization of which is about to commence, is an interesting innovation. Expressions of pride in the country through ceremonials and public appearances of war heroes rather than by exclusive national economic appeals may do much to provide the right atmosphere for a successful loan.

Meanwhile, it might not be too early to suggest to the public, especially those people who are earning good money today, and the most of people probably are earning more money than they were before the war, incomes taxes and such imposts notwithstanding, that they would do well to plan to put a substantial portion of that money into Victory Bonds, as a sound investment, a good savings plan and, to lesser degree, a duty to their country.

People of Canada are indeed fortunate to still have the privilege of deciding for themselves how they shall spend their own money. In the most of countries today the people do not have any money to spend, much less the right to spend it as they like. And in Canada the length of time that people will still have that right will be determined by the measure of support they give to such things as Victory Bonds and in other ways voluntarily assisting the war effort and its financing.

There is no valid argument against every Canadian buying Victory Bonds to the utmost of his ability. Those who do not realize that now may be convinced of it to their sorrow at a later day.

Victory Bonds do not need to be recommended from a patriotic or a sentimental standpoint. They are a matter of good sound business and realistic thrift.

That does not, of course, mean that the fifth columnists and enemy propagandists will not be around again promoting arguments as to why we should not buy Victory Bonds.

Victory Bonds—the most popular and stylish merchandise this fall.

Canada's Naval Losses...

Canada within the space of one week has received the news of the loss of three of her naval vessels—a destroyer, a corvette and a small patrol ship—by enemy action. We do not need to feel so badly about the actual loss of the ships themselves. It is obvious to everyone that Canada's warship production is far in excess of her ship losses. By and large, we might say that, so far, we have been singularly fortunate in that regard.

Far more serious to us and much more regrettable is the loss of men that has been involved. Canada can replace ships and she can to a lesser degree replace men. That is from a national standpoint. But for those whose loved ones have made the supreme sacrifice there can be no replacement. In time, there may be comfort in the fact that they died nobly and gallantly but that is not replacement.

Each Ottawa, each Fraser, each Margaree, the deeper the rest of us feel we are in this fight.

Chlorination of Water...

Prince Rupert, like Vancouver, is to have chlorination of her water supply. There may be certain unpleasant features about it, to be sure. There might even be grounds for protest, although such protest will be in face of the latest scientific opinion in the field of public health and sanitation.

Water chlorination has been accepted today as a guarantee of purity in water supply, an effective antidote against the effects of contamination. The authorities have decided that it must be carried out at all centres where there are concentrations of armed forces.

We may object to chlorination. We most certainly will not relish the change it will bring about from our "pure" tasteless mountain water of which we have long been so proud. But, like it or not, there is probably little we can accomplish by protesting.

We may not like the doctor's medicine but, as far as chlorination is concerned, we will not have the chance to refuse to take it.

It's interesting to know when reading the Daily News that the people of the whole district are doing the same

FIVE PIN BOWLING

Men's Five Pin League Is Now Led By Sav Mors

Sav Mors trundled their way to the top position in the Five Pin League last night by taking three games from Stones. With Burns and the Dry Dock All Stars neck and neck only one game behind the leaders, there promises to be a real battle next Monday.

Cy Kellett of the high-rolling Sav Mors was the individual star of the evening when he boomed out a great 845. Cy had strings of 228 and 300 to almost single-handedly win for his team.

Game results were as follows: Chinese Youth, 3; Boom Defence, 0. Ordnance Corps, 2; Woods, 1. Burns, 3; Dry Dock Painters, 0. Sav Mor, 3; Stones, 0. Air Force, 3; Signals, 0. Dry Dock All Stars, 2; Monarchs, 1.

Individual scores were as follows:

ROMMEL WON'T GET THIS ONE

Billows of smoke drift skyward from this Italian merchantman, one more supply ship which Rommel won't get in Egypt. Planes of the R.A.F. flying from their base in Malta dropped their eggs of destruction on her decks. The ship was loaded with motor transports that may be seen on her smoking decks. The pilots of the planes left the ship floundering helplessly in the sea and soon she sank into Davey Jones' locker.

SOME SUGGESTIONS

Editor, Daily News:

As one of those antiquated fossils who believe in fairy tales, such as democracy, etc., I am wondering if we are in danger of being taken for a buggy ride—similar to the one Hitler gave Germany, with the matter of organized labor in mind, in particular.

We are wondering just what the difference between this conscription of manpower and personal property might be and if it is constitutional and legal and whether it was done by act of Parliament or by one of those so popular orders-in-council, and why a plebiscite was not necessary or why it was not included in the last plebiscite. Will some one please tell us?

Now that the beer parlors are running on short time and possibly further messing with that subject to come before long, the restaurants are running on such schedules that the public cannot get very much service any more, and with the matter of the messing with all kinds of commodities with the worst yet to come, it seems we should go a step further, and stop at nothing whatever, considering that those now in operation, legally, or wisely, or otherwise have been forced upon us.

We have so much talk about saving things that I would like to know what is the idea of permitting so many useless books, magazines and papers to use up pulp and supplies, employ so many men uselessly, take up so much space and time in the boats, trains and post office. There are tons of it coming into Rupert every day. Then think of the time wasted in reading these things. It is possible that this might cover some of the troubles with the local post office. Another suggestion would be to close the post office entirely or run it on a two-hour basis daily. It would be quite in line with the other things being done and, as we seem to be like F. D. R., trying anything at least once, why skip this experiment?

We hear considerable about this gas rationing. Some have the idea that there is a nigger in the woodpile. We imagine there is the matter of transportation as much as anything, although if we will note what is being transported, that could be dispensed with, we start around in another circle. We are in a daze trying to make sense of most of it.

If the conditions are as serious as we are led to believe, we are at a loss to understand just why something has not been done in regard to that carburetor, which was invented by a man—we think near Winnipeg, several years ago, and which we believe was bought by an oil or gas company, and like many other similar things was taken out of circulation in order that business for themselves might not be ruined and profits lost. It seems that this carburetor could get 120 miles to the gallon on an eight cylinder car. No matter about

Clinic Draws Many Infants

One Hundred and Fifty Babies And Pre-school Children So Far Presented

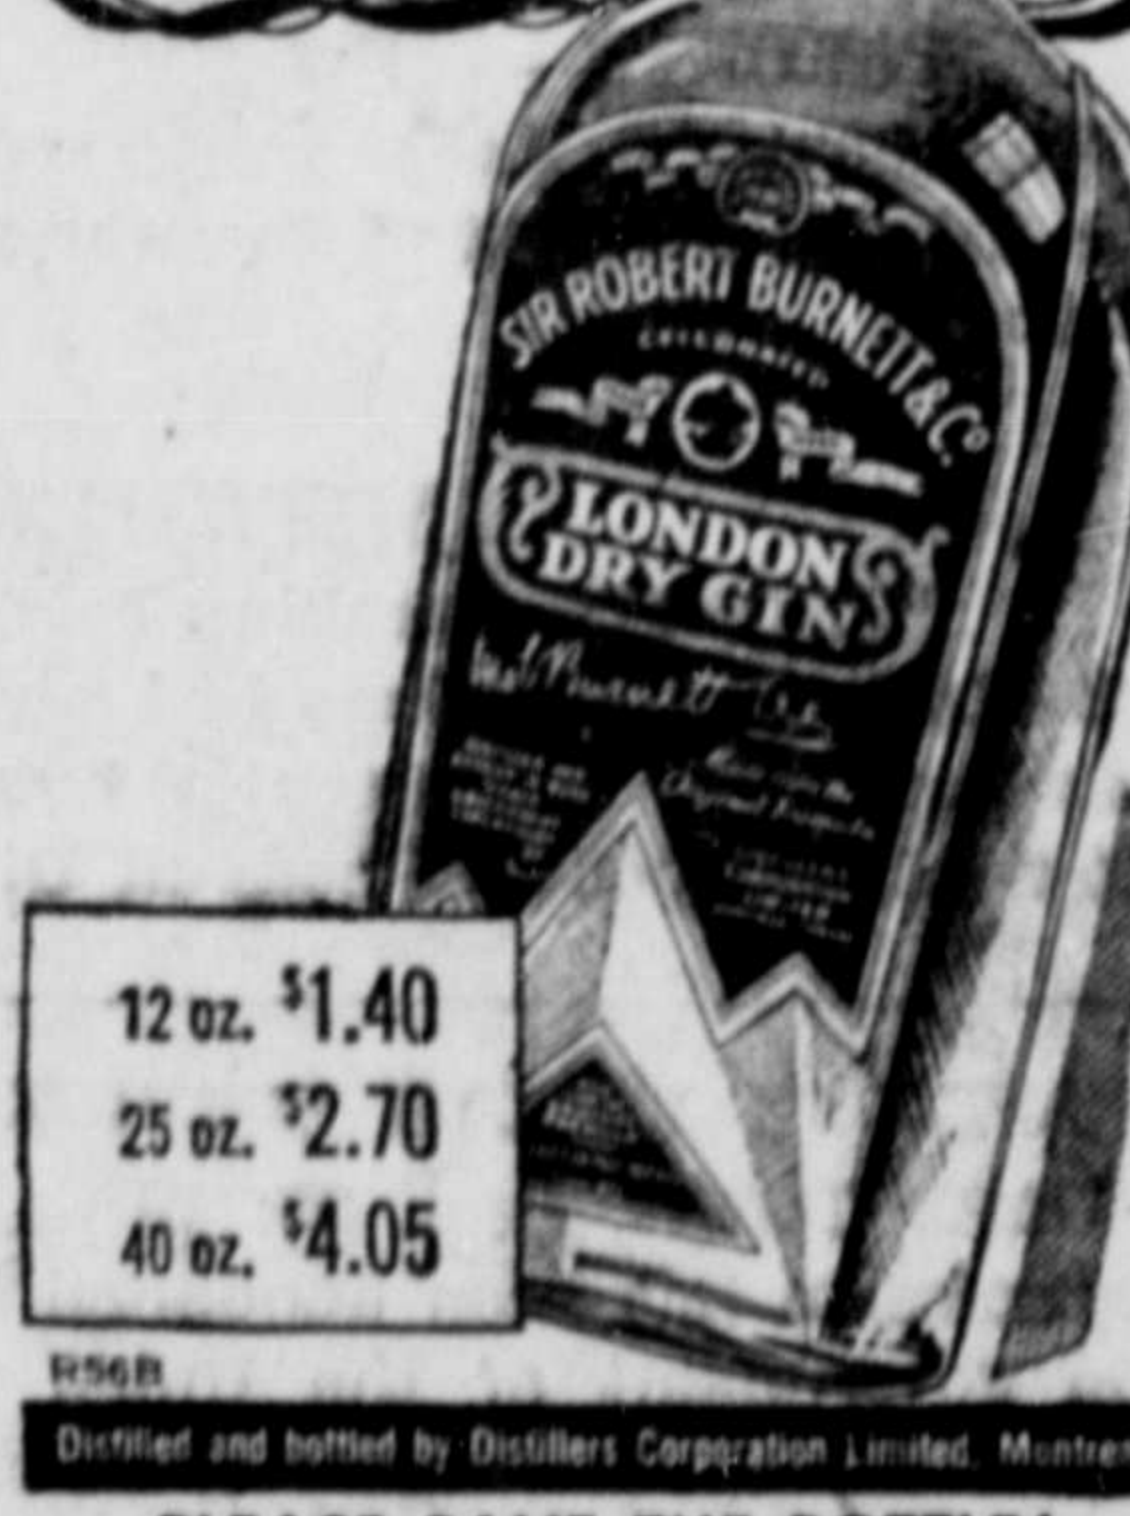

Over 150 babies and children of pre-school age have so far been presented at the weekly clinics being conducted by the public health unit organization here under the direction of Dr. John Macdonald assisted by the unit nurses, Misses Graham and Ochs.

So far the clinic has been held only Tuesdays at King Edward School but tomorrow afternoon will be started at the East End Hall on Seventh Avenue. Nearer the downtown and west end areas one and possibly two clinics are planned to be opened.

ACTIVITIES OF Y.M.C.A. AND Y.W.C.A.

By DOROTHY GARBUTT, Hostess

A very weary and bedraggled kitten found its way into the "Y" today after two days adrift. Thus Dutch grows up.

Ed Selyan of the Y.M.C.A. staff at Terrace has returned there after spending the week-end in Prince Rupert. We enjoy these visits by our country cousins!

There's a show tonight—Tuesday—at the Hut. Ivan Mallett wasn't quite sure what the title was at the time of writing but, as the quality of the "Y" shows has improved greatly since Mr. Palsson's visit recently, it should be a good one. We even had a real Disney short in real technicolor the other night.

The other day I asked Mrs. Davies and Mrs. Lee who are working the canteen just what were best sellers with the boys and both in one breath said coke with pie and ice cream. I had thought it would be coffee and doughnuts but perhaps the winter will bring them into favor.

The navy male quartette that has made such a name for itself recently is of a divided mind as to what to call the group. Shall it be The Stinging Seamen—the Chanteyclers (very subtle that one)—the Bell Bottom Boys (a trifle biological don't you think) or the Merry Matelots. My vote is for the last mentioned. What do you think, chums?

At the concert held in the Presbyterian church last night Carleton Clay spoke on "The Community and You." Under pressure he admitted to having included the work of the Y.W.C.A. as well, being, as he said, afraid of the consequences if he didn't. The Junior Hostesses are becoming quite proficient in the art of the Square Dance. Instead of having all the appearance of a scrum in rugby the dance begins to take on a pattern and rhythm that is pleasant to watch. Announcements are coming of the forthcoming marriage of the First United Church this Friday evening of Miss Edna Lydia Beables, one of the popular young hostesses at the "Y," to Teddy Sergeant. Teddy Lee Bequette after the marriage ceremony, a reception will be held at the clubmen's mess on Acropolis. Where the occasion will be suitably celebrated. The bride who is in the service of the Canadian National Railways freight department here, is the daughter of Mrs. L. Venables of Saskatoon.

MAJ.-GEN. F. F. WORTHINGTON
Commander of Canadian Armored Division

By FRANK FLAHERTY
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

A lively little man with greying hair and a sparkling eye is rapidly becoming the patron saint of Canadian tank soldiers. He is devoted to a cause, the modernization of the army through the development of new forms of warfare. He is Maj.-Gen. F. F. Worthington, commander of the 4th (Armored) Division now overseas. General Worthington was largely responsible for the design of the "Ram" tank, one of Canada's contributions to the allied cause in the present war. Impatient to get into battle but determined to have his men ready, he has evolved what he calls "speed training" to get them ready more quickly by applying assembly line methods to training tank crews and tank mechanics.

Known to his men as "old Freddie" and "Worthy," the general wears heavy army boots, like those worn by his privates, because he likes to clamber over tanks, trudge through dust and mud, wherever his men are at work. His skin is bronzed, his face rugged, his speech direct. He stands with his hands on his hips and his head a little on one side when he talks to brigadiers, colonels, lieutenants, sergeants, privates. He knows a lot of them by their first names.

TRAIN TIME IS CHANGED
Certain Alterations Being Made In Local Schedule Effective Next Week

Knows His Guns
The general wants his men to be able to fix things around tanks and to try to improve things. He does just that himself. One day a photographer caught him flat on his back under a truck, showing a sergeant how to do a certain repair job.

Although he never served in the artillery he can load and lay a 25-pounder gun. He knows all about ranges, elevations and sights. "Does he ever," was the answer of a young artillery officer when asked if the general knew his guns.

A student of tank warfare long before the start of the Second Great War, General Worthington recalls how the Germans picked the brains of forward thinkers in the armies of the United Nations and put their best ideas to work.

"God has been good to us for a long time but if we don't wake up He will go and play with the other fellows," he philosophizes. On the wall of the general's office at divisional headquarters he has a chart, showing the training progress of the division. He watches it as the indicator of the progress of the division towards battle efficiency. He tries to keep the whole moving forward evenly and keeps telling his men how the safety of the whole may depend on the individual.

A Soldiers' War
Generals can't fight battles in this war, he believes. They can only plan for battles. Once the battle starts things move so fast the general can't control them. Then it is the battle of the brigade commanders, the unit commanders, the troop commanders, the section commanders, and of the individual soldiers.

His own personal tank is ready for instant action. It is identical with all the other tanks of the division and he calls it "Robin" after his daughter.

The general is the best-armed officer in the division. In addition to his service revolver, he wears a commando knife at his belt. The knife is made in one piece, handle and blade and is about a foot in length. The handle is wound with cord to provide a grip.

Keen on fitness the general insists on every man in the division, cooks, clerks and batmen as well as staff officers getting their share of physical training and every man must go through the tough battle drill course where he learns to fight with bare hands, knife or firearm.

The general keeps himself in the pink of condition and takes a turn with other headquarters officers in climbing the training ladder.

GIRLS AS PROVOSTS

They Don't Have To Be Amazons But Strength of Body and Mind Essential for C.W.A.C. Police In Training

By JOAN STEEL
Canadian Press Staff Writer
WINNIPEG, September 22: — "They're not all so tall, but they're strong," a male member of the Canadian Army provost corps observed cautiously as he watched 72 potential army policewoman training at Fort Osborne barracks here.

The provosts comprises the newest branch of the Canadian Women's Army Corps, with girls carefully selected from every military district in the Dominion participating in training classes.

The first provost class started training in August. The complete course takes four weeks and at the end of that time the C.W.A.C. will have the first graduate class of women qualified to deal with the discipline of girls in the armed forces. Their authority extends to women in the naval and air services as well as the army.

Temperament Counts

Qualifications for a provost include a good physical build and a suitable temperament, defined by officers as embodying the characteristics of leadership, tact, firmness and the ability to make quick decisions. A grade nine standing in education is preferred. Physical qualifications do not depend on height for the girls range from five feet two inches to six feet.

The police branch of the service has a wide appeal. Pte. Olive Wallace of Punichy, Sask., confessed she has always wanted to be a policewoman. Pte. M. M. Ruddy of Toronto came to the corps with previous experience gained as a police photographer with the Ontario government. For Pte. B. Schriener of Toronto, joining the provosts was a matter of keeping up family tradition as her father is with the military police. Pte. E. M. Robinson of Regina, said she had been chosen because of her ability in chasing people off C. W. A. C. property during her basic training days.

Traffic control, psychology, pistol shooting and unarmed combat are only a few of the trainees' subjects with the latter two the general favorites. Maj. W. A. Jones, assistant provost marshal for M. D. No. 10, informed his class in a lecture on arrests that "a soldier must be sober before being brought up before his commanding officer."

Bracelets, Too

Handcuffs which are part of the policewomen's standard equipment were passed around for examination. The inevitable happened when L. Cpl. Lucume Hamel of

Maintenance in Time Off for Expectant Mothers, Equal Pay For Equal Work and Other Concessions Urged

Quebec City proved their efficiency by locking herself in. Sgt. Maj. J. Stocks came to her rescue with a key.

Classes in judo-wrestling or unarmed combat are conducted by Sgt. Maj. Stocks. The different holds are carefully demonstrated and practised.

During their four weeks training in Winnipeg, future army policewomen are entertained by shows, dances, boat trips and corn roasts arranged by the Greater Winnipeg War Services Co-ordinating Board and the Young Women's Christian Association.

But the masculine character of the training leads to complications. One facing Capt. Daisy Royal, staff officer at Fort Osborne, concerns a girl provost who smokes a pipe—and enjoys it.

NEWSPRINT INCREASES

But U.S. and Newfoundland Output Is Down Says Report To Ottawa

OTTAWA, Sept. 22: —Canadian production of newsprint has increased within the past year but United States and Newfoundland production has slumped. D. S. Cole, Canadian Trade Commissioner in the United States, reports to the Department of Trade and Commerce.

"Of the total production of newsprint in North America for the first six months of 1942, Canada contributed 1,658,000 tons or 72 percent of the total of 2,297,000 tons," Mr. Cole said. "The United States produced 484,000 tons of the remainder, 21 percent of the total output, and Newfoundland produced 155,000 tons, seven percent of the total."

Mr. Cole added that while Canadian production during the above-mentioned period was 37,000 tons greater than in the corresponding period of 1941, United States production was 34,000 tons less, with Newfoundland showing a 20,000 ton decrease.

Mr. Cole reports that the Newsprint Service Bureau of New York says that in the United States the paper business as a whole has shrunk considerably due largely to the reduction in the use of paper in the fields of consumer goods.

The greatly expanded use of paper for wartime purposes is not currently of sufficient tonnage to offset the shrinkage, his report added.

CONDITIONS FOR WOMEN

BLACKPOOL, Eng., Sept. 22: —Recognition of the part women are playing in the war effort in the form of "equal pay for equal work" is demanded in resolutions tabled for discussion at the Trades Union Congress which opened here Sept. 7.

"As every section of the community is making its required contribution to the war effort, Congress declares that women, when undertaking work similar in character and value to that of male workers, should receive the same rate of remuneration," says a resolution from the Railway Clerk's Association.

The resolution adds that "congress views with intense dissatisfaction the attitude of many employers who decline to recognize the reasonable claim of women workers that when discharging the full duties normally undertaken by men they should receive the male rate of pay."

"It emphatically declares that such an attitude is inconsistent with the views and wishes of the people of this country."

British Motherhood

The position of expectant mothers in industry is considered in a resolution submitted by the Women Public Health Officers' Association. "It is in the national interest and in that of the women concerned," the resolution states, "that expectant and nursing mothers should be enabled to abstain from industrial employment for any period extending from six weeks before until eight weeks after birth of a child by the provision of full maintenance in lieu of wages during the period of absence from work."

"Whenever practicable and necessary, expectant mothers employed in industry should be transferred to lighter work, and should not be employed in work involving weight lifting, stretching or long periods of standing."

Protective Legislation.

The General Council of the congress is instructed "to maintain the utmost vigilance respecting the use of the woman power which has been and is at present being mobilized in order to ensure its most efficient and economic use," in a resolution from the National Union of General Municipal Workers.

The Tobacco Workers' Union urges that "steps be taken to ensure that women and girls should be protected by legislation in the same way as men, in regard to their former employment at the cessation of hostilities."

Jungle King With Mate and Child Have Adventures In Metropolis

Tarzan and his mate leave the perils of the jungle for those in the maelstrom of civilization in their latest adventure. "Tarzan's New York Adventure," which comes to the Capitol Theatre here at the middle of this week—Wednesday and Thursday. Johnny Weissmuller, as the jungle king, Maureen O'Sullivan, as his mate, and Johnny Sheffield, as Tarzan Jr., head the cast in the thrilling romance.

The story opens in the jungle where circus men have arrived to capture lions. When Tarzan and Jane are knocked out by an attack of savages, the lion hunters escape with the boy, planning to use him as a circus attraction. Tarzan and Jane, using money raised from their gold cave, follow to New York where many thrills occur. Tarzan leaps from Brooklyn Bridge, ups a courtroom and finally wins back the boy. There are many comedy sequences.

Animal players, such as Cheeta, the chimpanzee, Bull, a baby elephant, and other wild beasts are used.

Charles Bickford plays the menace. Paul Kelly is a friendly aviator who befriends the jungle family. Virginia Grey plays Kelly's sweetheart. Others in the cast are Chill Wills, Cyrus W. Kendall and Matthew Bolton.

The news reel on the same bill is of particular interest as it brings actual scenes of the Dieppe commando raid.
