The U.S.S. Badger, (above), sister ship of the U.S.S. Ward, flush deck type destroyer built after the first world war, saw first action in the dastardly Pearl Harbor attack. The U.S.S. Ward, with the aid of a naval patrol plane, was revealed in a report of the Roberts commission to have attacked and sunk a Jap submarine, about one hour and 15 minutes before the main Japanese attack. The commission also named Admiral Husband Kimmel and Lieut.-General Walter C. Short as the commanders responsible for failure to be prepared for hostile attack.
