De Seversky Says A. Z. Mastery is Pre-requi. New Front

TORONTO, Aug. 7 (spec That a second front in Europ impossible before the Allies w absolute control of the air is the opinion expressed by Major Alexander P. de Seversky, Russian-American warplane designer and author of Victory Through Air Power, in an articles in the current Liberty magazine.

"To transport, let us say, a million soldiers and the necessary equipment," states the Liberty article, "would require-according to all experts-about 15,000,000 tons of shipping. Assuming an average ship of 5,000 tons, it means an armada of 3,000 vessels. We would have to concentrate that huge armada somewhere in the vicinity of operations, thus offering a concentrated target for enemy bombardment before it ever got start-

Major de Seversky, who fought in the Russian air arm in the Great War, believes that Germany can be beaten to her knees only through air power used in a way that the R.A.F. massed-plan daylight raids have thus far only hinted at. United Nations Representatives Meet in Moscow to Plan Succour to Soviet Armies

LONDON, Aug. 7 (CP) — Representatives of the major United Nations were reported to be assembling at Moscow today for "save Russia and win the war" conference the urgency of which is accentuated by the increasingly desperate plight of the southern Soviet armies. This information came from sources which cannot be dis-

MOSCOW, Aug. 7 (9)—The newly reinforced Red Army reported today that counter attacks had rolled the Germans back in the big Don Bend and said the tightened defence was holding firm against the Axis assault southwest of Stalingrad and south of Kushchevka in the northwestern Caucasus. The situation is still critical, however, particularly along the north Caubattlefront where dive bombers attacked in waves attempting to batter openings for the massed Nazi mechanized col-

Reason And Absurdity . . .

A news item of recent date states that inasmuch as swedish fireman who recently the cost of living has increased an additional 1.2 percent broke Sydney Wooderson's world the cost of living bonus will be adjusted accordingly on August 15. The idea that the worker's wage should keep cracked the world record for two pace with the rising cost of living is a sound one. The cost of living has risen sixteen percent over pre-war levels the record set by Finland's Taisto and the bonus now paid is approximately sixteen dollars Maeki in 1939. The government considers this bonus a neces- marks have been sanctioned by sity if we are to retain any semblance of our ordinary the International Amateur Athstandard of living. By what miraculous process the soldier's dollar is to stretch into one dollar and sixteen cents has not yet been revealed.

Many a fine oratorical effort has been expended in telling what will be done for the soldier after the war. Until however the government sees fit to place his wife and family at least on a par with civilian families we are afraid our soldier's tongue will remain firmly in his cheek when harkening to promises of future benefits.

When we passed the embargo on the shipment of scrap iron to Japan there definitely was no implication that we expected the Japs to return previous shipments—as they now indicate their readiness to do.

Air Force Girls Get Big Welcome From The Airmen

Airwomen From Coast to Coast at Ontario Bombing and Gunnery School Find Homelike Quarters

men of the R.C.A.F. like the women of the R.C.A.F. - and they like them so much that they pretty up the women's division quarters at a rugged bombing and gunnery school like a boudoir for their feminine working companions.

Take Jarvis for instance. No 1B. and G. here has a personality all its own. In the first place, it's one men who made it so friendly have made the women's quarters among the most cosy provided anywhere for girls in uniform.

"Yes, we like the girls here." aid Wing Cmdr. W. F. H. Anna, the commanding officer from Winnipeg. Bomber, the N.C.O.'s wistful black spaniel, wagged his agreement.

"They've only been here since May 2, but they've done a good job,"said the C.O. "And we can see where we could use them in a dozen other trades where they could release able-bodied men for active service, so we've tried to make them comfortable and happy. An air station is a bit of a rough place for girls as nice as ours are so we've tried to make their living quarters as feminine as possible." Assistant Section Officer Freda Shack, senior officer of the 90 women on the station, was guide for a Canadian Press reporter. She is a Winnipeg girl who was teaching school in Flin Flon, Man., when she got the urge to enlist. She says she likes her work and certainly she's as snug as a bug in a rug in the Hen House—as they call the women officers' quarters on an R.C.A.F. station,
