Ran Into U-Boats at Least Once—Hundreds of Canadian Troops Landed

AT A BRITISH PORT, March 10: (O)—A convoy carrying a large contingent of Canadian soldiers and airmen reached port after a safe passage through submarine-infested waters during which depth charges were dropped at least once when U-boats were reported.

In Victoria, per capita, showed a greater increase in marriages and births than any other place in the province.

Victoria, per capita, showed a greater increase in marriages and births than any other place in the province.

There were 285 more births in this city last year, compared with 1940 and 101 more marriages. Vancouver, on the other hand, had 641 more births last year than the year before but marriages dropped by six.

In Victoria there were, last year, 1,425 births, 792 deaths and 816 marriages, compared with 1,130 births, 795 deaths and 715 marriages in 1940.

Throughout the province last year 8,051 boys and 7,598 girls were born. In 1940 there were 7,427 boys and 6,811 girls.

Men Die Fast

Men continued to die at nearly twice the rate of women. In 1941 in B.C. there were 8,058 deaths—5,092 of them men and 2,956 women. In 1940 there were 7,748 deaths—4,957 men and 2,791 women.

Divorces dropped from 687 in 1940 to 578 last year.

This year again appears headed for new records in marriages and births.

In January there were 1,365 births—703 boys and 662 girls—compared with 1,266 births in January, 1941—537 boys and 635 girls.

Marriages Up

Marriages in January this year totalled 604, compared with 547 in the same month of 1941.

There were 847 deaths—538 men and 310 women—in January, compared with 855 deaths—537 men and 318 women—in January, 1941.

Vancouver figures are broken down as follows: 1941—5,722 births, 3,260 deaths and 4,559 marriages; 1940—5,081 births, 3,113 deaths and 4,564 marriages.

Plans for Defensive War in North and Offensive in South Abandoned in Favor of General Assault.

LONDON, March 10: (CP)—Chancellor Adolf Hitler is reported to be digging deep into his reserves of manpower today and moving up forces for a gigantic spring offensive from Leningrad to Rostov with a view to smashing Russia and ending the growing threat to Germany proper. The Germans are said to fear that, if anything went wrong around Leningrad, the Russians might smash right through the Baltic States into Germany. Reliable sources say that confidential advices indicate the Germans have abandoned earlier plans for a defensive war in the north and a sharp offensive in the south and now plan a general attack in view of the Soviet's unexpected successes in the Staraya-Russia area and the weakening of the Finns.

Dispatches from Stockholm and Zurich quoted the editor of the Helsinki newspaper Sanomat as saying on his return from Berlin that "Hitler is putting all his eggs in one basket" for the spring offensive and that "we shall witness the greatest gamble in history. The coming German spring offensive dominates everything in Germany. Tanks and the Luftwaffe will be thrown into battles in numbers never before experienced."

Reports from Moscow indicate that the Allies are now making an all-out effort to rush fresh supplies of tanks and fighter aircraft to Russia before the opening of the German spring offensive and are seriously considering Russian requests for even greater shipments.

The need for speed in delivery of goods has been increased by recent inactivity on Russian front, which bodes no good for the spring, and by the fact that the northern sea route to Murmansk and Archangel, though still open, will soon be more perilous by the coming of the bright Arctic nights.

Anything that cannot be delivered during the coming month or six weeks may not be capable of delivery until long after the German offensive begins.

The Grim Facts

The Russian winter offensive ranks as one of the most magnificent military efforts in history and has definitely handicapped Germany's chances of success this spring. Yet the offensive has not succeeded in rolling up any sizeable portion of the German armies or in regaining any of the principal German bases except Rostov-on-Don in the extreme south.

And Now Java and Rangoon . . .

Java and Rangoon are gone and there is little we can say of comfort in regard to the whole sorry South Pacific picture. Like Hong Kong and Singapore, we had hoped against hope for Java and Burma. In spite of what a sense of realism might have suggested to us, many had hoped that something might turn the tide in our favor, although just what that something might have been none could very definitely say. Possibly, through all these bitter experiences we have been having these last few months, we may gain something in our morale by realizing that miracles aren't happening in this war on which we are embarked—that something just doesn't turn up. We have been having a great lesson in the necessity of facing the facts instead of indulging in wishful thinking and complacency both of which might well prove fatal to us. Possibly the most of us have at last made up our minds that we have a hard and determined enemy to fight and that a grim task lies ahead which will require more—much more—resourcefulness, effort and sacrifice than we have displayed thus far. There is no doubt now that this war is going to come closer home to us, possibly in more ways than one. We might as well make up our minds to that here and now.

There is at least some comfort still to be derived from the trend of the Russo-German war. Things in that arena appear to be still going very definitely in our favor. Today's dispatches indicate a continuation of Russian successes in spite of stubborn German resistance. The battle also continues, apparently, to go well for the Russians in their efforts to drive the Germans away from Moscow, Leningrad and the Crimea.

Local Defences . . .

Prince Rupert people are justified in asking for more adequate measures for their defence and protection being provided. They are wondering why the authorities should be so slow to move in evacuating the Japanese from these vulnerable coast defence areas. Others are impatient at delay in meeting the civilian protection requirements. What conditions exist in connection with our military preparations is, of course, a matter of opinion and, since the military authorities will not say what they think, it is difficult indeed for us to express ourselves. To the most of us there seem many things that could be done that are not being done.

When we make demands of the authorities, we should remember that there is the national and the whole Imperial and Allied picture to be considered. When there is so much to be done and so little time in which to do it, it may be vain to expect that Prince Rupert will get all she thinks she needs. We might as well realize right now that time is short, the enemy is swift and strong, and anything that is done for us should and must be with more than a mere local view in sight. In other words Prince Rupert people, in their expectations and their demands, must now consider something more than their own hides and think of things in a far bigger way. Good soldiers and good citizens under fire or threat of fire do not win wars by thinking only of their own safety.

And, possibly some of the people who are doing the most criticizing, are doing very little in a personal way to help either the community or their own selves. Those of the A.R.P. have formed some opinions along those lines.

There has been a surprising lack of activity throughout the past week in the North African quarter. An ominous silence also pervades southeastern Europe. Spring is on the way and so are big doings in a military way. Who knows where the next blow will fall—and who knows who will deliver it? There are not a few who are confident that a big smash by the United Nations against the Japanese in the Pacific area is due. It is not reasonable to expect that Japan is to continue having things all her own way.

Savoy Wins Newton Cup and Eagles Capture Tip Top Cup

In the play-off last night for the Newton Cup, emblematic of runner-up honors in the Prince Rupert Cribbage League, Savoy Hotel captured the trophy by defeating Falcons with a score of 10-8. In another final Eagles defeated Smiles Cafe 10 to 9 to capture the Tip Top Cup.

On Thursday night of this week Bridge League play-offs will take place, Grotto and Cow Boys meeting to decide the league championship and the Johnson Cup while Prince Rupert Dairy and Pipefitters will meet in the Tip Top Cup final.

The annual banquet of the Prince Rupert Cribbage and Bridge League will be held March 27. Howard Palmer's Alberta rink won the Macdonald's Brier Tankard at Toronto one year ago with an 11-8 triumph over the Manitoba entry. The Calgary quartet will be in the opening session of the evening's play. In the nightcap session Sav-Mor will take on Woanjas while Pushovers will play Stone's Clothiers.

SPORT CHAT

With the Exhibition Hall now taken over for full time use of the military authorities, there is no place left in Prince Rupert for the playing of basketball on any sort of a league basis. The need of some sort of a permanent recreational centre in the city becomes increasingly evident. Local athletic circles are now wondering if the next thing will be the taking over of the Acropolis Hill grounds which would put outdoor sports out of commission.

Rinky Dinks will play Alley Cats and Tollers will meet Peoples Store tomorrow night in the regular weekly fixtures of the Mixed Bowling League. These games will be in the opening session of the evening's play. In the nightcap session Sav-Mor will take on Woanjas while Pushovers will play Stone's Clothiers.

Howard Palmer's Alberta rink won the Macdonald's Brier Tankard at Toronto one year ago with an 11-8 triumph over the Manitoba entry. The Calgary quartet won eight and lost one to take the championship to Alberta for the third time.

Says Britain and Her Allies Have Superiority in Science And Engineering Foresight

"What is this idea of German invincibility? I see from various announcements that . . . this belief has now been destroyed. Destroyed? . . . What began it, and who on earth believed it? In the last war Germany won most preliminary battles, except Cambrai—and was then well and soundly beaten. I thought this war was largely a matter of science, production and engineering foresight? If this is true, it is for the Germans to worry, for they have accomplished very little in the world of invention," writes Prof. A. M. Low, vice-president of the Institute of Patentees, in the London Daily Sketch.

"They are definitely most unoriginal. They improve, alter and manufacture the products of other people's brains—like their worthy allies, the Japanese."

"When these inventions arrive back in England five years later, we say: 'How ingenious are these German scientists!'

"Ingenious, indeed! It may be very wrong of us to neglect invention—but the man who conceived Stephenson's Rocket is far greater than the draughtsman who so arranges detail and labor that replica can be made at half the price.

Associated Contributions.

"Great Britain and the U.S.A. have accounted for most of the inventions which have benefitted mankind. All electrical machinery, from railways to hair-driers, is the result of Faraday's genius. Vacuum cleaners, television the Queen Bee, and the plastics which give us half our household goods—are all British."

"It was Sir John Dewar's research which showed Germany how they could corner a vacuum flash market."

"It was Sydney Gilchrist Thomas (not Tomersch) whose steel process was grabbed by Germans to build up their steel industry against us."

"I have looked through many Patent Office records—and in very few major inventions do I find the Winkelbaums or Schweinleppers. Jones, Brown, Robinson and Mac-something are far more prevalent."

"As far as science and invention are concerned, we certainly have the goods. However welcome they are, we do not even need refugees to teach us to be original."

Real Cultural.

"British students work and play in useful ways. Our 'culture' is not founded on an idiotic system of duelling, when men cut their faces with razors to show their courage."

"Who says invincibility? Even the snobbish few who must go to 'Bad-Hoffen' instead of Bognor as a remedy for over-eating have discovered that the British language is no bar to medical knowledge, and that mystery need not always be part of the cure. Many thousands owe their lives to insulin—to give a popular example; but Dr. Banting was not a German."

"Take artificial silk, canning or margarine (if you can get it!)—these are not German. Nor are streamlining, pneumatic tires, photo-electric cells, radio, the telephone or electric light."

"The German Patent Office reeks of copies and 'improvements.' It is too true that we have only just awakened to the lack of support which industry has given to inventors, who are, literally the backbone of all decent prosperity."

"In war—the torpedo, the airplane, submarine, cordite, tanks, and a host of flying gadgets are ours or our own allies' children. So was the acoustic mine."

Japan Copies.

"Talkies and the mechanical harvester were not German. Nor were the spinning and other textile inventions which helped Japan to hit Lancashire below the belt."

ORGANIZING

Further Plans Made for Assembly to Be Held Here.

The Prince Rupert Youth Conference to be held during the week-end of March 20 will be a broad assembly which will not commit the organizations taking part, it was decided at a conference planning meeting Monday night composed of delegates and observers from the Boilermakers' Union, Toe H. Junior Chamber of Commerce, United Church Young Peoples' Society, Youth Committee, Chinese Youth Association and Teachers' Federation.

Commission chairmen were tentatively chosen as follows:

Youth and the World at War—Bert O'Neill

Youth and the Church—Ken Harding

Youth and Education—Mark Hill

Youth and Industry—George Henderson

Youth and the Armed Forces and A.R.P.—Jack Corrigan

The conference invitation dance is to be held Friday, March 27.

The Youth Committee, an organization having as its function the promotion of a youth conference and Youth Council in Prince Rupert, was given authority to continue organizational work connected with the conference, subject to the authority of the conference planning body which is to meet again prior to the conference.

The new set-up, it is felt, will result in much broader and more active participation on the part of organizations and young people.

The purpose of the conference is to lay down a program for joint action by all local young people towards winning the war against Fascist slavery and towards making Prince Rupert secure against Axis raids, elect a delegate or delegates to the Provincial Youth Conference in Vancouver this Easter, set up a youth council in Prince Rupert.

RADIO RECEPTION

Editor, Daily News:

Today at lunchtime I listened with a great interest to an advertisement by a local concern which told the listening public that a certain very efficient little gentleman was our "Genie of the Lamp" and was mine to command at "The touch of a button." I touched the button of one of the radio sets advertised by the same little man and, lo and behold, instead of the music and news of the world interest that he had just told me "t'was mine to command at the touch of a button," the darn speaker almost blew out at my feet and there was a great rush by different members of the family to save the family radio from falling apart on the living room floor. This has been going on now for a matter of two weeks with no let-up and either the funny little gentleman has pressed the wrong button or something is wrong with something somewhere.

Surely at times like these, when the different services are entitled to first consideration in the use of the airwaves, the public morale should be kept up to scratch. The use of a radio to the average person is denied on a percentage of about 50 percent per annum. This can amount to a considerable sum in these days and, personally, when I am not able to get reception, I go out. Going out very often means the spending of money that otherwise would be saved. All in all the whole matter demands attention and attention right now instead of tomorrow or the next day.

In closing it is my opinion that if the different pieces of electrical equipment that are causing this interference are leaking to such an extent, they must be losing efficiency to a great degree and it is the duty of the persons concerned to rectify them and, by doing so, save money and the patience of the general public.

Thanking you, Mr. Editor, BRITTANICUS

SHAVIAN
COMEDY

"Major Barbara" Is Interesting Picture at Capitol Theatre This Mid-Week.

"Major Barbara," a witty and brilliant George Bernard Shaw comedy in which the popular British stars Wendy Hiller, Robert Morley and Rex Harrison share stellar honors, comes to the screen of the Capitol Theatre on Wednesday and Thursday of this week.

The story concerns a multimillionaire who manufactures implements of war in the belief that to make war on war it is necessary to use all the strength of modern armaments. He clashes with his daughter who is devoting all her energies to spreading the work of the Salvation Army. "Major Barbara," as she is known, is engaged to a scholarly gentleman who sees logic in the arguments presented by the munitions manufacturer. How the romance between the couple progresses leads to an exciting and suspenseful climax with a typical Shaw finish.

Many of the scenes in the picture were photographed on location in Sheffield, in Devon and on the River Thames in the shadow of Tower Bridge.

DISCUSSED

Canadian Legion in Session Preparatory to General Meeting.

Included in the correspondence read at last evening's meeting of the Prince Rupert branch of the Canadian Legion of the British Empire Service League were many acknowledgements of gifts sent to the men serving overseas or out of the city. Among those writing were R. J. Mathews, Stan Heavyides, Don Norton and Don Blake, J. P. Roch, H. Attree, J. G. Wright, J. O. Poissant, D. Houston, D. J. T. Cook, Bert Cross, H. M. Seaton, R. Montgomery, O. H. Trip, C. D. Tapei, Leo J. Hogan, Jack McCartney, Bill Nesbitt, L. V. Tattersall, D. E. Alvey and George Dibb.

The "spirits of the troops" seem excellent. One who is stationed in Scotland writes that "the climate is similar to that of Prince Rupert." The only difference is that what is called a downpour in Prince Rupert is called a Scotch mist there. A heavy rain there would be a cloudburst in Prince Rupert.

The business last night was chiefly in preparation for Wednesday night's regular meeting. Ways in which Canada's war effort might be made more effective and more immediate action that might be taken will be the subject of resolutions to be presented at the general meeting.

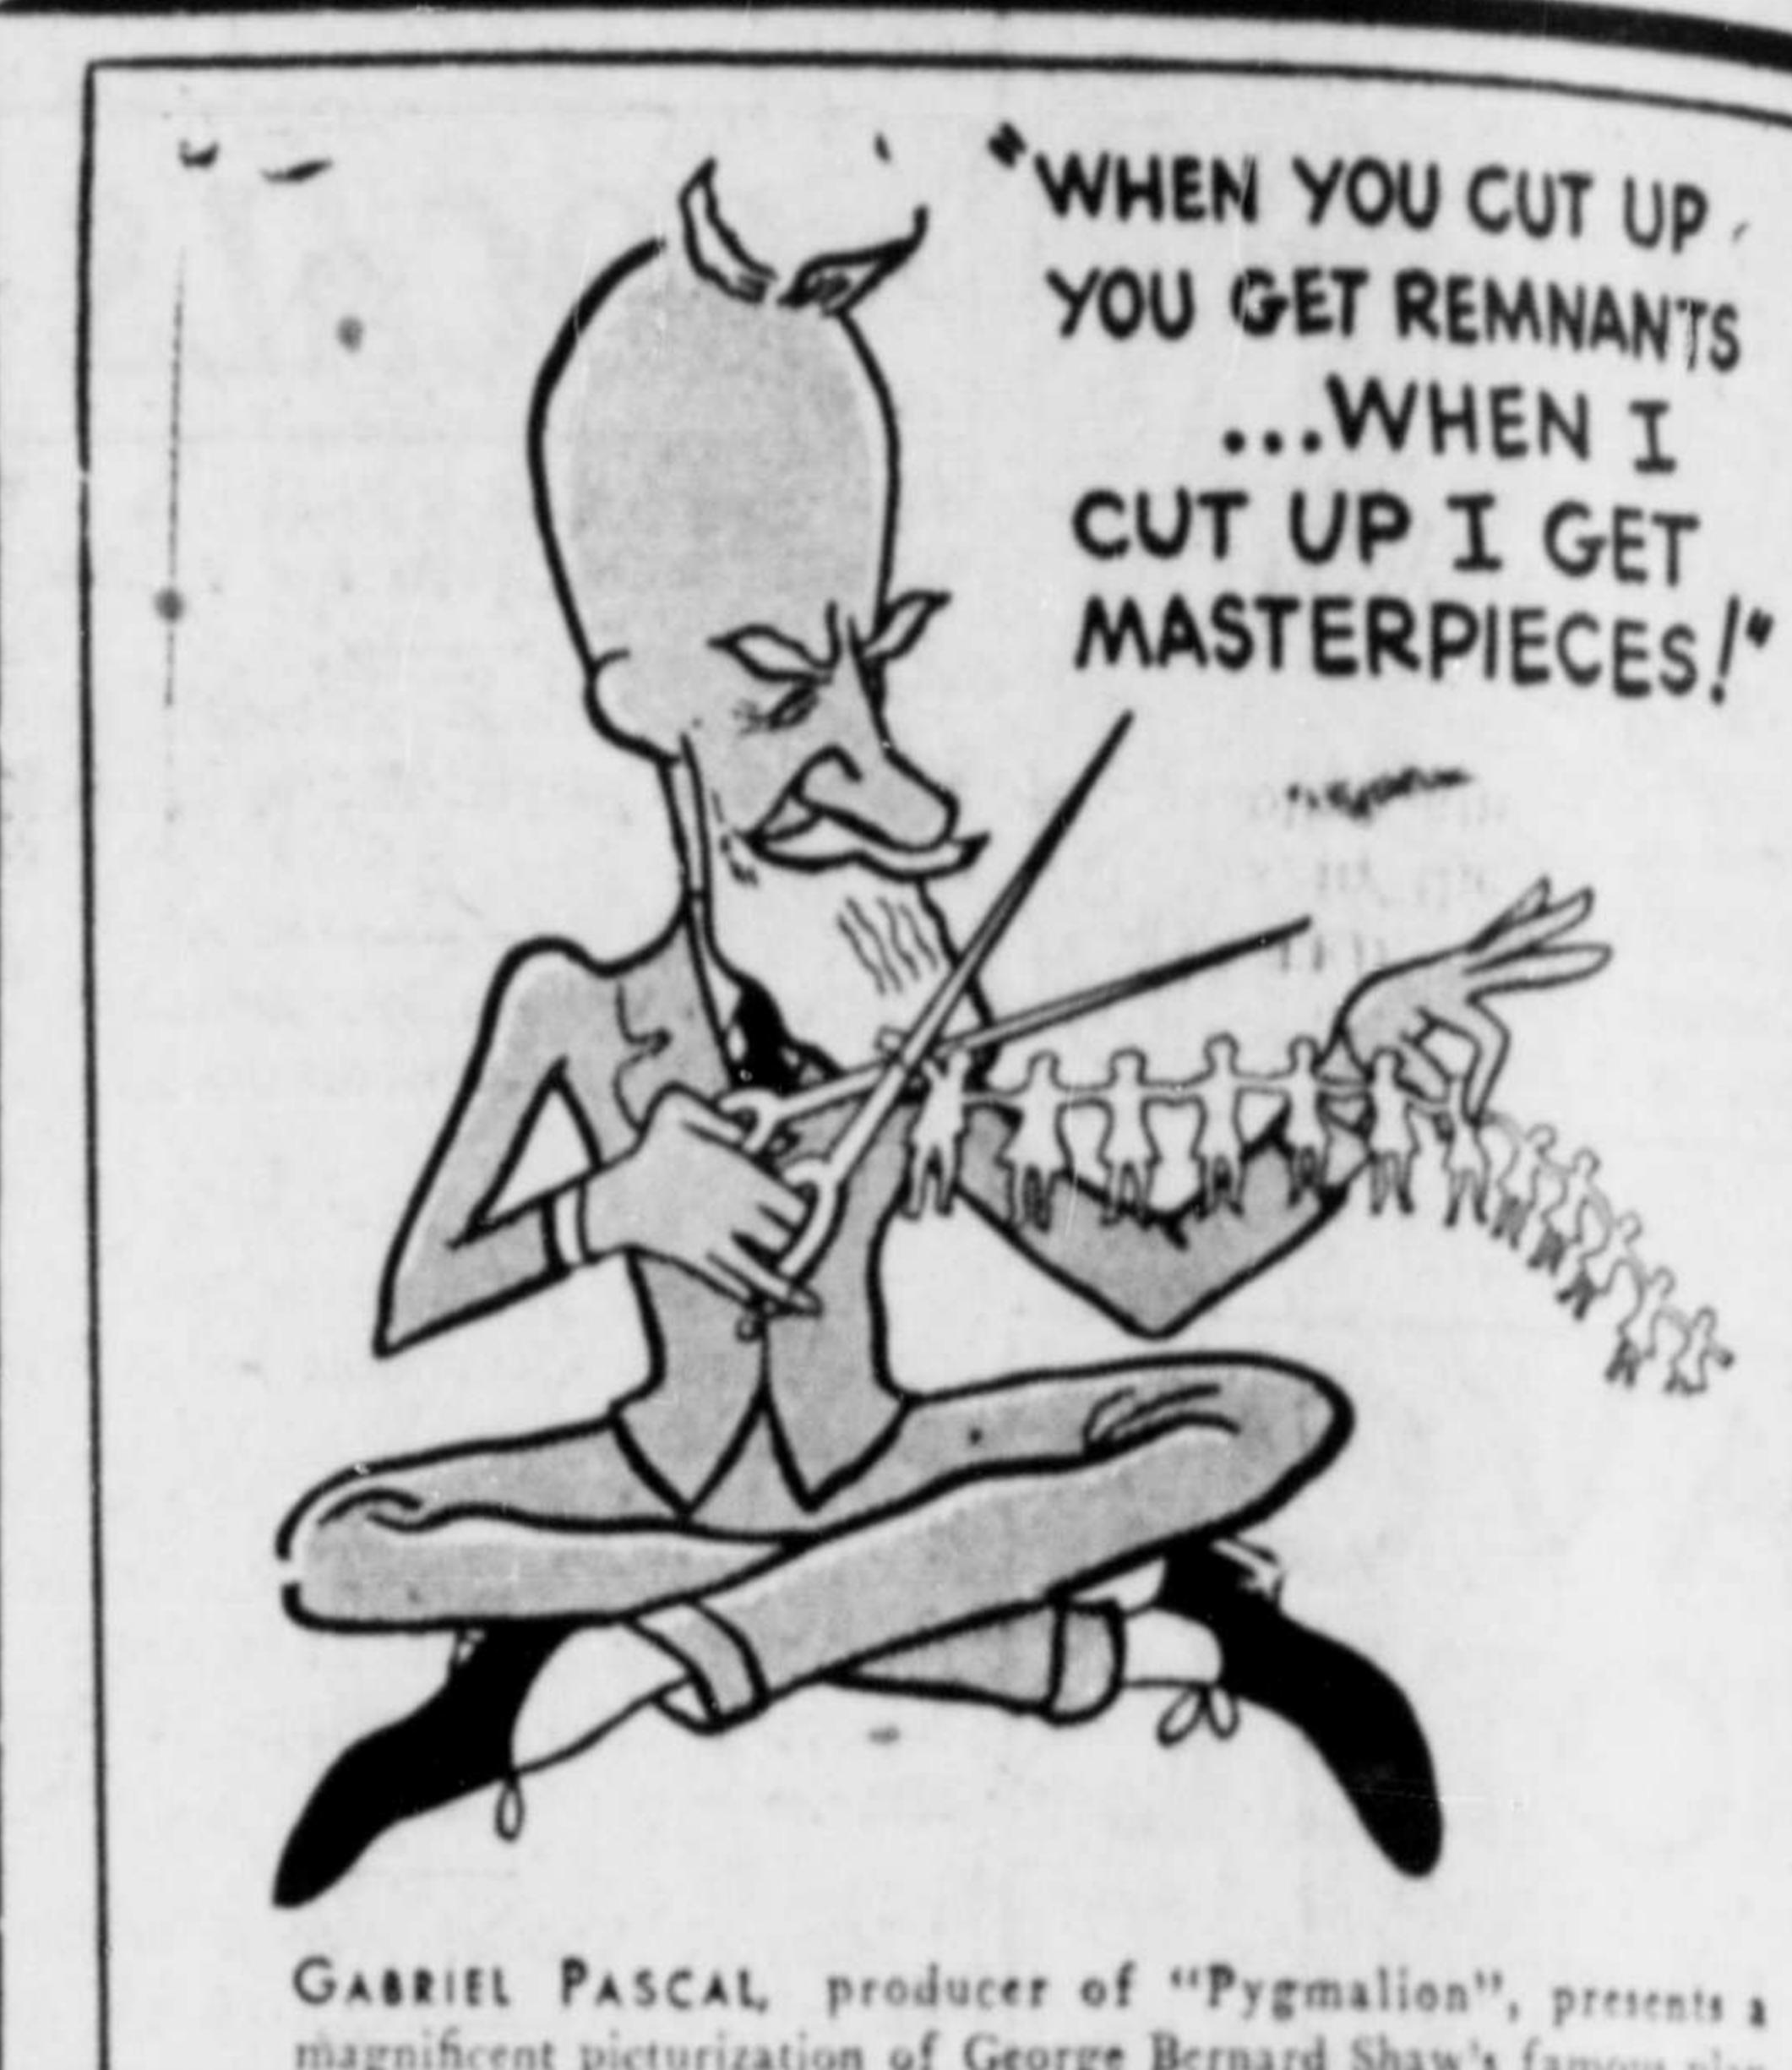

Those in attendance at the meeting were J. Preece, in the chair, Harry Breen, W. J. Rance, G. W. Slater, R. C. Bamford, J. J. Judge, J. M. Walker, George Abbott, Hugh M. Smith, C. L. Youngman, Edgar Woodward and Neil Cameron.
