City Gives Answer to City Demand Now Only
 Temporary

Northern British Columbians in a letter from general manager, J. J. Little, to the city council last night that it had complied with contractual obligations of agreement to keep the city supplied with power and that it agreed that the prospects of power for other than demands of temporary war services and development.
 Robert McKay was not in agreement with the stand taken by the power company and believed that, under the agreement between the power company and the city, the company was obliged to meet additional power demand no matter the cause for the demand. The letter from the power company was in reply to representations which had been made to the company calling for development more power to meet increased demands.
 Several points in Mr. Little's letter were as follows: The company has complied with all contractual obligations of agreement to date, having installed a 6,000 h.p. turbine and transmission line at Smith River other than at Smith Lake.
 The company has further developed if needed good engineering work carried out at Wood-Smith Lake.
 As far as our studies show there is no demand for power for private or commercial use.
 Increased power requirements have been for war industries and services.
 The influx of war industries and services we had power to care for all requirements of the city and still have left over to revert to peacetime footing. To care for increased loads due to these war requirements we laid out the United States and Canadian governments a program that they advance the required to install an additional Falls River of 6,000 h.
 To increase the height of dam with installation of additional penstock. We in return freeze our earnings as of a selected date and all monies received would be returned, less an amount for operation, until the money is liquidated. So far governments have not accepted this offer.
 At the present time the controller has issued instructions to the dry dock to be closed with power when required in case of emergency or war services increase the costs for power.
 We do not agree that the costs for the sale of power to citizens of Prince Rupert is further power development although the demands for power due to the war are taxing plants to capacity.
 We are in much the same position as the city which has on record that it would spend money to increase the capacity of utilities caused by demands created by war industries and services.
 We believe also that the Public Utilities Commission has decided that it would not permit capital investments for increased capacity due to the war as these investments would normally have to be paid by consumers either in increased rates or long term decreases of a reduction in rates."

Leros Situation Is More Favorable

Albania Is
 Out Of War

BERNE, Nov. 16 (CP)—The Austrian newspaper Donau Zeitung said in the November 6 edition which reached here yesterday that Albania had withdrawn from the war and proclaimed herself a "non-belligerent country."

MINERS AT WORK AGAIN

CALGARY, Nov. 16 (CP)—United Mine Workers of America officials announced yesterday that all British Columbia and Alberta coal miners were back at the pits except four hundred employees of small mines at Mountain Park and Marcoal in northern Alberta.

Workers in the Crow's Nest Pass and at Edmonton returned to their jobs yesterday, these being the last of the larger fields to resume operations following the walk-out of October 31 in protest against delay in considering demands for increase in wages.

A royal commission, authorized to give final decision on the demands and bound to report by November 20, is continuing its sessions at Edmonton.

 brother of the King, will become Governor General of Aus-

Improvements At Fish Floats

Better Sanitary Arrangements, More Light, Water and Road Connections Needed.

The Prince Rupert Fishermen's Co-operative Association asked and received from the city council last night endorsement of representations that are being made to the federal authorities asking that immediate action be taken in making much-needed improvements at the fishermen's floats here where many people are now in residence on boats and where certain conditions are far from desirable.

The requests made of the federal government are for improvement in sanitary arrangements, better lighting system, more adequate water supply, repairs to the floats generally and road improvements.

To Close Off McBride Street At Waterfront

The Department of National Defence (Navy) notified the city council last night of the intention to close off the waterfront from the foot of McBride Street to the public, the city having given over its waterfrontage there to the Navy for defence purposes. However, assurance was given that passage of traffic to the Digby Island ferry would be provided for.

COAST SHIP IS ASHORE

Princess Elaine and Four Other Smaller Vessels Pile Up in Vancouver Harbor Fog.

VANCOUVER, Nov. 16 (CP)—The Canadian Pacific coastal steamer Princess Elaine, which ran aground just inside Vancouver's harbor mouth in a dense fog Monday, was refloated today as fog continued to blanket Vancouver but not so thickly as in the previous 24 hours.

Two hundred passengers the Elaine had been carrying to Nanaimo were taken ashore when the boat grounded.

Four other smaller vessels, including the West Vancouver ferry Hollyburn, went aground Monday but all were refloated and no persons were injured.

The fish boat Moran No. 1 and a Canadian Pacific tug collided. The Moran was badly damaged. No members of the crew were hurt.

Ground Rent On Wantage Road

Owners of shacks on Wantage Road are to be charged a monthly ground rent, fees to be in amounts set by the assessor and that an agent be appointed to collect these fees on the basis of 10 percent of collections. A recommendation to this effect from the finance committee was adopted by the city council last night.

RAID ON BURMA
 CALCUTTA—The heaviest raid yet of the Royal Air Force on Burma took place last night when a large force of planes attacked railway facilities and barracks at a ably known to cave dwellers in prehistoric times.

 mation of the R.C.A.F., later became Director of Training of the R.A.F. and was subsequently Air Officer Commanding the R.A.F. in the Mediterranean. Early in the war he came to Canada to assist in establishing the Commonwealth Air Training Plan. He subsequently transferred to the R.C.A.F. and became Air Member for Training in the Air Council, which post he held until his new appointment. (RCAF Photo)

Mike Colussi Plays At Dance For Two British Princesses

Mike Colussi, well known Prince Rupert accordionist who is on service in Scotland with the Canadian Forestry Corps, writing to Gordon Viereck of this city, tells of having played recently at a dance in Balmoral, Scotland, where the two Princesses—Elizabeth and Margaret Rose—were in attendance and presented prizes for the best costumes. "They sure are nice girls," is the simple but expressive comment of Mike in his letter.

Mike had the privilege of being one of five Canadians and the only private to be taken on a tour through Balmoral Castle "from top to bottom." He says:
 "I wouldn't have missed it for anything."

Although the most of the Canadian Forestry Corps has now returned to this country, Mike is hoping to remain overseas.

Explosion Kills Six

YORKTON, Virginia, Nov. 16 (CP)—An explosion in a warehouse at the United States naval mine depot yesterday killed six civilian employees and injured between 20 and 30 others. Subsequent fires were extinguished quickly.

CIVIC CENTRE IS DISCUSSED

Merging of This and Y.M.C.A.
 Project Now Being Advocated

The co-ordinating committee reported to the city council last night it had met representatives of the Civic Centre Association in the persons of R. R. G. G.
 Large, Robert Gordon and C. G.
 Ham when all aspects of the proposed Civic Centre were discussed and it was ascertained that the association had sufficient funds on hand to proceed with the building as soon as priorities can be obtained.

The committee recommended that the council take all steps within its power to endeavour to effect the merging of the Civic Centre and Y.M.C.A. projects. A draft letter had been submitted to the Civic Centre Association and approved by that body.
 The matter is being taken up with the real estate department of the Department of National Defence. The object is to eliminate overlapping after the war in the way of building through the possible use for civic centre purposes of recreational buildings now being provided for wartime use of the forces.

Vital Help Of Greeks Turns Tide

BODRUM, Turkey, Nov. 16 (CP)— Greek troops who landed on the island of Leros on Friday reversed the situation on the besieged Dodocanese Island just as the German assault had about succeeded, refugees arriving here said today.

The Greeks were said to have gained control of beaches, attacking the Nazis from the rear and relieving the British defenders then pinched to narrow sectors of the island.

The latest Cairo despatches said that the situation on Leros was improved slightly. Reports reaching Bodrum put the German dead at 2,000 but the Nazis were believed holding to the beachheads.

COAST PURSER PASSES AWAY

VICTORIA, Nov. 16 (CP)— Stricken while the steamer Princess Adelaide was outbound from Vancouver for up the coast Saturday night, Leslie Harrington Ellis, aged 34, well known Canadian Pacific purser, died as the steamer was putting back to port for aid. He had been feeling unwell under pressure of overwork and took a stroke at his desk three hours after the ship sailed. Dr. C. H. Hank-inson, who was on board, attended him but it was too late for medical aid to be of avail.

Mr. Ellis had been a purser or assistant purser on Canadian Pacific boats running as far north as Alaska for many years and he was highly esteemed by many friends who will be shocked to hear of his death. His father, who died years ago, was a well known Victoria newspaperman. A couple of years ago or so deceased was married and he is survived by his widow.

Mr. Ellis was going north as relief purser on the Princess Adelaide for James Merrick who was taking a trip off in order to attend the funeral of his mother in Victoria.

Thanks For Past --And Future--Aid

The city council, in committee of the whole last night showed that, while it appreciated the fact that certain components of the population live up to their obligations, it is not intended to let the appreciation blind the council to the need of seeing that those obligations are maintained again when they become proper.

Presented with a list of the repair work done on city streets by the Americans in past months, the committee passed a vote of acknowledgement but reserved the right to request that further repairs and maintenance to the streets most used by the Americans be made when they become needful.

A communication from Col. F.
 W. Adams, enumerating the city streets that had been repaired and the material that had been used, requested that the city council make acknowledgement of the work having been carried out.

Revise New Voters' List

One Hundred More Names on List This Year Than Last

Nine names were stricken from the 1943 civic voters' list when it came under the scrutiny of a court of revision yesterday at the City Hall. The duty of the court of revision was to make whatever adjustments necessary to the newly compiled voters' list under the regulations governing the eligibility of voters.

Out of nine names taken from the list, seven were of deceased persons and two were duplications. The duplications were the result of confusion arising from the fact that two property owners, employing variations of their Christian names, had been automatically registered more than once because they owned more than one piece of land.
 The revised voters' list contains 1652 names, one hundred more than last year.
 The court of revision was composed of Mayor W. M. Watt and Aldermen W. H. Brett and J. S. Black.

Gomel, Anchor of Nazi Line In White Russia, Is Next Red Objective

Almost Surrounded, Its Fall is Now Imminent—Massed Attacks on Eight Sectors of Long Front.

LONDON, Nov. 16 (CP)—Massed Russian attacks dented the German lines in eight sectors of the long Soviet front, the Berlin radio said today, in reports attempting to minimize the Russians' successes. Russian gains were acknowledged from Smolensk to Dnepropetrovsk in the south but the Nazi propaganda pictures the battles as a series of vast German defensive successes.

YANK BOMBS HIT NORWAY

British and German Air Forces Exchange Attacks Monday

LONDON, Nov. 16 (CP)— American heavy bombers attacked targets in Norway today but no details of the attack were disclosed. Berlin reported an hours alarm at Oslo.

Royal Air Force mosquitoes hit western Germany last night and two failed to return.

At the same time Nazi raiders hit southwest England, splattering a coastal town with incendiaries and high explosives.

Incendiary bombs fell in London's outer suburbs, causing some casualties and damage.

Huns Push Back Yanks

But Eighth Army Wins New Hilltop on Eastern End of Line.

ALGERS, Nov. 16 (CP)—Two Nazi counter attacks have driven the Americans of the Anglo-American Fifth Army from the high ground north of Venafro, Allied headquarters announced today, while the British Eighth Army won new hilltops at the eastern end of the Italian line. The German onslaughts pushed back the Americans where a Fifth Army wedge threatened the German winter line.

Land operations were generally held at a near standstill by mud and bad weather as the opposing forces girded for a showdown battle.

American heavy bombers hit enemy airfields in the Athens, Greece, area.

Condition Of Dry Dock Road

Ald. W. H. Brett reported to the city council last night on behalf of a special committee which had been delegated to look into the situation in regard to the road on the east bank of Hays Cove leading from Sixth Avenue to the dry dock and beyond to the fishermen's floats.

The committee Ald. Brett said, had interviewed Bernard Allen, dry dock manager, who said there was no equipment or material available to carry out the work which would be useless anyway.

The possibility of having improvements made to the road will be pursued further by the committee.

Canol To Be Probed

WASHINGTON, D.C., Nov. 16 (CP)—Chairman Harry Truman of the Senate war investigation committee announced last night that he will start public hearings next week into the expenditure of $130,000,000 of United States funds on an oil project at Whitehorse, Yukon Territory, known as Canol.

Bus Service On Alaska Highway

WHITEHORSE, Y.T., Nov. 16 (CP)—The farthest north through bus service in the world was put into operation this week as busses chartered by the United States Army began rolling into Fairbanks on the Alaska Military Highway.

Germany's War Situation . . .

A basic factor determining Germany's staying power may be the fact that it is impossible for her to win the war. This is known inside as well as outside Germany. Another factor may be that Germany's military leaders take a "professional" attitude toward war. When they can no longer win a war, they try to settle it as quickly as possible, at the best terms they can obtain. The Army may even now be using its defensive strength to bargain for terms, sacrificing speed for position.

Another less important fact may be that Germany's attempts to prolong her defence, to make victory for us a bloody and costly one and to create dissension between Great Britain and the United States on the one hand and Russia on the other are limited. They are limited by her own military and civilian deterioration.

Some of the major aspects of German internal deterioration and its causes, emphasizing the most important similarities and differences between 1943 and 1918 have been received as follows:

1. The food situation inside Germany still is better than it was in 1918, but is deteriorating so rapidly that the disastrous level of 1918 will probably be reached by the end of the winter. Conditions of partial famine will exist in Germany itself during the early part of next year. At that time the hope for a stalemate or a compromise peace will have disappeared, in part as a result of the disappointing defence against air raids.

2. The situation of the German middle classes is much worse than it ever was during the last war or afterwards.

3. Internal economic reserves are exhausted to a much greater extent than during the last war. This is only partly compensated for by the great increases of synthetic production.

4. Manpower is more completely utilized and strained than it was in 1918. The employment of eight million foreign workers contributes to the decline in war morale.

5. The air offensive is crippling Germany's vital industries and transportation system. During the early part of next spring, Germany's air situation will have become desperate. The German war leaders will find it impossible to protect any part of Germany against disastrous air attacks.

6. As in 1918, the submarine has been defeated. Despite cases of individual heroism, submarine crews are reported to have mutinied on more than one occasion, a clear sign that many of Germany's fighting men are utterly dissatisfied with the Nazi regime and desperately tired of war.

7. On the Russian front, Germany is engaged in an extensive and costly struggle as that on the western front in 1918. She is more powerfully surrounded, and strategic retreats merely bring Allied bomber bases closer.

High ranking German officers are seeking a platform that will enable them to end the war before the Reich has completely collapsed. The hunger for peace, however, will remain a passive force for Germany's defeat until it is activated by specific Allied proposals regarding intentions for dealing with a conquered Germany. It is in this way that political factors must now begin to play their role. Without decisive victories or the conquest of new resources—which cannot be expected—the exhaustion of the German economy and of the inner strength of the Nazi regime will probably reach its most critical point at the end of the winter, when intensive air raids are being staged and when the German Army must try to beat back new offensives and counter-offensives which exceed the strength of the German Army.

His Mother Was Life Inspiration Of Famous Dickens Artist; Career of Frank Armitage

Frank Guy Armitage, Dickensian interpreter, who has been an interesting visitor here of late, was born in Bradford, Yorkshire. His mother was a distinguished concert artist, beloved by poor people. She was a Lady Bountiful on a small scale in ratio to the family income. After Sunday dinner her self-imposed task was to make up baskets of food for the less fortunate. These she took around never forgetting her bread pills to be given to dear old ladies suffering from "imaginary aches and pains." But they were always benefitted by the pills. When she died these same poor people collected money for her memorial. This was supplemented by funds from other sources so that, at the unveiling, it read, "Erected by the musical and other friends of the late Madame Armitage in loving memory of that gifted, generous and noble woman." She died when Frank was eight but he says: "Her memory is as clear today as it ever was and whatever small success I have had on concert and lecture platforms I attribute to her influence both then and now." Armitage's father died a month before his mother who died near Morecambe in Lancashire, leaving him an orphan at eight.

Armitage was then brought up by an aunt and uncle in Yorkshire who, in typical Yorkshire fashion had their quiver full of arrows to the extent of 15 boys and one girl. His uncle wanted him to be an engineer and for four years he was apprenticed to the famous firm of John Brown and Co., the firm which built the "Queen Mary." He had no heart or taste for this work and ran away four times. Much like Dickens he was always fascinated by the theatre and asked for no richer experience than to be able to invest "tuppence" in a fourpenny seat in the gallery at half time. His childhood loneliness was easily understood because, while he had two elder brothers, they were so much older and so much away from home that they were almost strangers.

Armitage's favorite amusement as a child was to go into the attic and rig up a stage with packing boxes and a real front curtain from his mother's best curtains stored away in the attic. And then with childish imagination he would pay fancied money through an equally fancied window to a ticket seller who wasn't there—then proceeding down the aisle, bowing to right and left to unreal people, he would sit in a make-believe stall, actually hard floor boards, while gazing through two clenched fists serving for opera glasses at people he saw in the boxes and balcony, also highly fictitious. The cold attic became a theatre resplendent with red velvet, pulsating gaslights and a curious smell which seemed to be a part and parcel of any theatre in the late 90's. Then, resuming the dream, he would applaud politely as though impatient for the play to commence and finally slide behind the soap boxes and packing cases serving as a platform, only to emerge therefrom through a little tunnel which he had been careful to leave at the base of the somewhat shabby structure.

Naturally he had seen the orchestra come and go from just such a tunnel. And now, with a crash of the cymbals—also imaginative—the clarion call of the trumpet as he stuck the thumb of his clenched fist in one hand and played on three trumpet keys with the other, the overture was on its way. The attic was filled with light, and everything proceeded to that breathless moment when the curtains were to part and the play or concert was to begin. About the only real things in the theatre were his mother's curtains and the soap boxes. Now he would climb on the soap boxes and with all the stately grandeur of a bewigged and powdered footman would draw aside the curtains and the show would begin.

What was the show? Oh—perhaps he might be David Copperfield talking to Peggoty—for he early learned all of Dickens by heart as his mother used to read him to sleep with it—or Robin Hood fighting with a quartermaster with Friar Tuck as his opponent—or perhaps Sir Francis Drake kneeling on the deck of the "Golden Hind" to receive the accolade of Queen Elizabeth.

Of course the length of these dreams would vary for there was the world of reality to cope with in the shape of household tasks and errands to be run. But always the pull of the theatre was greater than the attractions afforded by an apprenticeship to a great engineering firm. "When I remember those formative years and the curious fantasies of the child I see therein, Armitage says, "I don't feel a bit surprised that my years have been filled with work associated with the theatre. And, curiously enough, because of my great love for Dickens, my interests have been in the recreation of the very kind of theatre that Dickens knew and loved. From my earliest days I was taken to see the great master of Dickens interpretations, Bransby Williams, and he has always been my goal to which I strive."

Came to America
In 1914 Armitage came to the United States as he had been offered a scholarship in the Springfield College in Massachusetts. While his material wants were taken care of there were extra things deemed so necessary to a college student and this extra money he earned by giving Dickens sketches. Then came the war and a sudden decision to run away to Canada to join up with his good friend Dick Talbot, a Canadian boy from Ottawa.

They got as far as the Springfield station, were surreptitious enough about it but President Doggett was wiser than they thought and was down at the station to bid them Godspeed. Then came the everyday work of a private soldier in a Montreal battalion and the sudden realization of the value of public speaking. Armitage went overseas where he won his captaincy and the Military Cross. He ran an army concert party from which Al Plunkett of the Dumbells fame recruited a great deal of his talent. He then joined the Y.M.C.A. War Services. Upon his return to Canada he only stayed a short while there then went to the States where he went to Yale at the same time as Rudy Valee, then to Harvard and finally received his doctorate in History and Economics at Clark University. He took up ventriloquism and bought his dummy from the same firm as Edgar Bergen bought Charlie McCarthy. After his university days he started on the road with his Dickens sketches and has been travelling the length and breadth of the United States and Canada ever since.

The present is his fourth trip across Canada showing his sketches to the troops under the auspices of the Y.M.C.A. War Services. Before the war he travelled, also lecturing for Roger Babson in the United States. He was an associate at Clark University, teaching voice production and speech. He has followed Dickens hobbies and is an expert in black magic, ventriloquism, and hypnotism. Among his characters are Uriah Heap, from David Copperfield, Grandpa Smallweed from Bleak House, Schoolmaster Squeers from Nicholas Nickleby, Sidney Carton from the Tale of Two Cities and FGA's favorite, and of course the immortal Scrooge from the Christmas Carol.

Armitage has been to Newfoundland and Alaska and weather permitting expects to go to Kiska to entertain the troops.

LETTERBOX

BUCK'S WOODEN HORSE
Editor, Daily News:
Regarding the letter you published in your paper about Tim Buck and his Labor-Progressive party, I have my misgivings about the same outfit, too.

Some of the things Mr. Buck said, as for instance: "It is not capitalism that makes monopolies. It's monopolies that make capitalism" and then, right before that, "You can't build socialism in a capitalist state," makes me think he was stringing us a line. Because, if monopolies make capitalism, then wouldn't you think that co-operatives would make socialism? Well, we have co-operatives right now.

And then what is all this agitation about a second front for? I'd like to point out to the Labor-Progressives, in case they have not noticed it, that the boys are fighting on several fronts already and, if, in the opinion of our military leaders, another one right now might be too much, then the best a civilian can do about a second front is to keep it under his hat.

No, we Canadians are like the Trojans. We thought the Greeks had all gone home and given it up but we find out now that they haven't. We find they were only hiding out among some islands a little way off, building themselves a wooden horse, and now they have already dragged the horse up on the beach.

If you want to know what I think—I'm in favor of leaving it there, too, anyway just for a while (and on the beach) until we have got time to go down and see just what is inside.

Ambulance Held Hospital Matter

The city council, judging from discussion at last night's meeting on the subject of ambulance service, appears to be of the opinion that this is a responsibility of the hospital. However, it was decided to co-operate with a committee of the hospital board and of a public meeting which was held Sunday night to go into ways and means of ensuring an effective ambulance service. The committee of the council, which it was understood would assume no responsibility for ambulance operation, will consist of Ald. J. S. Black, Ald. George Hills, Ald. Thomas Elliott, Ald. N. E. Arnold and the mayor.

The ambulance question was brought up through receipt of a letter from Mrs. J. R. Blakey, secretary of the public meeting, and a report from the utilities committee recommending that the hospital board be asked to appoint a committee to meet with a committee of the council to discuss the ambulance question.

HOME GROWN TALENT GOOD

Acceptable Concert Sunday Night at Capitol for Forces

(By Dorothy Garbutt)

Once again the Sunday concert at the Capitol Theatre this week disproved the fact that the home grown variety can't be as good as that from out of town. Each week Chester Le Maistre excels himself as master of ceremonies. He is cool, calm and collected under verbal fire from the audience and can give the retort courteous to the remark discourteous at a moment's notice.

Bruce Melville, a civilian working with an engineering firm here, opened the show with some first class singing, accompanying himself of the guitar. He has a smooth tenor voice well adapted to the hill-billy and ballad type of song. He sang that very modern tear-jerker "There's a Star Spangled Banner Waving Somewhere" followed by "Lonesome Valley Sally."

Following this was a brief quarter hour of culture and refinement in the person of Professor Drizzlepuss (one Lester Patrick) who gave a monologue in a hazy manner on a vague subject, finally telling us all about "How King John

Their came Jack (Foolproof) MacClelland in a medley of popular piano numbers. Jack's clowning was the highlight of the evening. Dressed grotesquely, with his suit all awry and wig borrowed from Capt. Armitages's "Schoolmaster Squeers" he looked the personification of all the mad musical maestros in captivity. Announcing his own numbers, the titles of which had no connection with the piece played, he gave us "She was pure as the Driven Snow Until She Drifted" and "I love You Truly" in two flats, Jack having the key to one of them, and as the piece de resistance, "Mother, You've worked For Me all Your Life. Why Don't You Go Out And Work For Yourself Now?" all pure corn but it's the way Jack puts it over that makes it so very funny! What he really played was "Lady Be Good", "Sheik of Araby", "Somebody Stole My Gal (the lowdown horse thief)" and one En-tee-tie titled "Disappointed Lady."

Lester Patrick's turn was next. This time he told us all about Sam Small's recruiting experience. Dressed as a dilapidated member of H. M. Forces he seemed to be poor old Sam Small in very life.

Following upon Sam Small we had an enlightening monologue by Chester as Professor Carp whose mal-treatment of the English tongue in all its varied refinements was extremely comical. Spending most of his lecture time reproving the bad boys of the audience in a very pained and offended manner he rose to heights of calumny when he directed a shattering "Shame on you!" directly at the culprit. The poor Professor Carps of this world!

Mel Bruce then played and sang "My Little Old Log Prairie Shack". I hope we see and hear more of Mel in later concerts as his style of entertainment is the very thing the boys want. Which reminds me we haven't seen Red Painter with his gee-tar in a long time.

The program ended with a Quiz contest in which the contestants were three young ladies working with the Acropolis troops and three R. C. A. F. boys. The girls were Bety Lean Bernice Hippler and Barbara Merchant and the men were Corporal George Biore, Corporal Maurice Paquet and Sergeant Joe Trimbley. The contestants got as much fun out of their trials and errors as did the audience and, when it was over, entered good-naturedly into the singing of "Pistol Packin' Mama" which was their forfeit for the night.

It was a grand programme from start to finish.

PROTECTING CHILDREN

National Immunization Week to Be Observed Here November 20 Suggested Newspaper Announcement.

A special effort to immunize large number of children against diphtheria, whooping cough, scarlet fever and smallpox will be made in this community during National Immunization Week, November 14 to 20, Dr. Roger G. Knipe, Medical Officer of Health for Prince Rupert has announced.

War conditions, involving travel and movement of population, have increased the dangers of the spread of communicable diseases in all parts of Canada. Dr. Knipe explained. Due to the war, too, busy men and women have been prone to overlook the importance of safeguarding children against the home-front enemies in Canada since the beginning of the war.

"Improved treatment techniques have reduced mortality from some of these diseases, but it should not be overlooked that many children who recover, suffer severely from complications which may affect their health throughout life. The tragic toll of death and illness is entirely preventable.

"I want to call upon parents and guardians of the young children in our community to take advantage of the special opportunities that will be offered them to see that the children have the simple protective treatment.

"The province supplies us, at a cost of approximately $40,000 per year, with toxoid for diphtheria prevention, vaccines for the prevention of whooping cough and smallpox, and toxip for prevention of scarlet fever. No mother need have anything to fear from the treatment of her children with these protective substances.

"On the other hand, she may have everything to fear from these dangerous diseases if she fails to see that her child is protected."
