

Australian Mainland Gets First Bombing

SYDNEY, Australia — More than one hundred Japanese bombers and escorting fighter planes attacked the north coast port of Darwin, potentially vital United Nations naval and supply base, in two raids today. They were the first direct assaults on the Australian mainland. Premier John Curtin, from a hospital sick bed, announced that seventy-two bombers, with protective fighter formations, participated in the first raid this morning and another wave of twenty-one bombers returned to the attack in the afternoon. Four of the second group were shot down. Mr. Curtin promised full details as soon as possible. A communiqué said that the first raid lasted about an hour and was directed against the town itself and shipping in the harbor. Some casualties were inflicted and there was some damage to service installations but details were unknown, it was said.

Chinese Forces Mass For Thailand Attack

CHUNGKING — A Chinese army spokesman predicted today that Chinese forces soon would strike into Thailand in a counter-offensive at the flank of the Japanese but said that the only engagement so far had been a minor action in which Japanese forces were hurled back from a foothold in northeastern Burma. At the same time a Chinese official announced that war supplies for China will be moved over a new land route from India replacing the Japanese-menaced Burma road.

Dutch East Indies Get Reinforcements

BATAVIA — Aneta News Agency said today that "foreign troops," including a relatively small number of Americans, have arrived in Java. Presumably, the bulk of the forces were British Empire troops. It was said that the combined expeditionary forces are "by no means large enough yet but their arrival serves as an indication that the Netherlands Indies do not fight alone." The troops arrived as Indies forces fought stubborn delaying actions in southern Sumatra, southern Borneo and the southern Celebes, stepping stones to this Java citadel.

Spikenard Is Sunk By German Torpedo In East Atlantic Waters

Capt. Herbert G. Shadforth, Widely Known Master Mariner of British Columbia Coast, Goes Down With His Ship.

OTTAWA, Feb. 19: (CP)—Loss of the Canadian corvette Spikenard through enemy action with loss of five officers and fifty-two of the sixty ratings was announced by Hon. Angus Macdonald, minister of the navy. Naval service headquarters said it was believed the Spikenard was torpedoed by a German submarine while on convoy escort in the North Atlantic. The navy said that the fact that only eight men survived suggested that the corvette broke up and sank within a few minutes. Survivors, four of whom were wounded, were picked up by a Royal Naval corvette and taken to a British port.

The Spikenard is the third Canadian corvette to be lost since the war started and the casualties brought Canadian naval losses up to 522.

The captain of the Spikenard was Captain (Lieutenant Commander) Herbert G. Shadforth of the Royal Canadian Naval Reserve who was particularly well known in the Pacific Coast mercantile marine during peacetime, being a member of the British Columbia pilotage and before that serving on Canadian Pacific steamships on coastal runs.

Besides Capt. Shadforth, casualties include Lieut. Patrick Reginald Milthrop of Victoria.

The survivors include Acting Leading Seaman Thomas Russell Deals of Trail who was slightly wounded.

PIONEER IS DEAD

James Munis, Well Known and Highly Esteemed, Passed Away During Night

One of Prince Rupert's best known and highly esteemed pioneer citizens passed away during the night at the Prince Rupert General Hospital in the person of James Munis, for many years lineman of the city telephone department and for the past several years living in retirement at his home on Seventh Avenue near Fulton Street. He had been in failing health for a few years and had been quite ill for the past week.

Born in India, the late Mr. Munis lived in that country for a few years as a lad and then came to the Maritime Provinces with his family. He served with the Royal Engineers (Imperial) in the First Great War. Impatient when he was not accepted for enlistment at the very outset of that war in 1914 he paid his own way to England to join up with the Imperials. He went through the landing and evacuation of Gallipoli and later served in Europe. He sustained slight wounds.

Mr. Munis was an ardent member of the Masonic craft and was a charter member of Tsimspean Lodge here. He also went through the higher branches of the Masonic craft and was a Shriner. His passing will be much regretted by a host of friends.

Funeral arrangements are in the hands of B. C. Undertakers.

Oriental View . . .

Local Chinese tell why the Japanese have been so successful against the British and Americans in the Far East. They say that a white man can fight only a few hours and then must rest and take refreshments, while the Oriental, in spite of the intense heat, will continue to fight without interruption.

Chinese Get News . . .

Local Chinese seem to get war news very rapidly. Yesterday morning they had word that a big battle was in progress in which two million Chinese were invading Japanese-held territory and were getting the better of the fighting. Later dispatches began to come through indicating that the Chinese were massed in force and threatened Thailand.

Warning of Fall . . .

Warning of the coming danger to Singapore were given several years ago by General Sir Ian Hamilton but evidently not heeded. He said that Singapore was thinking almost exclusively of sea and air attack and the Malayan jungle was considered bulwark. So Singapore had to improvise defences and lost out as a result. The methods employed by the Japanese were scarcely envisaged when the defences were constructed and the naval base constructed at the north end was comparatively free from sea attack but, as it turned out, it was definitely exposed. At this base was constructed an enormous graving dock 1,000 feet long and 130 feet wide completely surrounded by concrete walls, deep enough to handle any ship afloat. The huge floating dry dock which was blown up recently to prevent it falling into Japanese hands was also located there. It was the largest base west of Pearl Harbor and included oil storage tanks, repair shops, quarters for officers and men. British, Dutch and French air lines made it headquarters for the Far East.

Congratulations Prince Rupert . . .

Prince Rupert is to be congratulated on the splendid response to the Victory Loan appeal. The organizers and canvassers, we feel sure, will be particularly pleased at the result of their efforts. There seems to have been pretty good teamwork all along the line. What is needed now is a steady continuation of the work day after day until the campaign closes. Some of those who have already subscribed might like to repeat or at any rate to add a few hundred dollars more.

UNIVERSAL DEMOCRACY RULED OUT

Post-War Situation Discussed By Canadian Club Speaker.

Hope for an immediate universal democracy is completely out of the picture for the government of the largest power in the Allied camp is not democratic and is not liable to be for many years to come, declared Major John Simon of Victoria, former soldier, student of international affairs and secretary of the Victoria branch of the Institute of International Affairs, in an address last night before a public gathering under the auspices of the Women's Canadian Club in the Canadian Legion Hall. If Russia had had a democratic government it was more than likely, declared Major Simon, that she would not have accomplished what she had either in peace or war. It was worthy of note, however, that Russia had in her Soviet councils, a base from which democracy in the course of time could be built. Although roughly fifty percent of Russia's population was made up of minority peoples, she, unlike the central European democracies which had now been overrun by Nazi armed might, had encouraged their development along with that of her own people.

As for the enemies, Major Simon said, the only country that could possibly operate under a democratic government would be Italy. In Germany even a very moderate form of democracy would take many years to develop while for Japan, a country that for 2600 years had lived under a feudal system, true democracy was a long way off.

While it was the undoubtedly right of each nation to have that form of government which its people desired, steps must be taken to prevent a national government creating a situation out of which international strains could arise. One of the greatest of such strains—which had been the excuse if not the cause of Nazi aggression leading up to the present war—arose out of the actual or alleged mistreatment of minorities.

For dealing with minority problems after the war, Major Simon proposed the setting up of an international commission somewhat similar to that used previously for the administration of colonies. Its membership should be selected without reference to race or creed, the qualifications being sound common sense, an appreciation of the underlying causes of disputes between majorities and minorities and a determination to see that decisions were based solely on the merits of cases. If the commission's decision was disputed, it should be possible to appeal to an international court whose finding would be final and could, if necessary, be backed by force.

Police Force Needed
Law and order, no matter how good and desirable they might be, could not be maintained without force behind them, declared the speaker, for there were always those who disliked the law and were willing to use force to upset it. The nations of the world should raise and maintain the international force. In the establishment of such a force there would, of course, be many difficulties.

Europe after the war Major Simon envisioned as a land in which all wealth had been destroyed, nations broken up, facilities for peacetime production dispersed, foreign markets lost, living standards reduced to very low levels and the ever present possibility of violent revolution.

Major Simon's subject was "The Atlantic Charter," drawn up last August by Prime Minister Winston Churchill of Great Britain and President Franklin D. Roosevelt of the United States, in which peace aims had been set down. The speaker referred to utterances of various leaders leading up to the Atlantic Charter.

Major Simon then discussed the various sections and articles of the Atlantic Charter in detail, these including the provisions that no countries should seek aggrandizement, territorial or otherwise, a provision of far-reaching implications, bringing up the question of mandates and other problems; that there should be no territorial changes that do not accord with the freely expressed wishes of the peoples concerned;

Saved Tanker—

NORWEGIAN SAILOR IS WAR HERO

Vessel Arrives In British Port With
With Huge Hole In Her Side
But Crew Well and Cargo
Intact

By POSTER BARCLAY
Canadian Press Staff Writer

A BRITISH PORT, Feb. 19: —A youthful Norwegian sailor who dived beneath a lake of swirling black oil in diving suit without a helmet saved a valuable cargo of oil when a tanker, badly battered by storms, was torpedoed in the Atlantic. Story of the seaman's daring was told when the POSTER BARCLAY Sven Endofy, a 14,975-ton British vessel manned by Norwegians, crept into port with a hole 70 feet deep and 40 feet wide in her side. The crew of 234 said the tanker, homeward bound with 20,000 tons of oil, ran into heavy seas which washed away two lifeboats and pounded two rafts to pieces.

Then a submarine, anticipating an easy "kill" surfaced and launched a torpedo which blew a hole in the ship's side. The tanker opened fire and drove off the U-boat, but the vessel, pitching and rolling in a terrific gale, appeared doomed. The only chance lay in releasing some fuel oil from two tanks, but the valves were 10 feet below a slimy mixture of oil and water. Kai Hansen, a member of the vessel's crew for 14 months, was selected to do the job.

Swallowed Oil
Then followed four days and four nights of horror," the youth recalled. "The chief engineer directed me and three other pumpmen were detailed to lend a hand.

"There was no headpiece for the only diving suit on board so that meant I had to hold my breath for long stretches. There was no time to waste. It was a question of getting some of the oil out of the tanks quickly to lessen the weight or the ship would founder. Each time I went down I swallowed pints of oil and water, but eventually I managed to turn the valves.

"I think the second day of the four-day storm was the worst. Some of the 60-ton boilers, used for rendering down blubber, broke loose and then swept past me and floated out to sea. Other steel parts of the ship also broke adrift.

Unless real international cooperation could be established, the speaker foresaw a series of bilateral trade treaties which would block the possibility of equal access of all nations to raw materials. The alternative to bilateral trade treaties would be either multilateral treaties or international trade, the latter of which would be most likely to give the people of the world the security and freedom which they demanded.

Major Simon then went on to deal with the articles of the Atlantic Charter calling for a peace which would afford all nations the means of dwelling in safety within their own boundaries in freedom from want and fear, a peace which would enable all men to traverse the high seas and oceans without hindrance and the abandonment of use of force among the nations.

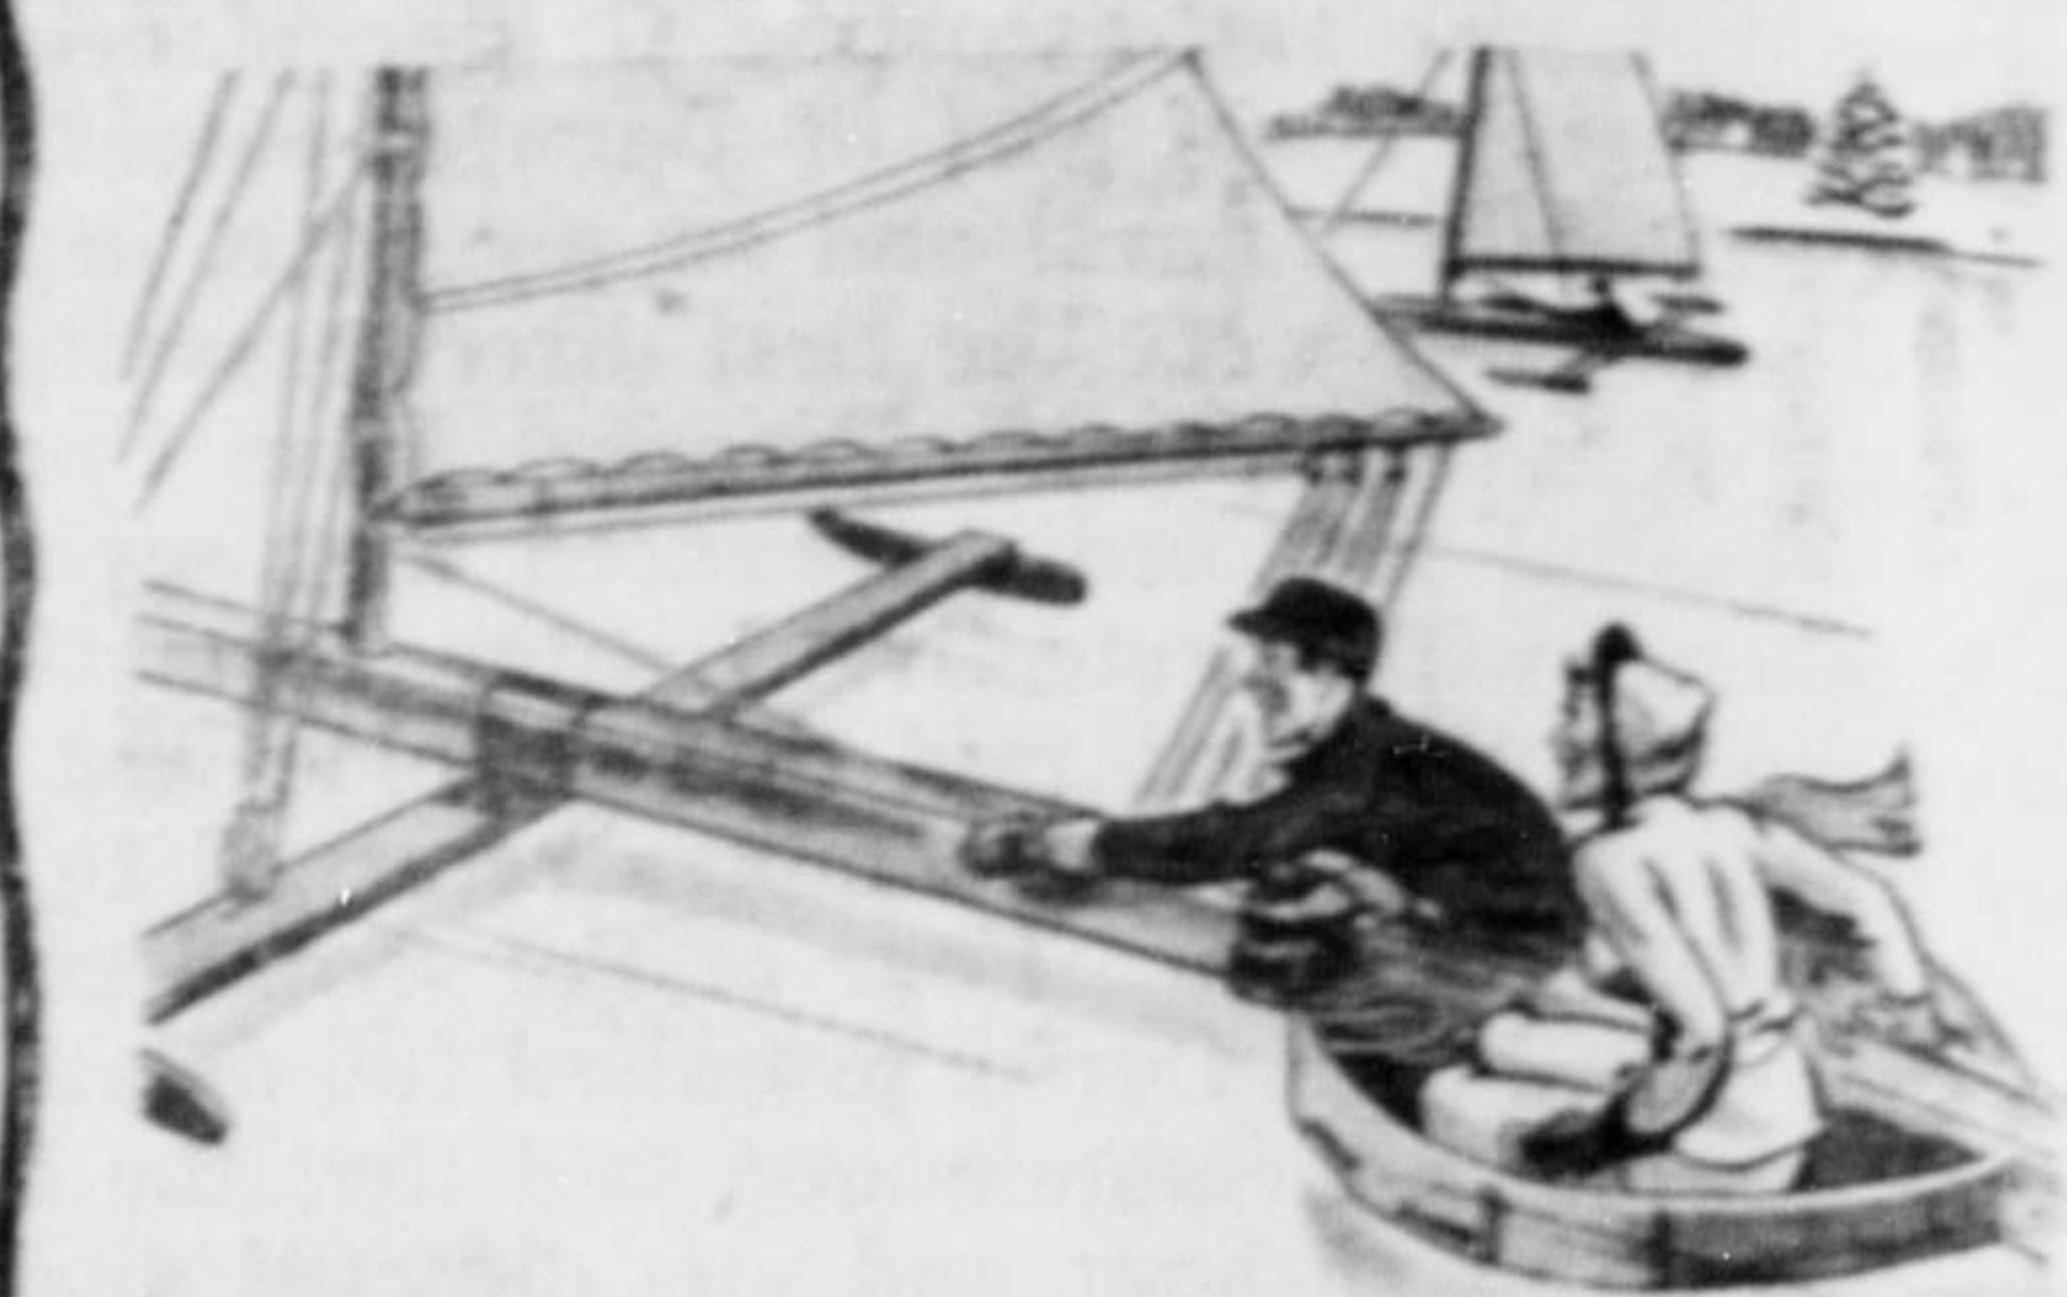

Freedom of Seas
As for freedom of the seas, the speaker declared that there could be no more Pax Britannica to guarantee freedom of the seas. TOO LATE TO CLASSIFY

PAPERS READ AT MEETING

Parent-Teachers Enjoy Varied Program Last Evening.

With Mrs. T. Dixon, its recently elected president in the chair, the Prince Rupert Parent-Teachers' Association held its regular monthly meeting last evening at the Booth Memorial High School.

The minutes of the previous meeting and the treasurer's report were read by Mrs. W. Bussey and Mrs. E. W. Becker respectively. The business routine, being light, was soon disposed of.

The feature of the evening was the reading by members of papers, received through the provincial federation body dealing with child psychology. The topic dealt with was the responsibility of the parent to the child. These papers, unlike very many on this subject, were written in short easily understandable phrases and expressions. The audience showed much interest in them.

The papers contained valuable suggestions which if followed should remove many heartaches of parent and child. Other papers on child psychology will be read at an early date. Those reading the papers were Mrs. Becker, Miss Mercer, Mrs. Andrew Thompson and Mrs. Blackaby.

The following gave delightful piano solos: "Lullaby," a Brahms Grainger transcription, by Miss Bernice Eastwood, and on "Wings of Song," a Mendelssohn Liszt transcription, by Miss Joyce Gathorn. Miss Audrey Grimble recited "The Little Boats of Britain."

At the close of the meeting refreshments were served by a committee of which Mrs. M. Braun was the convener.

By DOROTHY ROE
NEW YORK, Feb. 19: — That great North American gesture, yanking down the girdle, becomes today a matter of grave concern in the interests of national economy in wartime.

Handle your girdle tenderly, advise the corset-makers, and you double its life. It's more important they point out, to take care of the garments you have on hand than to try to lay in a supply to outlast the war.

Here are some rules for making that girdle s-t-r-e-t-t-e-h:

1—Be sure your foundation garments are correctly fitted. A girdle that's too tight not only distorts your figure but is likely to split at the seams.

2—Alternate garments in year. You should have two girdles for everyday wear, a panty girdle for sports and an all-in-one for evening.

3—Keep them clean. Girdles used for all-day wear should be tubbed at least once a week, others after each wearing.

4—Don't yank. Correct putting on and taking off of foundation garments is one of the main secrets of making them last.

5—Repair small damages at once. Never fasten a garter with a safety pin. It will tear the fabric.

6—Remember that girdles, being made of rubber, should never be subjected to heat. Wash in tepid suds, rinse thoroughly, roll in a towel and press out excess moisture (never wring). Hang up to dry away from sunlight or direct heat. Never iron sections made of elastic or nylon.

VANDERHOOF

The Red Cross Society at Vanderhoof continues very active. A series of military whist drives is being instituted. Vanderhoof citizens are very generous in their donations to the Red Cross. Vanderhoof has also made a good start in the salvage campaign for the Red Cross.

Mrs. Jack Faulkner of Fort Fraser is a patient in St. John's Hospital at Vanderhoof.

Mrs. Maynard G. Kerr of Vanderhoof has been spending the past week visiting with friends in Prince George.

Private Lorne Smedley of the Canadian Scottish at Prince Rupert is spending a furlough at his home at Vanderhoof.

A meeting of the Vanderhoof and District Board of Trade was held on Tuesday night when a number of matters affecting the community and the Omineca district generally were discussed.

In addition to his regular Sunday services at Vanderhoof and communities close at hand, Rev. J. Miller McCormick, Anglican clergymen, is now holding services during the week at various points further removed from Vanderhoof.

The Fort Fraser United Church had a good year during 1941, the financial statement showing the church to be in good standing.

Vanderhoof's quota in the Victory Loan campaign has been set at $30,000. This will be quite easily reached, it is believed.

The response of Vanderhoof people to a request that they register their capability of taking refugees in the possible evacuation of Prince Rupert has been rather meagre.

HEALTH IS IMPROVING

British Standards Stood Up Well
But One Worry Is Increase of Death Rate From T.B.

By HAROLD FAIR
Canadian Press Staff Writer

LONDON, Feb. 19: (O)—Britain's health is better than a year ago despite the depressing blackout, monotonous diet and general strain of wartime living, according to health ministry spokesman.

"One explanation of the higher standard of health may well be the beneficial effect on general physique of the comparatively raid-free period through which we have been passing," commented Sir Wilson Jameson, chief medical officer at the ministry.

But the country's health also stood up under last year's raids. Epidemics, feared by many in the winter when thousands crowded air raid shelters nightly, failed to develop. Nor was there a single case of typhoid from water-borne infection, although bomb-shattered water mains and sewer pipes provided ideal conditions for it.

Authorities are pleased by the better record but there is some concern about tuberculosis, especially among women between the ages of 15 and 25. The death rate from this disease in 1940, latest available date for comparison, exceeded 1939 by 9.7 percent and the Medical Research Council has been trying to discover the relation between it and war.

Measles on Wane

Cases of such infectious diseases as measles and scarlet fever were "satisfactorily on the wane," Sir Wilson Jameson said early in January. Another spokesman reported influence and pneumonia cases "rather lower" than a year ago when the incidence of these winter ailments was satisfactorily low.

Until the cold, damp English winter is past, health authorities are not boasting. If the record stands at the end of March it will be time for that.

Besides leading the fight against disease the health ministry investigates means to build up resistance and has interested itself in several surveys, conducted at Oxford. A corps of experts examines the eating habits of hundreds of families.

Investigation so far by the ministry and other government departments indicates that deficiency of vitamin C due to the ban on import of vitamin-rich fresh fruit is being rectified by consumption of more vegetables and potatoes.

Wheatmeal Bread

"We appear to be doing fairly well on our wartime diet but medical experts say we would feel better if more people ate the national wheatmeal bread," a nutrition ministry official said.

Development of this loaf is just one of the steps taken by the food and health ministry to combat malnutrition. White flour is being fortified with vitamin B1 which promotes utilization of food for energy, and the national wheatmeal loaf has this vitamin. All margarine contains vitamin A, which aids resistance to infection of the respiratory tract and helps eyesight, and Vitamin D, necessary for the growing child.

Syrup from rose hips, fruit of rose, that constitute one of the richest stores of scurvy-preventing vitamin C, has been marketed as a substitute for orange juice. A teaspoonful daily provides half a child's vitamin C requirements—but the stuff can't replace that peacetime pre-breakfast glass of orange juice.

IRISH MOONSHINE SCARCE

BELFAST, Feb. 19: (O)—These are trying days for thirsty Irishmen. On top of a shortage of whiskey has come word that Poeten, a "firewater" made in mountain hideaways is scarce because of a shortage of materials.

CHILDREN'S MITES

LONDON, Feb. 19: (O)—Mrs. Churchill's Red Cross Aid-to-Russia Fund has received £1 (about $4.50) from 30 five-year-old children who voluntarily gave up their "candy" money.

THE DAILY NEWS

WHAT MAKES A MOTION PICTURE GREAT?

... a question that millions of movie-goers have tried to answer!

IS IT THE STORY?

Great stories make great pictures! "How Green Was My Valley" proved its greatness by having been read and praised by more than six million people!

IS IT THE DIRECTOR?

The greatest story ever written can founder to mediocrity in the hands of an incompetent director. "How Green Was My Valley" is the crowning achievement of the screen's leading director, John Ford . . . of "The Informer," "Stagecoach" and "The Grapes of Wrath" fame!

IS IT THE CAST?

A great story, a great director, demand a great cast! The selection of the cast for "How Green Was My Valley" was inordinately painstaking . . . consumed more time than actual shooting of the picture!

IS IT THE PRODUCTION?

Most great motion pictures have also been "big" motion pictures. When Darryl F. Zanuck decided to film "How Green Was My Valley," one of the most important tasks was the monumental undertaking of faithfully recreating (as the world's largest film set) the Welsh village in the valley where Richard Llewellyn's beloved characters lived and moved and had their being.

YES. ALL OF THESE MAKE A MOTION PICTURE TRULY GREAT!
