BATTLE TILL HELP COMES

Britain's weary Malay defenders withdrew on to Singapore Island today, destroyed the half-mile causeway to the mainland and swore to battle Japan's armies "until help can come." Thrown back 350 miles in almost two months of bloody jungle fighting, the outnumbered Imperial troops retired to the island fortress under cover of darkness. The question of reinforcements is obscure but a London dispatch today said that a large Allied convoy enroute to Singapore escaped Japanese air attack when it was suddenly obscured by a rainstorm. Simultaneous with the opening of the battle for Singapore, Japanese troops landed on Amboina Island, site of a big Indies naval base, and a furious battle is in progress there.

SINGAPORE, Jan. 31:-The Battle of Malaya is over and the siege of Singapore has begun. Under cover of darkness, British forces withdrew from Malay Peninsula last night to take up the final stand in defence of the citadel. The causeway carrying the highway across AUSTRALIA the citadel. The causeway carrying the highway across Johore Strait from mainland to island was blown up.

Question of Defence . . .

The most of us probably realize now that the matter John Currie, Robert Gordon and of national defence is no longer a thing for the people of Prince Rupert to consider as a vague generality. We are faced personally not only with the necessity of defeding the Empire and our own nation but there is a very real possibility that, ere long, we may be personally defending our own community and our own homes. We do not need Mr. Green at Ottawa or Mr. Winch at Victoria to remind us of that. It was not so many days ago Retail-C. G. Minns, John Bulthat we suggested in these columns that the now very |ger, H. K. Christensen and B. R. critical Battle of Singapore might bring physical war- Dodds. fare directly to us here.

If the alarming pictures painted by Mr. Green and Meekin and W. J. Scott. Mr. Winch, and which many of us have thought of our- Transport-T. W. Brown, A. M. der way. The vote, it is expectselves, have the effect of making the authorities-the Borland, John Dybhavn and G. W. ed, will be taken before the end federal for military defence and the provincial for civil-- Nickerson. even more appreciative of the possibilities that might well be involved by a very conceivable spread of actual warfare from the southwest Pacific to the northeast it will be all to the good. Quite possibly, nothing may happen at all to us in a violent way at Prince Rupert. On the other hand, quite possibly something may. Things move rapidly in these days of modern warfare.

There have been enough grim lessons to make us all appreciate the danger of complacency and wishful thinking. On the other hand, this is no time to be despondent or destructively critical. This is the time for us all to be thinking very honestly and very realistically of what each and every one of us are doing in a personal way to protect ourselves from possible situations which would concern us very directly.

Those of us who rail about how defenceless we are and how others are neglecting us might do well to consider what we are doing or are prepared to do for ourselves. That sort of thinking—not wishful, not hopeless—will inspire us and others to take the action and do the things which will contribute to the security of our persons, our homes, our community and our nation.

Probably the most of us are not doing very much yet. Our enemies are doing plenty and time is passing.

Historic Hotel Sign . . .

In the course of our travels we have run across a humorous list of instructions to guests in frontier hotels and wondered who originated it. We have suspected that it was not original. Scanning through a sketch of the career of Sir Frederick Haultain, who was premier of the Northwest Territories when the now modern prairie cities were nothing more than frontier cow towns. we find it again and have traced its history back a little further to the hotel in Fort MacLeod in 1884, a crude community of between 200 and 300 people and an important post for the Royal Northwest Mounted Police.

Typical of the times when the young Haultain arrived at Fort MacLeod on the stage coach with $45 in his pocket was the sign which read:

"Spiked boots and spurs must be removed at night before retiring."

"Towels changed weekly." "Insect powder for sale at the bar."

"Special rates for Gospel Grinders and the gambling profesh.

"Assaults on the cook are strictly prohibited." "Only regularly registered guests will be allowed the special privilege of sleeping on the bar room floor."

"To attract attention of waiters or bell boys, shoot a hole through the door panel, two shots for ice water, three for a deck of cards."

GIRL SONG STAR HERE

"A Little Bit of Heaven." With Gloria Jean, Coming to Capitol Theatre.

Personality, performance and soprano voice of the juvenile star Gloria Jean are the feature of the musical picture "A Little Bit of Heaven," which comes as the feature presentation at the Capitol Theatre on Monday and Tuesday of next week. The cast also includes a fine collection of old among them C. Aubrey Smith, as Gloria's grandfather; Nan Grey, as her older sister: Butch and Buddy, Billy Gilbert, Frank Jenks, Robert Stack, Hugh Herbert, Stuart Erwin, Eugene Pallette, Nana Bryant, Tommy Maurice Costello, Monte Blue, Kenneth Harlan, Noah Beery, Charles Ray, Pat O'Malley, William Desmond and Fred Kel-

Story of the picture concerns Gloria's family, as loveable and funny a clan as has ever been assembled. An East Side girl, Gloria becomes a radio singing star. Her rise to fame, however, causes family troubles and, when she realizes this, she "loses" her voice and temporarily relinquishes her career. Deprived of the radio income, the family then comes to its senses and Gloria then "recov ers" her voice, a huge concert bringing everything to a happy PRINCE RUPERT conclusion.
