WILLKIE IN CHINA NOW

Personal Representative of President Roosevelt Calls for Second Front Before Leaving Moscow

CHUNGKING, Sept. 28.—Wendell L. Willkie, personal emissary of President Franklin D. Roosevelt, on his way from Moscow to Chungking to meet Generalissimo Chiang Kai-Shek, arrived in Western China yesterday. Chiang has cancelled a tour of inspection to meet and welcome Willkie who will be impressed with the need of aid to China.

Speaking in Moscow before leaving there, Willkie called for "aggressive Allied action" in support of Russia. He made a personal plea for the opening of a second front by the Allies now. Premier Joseph Stalin was in rare good humor at a banquet in the Kremlin in proposing a toast to Roosevelt and Willkie.

DECLARES JAPAN NOT SO STRONG

Cannot Open Another Offensive—Famous Soldier Expresses Confidence in War's Outcome

NEW DELHI, India, Sept. 28.—Reviewing the war situation yesterday, General Sir Archibald Wavell declared that Japan was not strong enough to launch any new offensive. The Japanese air force could not operate against India, China and Australia at the same time.

Great Britain, the United States and Soviet Russia would fight it out to the finish, Wavell asserted in expressing confidence as to the final outcome.

There would be a second front, the famous general declared, although when and where, of course, he could not say.

Soviet Russia would hold out. Stalingrad might be lost but, except for possible loss of prestige, that would not alter the situation.

General Wavell referred to the importance of the Battle of the Atlantic. Allied shipping losses had been heavy but the Allies were winning the Battle of the Atlantic.

He intended, Wavell said, to re-occupy Burma not because it had been British territory but in order to re-establish communications with China.

RIBBENTROP SPEAKS
BERLIN — Foreign Minister Joachim von Ribbentrop said that Russia had lost 14,000,000 soldiers so far in the war. The Soviet's manpower, food supplies and raw materials were nearing exhaustion. BATTLE OF EGYPT
CAIRO — The battle on the North African desert front continues inactive except in the air where Allied bombers continue attacks on Axis communication lines, air fields and bases. Tobruk was again bombed yesterday.

PUSHING HIGHWAY TO ALASKA

Somewhere in northern Canada, this picture was made showing a portion of the highway now being completed by pushing through virgin forests. This highway, an important part of North America's defence against the Japanese, stretches from Alaska through Canada to the United States. Across it men and materials could be sped to the north. Threat of a Japanese attack on Siberia makes the swift completion of the highway still more important.

ATLIN CASE AT ASSIZES

Trial of William Murray Scott On Murder Charge Called and Adjourned Until This Evening

The trial of William Murray Scott, charged with the murder of John Clew at Spruce Creek in the Atlin district on August 5, was called before Mr. Justice Harold Robertson at the Supreme Court Assizes here this morning and was adjourned until this evening pending the arrival in the city of witnesses for both crown and defence. Taking of evidence will get under way tonight or tomorrow morning.

On the case being called, T. W. Brown, crown counsel, announced that accused had no counsel. His Lordship thereupon appointed W. O. Fulton as counsel for the defence. Mr. Brown then advised the court that the witnesses had not yet arrived, suggesting an adjournment until this evening which was granted.

B.C. LEADS FOR SHIPS

Marine Construction on This Coast Ahead of Rest of Canada

OTTAWA, Sept. 28: (CP)—The Canadian shipbuilding industry this week will deliver into service the fifty-first ten-thousand ton cargo ship, all but one of them having been completed this year. Hon. Clarence D. Howe, minister of munitions and supply, announced today.

Favored by ideal climatic conditions permitting year-round launchings, British Columbia yards have led the way, Mr. Howe said.

Mrs. J. H. Engelke sailed Saturday night for a trip to Vancouver.

American Hostages

BERNE, Sept. 28: (CP)—The Germans have seized some three hundred Americans in occupied France as potential hostages, it was learned here today, in a move which added tension for the Laval government in Vichy. The news caused no surprise since Americans in occupied zones are liable to internment by the Nazis.

Claim Made by German High Command Not Confirmed in Other Quarters

BERLIN, Sept. 28: (CP)—The German High Command claimed today that German submarines had sunk three transport vessels and a destroyer in an attack in the North Atlantic on a troop and supply convoy enroute to Great Britain. (There was no confirmation from other sources).

Juror Rebuked By Judge Here

Warned to Keep His Hat Off While King's Court is in Session

On the jury being excused from this morning until this evening at the present session of the Supreme Court Assizes, the presiding judge, Mr. Harold Robertson, spied one of the jurors in the public section putting on his hat and filling out before the court had been formally adjourned. The juror was halted by the presence of His Lordship who reminded him that it was a King's court and that, as long as it was in session, one's head should be bared.

BOMBS HIT JAPANESE

NAVY IS PRAISED

Clement Atlee Speaks of Canadian War Effort

OTTAWA, Sept. 28.—In a national network broadcast last night, Rt. Hon. Clement Atlee, visiting Canada, praised Canada's war effort, particularly that of the Royal Canadian navy. He made special reference to H.M.C.S. Ottawa, the loss of which was much to be regretted, and H.M.C.S. Assiniboine, which recently sank a German submarine.

Speaking of a second front, Mr. Atlee said this was something that must be carefully considered. He warned against Axis propaganda which sought to suggest that the other Allies might not be doing all they could for Russia. Such propaganda was obviously designed to disturb relations between the Allies.

The Dominion's secretary said that Allied leaders did not need to be "prodded" to open a second front because most of them are already working on plans for an offensive.

KISKA IS ATTACKED

United States Army and Royal Canadian Air Force Planes Hit Japs in Aleutians

WASHINGTON, D.C. Sept. 28: (CP)—The United States Navy announced today that a strong force of United States Army bombers and pursuit planes, accompanied by Royal Canadian Air Force planes, attacked Japanese shore installations and ships at Kiska in the Aleutians on Friday, damaging an enemy transport, shooting down a sea-plane fighter and destroying six other planes on the water, also strafing two submarines.

MUST LOCK CARS NOW

Petty Thievery From Parked Vehicles Here Now Going On

With petty thieving on the increase, motorists in Prince Rupert may not leave their cars unlocked on the streets in the old carefree way. One motorist recently had two rugs removed from his car in a residential area and later had his car key taken out of the dashboard.

Acquittal In Theft Case At Local Assizes

Philip Gun-a-Noot, interior native, was acquitted at the Supreme Court Assizes here at the end of the week on one count of theft from a dwelling and another of straight theft. The case arose at Kitwanga among natives. The crown prosecutor was T. W. Brown and W. O. Fulton acted in Gun-a-Noot's defence.

RUSSIAN DEFENCE STIRRING

Position at Besieged Stalingrad Is Much the Same—Reds Assume Initiative

MOSCOW, Sept. 28.—Russia's defence continues to stir the world. The position at besieged Stalingrad is much the same. New tank and artillery reinforcements have been brought up. The Red Army is actually beginning to assume the initiative at some points.

The sheer weight of the Nazi assault resulted in a slight penetration of the Russian defence lines at Stalingrad yesterday but this was neutralized while the Russian counter-offensive to the northwest of the city gained further momentum.

Hand to hand and bayonet to bayonet within the streets of the great industrial city, the ferocity of the fight at Stalingrad has become greater than ever, exceeding even that of Verdun in the First Great War. One thousand German tommy gunners were either wiped out or captured in one engagement.

Particular importance is attached to the Russian movement to the northwest of the city, the strategy of which is undoubtedly to cut off the Nazi force within the city.

Fresh German shock troops rushed to the front by transport plane poured into Stalingrad in an effort to clinch a victory, dispatches said today, but the Red Army, fighting from window to window, from roof top to roof top and in the streets, held the city in the thirty-fifth day of bloody assault.

Northwest of the city the Russians were still blunting the German drive and unleashing an offensive of their own in the effort to slow down the more direct Nazi attack upon the city.

In one sector a large Soviet unit killed two thousand Germans in two days, the midday communique said.

A Pravda correspondent reported that the fighting for Stalingrad was "growing even fiercer and bloodier" and said the whole city "is in a convulsion from the incessant explosions of bombs and shells."

Fierce fighting of the last twenty-four hours with the Germans lunging into the city from several different points, has resulted in a zigzag front with the Germans slightly advanced in some sectors and the Russians established in new positions to the west in others, one dispatch said. Frontline dispatches estimate that 36,000 Germans are battling for positions inside the city and say that they are being reinforced steadily in an attempt to overwhelm the defenders who rely on the bomb-battered communications of the Volga.

The Germans themselves claimed today that several more districts had fallen to Nazi troops and that the northern section of the city had been penetrated while other areas were being mopped up house by house.

Gains for the Russians on all other fronts are reported.

He is at present in Alaska. Johnson flew north last week with a party consisting of Gregory Clark, military writer for the Toronto Star, and Norman Jones, photographer of the Toronto Star, which was here at the end of the week in a Royal Canadian Air Force plane. Also with the party was Flight Lieutenant Bert Cunnings, public relations officer of the Air Force.

EDITORIAL

Fifth Column . . .

Absenteeism is one of the worst of the plagues interfering with our war production and the cause of more lost time than all other causes combined is admitted to be liquor, says Canadian Machinery and Manufacturing Magazine. Hangovers keep workers away from their work in droves for two and three days following every pay day, and land many others at their work to be a menace to themselves and their fellows and unfit to produce at the speed they are being paid for.

It is three months since a high official of the National War Labor Board acknowledged that something would have to be done to combat this scourge by reducing, if not eliminating, liquor consumption.

It is not our job to conduct a "white ribbon" campaign, but it is of vital interest to all of us to see that nothing which helps the enemy shall be allowed to flourish for want of a little backbone.

Perhaps prohibition is not the answer—it is certainly a better answer than the present one. But what about rationing liquor? Provincial governments would not thank Ottawa for interfering with this juicy source of revenue, but neither were they grateful for gasoline rationing, it may be supposed.

The excuse for interfering in the case of gasoline was that the reasons were great enough to warrant it. Well, here is something greater. All Canadian have accepted wholeheartedly rationing of the things of everyday life and the virtual confiscation of luxuries liquor is something that man can take or leave, and when taking it interferes with our war, this is the time to cut it down.

Some people still can't afford liquor from a financial standpoint. The others would probably be better off if they couldn't.

Still Need Scrap . . .

Requirements of scrap steel are certainly not growing less and many of the sources of most convenient supply have been exhausted. Voluntary action is still the simplest and most profitable all around means of bringing scrap—either household or industrial—into the furnaces. Voluntary action is, however, still hedged about by prejudices, habits and inertia, not to say an occasional unwillingness to be a goat.

Thousands of householders are narrow enough to let prejudice concerning the nationality of many scrap collectors and dealers act as their excuse for sabotaging the war effort by refusing to co-operate. We say thousands because this is literally true. So long as the prejudice is ever now so violent it speaks ill for postwar breaking down of inter-racial barriers supposed to be one of the things for which we are fighting.

Habit is so deeply ingrained in other scrap "hoarders" that machines long past their usefulness and broken parts are left stored away just in case they might some day come in handy—despite a whole shop full of new machines acquired for war work.

Used machine dealers are in perhaps a little different category, their stock-in-trade, no matter how old, having been acquired for resale . . .

Which reminds us that there is still a lot of scrap piles in Prince Rupert which should interest salvors.

Advertise for Security . . .

"Why advertise when I can't get enough stuff to sell as it is? And anyway, why increase my profits just to have the government take it away from me in taxes?" Those are typical of the questions which the advertising salesman faces today and to which a New York advertising executive has recently put the answers in convincing form, observes the Comox District Free Press.

Advertising is much more than just a sales plug, in this man's opinion. It can be used to create or mould public opinion and is being so used by many large firms on this continent whose entire stock in trade has been cut off in favor of war production. Those firms feel that business men may need a favorable public far more than ever before if they wish to go back into business after the war is over.

The experience of the First Great War still affords a striking example of the dire results of false war economy in advertising. Many of our readers can look back to those pre-war days and recall nationally advertised and merchandized products which, after the war, quickly declined in public favor and finally went out of production. Not that their product was no longer used; they had simply failed to try and sell it to the public. They had stopped advertising.

All business now has a vital job to perform but if it expects to survive the war and the post-war crisis, it must tell the public, convincingly, why it should survive. And let none make the mistake of thinking they can eliminate advertising now and pick up where they left off after the war. Some other more progressive firm will have already filled the breach.

If business, great or small, is to retain its relatively free position it must keep a close contact with the public as the astute politician maintains with his voters.

RESERVE ARMY

Editor, Daily News:
In the September 19 and 21 editions your editorials dealt with the advisability of a reserve army for Prince Rupert. It seems to me a reserve army should have been an accomplished fact months ago instead of just a contemplation. My husband and a group of Dry Dock workers had discussed forming a band and training for guerilla warfare but it really couldn't be done except under military guidance. In this age of fast moving warfare any step that could be taken to assure the safety of our homes and industry should be taken with the least possible delay.

INTERESTED

BRITISH-ISRAELI REPLY

Editor, Daily News:
It has been brought to my notice that Rev. A. F. MacSween of your city, in whose church I had the privilege of lecturing recently by favor of his church board, has made an attempt to ridicule British-Israeli teaching. I took the liberty to call upon the reverend gentleman before leaving your city and spent a very enjoyable, half-hour with him. He had ample opportunity at that time to mention any difference he might have had with me or my lectures in his church.

It came to me like a stab in the back to pick up last Monday's issue of your paper and read the unexpected attack. This in my estimate was unkind. I would have been delighted to discuss with him the differences at issue in a friendly Christian spirit.

A newspaper is not an adequate channel through which this discussion can be carried on for the theme of British-Israeli covers every chapter of the Bible—both Old Testament and New.

What the world needs today is a practical knowledge of what the Bible stands for. In days like these through which we are passing men and women all around us are demanding to know where God comes in and what the Kingdom of God means to world conditions.

The pulpits have no answer to give to the millions who suffer in the life and death struggle for the survival through the awful carnage on which might nations are spending their all of manpower, money, mechanized inventions and scientific skill, time and labor.

One thing we wish to make clear to every Christian thinking man and woman is that "the Bible is the Word of God." That is what every British-Israelite must believe. Our supreme effort in life is to try to understand the Word and prove it to be true.

In the Scriptures it is declared many times that God chose Abraham to become the father of many nations and those nations, it was declared, would stand to the end of time, "as long as the sun, moon and stars endure." They were to become a nation and company of nations in these latter days.

May we declare that fact to be manifested today before our eyes in the existence of Great Britain and her daughter kingdoms including the United States of America.

There is no possible application to any other peoples on earth. If there is any other application we would appreciate it very much if Mr. MacSween or any of his colleagues would enlighten us on the matter. God "created Israel for His own glory." That is what the Bible says. He gave Israel His own laws. He gave them the land of Canaan and gave them their king and their throne. He called them His people. They were peculiarly His Kingdom. He was their self appointed king. Now if that nation of people were to stand as a great nation having great power on earth in these latter days, can Mr. MacSween tell us where that world power is? Dare he say to an intelligent public of Christians that such a world power does not exist?

Time and space forbid further presentation of the British Israel faith. The reverend gentleman had an opportunity to discuss these issues with me when I visited him a few hours before leaving Prince Rupert. Instead of doing so, however, he chose to attack us when we had no chance to defend our position. Not only that, he unjustly compares British Israel teaching as on a par with Shintoism and Nazism. He calls British Israel teaching "fanaticism and mischievous," when our supreme effort is to make the Bible a guide book or text book for present world conditions.

The situation our reverend friend takes reminds us of the attitude assumed by the Scribes and Pharisees in Our Lord's time. They would not enter the kingdom themselves nor would they allow others to enter.

I would be delighted to discuss this matter with Mr. MacSween privately or publicly at any possible time or place that the Glory of God might be made manifest in the fact of present world conditions.

J. W. PARKER,

President British Israel Association.

ALWAYS GAY

Editor, Daily News:
"Sour Puss" seems to be nursing a peeve because he can't get into the wheelrights' or top spinners' unions without showing his card. He evidently forgets that this is war.

One feature of war's needs in this locality is that they coincide with the natural, though long delayed, development of Prince Rupert and Northern British Columbia.

For the last quarter century or more, since the advent of the railway, in these parts, the pioneers have struggled against almost insurmountable odds to develop the resources and trade courses of the country. In that effort the native population have played a grand and worthy part, a fact which should not be taken lightly. Now the sun has risen and shines brightly on the second phase of development: Prosperity is here for a long stay and when peace is added we will find a great future and a great reward awaiting the young and the faithful — a smiling land of peace and plenty.

If "Sour Puss" really requires a stimulus for his ego he might join the shock troops of society who nightly dance to hooty-cooey smiles or no smiles, along the main drive, and "Dance,

ACTIVITIES OF Y.M.C.A. AND Y.W.C.A.

By DOROTHY GARBUTT, Hostess

Friday night during the Bequette-Venables wedding I started thinking upon the number of junior hostesses who have been married in the past year. Not all were as fortunate as that of Teddy and Edna Bequette and Owen and Bob Hoyt of course but our other hostesses who wandered down the bridal path have been Coral Rogers, Ada Brown, Lois Judge and Pheme Finley. Half a dozen in the course of a single year, not bad, not bad! Strange to relate both of our Y weddings have been international affairs, both girls taking unto themselves boys from the United States. Gwen is now in the States with Bob.

In a recent column I hailed the upcoming parade, Captain Hullin, now I want to say a word of farewell to Captain Garbutt. We shall miss him very much. He entered into his work wholeheartedly and his Sunday evening concerts will long be remembered both for their excellence and for his friendly manner as master of ceremonies. He had a genius for making friends and was a wise guide and good counsellor to all the men who sought his advice. We shall miss him at the 'Y' and I for one will miss the family aura his name threw over me even if he was, as he used to introduce himself when with me, "Captain Garbutt, no relation." I hope we shall meet again.

The padre's concert at the 'Y' last night featured a novel little one act farce about the trials and tribulations of a man who was gratifying the wish of a lifetime and staying in bed for a whole week. The non-co-operation of his wife and family in his effort make the fun fast and furious. The cast comprised three local girls, Joyce Gillett, Betty Norland and Nora Dougherty, and the male members were Americans. Mrs. Good produced the play and we hope she will give us many more.

The Grenadiers lent themselves with gusto to the performance and gave several splendid musical numbers. They have talent in the ranks. Carl Clay gave one of his silly-ass tone poems so popular with the boys.

Mehitabel, dance, caper and shake a leg." He will find plenty of smiles there. But he should bear in mind that the war must be won on other fronts.

If the business people of Prince Rupert don't salaam and smile to his liking it is because they have other and more serious business in hand. The needs of a growing population must be cared for under unusual and increasingly difficult circumstances. I have noticed that they go over the top on every Red Cross and war loan drive—smiles or no smiles.

Albert Ross of Prudhomme Lake Is One of Colorful Old Timers Of These Parts

Albert Ross, who hires out boats for fishermen, and picnickers at Prudhomme Lake, raises flowers and vegetables and also finds time to dig into a hillside near his cabin where he has a mica and platinum prospect, has now reached his eightieth birthday and says, if he lives that long, he expects to be around for a few years yet. He looks hale and hearty, is full of life and enthusiasm, is still able to put in a good day's work so, doubtless, will be around for a while.

Mr. Ross is one of the colorful characters hereabouts and is well known to people who travel out the Skeena River Highway, particularly the visitors to the Prudhomme Lake area. He is an old timer of Prince Rupert, having landed here from the Yukon away back in 1907 or so when the clearing of this townsite was commencing. Fourteen years ago he sustained a leg injury when working on construction of the Northern British Columbia Power Co. in the Prudhomme Lake area. It was at that time that he settled at his present location and has lived there ever since, digging around for minerals, building boats and cultivating the land.

Mr. Ross has the usual prospector's optimism about the hill near his cabin where he has been digging open trenches into the ground which he believes has good mica and platinum showings. He thinks the mineral came there through volcanic action originally.

The popular old gentleman has been doing a good business with his boats on the lake during the past summer. He is proud of the flowers and vegetables which he grows.

Mr. Ross does not welcome hunters around his place for he is personally friendly with the deer and the wild animals. Two deer have been making their home close to his place all summer and one has become so friendly that it comes up and eats out of his hand.

Leys Beaumont Loses His Life In Air Force Raids on Germany

Many old friends in Prince Rupert of Mr. and Mrs. Reginald Beaumont, formerly of this city, will learn with much regret that their son, Pilot Officer Leys Beaumont, has been listed as killed on service overseas with the Royal Canadian Air Force. He had taken part in raids on Germany during the last three months including the heavy Cologne attack.

Twenty-three years of age. Pilot Officer Beaumont lived in Prince Rupert for years as a small boy. Later the family moved to Vancouver and, before enlisting in May 1940, he attended the University of British Columbia. During summer vacations, he used to run north as a member of the crew of the steamer Prince John.

Canadian Boys From Coast and Inland Provinces Find Lots of Adventure

By FRANK LOWE (Canadian Press Staff Writer)
 HALIFAX, Sept. 28. — Sailors in the Royal Canadian Navy are not supermen. They have no desire to be frozen stiff as boards off Iceland or burnt to a crisp shark's dinner. Yet they keep sailing and fighting despite unnumbered dangers and mishaps.

Men of this type manned the corvettes that took me on a two-way Atlantic voyage this summer, and here are a few I met who follow the sea-lanes despite scorching heat and bitter cold, screaming bombers and sneaking U-boats.

There was, for example, Harold Morris of Advocate, N. S., a tousie-haired youth barely in his 20's who had come into the R.C.N. to pay off a few scores with the Germans. Early in the war, when he was a merchant seaman, a torpedo ripped his tanker apart, leaving him alive, but badly hurt. Rescued from his life raft, he was taken to England and placed in hospital, only to live through a bombing raid that laid the building in ruins.

So He Joined Navy
 Back to the sea he went, this time aboard another tanker. Again a torpedo ripped his craft in two and he and five of his buddies were the only survivors. After that he joined the navy and now lives in a pitching corvette, wanting only to see a submarine crumble before he goes back "and lives a civilized life ashore."

Other men aboard the corvette, young fellows who never saw salt water before the war, had already had a "real do" with the Germans. That was about a year ago, in the icy waters around Greenland. For 72 hours swarms of U-boats pressed home their attacks, spotting the sea with burning wreckage, dirty oil splashes and men clinging to mats and rafts. But they brought the biggest part of their convoy through and made the marauding metal sharks pay for their depredations.

Another Scrapper
 Of similar calibre were the men in an accompanying ship. Typical of their group was Art Manning of Toronto, a short, dark scrapper who got off the corvette Levis when a torpedo splintered her hull.

Picked up by another vessel he immediately volunteered to take his place at the deck rack, and for hours kept rels of TNT rolling down vulnerable submarines that he was bleeding wounds and exhausted time in the water made a nuisance of himself. "We got the guy who shot him first, that's all"
