Rommel's Forces Still In Retreat

Today's War Summary

(By Canadian Press)

AXIS FORCES STILL IN RETREAT IN EGYPT—GERMANS PRESS RUSSIANS BACK—TREND OF BATTLE IN MAJOR CAMPAIGNS

British headquarters in Cairo announced today that General Sir Claude Auchinleck's Egyptian Army had driven the Axis into retreat for the second successive day while in the Russian campaign a sharp new crisis was indicated by the German claim that Nazi spearheads had crossed the River Don.

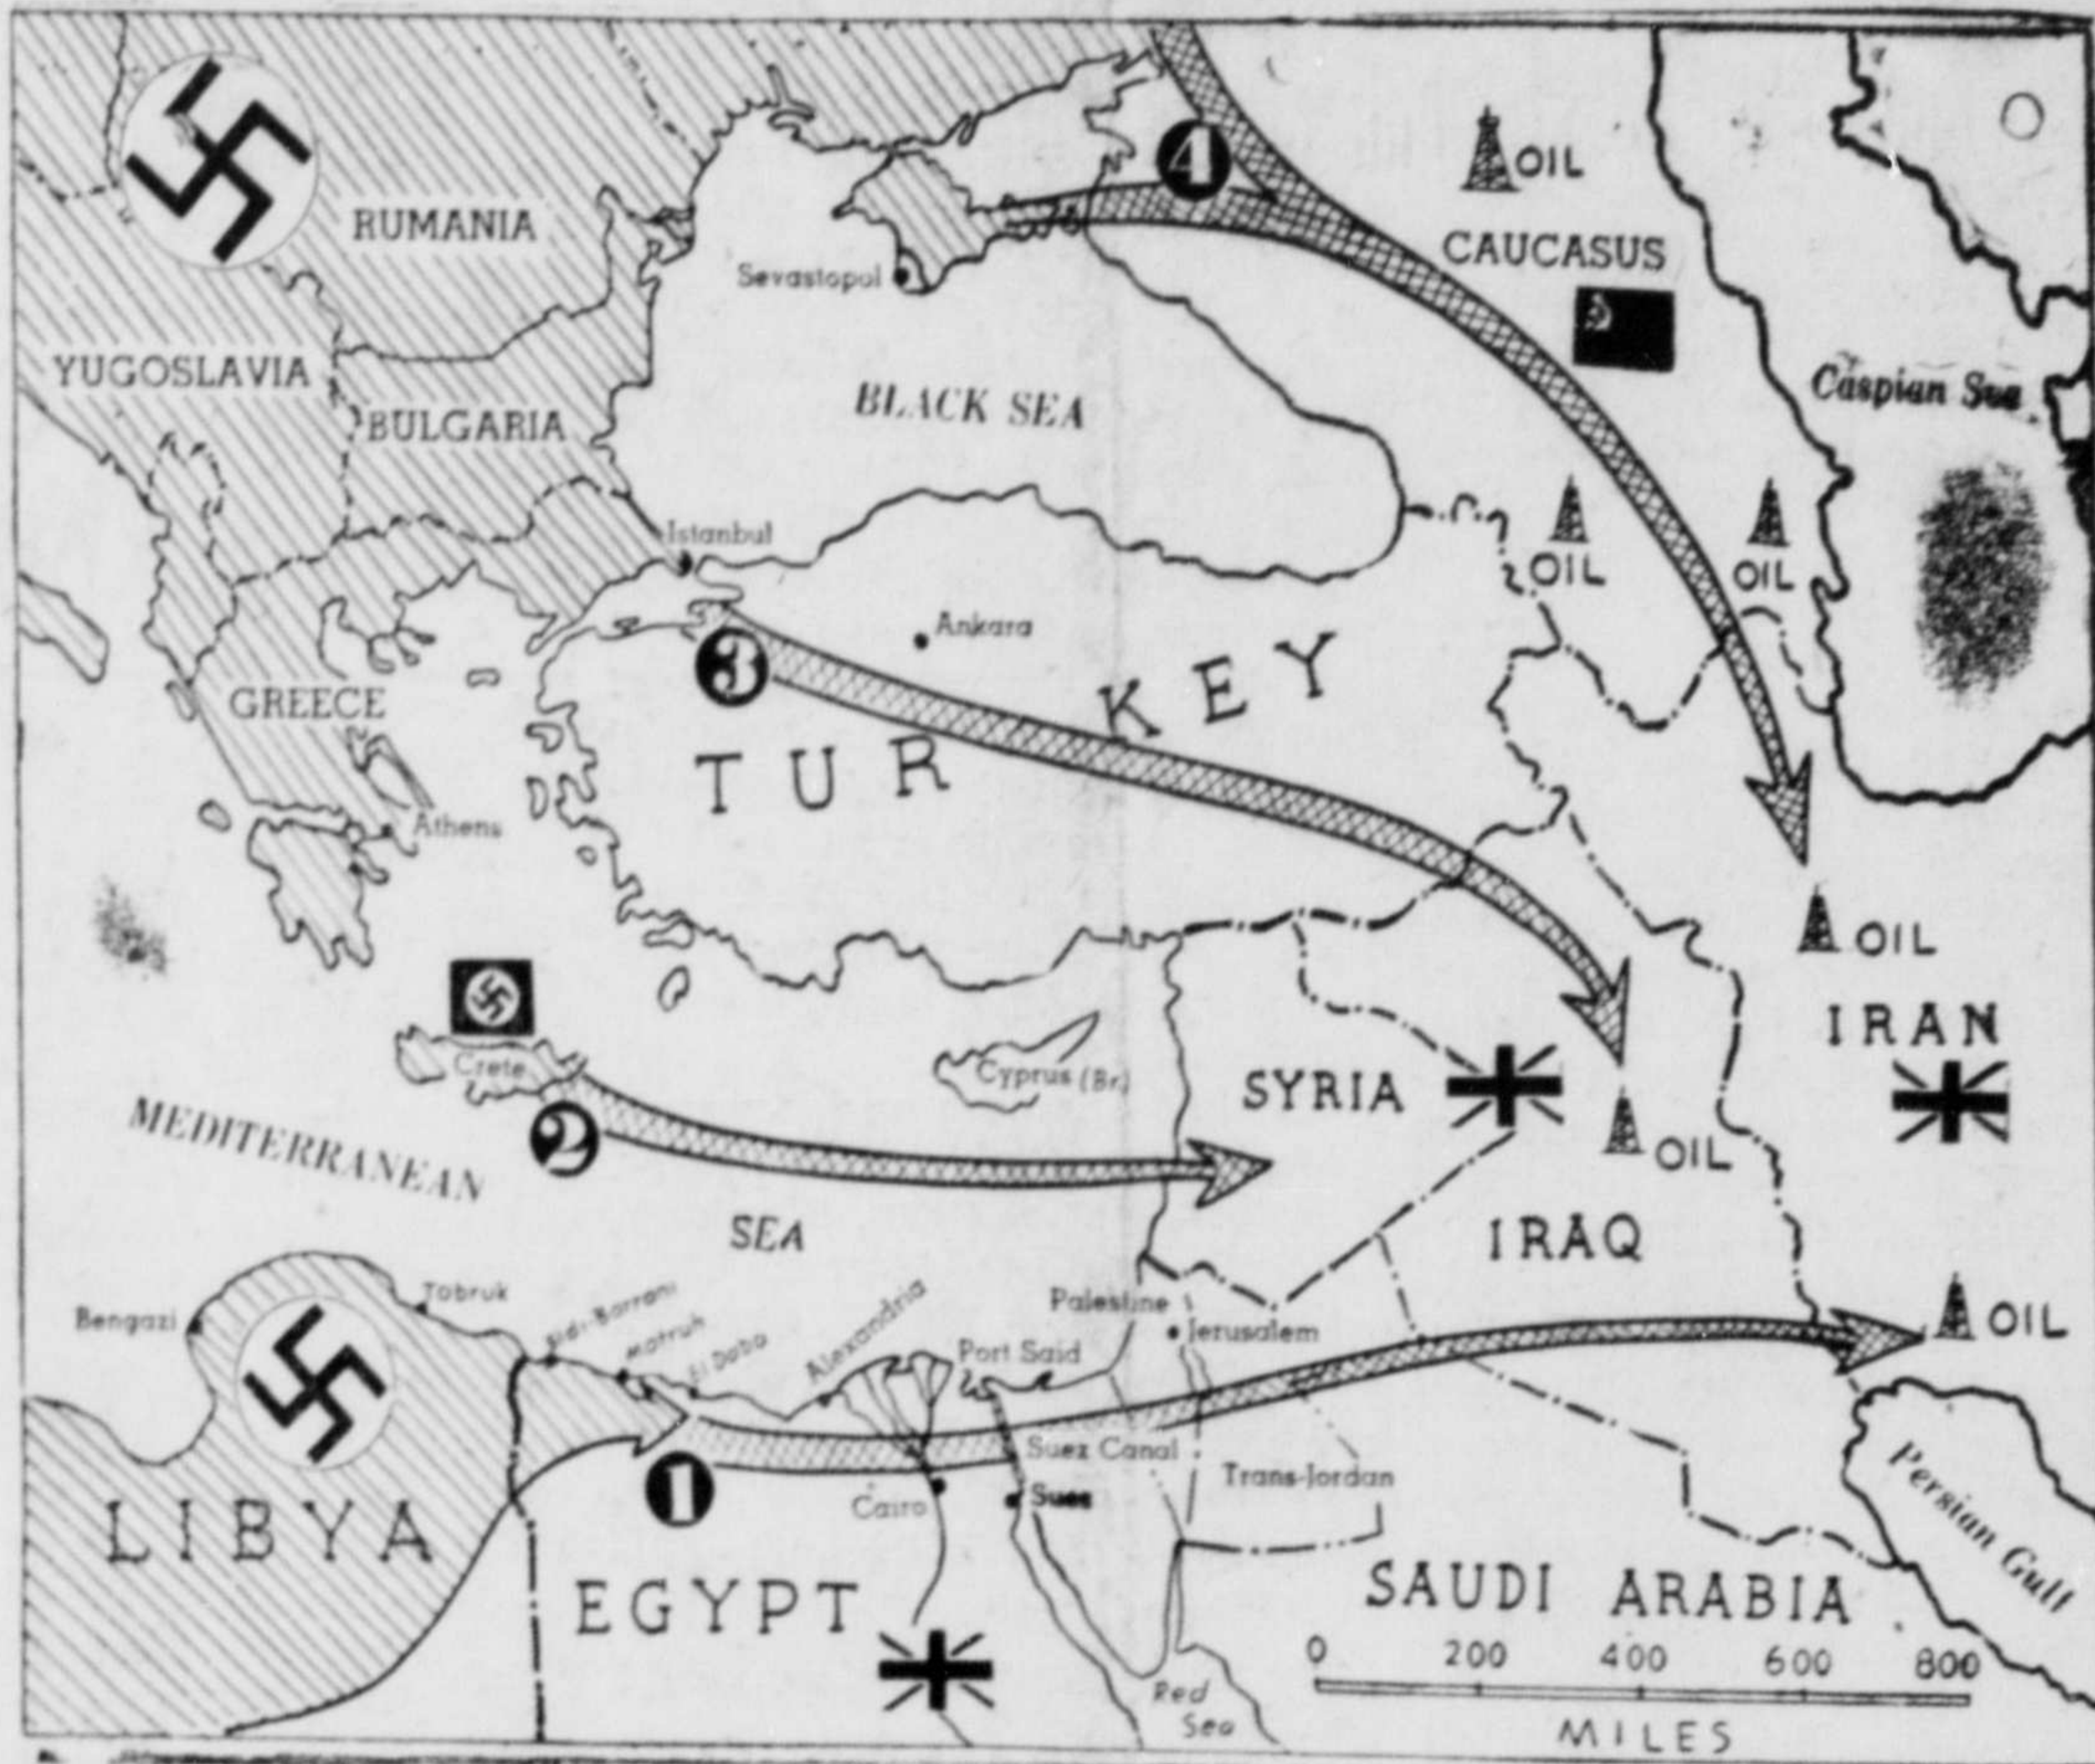

A bulletin from general headquarters said that British Empire troops had attacked Axis forces in fierce all day fighting in Egypt yesterday and "in a night attack drove the enemy from a strong point, inflicting heavy casualties."

The New York Times said that private advices indicated Rommel might fall back to Matruh, 110 miles west of the present battle zone, to shorten the supply line and await reinforcements.

German dispatches described German operations along the Don River in Russia as a "big and broad offensive thrust" and the Berlin press proclaimed it as "the beginning of a big push."

At London military information says the Germans have thrown more than a million troops into the Kursk offensive in a massive wheeling operation in an attempt to overrun the approaches to the Caucasus.

AXIS MAKING DESPERATE EFFORTS TO REACH SUEZ

Here is a map showing the four routes necessary to the armies of Adolf Hitler to get the oil they need to carry on the war against the United Nations. The chief hope of the Nazis is in the forces of Gen. Erwin Rommel who is over the Egyptian frontier in a race for Suez and the oil of Iran over the course indicated by arrow No. 1.

RUSSIANS RETREAT

Reds Forced To Fall Back Between Kursk and Kharkov Before Sheer Weight of Nazi Numbers

MOSCOW, July 6:—Sheer weight of numbers of the enemy forces, the offensive of which in force is now under way, has caused the Russians to fall back in southern Russia, Moscow admits. Nazi generals, pushing ahead regardless of losses in men and equipment, have broken through in at least one point between Kursk and Kharkov. Claiming an advance of one hundred miles, the Germans assert they have reached and crossed the Don River at several points and are now threatening an important Russian railway line.

HEAVY AIR ATTACK ON AXIS ARMY

Rommel's Weary Forces Appear To Have Lost Momentum But Are Being Given No Rest

CAIRO, July 6:—With Allied forces advancing on enemy troops from El Alamein positions in an attack decided upon on the basis of evidence that Axis units are exhausted, the heaviest aerial attack ever seen in the Middle East is being made upon General Erwin Rommel's weary Axis forces, the momentum of whose drive into Egypt appears to have definitely gone until such time, at least, as reorganization and reinforcement can be effected.

The British Imperial forces—including New Zealanders, South Africans, Maoris, Indians and British—are showing no disposition to wait but are "attacking to destroy."

The New Zealanders captured six hundred Axis soldiers who were so utterly exhausted that they could not carry on.

The enemy's water supply is now being rationed.

Still In Retreat

For the second successive day, General Erwin Rommel's Axis forces are in retreat. Smashing counter-attack blows of the British have forced the Germans and Italians to fall back further, losing important positions which they had gained west of El Alamein and to which they had clung for several hours before finally relinquishing them.

Axis losses are declared to be heavy with those of the Allies fairly light. Axis prisoners are in extremity of thirst, hunger and exhaustion.

The British still have mastery of the air and forty-two Axis planes have been brought down in two days.

A senior United States military observer declares that the Allies are showing "beautiful co-operation" in stopping the Axis drive in Egypt. Now the enemy will have to bring up extensive supplies to refit their troops and this will be no simple task.

Ankara reports that considerable mechanized equipment is being brought up through the Balkans to Greece, presumably on the way to North Africa.

INDIANAPOLIS, July 6:—Earl (Lucky) Peter, famous American automobile stunt driver, was killed Saturday in making a jump with his car over a truck. As well as throughout the United States, Lucky was well known in Canada especially at the Canadian National Exposition in Toronto.

DISPERSING FROM ANYOX

Some of Fire Evacuees Still In Prince Rupert With Others At Alice Arm and Vancouver

The people who were living at Anyox and working for Anyox Metals prior to the great forest fire which completely wiped out the old copper mining camp on Dominion Day are now gradually dispersing. Some are in Prince Rupert, others at Alice Arm and a few are already in Vancouver.

The residents of Anyox at the time of the fire were: George M. Lee, superintendent, Jack Smith, construction foreman, J. E. Matthews, accountant, and Mrs. Matthews, John Matthews (one), Tony Caverzan, Mrs. Caverzan, Enas Caverzan (twelve), Linde Caverzan (three), Nick Campanella, Mrs. Campanella, Gust Anderson, Mrs. Gust Anderson, T. W. Falconer, Chris Anderson, Chris Jensen, Nels Olsen, Reidar Buer, Angus Martin, Rudy Vidler, C. W. Mulroney, Cecil Osborne, Charlie Wong.

Mr. and Mrs. Matthews and son and Angus Martin are still in Prince Rupert.

Cecil Osborne, Mr. and Mrs. Caverzan and family and Mr. and Mrs. Campanella left at the weekend for Vancouver.

The remainder are still at Alice Arm.

Mr. Lee and Mr. Smith are due here tomorrow from the north.

Those who have reached Prince Rupert have had interesting accounts to tell of the great conflagration which as it closed in on Anyox from various directions reached huge proportions, flames roaring hundreds of feet in the air, throwing heat for miles and their light as far away as fifteen miles. For a time the fire is estimated to have blazed on a seven mile front.

The evacuees picture certain circumstances which might have had fatal results. However, all made their escape safely although hurriedly so fast was the onset. Some lost heavily of their personal effects although none lost everything.

The youngest evacuee was little one-year old "Jay" Matthews for whom it was "just a lot of fun." Until rescue came, he and his mother with the other women and children spent the night of Dominion Day on the beach across from the blazing town.

Reading Is Believing...

The Winnipeg Tribune, in a recent editorial, discusses the merits of the printed word as against the radio in the dissemination of accurate news. The editorial was inspired by the circumstances of the recent budget presentation when the news came out over the radio before it appeared in the newspapers. The great amount of misunderstanding and confusion that resulted because the ear cannot take the news with the same facility as through the printed word is referred to. Here in Prince Rupert it is only too well known how mistaken impressions and false rumors get abroad among the public not because the radio announcements may have been wrong but just because it is impossible for exact news to be assimilated accurately. In fact there is good reason to suppose that a great many startling and false reports get around because of misunderstanding or exaggeration of radio news.

The Tribune says: "The effect was to have the gist of the budget reach a large section of the Canadian people through their ears, over the radio, rather than through their eyes, via the newspapers. This led to all sorts of misunderstandings which may take weeks to clear up, because first impressions are inclined to stick."

"Some perfectly intelligent citizens got the impression that they themselves would have to pay a two percent tax on all their insurance premiums. In fact, this is absorbed by the insurance companies. Others, listening to a different broadcast, knew nothing of the premium tax but received a garbled notion of the remission permitted to policy holders against their compulsory savings. And so forth and so on."

"For all its welter of publicity agencies, the Dominion government appears not to understand the very fundamentals of public education. Last fall and early winter various government pronouncements were made over the radio on Saturday nights. For example, Prime Minister King made the first announcement of the Wages and Prices freezing plan on Saturday, October 18. Listening over the radio, thousands of workers understood Mr. King to have given a flat promise that P.C. 7440 would be applied generally, that all workers would receive a Cost of Living bonus exactly the same as that paid in the war industries. This, of course, was not so. Subsequently official correction failed to catch up with the original impression."

"Other important statements by the Hon. Norman McLarty and the Hon. C. G. Power were also broadcast initially on Saturday night, leading to the suggestion that radio was being shown favoritism by the Dominion government with unfortunate results on public education."

"The Hon. Joseph Thorson is by way of being a demi-semi Minister of Information at Ottawa. Mr. Thorson has a real task ahead of him if he is to teach the Ottawa cabinet some of the fundamentals of publicity. High up on the list of lessons to be learned is one from this latest budget episode. You cannot take in budgetary details through the ear with anything like the same facility as through the printed word. Furthermore, once mistaken impressions and false rumors get abroad among the public, it takes a great deal of work to catch up with them."

Voluntary public-spirited workers have assisted in connection with the institution of sugar rationing, but if, for any reason, you are not able to buy sugar since July 1, you have yourself primarily to blame, and it is ill-fitting to grouse at the volunteers, particularly if you have done nothing yourself to help.

GAMES OF BASEBALL

Searchlights and Dry Dock Were Winners Yesterday

Yesterday afternoon the Medicals took a shellacking from the Searchlights in the first baseball game of the day with the score nine to nothing. The trouble with the Medicals was that several of the best players were unable to be at the game. Randall especially was missed. Skarbon of the Searchlights pitched a beautiful game and their line-up was just too much for the depleted ranks of the Medicals.

The second game between the Dry Dock and the Yanks ended with a score 6 to 3. This game was more even but, when the Yanks started yanking the pitchers, they went from bad to worse and lost the game in the process. Howe of the Dry Dock pitched a beautiful game and, with the excellent support of the team, they just couldn't lose. Most of the Dry Dock runs were made in the fifth and sixth innings with Amo and Osborne pitching.

The line-ups were as follows: Medicals—Glakin, Whittaker, Comstock, Davie, Grun, Stemburg, Mitchell, Cauthers, Marcus.

Searchlights—Willy, Skarbon, King, Gaselg, Thompson, Pupeza, Moulton, Rakoz, Rogers.

Yanks—Banky, Hansley, Pitt, Moline, Blandford, Switala, Allison, Aubrey, Casey.

Dry Dock—Heatherington, Lewis, McIntyre, Howe, Ashcroft, Simunson, Gurvich, Gordon, Pavlikis.

MAJOR GENERAL MAURICE A. POPE Canadian Military Representative at Washington

(By Frank Flaherty, Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Maj.-Gen. Maurice A. Pope, Canada's military spokesman in the councils of war at Washington, knows how the machinery of government works. He is a soldier with the experience and qualifications of a diplomat and civil servant.

As the representative of the war committee of the Canadian cabinet at Washington, he is something more than a military attache. He represents Canada at consultations of combined staffs of the United Kingdom and the United States. He deals with matters relating to the grand strategy of the war, the supply of arms and munitions to the Canadian forces and the uses of those forces in co-operation with the forces of other nations.

General Pope was in on the ground floor of Canada's organization for the present war. More than a year before war broke out he started official but secret work on war plans. A permanent force officer from the close of the First Great War, in which he served with the engineers, he was appointed secretary of six inter-departmental committees which laid plans for censorship, dealing with enemy aliens, air raid precautions and other special measures. One of the committees wrote the government's "War Book," containing instructions and procedure for steps necessary to turn the nation to a war basis.

Midlands Now All-Active Unit
Ready For Enemy; Life In New
Camp On West Coast Described
 (As written for Bowmanville Statesman)

The First Battalion Midland Regiment has celebrated a great occasion. All home defence personnel, numbering over 50 and unwillingly acquired in Edmonton, left to join another unit, leaving the Mad Midlands again with 100 per cent Active Service men so that they are free to go anywhere to fight and help end this war.

Naturally, there was a celebration because the Midlands were beginning to feel that they had been relegated to the discard and would be used as a training unit for sending drafts of men to other regiments destined for overseas service. (Already 54 Midlands have been sent to Hong Kong and 100 to England with other units.) Now they feel there is at least some hope of staying together and seeing some action as a unit.

The celebration took the form of good-natured jiving at the Home Defence men who had all been given an excellent opportunity of going "Active" before they were sent on their way. Songs such as "Home Sweet Home" were sung to entertain the departing guests and all in all it was quite a farewell which, I fear, did not raise the spirits of the Home Defence boys.

But, enough of that. It was just inserted to squash any rumors which, we understand, have been floating around to the effect that the Midlands are not an "active service unit" and never were. Any Home Defence personnel we have had we took involuntarily and have only had them with us a little over a month.

Compare Unit to a Town
 We wonder what the people at home know about our unit. We wonder if they know we are almost a complete town in ourselves. Lieut.-Col. J. C. Gamey, M.M., E.D., could be compared to the Mayor of a town or village with nearly 1,000 citizens, all male. The Council could be made up of the Reeve or second-in-command of the Battalion, Major F. L. Dudley, Deputy Reeve, Clerk and Treasurer combined would be the Adjutant, Capt. H. R. S. Ryan, and the Company Commanders of Headquarters Coy., A, B, C and R Coys., would be compared to the councillors. Naturally the council has to have its staff of clerks, collectors, etc., and these are all contained in the Battalion Orderly Room and the Company Orderly rooms.

From there on the unit breaks down into much the same items you find in a town. We have a post office which distributes as many as four bags of mail and parcels every other day, a doctor and staff who take care of as many as 30 patients a day, an intelligence section which prepares maps of the surrounding country and also acts as the town newspaper in keeping a diary of all important events which occur. This group of men might be compared to the town newspaper office which tries to find out everything about the people and country and keeps record of it.

Then, we come to the barber shop where one barber and a good one caters to the whims of about 30 customers a day at 15c a head. The Quartermaster and staff might be compared to a jobber who orders the goods for all the different people, for the kitchens and for all buildings. In a town this service is duplicated so many times that considerable efficiency is lost. Possibly this is because of the difference in prices. There is only one price for each article in the army.

Men of All Trades
 We could go on and describe the other services which are rendered but it might become tiring so for a short summary, here are the men you find in the Midlands: a 28-man band who also act and are trained as first aid men and stretcher bearers, cooks, carpenters, plumbers, police, road builders, butchers, sewer diggers, electricians, clergy, miners, engineers, truck drivers, mechanics and a dozen and one other jobs including teachers. There is hardly a profession or occupation which is not represented.

This last month we have found that the men who were considered a little sloppy in drill training have other talents which by far overcome any lack of smartness on parade. We have been literally dumped into a job for which we were in many respects totally unprepared, the building of a new camp. There was no electricity, waterworks, roads, sidewalks and very few huts here when we arrived but gradually we are building the huts and the conveniences which will make it into a real town of some 40 or 50 buildings. We've been laying roads, or rather, floating them because the ground is deep muskeg and we've been laying sewers, something which according to the pamphlets we read on war training is an unmentioned subject. We are doing things we never did before and we are learning something which may not be of great value in an attack but which will be invaluable in later life at home.

Learn to Live Together
 One of the most important points of the training we are receiving is that the entire group of men are learning to live with each other with very little outside entertainment. There is one theatre in the town and one-third of our population may leave camp, very night to see it or go to the Y.M.C.A. The others must remain at home and find something to do to keep them interested.

Incidentally, it doesn't get dark here until nearly 11 o'clock at night so that there is much time to be spent after work finishes at 5 or 6 o'clock in the evening. The band holds concerts and sing-songs five nights of the week. There are bingo games, quiz contests and spontaneous entertainment of all kinds and sports such as you can never imagine. And the men spend the rest of the time reading books, writing letters and lying on their beds talking to each other about all manner of subjects. We wonder how many young, active fellows at home could sit at home almost every night and not think they were going crazy. We're doing it here regularly and liking it.

Boys Like Lots of Mail
 The boys are enjoying themselves out here, thousands of miles from home. They'd enjoy themselves any place, but they also have their days when they feel absolutely disgusted and downcast and that is when the letters from home are a real help. You, at home, without any sons in the army don't and can't know what a letter or a parcel means to a soldier. If he doesn't get his mail regularly he worries and when he worries he is no good for anybody, not even himself, and quite frequently he gets into trouble of one kind and another. So keep the mail coming and the parcels of home made cooking and other delicacies which let him know that you are still thinking of him.

That's about all for this week. There are many items such as the unveiling of the beautiful cairn at Edmonton; the farewell at the station by hundreds of people who were sorry to see the Midlands leave the place; the difficulties encountered in our new location, the crazy antics of the lads having fun (one chap spent most of Sunday on the side of the road fishing in a pail of oil much to wonder of passing motorists); the water fights and a hundred and one other occurrences which are all in the life of an army unit, but we'll leave these for another time.

The main purpose of this article was to let the people back home know that the Mad Midlands are again a 100 per cent Active Service Unit with hope of getting into action too, as they say in Battle Drill Training, "Kill the enemy."

Whifflets
 From The Waterfront

The first week of gillnet salmon fishing season on the Skeena River saw some seven hundred boats engaged in the fishery. On the Naas River there are about 170 boats engaged in fishing, according to reports received at Prince Rupert. The general average on the Skeena has been some twenty or so fish per boat per day, the best fishing being outside, around Finlayson Island, where the average was about thirty-five fish while inside the river it was as low as ten fish. On the Naas River the average was quite satisfactory at about forty. There is gillnetting in progress in all the areas up and down the coast.

G. A. McMillan, who recently resumed the superintendency of Canadian National Steamships owing to the illness of W. H. Fogg, will also be Vancouver representative of the Prince Rupert Dry Dock and Shipyards. Mr. Fogg will revert to the former position of assistant superintendent.

Twenty-Five Years Ago

It was intimated at the meeting of the city council held last night that a new bylaw will shortly be introduced by the city solicitor for the regulation of rooming houses, boarding houses and lodging houses.

To show the esteem in which the fellow employees of the Grand Trunk Pacific held for J. B. F. Melville, they gathered together yesterday afternoon and presented him with a purse of gold. W. C. Mehan made the presentation and spoke of the regard in which his chief clerk was held. He had difficulty in adequately expressing his sense of loss at the departure of "Jim."

Quite a number of people camped out across the bay during last week-end. They claimed that the weather conditions were excellent although they were sometimes awakened during the night by the sound of falling water but this banished the flies and mosquitoes.
