Premier Hepburn Suddenly Resigns

Fiery Head of Ontario Government Has Quit; Conant Succeeds Him

Explains That He Asked a Year Ago That Successor Be Chosen—Attorney-General Gordon Conant Takes Over

TORONTO, Oct. 22 (CP) — Mitchell P. Hepburn, climaxed a turbulent career with a dramatic resignation as Liberal Premier of Ontario, moved to the political sidelines today, giving no exact reason for his sudden action on leaving his future obscure. The forty-six year old Premier, an outspoken critic of the Mackenzie King government, handed in his resignation last night, saying only "it has not been my desire to seek a third term of office" and that a year ago he urged the cabinet to select a successor.

Attorney-General Gordon Conant, aged 57, was sworn in as Premier in succession to Mr. Hepburn.

HIGH HOPE FOR WOMEN

New Honors for Woman Doctor Whose Women-Staffed Clinics Bring Help for Distressed

By ADELAIDE KERR
Associated Press Staff Writer
NEW YORK, Oct. 22. — Dr. Elise L'Esperance's last name means hope. And her career has spelled hope to women.

First, she founded five New York clinics for women devoted to the fight for control of cancer. Next she staffed them entirely with women, to give women doctors and technicians a break.

As a result of her work she is the first woman to receive the 1942 Clement Cleveland Medal given annually by the New York City Cancer Committee for "outstanding contribution to cancer control work." She has just received the award.

Dr. L'Esperance, daughter of a physician and niece of Chauncey Depew, bears her honors with such modesty that she flatly refuses to talk about herself. But she will talk about the "fine work" done by her associates and the help of her sister, Miss May Strang, who co-operated with her in endowing the clinics at The New York Infirmary for Women and Children and at Memorial Hospital.

OTTAWA, Oct. 22. — Vast expansion of Canada's wartime explosives and chemical program with addition of ten new plants, six of them major projects, was announced yesterday by Hon. Clarence D. Howe, minister of munitions.

The location of the plants was not made public for security reasons but completion of the new program will bring to thirty-eight the number of plants of this type in Canada.

GODMOTHER TO SAILORS DRY DOCK CAMPAIGN

Most of Halifax Allied Seaman's Home Has Infinite Variety of Nationals to Deal With Victory Loan Internal Canvass Being Launched Under Enthusiastic Circumstances

By FRANK LOWE
Canadian Press Staff Writer
HALIFAX, Oct. 22. — Clifford N. Taylor, a big, genial chap with a padded waistline and thinning hair, is something new in the line of godmothers. His charges are those cinderellas of the salty byways—merchant seamen.

As manager of the allied merchant seamen's home here—a super hostel run by the Navy League of Canada for the comfort of civilian sailors—he is responsible for the welfare of the men who bring the innumerable freighters and tankers and transports into Halifax. And that means anything from several hundred to several thousand a day.

It's a big order, keeping Englishmen, American, Canadians, Chinese, Hindus, Moslems and Lascars living under the same roof as one happy family, but he does it. For them he is employment agency, adviser, policeman and nurse, and he likes his multi-dutied job.

"This is my part in the war effort," he said, "and it is something I am trained to do." He is, too, as welfare work has been Mr. Taylor's hobby almost since the time he arrived in Montreal with his family from England some 31 years ago. Soon after arriving he was doing community work for the Y.M.C.A. and for seven years worked and studied along these lines.

Served On Freighter
Then he got a taste of sea faring life that now is standing him in good stead. Shipping as a fireman, he served for a year in a freighter on the Canada-Australian run.

But he returned to Montreal, and became supervisor of what was the most original experiment of the depression era—the Montreal day shelter for unemployed men.

There the unemployed of the city would gather for recreation and study and attempt to get a new start in life. But the shelter was closed when it was learned the unemployed of the Dominion were heading for Montreal just to spend the winter there.

"They would ride the rods all the way from Vancouver just to play a game of checkers in the shelter," Mr. Taylor said.

With the outbreak of war he moved to Halifax as a telegraph censor, but when the big, new seamen's home went up, he was only too glad to move in as manager. "These office jobs are alright," he said, "but there you just watch the clock and do the same old thing. Here something new is happening all the time and you feel as though you are helping them along."

2 Years Since Local Boy Lost

It is two years ago today since H.M.C.S. Margaree, Canadian destroyer was lost in action. Bud Ponder of Prince Rupert being among those who perished while serving aboard her. This evening Bud Ponder's father, a veteran of the last war and now engaged in shipbuilding work, will speak over radio CFPR in support of the Third Victory Loan campaign as a representative of organized labor. He is Harold Ponder.

REDS NOW TAKING ON INITIATIVE

Nazi Offensive Slackening at Stalingrad and Soviet Forces are Regaining Lost Ground

MOSCOW, Oct. 22. — Snow swirled across the steppes of the Don and Volga corridor today as the Russians announced recapture of several buildings within the industrial area of Northern Stalingrad and a major trench raid northwest of the city in which more than two hundred Germans were killed. Winter was starting to grip Russia's greatest battlefield of 1942 and the steppes were converted to muddy bogs. Pravda reported an abrupt shift in the weather with dry warmth suddenly succeeded by rain, a cold wave and the first snowfall of the season.

Russian seizure of the initiative in Stalingrad was reported to have come at a time when the Nazi offensive was slackening to attacks in restricted sectors. All assaults at two principal points of combat near a north side factory and a workers' settlement were reported repulsed.

Fighting in the Russo-German war still centres on Stalingrad, showing signs of slackening off elsewhere.

A Soviet submarine is reported to have sunk four enemy ships in the Black Sea.

U.S. LOSES DESTROYERS

Meredith and O'Brien Sunk Off Solomon Islands—Japs Also Suffer—Other Fighting in South Pacific

WASHINGTON, D.C., Oct. 22. — Announcement is made of the loss of the United States destroyers Meredith and O'Brien in the Solomon Islands. A Japanese destroyer and cruiser were damaged.

United States air attack is still stalling any Japanese offensive directed at the capture of Guadalcanal but the situation remains critical and the outcome undecided.

Two enemy bombers and seven Zeros were shot down over Guadalcanal on Tuesday, it has been announced, making ninety-five Japanese planes destroyed since October 13 and more than 352 altogether over the Solomons.

Many Japanese warships and transports are poised not far from the Solomons, supposedly intent on landing on Guadalcanal.

Elsewhere in Pacific

Meanwhile, General Douglas MacArthur's headquarters in Australia announced that Australian troops have driven Japanese forces from further positions in the vicinity of Kokoda on New Guinea and the engagement is continuing with Allied air forces still active.

Rabaul and Gasmata on New Britain and a town on the island of Timor have been effectively bombed by United States aircraft.

SUPPLIES REACH NEW GUINEA DEFENDERS

The old and the new meet in New Guinea to keep supplies moving to the Australian and American forces battling in the hills around Kokoda to keep the Japanese from Port Moresby. AT LEFT a long file of native porters winds toward the embattled outposts with each porter packing about 40 pounds of supplies on his back, while at RIGHT, crew members of a transport plane are pictured as they dumped out packages from overhead. No roads or railways lead to the mountainous inland terrain and all supplies must be moved by plane or by native porter.

LIMIT ON BUILDING

Terrace Village Takes Steps to Prevent Unhealthy Conditions

TERRACE, Oct. 22.—In order to place a curb upon the indiscriminate building of small dwellings and shacks in the village of Terrace the commissioners have passed a bylaw to prohibit the building of more than one dwelling on thirty-three foot lots. For the present the larger lots, which comprise an acre more or less, are not affected.

Since the recent spurge in work around here there has been a tendency for property owners to spread their nets in the hope of catching some of the new stream of money that is flowing through the village like a river in flood. The commissioners at their last meeting, decided that to permit indiscriminate building could, and likely would, result in the development of unhealthy conditions.

Rev. C. A. Wright Speaker Before Local Association Last Night

Speaking before the Prince Rupert Parent Teachers' Association last night Rev. C. A. Wright gave a talk on the work and aims of the Parent Teachers' Association in Nova Scotia. His address was brief but to the point.

Piano solos were rendered by Miss Margaret Briggs who was accompanied at the piano by Mrs. J. C. Gilker. Refreshments were served by a committee headed by Mrs. M. Braun.

Held in Booth Memorial School it was the Prince Rupert Parent Teachers' Association first monthly meeting since school closing in June last. The vice-president, Mrs. G. R. S. Blackaby, occupied the chair, Mrs. T. Dixon, the president, having moved from the city.

The secretary's report was read by Mrs. V. M. Bussey and that of the treasurer by Mrs. E. W. Becker. Items of business included the allocating of $20 each to Booth Memorial High School, King Edward School and Borden Street School, and $5 to Seal Cove School. This was from funds raised in June last by the Association.

Preparations were got under way to hold the annual telephone bridge. Mrs. George A. Hill was appointed convener. Her assistants will be Mesdames G. E. Moore, E. W. Becker, G. E. Hills, R. Weber, S. R. Donaldson and G. R. S. Blackaby. This event will be held on any convenient evening during the second week in November. In the endeavor to increase the number of bridge tables this year all parents will be got in touch with and requested to have, if they possibly can, at least one bridge table in their homes. As such funds raised by the Association are distributed to the city schools for purchase of much needed school equipment and reference books it is hoped that this appeal to the parents to assist will be generously met.

Considerable discussion took place as to the advisability of requesting the local school authorities to open the elementary schools a half hour later and to close a half hour later in the afternoon. It was decided to let this matter stand over till the next meeting.

Piano solo, "The Lark" (Glinka), Mrs. Gilker.
Vocal solo, "Adoration" (Borowski), Mrs. R. G. Large.
Piano solo, "Canzonetta" (Cui), and "Reverie" (Schutt), Mrs. E. J. Smith.

Tea was served by the hostess.

SPORT CHAT

When Capt. Cecil Boyd-Rochford takes over the King's horses now in charge of Willie Jarvis at picturesque Egerton House early in the New Year, riding plans in His Majesty's other stable at Beckhampton will not be affected. Capt. Charles Moore, the King's racing manager, announced that Gordon Richards will continue as jockey for the Beckhampton - trained horses next flat season. Gordon was up when the King's Sun Charlott and Big Game accounted for four of the five classics this season. No decision has been made as to who will ride the Egerton string. George Ridgehead, former French champion jockey, rode most of Boyd-Rochford's racers this season.

Britain's racing public agreed it was regrettable that this record year for the King's stable didn't happen in more tranquil times. Then most of them could have shared in the pleasure of watching the Royal racers scamper home first. His Majesty watched his horses run in the Derby and the Oaks at Newmarket this season but he never has been 100 per cent a turf lover. Fascinating possibilities of scientific mating and excitement of the racecourse have yet to absorb him to the same extent they did his grandfather, Edward VII, and since he was crowned six years ago world events have given him little time in which to enjoy days with his horses, which his father loved so much.

Sam Heapy, credited with riding and training more winning horses than any other jockey or trainer in the world, expects to take out a trainer's licence in Britain next season. His own horses are in Belgium where he rode more than 3,150 winners and trained more than 3,000 first placers. Heapy decided to "scram" when the Germans reached Brussels in 1940. He went to Paris, then to Spain and England. As a youth he served his apprenticeship at Newmarket and went to Belgium in 1900.

Many prominent jockeys and trainers attended the funeral of Capt. Martin C. Hartigan, 53, trainer and former amateur rider who died following an operation. Among the mourners was Gordon Richards, who as a kid of 16 was given his opportunity to prove his ability as a rider by Hartigan. Richards for the last 14 seasons has been Britain's most outstanding jockey. Among Hartigan-trained horses was The Pen, a filly which won the Cambridgeshire Handicap in 1930 at 50-1. The Pen carried few bets beyond what Hartigan and his wife, who leased the filly had invested.

Hitler and Hirohito have Great Plans for Canada

Yes, all Canada's great resources... her wheat fields, her forests, her factories... could be put to wonderful use by the ruthless bully-boys from Germany, by the polite little savages from Japan.

And Canada's boundless acres would provide plenty of living room... for the Germans and the Japs.

But what of the Canadians? The answer is simple when you think what happened and is still happening to the Poles, the Greeks, the Yugo-Slavs—and all the others... in terms of slow starvation, slave labor, mass executions.

Every time a hard-working Canadian man or woman buys a Victory Bond, the plans of Hitler and Hirohito receive a set-back. The more you save and lend... the more certain you help make it that our enemies shall never put their greedy claws on Canada.

BASKETBALL IS OPENED

Two Games Played at Armories to Inaugurate Season

Signals 27, Dry Dock 34.
High School 44, Midlands 22.
Before a goodly number of spectators basketball for the 1942-43 season opened last evening at the Armories.

For the curtain raiser the Booth Memorial High School squad turned back the Midland Regiment in a one-sided affair, the final count being 44-22. Bob Long and Ted Arney, as usual, carried the majority of the point getting on their able shoulders, accounting for 16 and 17 points respectively. The 22 students still lack the system of their team of the last two seasons due to the graduation of Oliver (Shorty) Santerbane. Santerbane was a spectator last evening but is expected to turn out in the near future for some other civilian team. The Midland boys are suffering from lack of practice, being unfortunate in not having a floor out at their camp but are expected to improve as they have material enough to make matters interesting for any of their opponents. This was the debut of Bruce Stevens as coach of the High School and is to be congratulated in the fine showing.

Second Game

In the second game of the evening the Dry Dock nosed out Signals in a very fast and rough affair. Langsull of the Signals reached the showers in the third quarter on personals with Lawford and Chapman of the Signals and Lewis of the Dry Dock carrying their pals until the final whistle.
The game at the half stood 16-8 for the Signals but, until the fourth quarter, the army boys were held scoreless while the Shipbuilders climbed to 22 to 16 in their favor. In the fourth quarter the Dockers again outscored their opponents by one point to take the game 34 to 27. Macphee and Parsons led the Dry Dock point-getters with 11 and 8 respectively while Taylor and Chapman, with eight each, were high men for the Signals.

The Navy failed to turn up for their game with the Air Force and subsequently lost the game by default.

Able referees for the games were Hector McKenzie and Carl Clay of the Y.M.C.A. and the scorekeeper was Mrs. McKenzie.

EDITORIAL

The Case for Victory Bonds . . .

It seems presumptuous and should be unnecessary to appeal to the intelligent people of Prince Rupert to buy Victory Bonds. When the downright necessity and the complete desirability are so vitally apparent, it seems almost a reflection to suggest what people should be doing in regard to the Victory Loan.

We have heard some of the fifth columnist arguments—unwitting or otherwise—against buying Victory Bonds but we have heard nothing to shake the irrefutable reasons why we should not only buy as many Victory Bonds as we comfortably can but why we should adjust our normal expenditures to buy even more.

First, of course, we help win the war by buying Victory Bonds. But, from the entirely selfish personal standpoint, it would be well to remember that, by buying Victory Bonds, we will be laying aside the best of all investments—securities that are backed by all the resources of the Dominion of Canada just as are our bank notes, securities that yield a fair rate of interest, that one can borrow on against in an emergency and that are readily saleable should one suddenly need the cash.

However, there are excuses and alibis. Some of them are quite sickening to hear. For instance there was a young man who blankly informed a canvasser that he considered he was doing his share because he was paying such heavy income taxes. This from a young man who today is earning many times more—even after the income tax was paid—than he was a few months ago and who as late as a couple of years ago was actually on the verge of relief. Probably it never occurred to this young man that the very purchase of Victory Bonds at this time might build up for him an estate that a few years from now may save him from similar financial embarrassment.

And talking about "doing your share," how many of us have gone to the trouble to even think of estimating what our share should be? Surely none of us can seriously think that doing our share is to be measured by the taxes we pay, or even the Victory Bonds we buy as we continue to live in ease, comfort, and comparative safety, so far at least? Can we even consider buying Victory Bonds as "doing a share?" Buying Victory Bonds is the easiest thing, the wisest thing and altogether the most desirable thing one can do in his own self-interest—be it for business, estate or future well-being, leaving the war out of the picture altogether.

The utmost investment in Victory Bonds might well be measured by what we have or will have after making due allowance for just and real commitments on the basis of reduced spendings in keeping with these grave times.

Victory Bonds which are offered now present the opportunity of soundest investment, money secure and returnable and drawing interest, liquid withal almost as readily as the banknotes in one's pocket.

The government is going to get so much money from us anyway. We can lend our money, that which we now have and which we have reasonable expectation of getting under these very pleasant Victory Loan conditions or we can fail to buy Victory Bonds and permit the government to extract the money from us under much less favorable terms. We need not be deluded. That is the choice. It is the reason why we should be anxious to buy Victory Bonds voluntarily to the utmost of our capacity with a feeling of satisfaction and pride. It is the reason why we should not even wait to be called upon by the canvasser.

And now just a word on behalf of the canvasser . . . The canvasser is a busy man or woman.

The canvasser is also intelligent. The most of the canvassers are on the job not for what is in it for them personally but because they feel it a duty to do what they can to put the Victory Loan over.

When the canvasser comes, do not waste his or her time, even if you don't value your own.

People should decide now what they can reasonably give with due consideration to reasonable current requirements based on conditions pertaining to a situation with which we are all faced today and which none of us can escape—in a financial way least of all.

Let us not talk about sacrifice, about doing our share. Let us not evade our own duty by trying to make out that some one else is not doing his.

Let us not say we can't afford to buy Victory Bonds. The boys in the Navy, in the Army and in the Air Force could have said they couldn't afford to enlist. The men who went to Hong Kong and Dieppe might have said they couldn't afford that. And, if one talks about doing a share, just compare our share with that of the boys who have given their lives, the wives who have given their husbands, the mothers who have given their sons. In the light of that does not buying Victory Bonds now seem a very paltry and really selfish share?

—EDITOR.

Letter Box

TIME FOR SERIOUSNESS

Editor, Daily News:
In regard to the letter in the columns of yesterday's paper, written by Lothario, his idea of a good way to sell War Bonds is a very childish and foolish one. It seems that all loyal sound thinking Canadians with means should be only too glad to buy War Bonds. Most good Canadians should also, ere this, have arrived at the place where they think more seriously and deeply than "pretty girls" or "kissing some of the blokes around town." It takes the substantial common sense things of life, high ideals of living to win a war. Any respectable young woman would not appreciate Lothario's idea. Is the road to Victory not a raising instead of a lowering of the standards of decency? Is this a war we are fighting or is it a game we are playing? Do we need God or can we win without Him? This parade of indecency is related to the idea that feminine exposure is a builder of morale. The evidence is multiplying daily that Canada needs a few old fashioned things and needs them desperately—decency and common sense.

—Adj. and Mrs. E. A. Brunson.

"Rock bottom!" was Jim's first thought. "We're on rock bottom. Just can't find the money!"

He's thought some more since. And he's decided it can be done. Jim says he doubts if Merritt lost much time wondering if it could be done when he crossed that bridge at Dieppe.

OUTPUT OF FISHERIES

Year 1941 Was Most Successful on Record, It Is Announced

Largely because of the war, British Columbia's fishermen had the most successful year on record in 1941, according to the annual report of the Department of Fisheries, prepared by George J. Alexander and just released by Hon. George S. Pearson, commissioner. There were record-breaking catches of practically every fish known to these waters; prices were higher than the year before; fish parts, mostly livers, which were thrown away in the days of peace, are now worth money and valuable sources of vitamins and good food in these days of war. The report stresses the importance of British Columbia's fisheries to the food-scarce people of the British Isles. Salmon from this province is being largely used to supplement the sparse diet of the British people.

British Columbia's total fishery output in 1941 was the highest on record. Value reached $31,732,037, an increase over the preceding year of $10,021,870, or 46 percent. Leading this figure was the salmon fishery, valued at $20,879,104, compared with $13,757,091 in 1940. The salmon pack was the largest ever recorded—2,295,431 cases, and its total value rose to $18,406,545, from $11,427,923 the year before.

Average prices per hundred-weight paid to fishermen for principal kinds of fish in 1941 were as follows, with figures for 1940 in brackets: salmon, $6.01 ($3.85); herring, 39c (35c); halibut, $12.36 ($9.75); pilchards, 50c (45c).

Demand Increased "On account of the war," says the report, "the demand for canned salmon increased sharply. Canned salmon is a high-grade protein-food, almost indestructible, and is packed in containers which make it reasonably easy to handle. Furthermore, canned salmon may be stored almost indefinitely without special facilities."

"These factors make it an ideal war ration, which the British authorities were quick to realize. The increased demand from Britain, and Canada's desire to meet it, is the principal reason for the exceptionally large pack."

"Heretofore considerable quantities of salmon have been frozen for the British market, but in 1941 there was no demand for frozen salmon from Britain and no reeling oils, and which brought in refrigerated ship space for shipping, had a demand existed."

The 1941 canned salmon pack consisted of 455,298 cases of sockeye; 51,593 cases of springs; 3454 cases of steelheads; 430,513 cases of coho; 427,774 cases of pinks, and 926,801 cases of chums.

In the 1940-41 herring season the total catch amounted to more than 94,000 tons, of which 76.6 percent was taken from fishing grounds in the vicinity of Vancouver Island.

"The requirements of Great Britain for a low-cost high-protein food during wartime is an ideal opportunity for the herring packers of British Columbia to demonstrate to the British consumer the possibility of supplying canned herring and, if the operators insist on maintaining a high standard of quality, there seems to be no good reason why a very large portion of this trade could not be retained after the cessation of hostilities," says the report.

Last year halibut livers brought in $456,598 to British Columbia fishermen. In addition to the livers, halibut fishermen are now landing halibut viscera, which is also a rich source of vitamin-B ear $121,180 for the fishermen last year.

PROTEIN SOURCE

Soybean meal is now being used in place of part of fish and meat scrap in poultry rations as a source of protein.

TAKES OFF COAT FOR REAL JOB

Director of National Selective Service Has Had Varied Training For His Big Job

By JACK WILLIAMS
Canadian Press Staff Writer
OTTAWA, Oct. 22 ©— Elliott M. Little has rolled up his shirt sleeves to tackle one of the most difficult problems a Canadian ever faced. It may be part of the dual personality of this worker-executive who heads National Selective Service that he feels more at home when he sheds his coat and rolls up his shirt sleeves.

But shirt-sleeve approach does not detract from the trim appearance of this husky 42-year old. Outside his office, in conference with the cabinet or other officials, he usually appears in flannel slacks and a loose-fitting jacket.

The informality of his clothes is typical of Mr. Little—"Elle" to most of his close associates. He is a man easy to meet but with a straight-from-the-shoulder attitude that is apparent as soon as he talks and there's a determination that shows in his jaw.

He left his desk as a paper-mill executive, head of the Rothermere interests in Canada, to do a war job. That job is to help the government tabulate the country's technical personnel—engineers, scientists and research workers. Establishing the wartime bureau of technical personnel he made a success of that assignment and when the time came to choose a manpower boss Mr. Little was asked to take over.

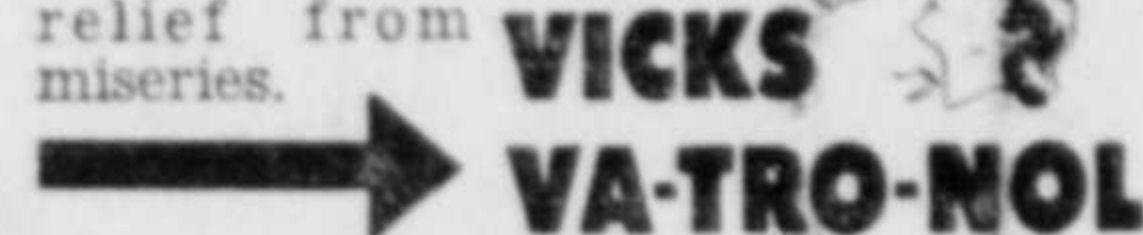

To Work at 14

Part of the confidence he has been able to inspire among both workers and employers is probably due to the fact that before he attained an executive post he did manual work in a paper mill. He started at 14 as an office boy, but after several years in the mill and then training as a pilot in the First Great War, he managed to scrape up enough money to complete a university course in electrical engineering.

That experience has given him a clear insight into the problems of labor and has put him in a position from which he told several hundred union delegates recently that "Labor... should demonstrate a greater appreciation of the difficulties which face management these days."

He has been equally outspoken in talking to employers. He has told them, without pulling any punches, that it is time they placed more confidence in labor and time they set up plant organizations to give labor a voice in management. And he has warned that unless employers want to do it voluntarily selective service may find it necessary to use compulsion.

Still he is convinced that voluntary action is preferable wherever it is possible. The product selective service deals in is human beings. Elliott Little has shown that he is careful to remember that some of the steps necessary to the war effort are painful but the director of selective service has had enough hard knocks in his own life to inflict as few as possible on others.

In Training in 1918

Born in Beachburg, Ontario, in the Ottawa Valley, he went to Halleybury, Ontario, with his family when he was three. At 10 he entered high school and four years later was an office boy in the Abitibi paper mill.

He was doing odd sorts of manual labor when he enlisted for the First Great War at 16, but his family objected because of his age so he was discharged. At 15 he joined the Royal Flying Corps and was in training when the war ended. He worked for a time, took a returned soldiers' course and then entered University of Toronto. In 1925 he was back at Abitibi as a qualified engineer.

In 1932 he joined the Anglo-Canadian Pulp and Paper Mills of which he is now general manager and on loan to the government—a dollar-a-year-man who doesn't ask for the dollar, not even toward his own expenses.

MUSIC AND DANCE TOO

"Holiday Inn" is Showing at Capitol Theatre This Week-end

An original musical show replete with many new and popular song hits, Irving Berlin's "Holiday Inn" comes as the week-end feature offering to the screen of the Capitol Theatre here on Friday and Saturday. Bing Crosby and Fred Astaire are starred with Marjorie Reynolds, Virginia Dale and Walter Abel in featured parts.

Crosby, as a night club singer, breaks away from his partners, Fred Astaire and Virginia Dale, because he is tired of grinding away at singing and dancing in the clubs. He retires to a Connecticut farm and, working it single-handed, has no time to even look at a calendar, let alone doing any celebrating. He conceives the idea of turning the farm into an inn to be open only on national holidays when guests will be fed and entertained with a floor show. There are romantic complications between Crosby and Astaire to lend plot to the music. The songs by Berlin include "White Christmas," "Be Careful, It's My Heart," "Happy Holiday," "I'll Capture Your Heart Singing," "You're Easy to Dance With," "Let's Start the New Year Right," "Abraham," "I Can't Tell a Lie," "Song of Freedom," "Plenty to be Thankful For," and "Let's Say It With Firecrackers." Two old Berlin hits, "Lazy" and "Easter Parade" are also thrown in. Astaire also has a number of whirlwind dance routines with two lovely partners in Miss Reynolds and Miss Dale.

"WHY SHOULD I BUY VICTORY BONDS?"

"WHY?... I'LL TELL YOU WHY!"

BECAUSE Victory Bonds are a sound investment—the soundest investment you can buy today—backed by all the wealth and resources of Canada, and by this country's record of paying every obligation in full, both principal and interest! They yield a fair rate of interest, you can borrow against them; and they are readily available when you need the cash.

"Now, as never before, we must not falter or fail in our war effort. Think of our men who went to Dieppe. Would you have had them go lacking the most deadly armament that we can provide? Buying Victory Bonds supplies these men the weapons they need... aye, and cares for their wounds. You are asked to lend, not to give... and you'll be paid interest for your money!

"Taxes? Of course we're paying taxes... heavy taxes, too. But man, what are they compared to what Canadians are giving over there?"

"We're lucky! We're only asked to lend money. You say you can't do any more? Take stock of yourself. Figure out the things you can give up, and put their cost into Victory Bonds. There isn't one of us who can't do more than he thinks he can!

"And the money you lend... lend, mind you! ... will give these valiant Canadians overseas the weapons of Victory with which they can save your dearest possessions from the ravaging, grasping brutes that threaten your family, your home, your garden, your job... all that you've got, even your life itself."

GIRLPOWER IS ANSWER

War Plants All Over Old Land Manned By Women

BY CHARLES BRUCE (Canadian Press Staff Writer)

LONDON, Oct. 22: (P)—Shop assistants and barmaids make the best workers in Britain's factories manned by women, factories set up all over to turn out the tools for the navy, army and air force.

"That is because they are used to dealing with people and are active on their feet," says the superintendent of one such factory, a government ordnance works which manufactures anti-tank and anti-aircraft guns. But, in fact, girls with experience in more than a score of peacetime jobs — and girls with no previous experience at all — are handling the big machine tools in this particular shop.

Usually there is a skilled machinist for every six or eight girls. But the bulk of the work is done by blue-overalled, 20-year-old girls who once were in domestic service, or waitresses or hairdressers. In this particular ordnance works there was even one former mannequin, two girls who once were professional dancers, and a couple who once labored and argued with youngsters trying to learn the ways of piano and violin.

Making the Guns

Canadian editors visiting the plant saw girls taking the solid steel shaft which is the barrel of a gun in the raw, drilling the bore, rifling, putting on the outside finish, cutting the thread. They saw others turning a solid forging into a breech-block and cutting and finishing the parts that go to make up a tool that will bring down a dive-bomber or stop a tank. They all worked as if they liked it, these girls. Among the more than 1,200 girls in this factory about 400 had had previous factory experience, but it was in the kinds of factories that turn out sweets and biscuits, gloves and hosiery.

This in great measure, is Britain's answer to the manpower question. Most of the girls are unmarried and young. Many will marry and go out of industry after the war. But for the present they will fill a man-sized place in Britain's war economy.

Some Specially Housed

Most of them came from around about the factory site—which by the way, was little better than a slag-dump in the depressed area before the war. Some came in from other points and are housed in specially-constructed buildings nearby. On the day-shift, they go to work at 8 a.m., have an hour's break for lunch at 12:30, and work until 7 p.m. with a 10-minute break in the forenoon and afternoon and

Saturday afternoon off. Factory experts have found that the 70-hour week, in effect after Dunkerque, was no long-range aid to production. The girls are allowed to smoke at their work.

This factory, with individual differences attributable to the type of weapon manufactured, is typical of the program all over Britain, whether in private enterprise or direct government set-up.

ACTIVITIES OF Y.M.C.A. AND Y.W.C.A.

By DOROTHY GARBUTT, Hostess

Well, the navy let me down badly yesterday and all I can say is thank goodness we have an army and an air force. All day long I kept asking the sailors as they came in if they knew what day it was. And not a solitary one of them—except Cliff Humford (top of the class, Cliff) knew that it was Trafalgar Day! Shades of Nelson and Hardy, what a navy!

Don't forget, girls, the Grenadiers' fortnightly dance tonight. Junior Hostesses, Women's Red Cross Corps and Cambrai Chapter I.O.D.E. will meet at the "Y" as usual. Captain Anderson and the boys are waiting to welcome you. And while we're talking about dances wouldn't it be a good idea if the stag line at the "Y" dances were to keep to the idea of it being a line and not a melee to be spread all over the dance floor? The dancers need a little room. In fact, they need a lot of room and a little thoughtfulness on the part of those looking on would help.

Bob tells me that I have to tell this story on myself or else stand in danger of "not being able to take it." It's all about how I went to Terrace on the C.N.R.'s goodwill and nothing else. When the conductor came around for fares going to Terrace I smiled my sweetest at him and said Mr. Gibson had my ticket. That worked fine. Coming home the conductor asked again and I turned to Bob who happened to be sitting by me this time instead of a baggage car and said "Well, no please, Bob didn't buy for me. He thought I bought my own and I thought the last time we went here I was a gentleman. I did pay for that first time, he wasn't playing me, it was a genuine on both our parts. As for my story and I'm stuck."

WHERE EVEN CAMELS NEVER TROD

—"In a cruel, fantastic land where you feel you are in another world, resembling the mountains of the moon"

by RICHARD D. McMILLAN British United Press Correspondent in the Middle East.

With the Eighth British Army in the Libyan Desert (By Cable)—Lusting for power over all the southern valley of the Nile and the desert beyond, Persian King Cambyses once sent an army to extend his sway over the Siwa Oasis. His army never was seen again. It was swallowed up in the desert sands without trace.

In the campaign of 1917 against Senussi tribesmen, a British patrol followed in the footsteps of King Cambyses' warriors. But its cars were ill-equipped to conquer the uncharted sands and broke down. The men of the gallant patrol died of thirst.

Now, after two years of war, the British Eighth army not only has mastered the desert, but it has turned forbidding wastes into a network of highways—byways as familiar to the desert troops as a London bus route. The men who mapped the desert had the heart of Empire in mind, and names like Knightsbridge appear on remote signposts where British history is being relived.

Many miracles of the desert are now accepted as commonplace, but one miracle still stands out. I've travelled 50,000 miles over the desert and I have marvelled at the stamina of our motor transports. I've ridden a Canadian-built Chevrolet and seen it take the terrific beating only the desert can give.

I would like to see the Canadian workers who built her. I would like them to see how this car could take it—in the dash out of Tobruk, shells and bombs bursting all around, and sprayed with machine gun bullets as she sped along, out into Cyrenaica and to Mekili, and up and down the Gazala line. Every inch of the way you hit a boulder or a wheel dropped into a drift of sand. She was waiting outside Bir Hakeim where we watched Rommel's Africa Corps hammering against a desert fort. She passed through Libyan wire entanglements beyond the Omars where even camels never trod—down south where the sun really gets molten and you spend half your time digging out of the sands and the other half blowing your breath on the radiator, the only air you can find in this burning cauldron.

I have watched convoys of Canadian-built trucks rumbling across the desert under the Stuka dive-bombers and the rain of shells from long range German artillery, but still carrying forward the sinews of war to the troops in the front line.

The Libyan dust makes you look like a vaudeville comedian and makes you feel—well you want to lie down under the lash of a sandstorm and die—but those drivers take a gulp of tepid water, fight on, and their trusty trucks never let them down.

On an Axis street near El Adem, I have watched a convoy of tank transporters negotiate a stiff escarpment. A desert Khamseen was blowing, making the desert like a London blackout. I called it a day, but not those lads. They ploughed through the packed dust and crawled up the escarpment, hauling General Grants and General Lees, like steel mastodons, to the front.

It is hard going in the desert, but many times a truck got me there. One even got me there along the Qattara depression where you feel you are in another world, resembling the mountains of the moon. It's the ideal desert vehicle.

The Eighth Army needs guns and tanks and planes, but it also needs the right kind of vehicles. So workers of Canada, if you have more to spare, send them over! Send them soon! Then maybe we'll get to Tripoli and drive down the Victory road—through Italy.

"Dick" McMillan who has served as war correspondent on many fronts. He has a reputation of being one of the best and prophetic reporters in the world.

"I would like to see the Canadian workers who built these trucks. I would like them to see how these cars can take it. The Eighth Army needs guns and tanks and planes, but it also needs the right kind of vehicles. So, workers of Canada, if you have more to spare send them over! Send them over soon! Then maybe we'll get to Tripoli and drive down the Victory Road—through Italy!" . . . McMillan.

This direct cable from the famous British United Press correspondent with the Eighth British Army in Libya explains why our fighting men all over the world are clamouring for vehicles built in Canada. Modern military strategy demands use in overpowering numbers, regardless of transport conditions in the bad lands of the continent. Thousands of these vehicles, we are proud to say, are built in the plants and shops of General Motors of Canada, where men and women stand devotedly to their tasks, for VICTORY IS THEIR BUSINESS!
