Today's War Summary

(By Canadian Press)

U.S. Contingent Arrives in Britain . . .

LONDON—Another large contingent of United States forces arrived safely in Britain within the last few days. Their voyage was without incident. New second front speculations were aroused by this addition to the Allied forces in Britain.

Production "Flying Freight Cars" . . .

WASHINGTON—It was revealed here today that the production of "flying freight cars" had been under way for several months. The rate of production was termed "phenomenal."

British Convoy Battles Way to Malta . . .

LONDON—One of the greatest sea and air battles of the Mediterranean coast Britain the cruiser Manchester and the aircraft carrier Eagle but resulted in the delivery of reinforcements and new planes for Malta and saw Italian cruisers again turn tail and run for cover, the Admiralty announced today. Known Axis losses included two submarines sunk and two cruisers hit by torpedoes, said the Admiralty communique which gave official Allied account of the battle which started on Tuesday. The Admiralty intimated that the convoy might have suffered further losses or damage, saying "It is not to be expected that extensive and dangerous operations of this nature, carried out in close proximity to enemy bases can be completed without loss." It declared, however, that the published Axis claims are known to be exaggerated.

U.S. Marines Push Into Jungle . . .

ALLIED HEADQUARTERS, Australia—For comfort at home, the Imperial Tokio headquarters issued a fantastic claim of Allied naval losses in the eight-day-old Battle of the Solomon Islands today but significantly omitted to mention land gains by the United States Marines. On the debit side the Japanese acknowledged only two of their cruisers slightly damaged and 21 planes lost. In contrast with the enemy's claim of 35 Allied warships sunk and five damaged, the official United Nations figures show only one cruiser sunk and two destroyers, two destroyers and a transport damaged in the attack on the Solomons. While Tokio maintained silence on land operations, Allied bombers continued blasting Japanese ships apparently trying to reinforce their garrisons. Meanwhile unofficial reports in Australia said that the United States Marines were pushing deep into the jungle on the three key islands.

FIRE BOMBS ARE LOOSED Military Analyst Points Out Danger

East Anglia Town Is Attacked By Luftwaffe Last Night

LONDON, August 14:—Considerable numbers of German raiding planes dropped thousands of incendiaries on an East Anglia coast town last night. There were no high explosives and early reports indicated no casualties. The Royal Air Force was inactive over enemy territory last night.

Dried Vegetables Oust Silken Hose

British Plant Turns From Stockings to Food for Troops in Middle East

MANCHESTER, Eng., Aug. 14:—Women, it may be said, have sacrificed silk stockings so troops in the Middle East can have fresh vegetables. In one United Kingdom factory a huge tunnel drier which is turning out dried vegetables was originally designed for silk stocking processing.

Chinese Employee At Ocean Falls Killed Yesterday

His head having been badly smashed when struck by a swinging log in the mill yesterday morning, a Chinese employee of the Pacific Mills died in the hospital at Ocean Falls last evening. So extensive was the injury to skull and brain that there was little if any chance of recovery at any time.

WOULD FERRY ATLANTIC

LONDON, Aug. 14:—Latest recruit to the ranks of the Air Transport Auxiliary, the women's organization which ferries planes from factory to air station, is 24-year-old Diana Barnato, daughter of the R.A.F.'s Sqdn. Ldr. Woolf Barnato. She hopes to have a chance to make a ferry bomber trip across the Atlantic.

Russia and China Fall Situation All But Hopeless Says Eliot

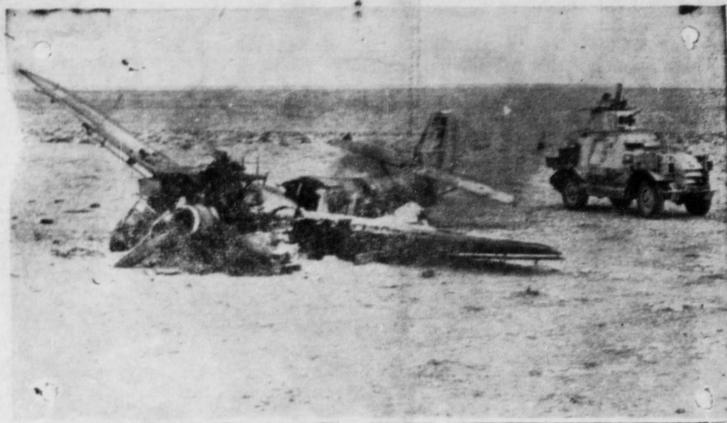

TORONTO, Aug. 14 (special).—Should the Axis succeed in knocking out Russia and China as fighting factors this year, writes the noted military analyst Major George Fielding Eliot in an article in the current Liberty, the enemy will be able to control practically the whole of Europe and of Asia and perhaps of Africa as well and the United Nations will be faced with conditions all but hopeless. In that event, says Major Eliot, the enemy "will have established possession of what Sir Halford Mackinder, in his remarkable book "Democratic Ideals and Reality," calls "the world island." This vast area is far superior in population and resources to the remaining land areas of the world—the Americans, the British Isles and Australia.

"As long, however," continues the Liberty articles, "as Russia and China continue in the field, our two enemies are separated by the vast land mass of Asia and eastern Europe, and each of them must face all the difficulties and dangers of a war on two or more fronts. Their increasing problems of man power and supply will become acute by next year, perhaps insoluble. For the moment our task is to preserve Russia and China as fighting allies. This is just another way of pointing out that blockade and its effects form the foundation of our military effort and that Germany's efforts to destroy Russia and Japan's to destroy China are actually attempts to break our blockade. While China and Russia stand, the blockade on the land side is secure, and our sea power preserves it on the ocean side."

Police Court Notes

Charged with being publicly intoxicated four local residents were each fined $25 with the alternative of spending seven days in jail. They were: George Milne, George Erickson, John Barseth and John Petrov.

END OF A GERMAN DIVE BOMBER

An armored car of the South African forces cautiously draws near the wreckage of a German dive bomber that crashed near Knightsbridge in the early stages of the current desert warfare. There was little need for caution, for there was only death in the plane.

CONVOY IS ATTACKED

Some Losses of British Ships But U-boats Paid Dearly

LONDON, August 14:—The London News-Chronicle publishes reports of a British convoy in the Atlantic having been attacked by German u-boats which paid dearly for losses they inflicted. Several British boats were hit by a criss-cross of torpedoes. Escorting vessels did valiant work in rescuing survivors and fighting off the enemy attackers.

Rediscover Valuable Phosphate Deposits

CAPE TOWN, Aug. 14:—South Africa imported about 80,000 tons of phosphates from French Morocco annually before the war. This source of supply is no longer available. What might have developed into a serious problem, however, has now been averted by the "rediscovery" of phosphate deposits in Cape Province, and a mill where the phosphates will be ground into powder form for farmers is to be erected.

Base Metal Ores In South Africa

CAPE TOWN, Aug. 14:—With the gates of the East closing on valuable sources of essential ores, increased attention is now being paid to the rich and varied deposits which are known to exist in South Africa and which have hitherto been relatively unexploited.

Deposits of tungsten and tin are known to exist in important quantities in Swaziland. Tungsten is a vital metal in the manufacture of war material, particularly in the manufacture of machine tools.

Its discovery in Swaziland dates back to the end of last century. In those days, however, mining and transport costs made it impossible to exploit the find. It is now felt that the acute shortage of tungsten ores will result in a speedy opening up of the tungsten possibilities in South Africa.

SWASTIKA FOR TRAITOR

LONDON, Aug. 14:—An appeal to the people of Brussels to indicate traitors by marking a swastika sign on their doors has been made by the secret Brussels federation of the socialist "Young Guard."

TYPISTS ON THE LAND

MANCHESTER, Aug. 14:—Women typists on the staff of the Pensions Ministry in Lancashire are helping with haymaking, pea picking and the corn harvest in their spare time.

VISIT TO BRITAIN

Power and Breadner Inspecting All R.C.A.F. Establishments

LONDON, August 14:—Hon. C. G. Power, Canadian minister of national defence for air, and Air Marshal L. S. Breadner have completed a visit to the Royal Canadian Air Force in London and are now to visit all other R.C.A.F. establishments in the United Kingdom.

Viscount Lost Count Of His Godchildren

LONDON, Aug. 14:—Viscount Donerale, 75, former mayor of Westminster who died last September, never refused a request to stand as godfather and he left £100 ($450) to each of his godchildren. His estate amounted to £10,000 ($45,000) and now his solicitors are trying to trace all the godchildren the Viscount had. A list he compiled before death was incomplete "because he lost count."

LETTERS FROM HOME CHEER AIRWOMEN

While Canadians at home are sending cheery letters overseas to their sons and husbands, men and women in Newfoundland are writing similar letters to their daughters "overseas" in Canada who are in training at the R.C.A.F. Women's Division Manning Depot. Here, left to right, A.W. 2 M. M. Kennedy, Harbor Grace, A.W. 2 G. Harvey and A.W. 2 J. E. Adams of St. John's, smile as they read the home town news. Letter-writing is one of the more pleasant tasks imposed by war upon stay-at-homes. Less pleasing but of vital importance are the various restrictions of war-time living such as sugar, tea, coffee and gasoline rationing which are also accepted with a smile.

Marshall Timoshenko's Armies Counter-Attacking Heavily to Repulse Stalingrad Drive — Russians Press Offensive on Other Sectors

MOSCOW, Aug. 14 (CP) — Marshall Timoshenko's Red Armies were reported to have crushed the first great Nazi onslaught toward Stalingrad today, counter-attacking to drive back the Germans after they broke through and reached the Don River south of Kletsakaya, 75 miles northwest of the big Volga steel city. ## Transport Problem Being Solved

Training Planes, Trucks all Take Part in Interior War Effort

By HERBERT JONES
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)
SOMEWHERE IN INTERIOR BRITISH COLUMBIA, Aug. 14:—The spinning wheels of the fast freight seemed to be clicking out a victory song as she sped through the night, answering a transportation crisis somewhere in the British Columbia interior.

Over a mountain grade and down into a valley and her score of cars screeched to a stop beside the twinkling lights of a railway settlement. Cars bulging with needed supplies and flat cars loaded with vital machinery were shunted off for some construction camp, where a road is going through or an airport is being built.

Then in a cloud of steam she puffed off, speeding westward. Tomorrow and the next day and the day after that other freights will follow, disgorging their loads in this interior country where a wartime boom has raised an unprecedented cry for supplies, and consequently a major transportation problem.

With big construction projects underway and army camps established here, thousands of men have moved into the area. The cry is for machinery, for food, for clothing, for lumber, in fact for almost everything imaginable. For a time demand far exceeded supply and the capacity to deliver the goods.

But the answer is being quickly given by speeding freight trains and roaring planes, and transportation companies are doing an unprecedented business.

Great transport planes wing up from the south, using a network of airfields. Perhaps they will unload their cargoes here, or perhaps they will fly on northward to where American engineers are pushing through a road to Alaska. Some remote areas cannot yet be reached by road. But the roads are being built to connect with a provincial highway network. When these are complete big transport trucks probably will add their growth to the boomtime transportation song in British Columbia's interior country.

LONDON, Aug. 14:—One London columnist sums up the feminine reaction to the trend towards short skirts with this quote from a lady friend: "Most of us are in favor of it but it will be necessary for us all to sit and walk gracefully."

'Gift From Heaven' Brought Court Fine

LONDON, August 14:—When Mrs. Florence Dowsett, 62-year old widow of Stanstead Road, Forest Hill, found a 4 1/2 gallon cask of beer in the road outside her gate she accepted it with gratitude as a "gift from Heaven." It really wasn't of course, but anyway she tapped the cask at her daughter's wedding. Then by mistake the empty barrel was returned to the beer people and recognized as one which fell off a lorry. It cost Mrs. Dowsett about $9 in costs when she appeared in court.

Women To Work; Register Sept.

Acceptance of Work Still Voluntary—Compulsion Hinted

MONTREAL, Aug. 14:—Elliott M. Little, director of National Selective Service said tonight that national registration of women will start early in September. While registration will be compulsory, women will not be forced to accept positions offered at this time. Serious developments in the war situation, it was indicated, might bring about the setting aside of the voluntary basis on which women are now recruited into war industry.

EDITORIAL

Battle for the Solomon Islands . . .

Whether the Allied attack on the most easterly of the Japanese-occupied Solomon Islands proves a complete success or not, its motive is quite clear. It is a local operation, on a relatively small scale, designed primarily to push the enemy further from the American-Australian ocean routes. A secondary and almost equally valuable result would be to upset any plans the Japanese had made to encroach on or to invade Australia's northern coasts.

That the assault is the forerunner of a large-scale Allied attack in the southwest Pacific, aimed at recapturing all the islands taken by the enemy, is unlikely.

The forces available to General MacArthur are strong, but hardly large enough to undertake such a big job.

The task facing the Allies north and west of Australia is very different from that the Japanese fleet faced. They struck when they were ready and the United Nations were not. The Allies lacked sufficient air and sea power in that area, while the enemy had plenty of both, especially as he was able to concentrate swiftly for each new blow. Then the Allied strength was diffused in an effort to provide some, but always inadequate, protection for each island and peninsula.

The Solomon Islands battle will prove a helpful victory if the Japanese are driven from no more than the easterly half of the chain. Recent sinkings of Allied ships, reported to the east of Australia suggested the enemy was making good use of his air and submarine bases in the Solomon and nearby islands.

That the Japanese had planned an assault on Australia is doubtful. They would gain little of present advantage even if they held the whole north shore of the island continent. But a realistic threat of invasion might pin down Allied forces in Australia, thus allowing the enemy to pursue more ambitious ventures elsewhere.

Concentration of Japanese forces along the Russian border continues, and at the opposite end of the long line—down in Burma—greater activity has been noted also. It would be surprising if Tokio made no move to exploit the results of Gandhi's subversive agitations in India.

Strategically, Japan might reap a richer harvest if it could conquer India than if it pressed into Siberia. With the Nazis storming into the Caucasus and perhaps able to stage a break-through into Iran, Tokio might well decide to gamble on a supreme effort to smash Britain's defences in India and get to the Iranian oil fields before their friends the Nazis could.

About the worst thing that could happen to the Allies would be to lose India and the Middle East, and with them their great natural resources and command of the Indian Ocean and the eastern Mediterranean. They would be hard hit even if Japan pushed into India only as far as the Ganges and Calcutta, for this is a great Indian manufacturing zone and its loss would also isolate China completely.

Next month the monsoon season draws to a close, and India's eastern borders may then see heavy fighting.

 With Rusty Grey
 In Convoy Going

Impressions of Woman Writer as Ships Guarded by Plane and Corvette Start Trip Across Atlantic

By AGATHA PALMER
 Canadian Press Staff Writer
 AN EAST COAST CANADIAN PORT, August 14: ☉—A string of freighters, one behind the other, mathematical in their rigidity of procession, move slowly down the harbor. Before them three planes sweep in V formation towards the wider blue swell beyond the head-land.

Another Allied convoy is moving out to sea.

Smart corvettes shoot through the water, their speed seeming in-decently boastful beside the stolid freighters. Mine-sweepers pass by with their air of constant practicality.

A long craft, white and even a little weird, surges astern of us, gathers speed and passes. We recognize it as one of the 50 over-age destroyers which the United States swapped for 99-year leases in history's most spectacular of recent bargains. Beside the modern corvettes she had the appearance of last year's hat beside a 1942 creation. But there is no lack of smartness in the blue-clad men lined up along her decks.

The freighters have the dignity acquired of years of sailing. They are battered, clumsy and resolute.
 Rust splashes their gray sides. At their sterns, guns stand levelled over the gurgling green-white wake.

Of Many Nations
 The procession assumes an international character. Norwegian flags flap defiant crosses of red and blue. The blue and white flag of Greece flutters with almost feminine daintiness, as twentieth-century tramps bear out the traditions of the sea-kings of Crete.

 A tanker labors past with her low decks almost awash. Behind her comes a freighter piled high with drab lumber.

Sailors wave to us from the decks. An improvised clothesline flutters marine underwear just before the mast. One seaman is leisurely having a haircut on deck.
 Another is engrossed in a newspaper, probably the last he will see for many a day. Several women stand on one vessel's deck. They too wave farewell to representatives of the world of street-cars, talkies and dishes that do not gambol as you eat.

Dropping The Pilots
 A fighting plane swoops above them, turns and flashes in the sunlight above us. Its roar drowns the throbbing of the freighters.
 Then as the long line swings out to sea, the pilot boat stands by.
 Black figures slide down the ships' sides, and lean back on their oars as their rowboats rock with the wake. Columns of smoke plume the line now stretching beyond the harbor's mouth. The leading ships grow a little dim, merging in the dazzle of sunlight, mist and gulls.

As they fade away, they merge also with other processions, with gigantic world processions, with the mingling lines of steamers, oil-burners and schooners that in the United States as in Canada, in Australia as in England, roll across the oceans that the tide of armaments and men that already laps the beaches of Europe and must yet engulf the stronghold of Berlin itself.

Soldiering Agrees With A.T.S. Women

Regular Sleep and Exercise Bring New Levels of Physical Fitness

By ALAN RANDAL, Canadian Press Staff Writer. LONDON, August 14.—Service in the Auxiliary Territorial Service is rightly described as soldiering for women but at the same time it is something like a mass health cure, too.

The girls have benefitted from regular and good meals, fresh air and exercise and freedom from the strain of city life. One London woman writer describes them as "the revitalized citizens of tomorrow—a legion of women who have reached a new high level of physical fitness."

These statements are based on the findings of a committee which inquired into conditions in the A. T. S. One member of the committee, Dr. Edith Summerskill, labor member of parliament for Fulham West, reported the girls "so robust they are literally bursting out of their uniforms."

Unless she is already plump—in which case physical training slims her down—the average A. T. S. recruit adds seven or eight pounds to her weight in the first two months, the committee found. On outdoor jobs, especially gun sites, the girls eat as much as, and sometimes more than the men.

A. T. S. Health Chart

Here's how A.T.S. officers put forward their health chart:

Regular sleep and early rising (6:30 a.m.) promotes good color.

Wholesome food at set times eliminates digestive trouble.

Flat-heeled shoes restore balance to feminine figures heretofore used to high heels.

A weekly pedicure reduces foot trouble to a minimum.

On-the-spot attention from the medical officer, dentist and oculist means no ailment escapes the eye for long.

In every A.T.S. camp the quartermaster sergeant keeps an unofficial health chart. It's her list of A.T.S. who come in to have their uniforms let out or to get larger ones. But the girls insist it isn't fat that's causing it. It's newly-built muscle.

Good cookery has an important part in the A.T.S. set-up and at one training centre where girls, many of whom never knew anything about a kitchen except that it was where their mother cooked their meals, are learning kitchen art from one of London's famous chefs.

He is Sgt.-Maj. Gordon Hancock who used to work at No. 10 Downing Street and here's what he says: "I've trained hundreds of A. T. S. girls to be army cooks and have been a cook ever since I left school, but I think the finest cook in the world is my wife."

Dances, Concerts Keep Up Morale

Local Damsels Rushed Off Feet When Soldiers Look For Dance Partners

By HERBERT JONES, Canadian Press Staff Writer. SOMEWHERE IN THE BRITISH COLUMBIA INTERIOR, August 14.—In a hot and dusty little town somewhere in British Columbia's remote interior, a group of soldiers in battledress crowd around an outdoor bulletin board.

They're not looking at the government notices or church notices acked there. The thing that catches the eye is a pencilled sign: "Dance tonight, local hall, refreshments—all soldiers welcome!"

The dance is probably sponsored by a local committee for the entertainment of the troops. The hall will be small, stuffy and probably full of tobacco smoke. The local string orchestra can't stack up against well-known dance bands.

But the soldiers will go and they'll have a good time, enjoying every minute of it as a break in army camp routine.

This might be the picture in any small town in a section of the interior where thousands of troops have moved in. In many cases they outnumber the civilian population four to one, but local residents have banded together to make life as interesting as possible for these army boys so far from home.

In most centres the troops can look forward to concerts and dances arranged by local committees or such organizations as the Young Men's Christian Association, Salvation Army and various church organizations. But getting a girl partner is the soldier's big problem, except perhaps for those who have wives or sweethearts at home.

There just aren't enough girls to go around and its every man for himself in dating what few there are. Consequently the local belles find themselves rushed off their feet, with a choice such as most girls only dream about.

Boating and fishing provides other recreation for the troops, or they can go hiking—but there isn't much of that. Most units have their own football, softball and baseball team for sport-loving soldiers and in one town an old wooden tennis court was resurrected by the men. Book-loving soldiers find suitable reading material in the regimental libraries.

Sometimes the army turns the tables and entertains the townspeople with concerts—such as a recent one in a small town staged by an Ontario unit whose band is the envy of the camp. The entire town turned out and the affair was such a success that others are being planned. Money from these soldier-sponsored entertainments go to buy sport equipment for the boys. Camp commanders foster recreational activity as a vital morale-building factor. As one officer explained it: "When you put a bunch of men out in the woods and offer them nothing but hard army life day after day, morale is likely to go down. Sports, concerts, dances and such help keep the lads happy and when you have high morale, you have a keen, fighting army."

Constant Vigil Maintained By Coast Rangers—Will Co-operate With Regular Army

Speaking at the Rotary Club luncheon Capt. B. T. O'Grady, field supervisor of the Pacific Coast Militia Rangers pointed out that the organization would be an important auxiliary to the Active Service Force in the event of any full-scale invasion of this coast. Its members are men who are thoroughly acquainted with the coast terrain and who are used to living in the woods. In remote settlements, where there is no active force station, it is the duty of the Rangers to prevent small-scale landings, to be informed of the movements of all suspicious persons or craft and to maintain a watch for the work of fifth columnist or saboteur.

The Rangers are being equipped with uniform and arms suitable to their type of work. The Sten sub-machine gun will be prominent in the armament of the force. It is light, all metal, of simple construction and few parts and is being mass produced at a cost of only nine dollars each.

While the organization is informal in character, training will be taken in signalling, musketry and most important of all guerrilla tactics. Except in case of emergency membership does not interfere with civilian occupations. Membership is open only to those not eligible for the Active Service Force.

Women On Parade With Home Guard --Not Officially

John Bull Frowns on it but Persistence and Press Support May Bring a Change in Policy

By ALAN RANDAL (Canadian Press Staff Writer)

LONDON, Aug. 14 (AP)—Women are serving now with Britain's Home Guard, the defence force which in little more than three years has grown from a shot-gun and ditch-fork army into a highly organized army. But the trouble, so far as women go, is that this particular aspect of their war service is absolutely unofficial.

The ban on enrollment of women in the Home Guards still stands—the War Office is adamant about it—but women nevertheless are serving in auxiliary sections charged with first aid, communication, transport and kitchenwork of the Home Guards.

Long since, of course, women have been enlisted, compulsorily or voluntarily, in the armed forces to serve in the A.T.S., the W.R.N.S. or the W.A.A.F. They lead men, in some phases of war industry and they work on the land in the Women's Land Army. The Home Guard is the only holdout, so they are sort of coming into the Home Guard by the back door. The movement is seen as a manifestation of women not qualified for regular army enlistment to stand shoulder to shoulder with their men in defence of their homes.

SMITHERS

Much-needed rain has started falling over the Smithers area and it will be greatly appreciated by everyone. For four weeks there has been a steady continuance of hot and fine weather broken only on one occasion by a heavy thunder shower. Bulkley Valley farmers have made the most of the opportunity and have gathered in one of the largest harvests of hay ever seen in the valley. In many fields it was not possible to drive a car between the shocks of hay. Owing to the shortage of labor the process of harvest has been slow and in some cases it is possible that all the crop will not be gathered, but on the whole there has been a large crop gathered in. Now the ground is exceedingly dry and a good heavy rain will benefit the grain crops a great deal and improve the timothy seed crop to some extent as well as help develop the garden produce.

During the past few days a large volume of smoke has drifted over the valley from the west, and yesterday with a heavy westerly wind the valley was very heavy with smoke coming apparently from a fire in the Terrace or Usk area. It was thought for some time that the fire was just behind Hudson Bay Mountain, and a crew was sent out to combat the danger which seemed quite close, but upon arrival at the spot where the fire was expected to be it was found to be still a long way off to the west and in another district. The smoke poured through the passes in the mountains into this area, however, which made it appear quite close. To date there have been no fires of consequence in this district but with the ground and forests tinder dry there is always an ever present danger of one starting at any time and is good fall of rain would be appreciated by the Forestry Department.

WOMEN WEEK BY WEEK

By GLADYS BAILEY (British United Press)

LONDON, Aug. 14 (BUP)—"Mrs. Britain" is the working class mother, the woman, who with little money coming into the home every week, with three or four children to feed and clothe, and a house to keep clean and neat, has to work hard all day without stopping, seldom relaxing and hardly ever spending any time or money on herself.

Dr. Temple, the Archbishop of Canterbury, praised her heroism in the House of Lords during a debate on the subject of allowances for working class families. He said: "The working class mother with a large family is the real heroine of our phase of civilisation, even more than the men who work dangerous trades."

What is she working for, this "Mrs. Britain?" Take one example of thousands like her. She is a London housewife, whose husband earns £3 17s 6d a week. She has four children evacuated to the country, three young ones at home and a boy who has just started work.

For her, it is a 14-hour day of work, with no reward, save the satisfaction of knowing that her home is clean and her children are healthy.

The country is worried about the fall in the birth-rate and the prospect of a middle-aged nation in twenty years time. Something must be done to make living conditions easier for the people who, while wanting to bring up a family of children, cannot be expected to carry on in ceaseless drudgery so that the British race does not die out.

The family allowance proposal is that every working man earning less than a certain weekly wage shall be given five shillings a week for each child under the age of 15, and for children over that age provided they are receiving a full-time education.

What a difference such a scheme would make to "Mrs. Britain." The cost of the nation would be about £132 million a year.

"Can we afford it?" someone asked in the House of Lords.

"Can we afford not to afford it?" was the retort.

And that seems to be the real question. If Britain wants to maintain her population, if she wants a healthy people living decent and happy lives, then the lot of "Mrs. Britain" must be improved, otherwise she will decide that it is not worth the heroism which the Archbishop praised so highly, and there will be fewer children in working class homes.

New Prospects For Old Property

Work Going Ahead on Old L. L. & H. Property—Benefits Seen For District

STEWART, August 14 — Intrigued by the interesting and enthusiastic reports reaching Stewart concerning the old "L. L. & H." property on Bitter Creek, now known as the "Bon Accord" group, William R. Tooth and Allan Carolan decided to take a look and see for themselves. They returned to Stewart reporting that all the optimistic reports are fully justified and that there seems to be no reason at all to doubt that a really big mine has been discovered on Bitter Creek at last, after many years of work by many prospectors.

The L. L. & H. itself is an old property. Geological Survey of Canada memoir No. 32 published in 1913 referred to this property, upon which considerable work was done in 1910 and subsequent years. At that time it was known that one of several showings was visible on the surface for a length of 1000 feet, but sufficient work was not done to prove the value of the property. Dormant for some years and spasmodically worked, the property was taken over by a re-organized company in 1928 and some work done. At that time gold, silver, lead, zinc and gray copper were reported. The B. C. Department of Mines report for 1929 stated that the property deserved intensive development with a view to developing mill-grade ore. Again in 1934 a new company was organized, but seems to have done very little work and from then until 1941 the property has been practically idle.

In 1941 J. O. LeFrancois of Montreal, after detailed examinations, decided to drive a tunnel at a depth of 416 feet below the surface, with a view to intersecting the vein which, on the surface, was prominently defined. Work on this tunnel was carried on until the snow forced a cessation of work last fall, and was renewed at the earliest possible date this spring. The results of the work have more than justified Mr. LeFrancois' faith in the property.

The present workings may be described as a series of three tunnels, the first of which, at a depth of 100 feet extends for 79 feet; the second at a depth of 200 feet has been driven for 336 feet, while the new tunnel, started last year, at a depth of 416 feet from the surface, has now been driven 625 feet. It is planned to continue this tunnel to reach 750 feet. At 406 feet from the portal this tunnel encounters a mineralized zone of a minimum of 5 feet (which was also encountered in the tunnel 216 feet above). This zone indicates the existence of a large ore body of lead and zinc carrying up to 60 ounces silver and better than half an ounce of gold to the ton. Assays over 8 inches gave 60 percent between lead and zinc and 60 ounces silver. This zone is now being further explored and defined.

The main objective of the new tunnel, however, was the intersection of the high-grade gold vein, visible on the surface. This vein was encountered at 622 feet from the portal, within a very few feet of where it was expected. Of a known width of 3 feet, with 500 feet of depth assured, and further depth more than probable, this vein is in itself a mine. It is three feet of solid ore averaging 226 ounces in gold over its full width. As this is a primary ore, with no secondary enrichment, it is fully expected that it will extend to a very considerable depth. Mr. LeFrancois states that this vein is visible for from 1000 to 1500 feet on the surface, which is almost identically the statement made by the Geological Survey of Canada in 1913.

An interesting feature of this operation, though perhaps not very helpful to the operators, was the encountering, at 622 feet of a large underground body of water. This temporarily forced suspension of work and is now being taken care of by a by-pass tunnel. This water formed a huge cave underground and had the effect of more clearly defining the 3-foot vein, which stands out clearly in this cave, which the miners estimate to be over 75 feet high and 50 feet wide. It is interesting to note that in 1911 operators on this property reported being forced out by underground water. This year, however, the water will not be allowed to stop operations.

RELIEVE SUFFERING QUICKLY WITH

In these days when the future of mining is not all rosy, and when the Mines Department of the province and Dominion have been giving earnest consideration to methods of encouraging prospecting and development of new mines it is very encouraging and of considerable importance to have a property of this size and importance definitely proved. The Portland Canal area may well be grateful to Mr. LeFrancois for the faith and persistence with which he has brought about this satisfactory result.

ART IN WARTIME

GARDIFF, Aug. 14 — L.-Cpl. Isobel Crombie, who wrote and illustrated children's books in peacetime, is brightening the life of an Auxiliary Territorial Service anti-aircraft battery in South Wales. Her bright and original paintings cover the walls of the dining room and recreation hut at this particular post.

LONDON, Aug. 14 — A woman, signing herself Gertrude, wrote to a London newspaper asking at what age a woman is supposed to be middle-aged. The smart editor replied he was clever enough never to call any woman middle-aged. "She's either a young woman or an old lady."

Hostesses Busy At Many Dances

The dance situation is getting more or less acute—that is, regimental dances are piling up one on top of the other and, willing as the Red Cross Corps girls and the Junior Hostesses are, they can't be everywhere at once. It would be a good idea if the various units notified the Hostess what nights their dances were to be held and then by referring to the list the dances would not overlap. It's just an idea of course but one that might prove to be practical. Another suggestion is to consult the Hostess list and do the inviting in plenty of time, not just the night before. As I write, two of the Red Cross Corps girls are sitting near me phoning continuously to try and get girls for one of Friday night's dances. You men should get it into your heads that no girl really enjoys a last-minute invitation. Matter of courtesy and all that.

William French, Royal Navy, the British sailor whose illness was reported yesterday, is now on the first stage of the long voyage home. We wish him a safe trip and complete recovery when he reaches his native land.

There's a shortage of ping pong balls due to war production, so treat them with care, respect and even veneration.

Eileen Hamblin, the Army's choice for this year's Carnival Victory Queen has put up a very pretty campaign photograph in the "Y." It's winsome and modest and should win her not a few votes. The same wall space is open to the other queens as well, or didn't they know?

The final league game in the services baseball schedule will be played tonight—Friday—at the Acropolis Hill between the Mid-lands and the Yanks at 6 p.m. "Baseball fans" come out and cheer your team to victory.
