Leapfrog Tactics of Japanese Secret of Hold in Aleutians

AT AN ADVANCE BASE IN THE ANDREANOF ISLANDS, Alaska, May 8 (CP) — Air-borne dynamite has, so far, not succeeded in blasting the Japanese off Kiska and Attu Islands. Cameras tell why. That "why" is a fragmentary text book of Japanese-leapfrog island-to-island warfare. This lens study gives the first account of how the Japanese built a submarine and airplane base on American soil. For the past nine months, photograph interpreters have watched the Japanese build a sub base from scratch.

Kiska may have been part of the Midway plan, but the equipment was intended for Kiska and Kiska alone, and the troops which landed at the American island did not come from troop ships turned back at Midway—those Midway-intended troops showed up in the South Seas.

Without interruption, the Japanese steamed into Kiska Harbor with cruisers, a seaplane tender, destroyers, cargo and troop-laden ships. They worked fast. They quickly built a tent city large enough to roof 3,000; unloaded bulldozers to make roads, trucks to carry cargo, anti-aircraft guns and coastal batteries to repel any possible air or surface attacks.

Progressive Building
About the first thing the Japanese did was to stake down six canvas plane dummies on Trout Lagoon Spit, within the Harbor, to divert a possible United States plane attack. Those dummies remained until the Bering Sea winds shredded the canvas.

During the first two months, dozens of ships came and went. On July 21, for example, there were nine vessels in the anchorage, including three cargo ships.

By this time, the Japanese began changing tents for wooden shanties and on the same date there were as many frame buildings as tents on the treeless island. Then, as weather gave them more time, they replaced the early flimsy structures with substantial buildings, sandbagged cases-high.

The major construction, in orderly manner, was, roads, a submarine base, a seaplane base, a fighter runway.

Meanwhile, anti-aircraft and coastal batteries began to appear. In the light of today's events, the United States knows the Japanese began a mainstem highway system which went to places where he is doing business today.

As roads expanded, more anti-aircraft and coastal gun emplacements appeared and, as the roads were studied under a heavy reading glass, foot by foot, there appeared radio stations and fuel and ammunition dumps and a powerhouse.

More recently the Nipponese built a road from the main camp to the highest ridge approaching Kiska volcano. It is well constructed, and the end of that road is not a mere outpost. It is intended for heavy loads which cannot be carried on baggage rickshaws which the Japanese have on the island. These rickshaws, with removable wheels, are Japanese jeeps. Fuel dumps along the lesser roads are recognized easily.

Excavation for the submarine base, complete with marine railway, shops and shop, began within two weeks and the work progressed orderly. The main building was sunk deep into the ground so that only three feet of heavy tundra-covered room emerged.

At first the enemy mounted nearly a dozen anti-aircraft guns. Today bombers draw fire from more than twice that number.

The sub base is made to accommodate short-range "Sydney"-type subs and the one-man variety which first appeared at Pearl Harbor.

ALEUT ID. OCCUPIED

Americans Establish Themselves 63 Miles From Kiska

WASHINGTON, D.C., May 8 (CP) — It was announced yesterday that Amchitka Island, 63 miles east of the Japanese-occupied base of Kiska in the Aleutian Islands, had been occupied in January by American forces as "part of the program of aggressive action" against Japan. This puts the American air force within range of Tokyo. An Air base is already in operation on Amchitka.

There were six attacks on Kiska this Wednesday and four on Attu, it is announced.

Mother's Day Is Observed

Impressive Meeting of Job's Daughters Held on Friday Night

An impressive meeting of Job's Daughters took place last night at the Masonic Temple in observance of Mother's Day. The mothers of their representatives were present and each received the gift of a beautiful corsage flower.

of heavy six-by-twelve-inch timbers. Then two hangars—and there was a seaplane base. The buildings were sunk and tundra-covered.

Within four months of their arrival the invaders completed work on two hangars and had poured the concrete foundation for a third. On October 1, a near-hit damaged the largest hangar, and on the following day the new foundation was smashed and the wall studding flattened.

No work was done on the hangars after the second bombing. The Japanese apparently changed their mind about wanting a seaplane base—largely because an American fighter and bomber base had been built in the Western Andreanof Islands—and they switched within a month to the construction of a fighter strip on the mountainous island, to be finished by the time good fighter weather was due.

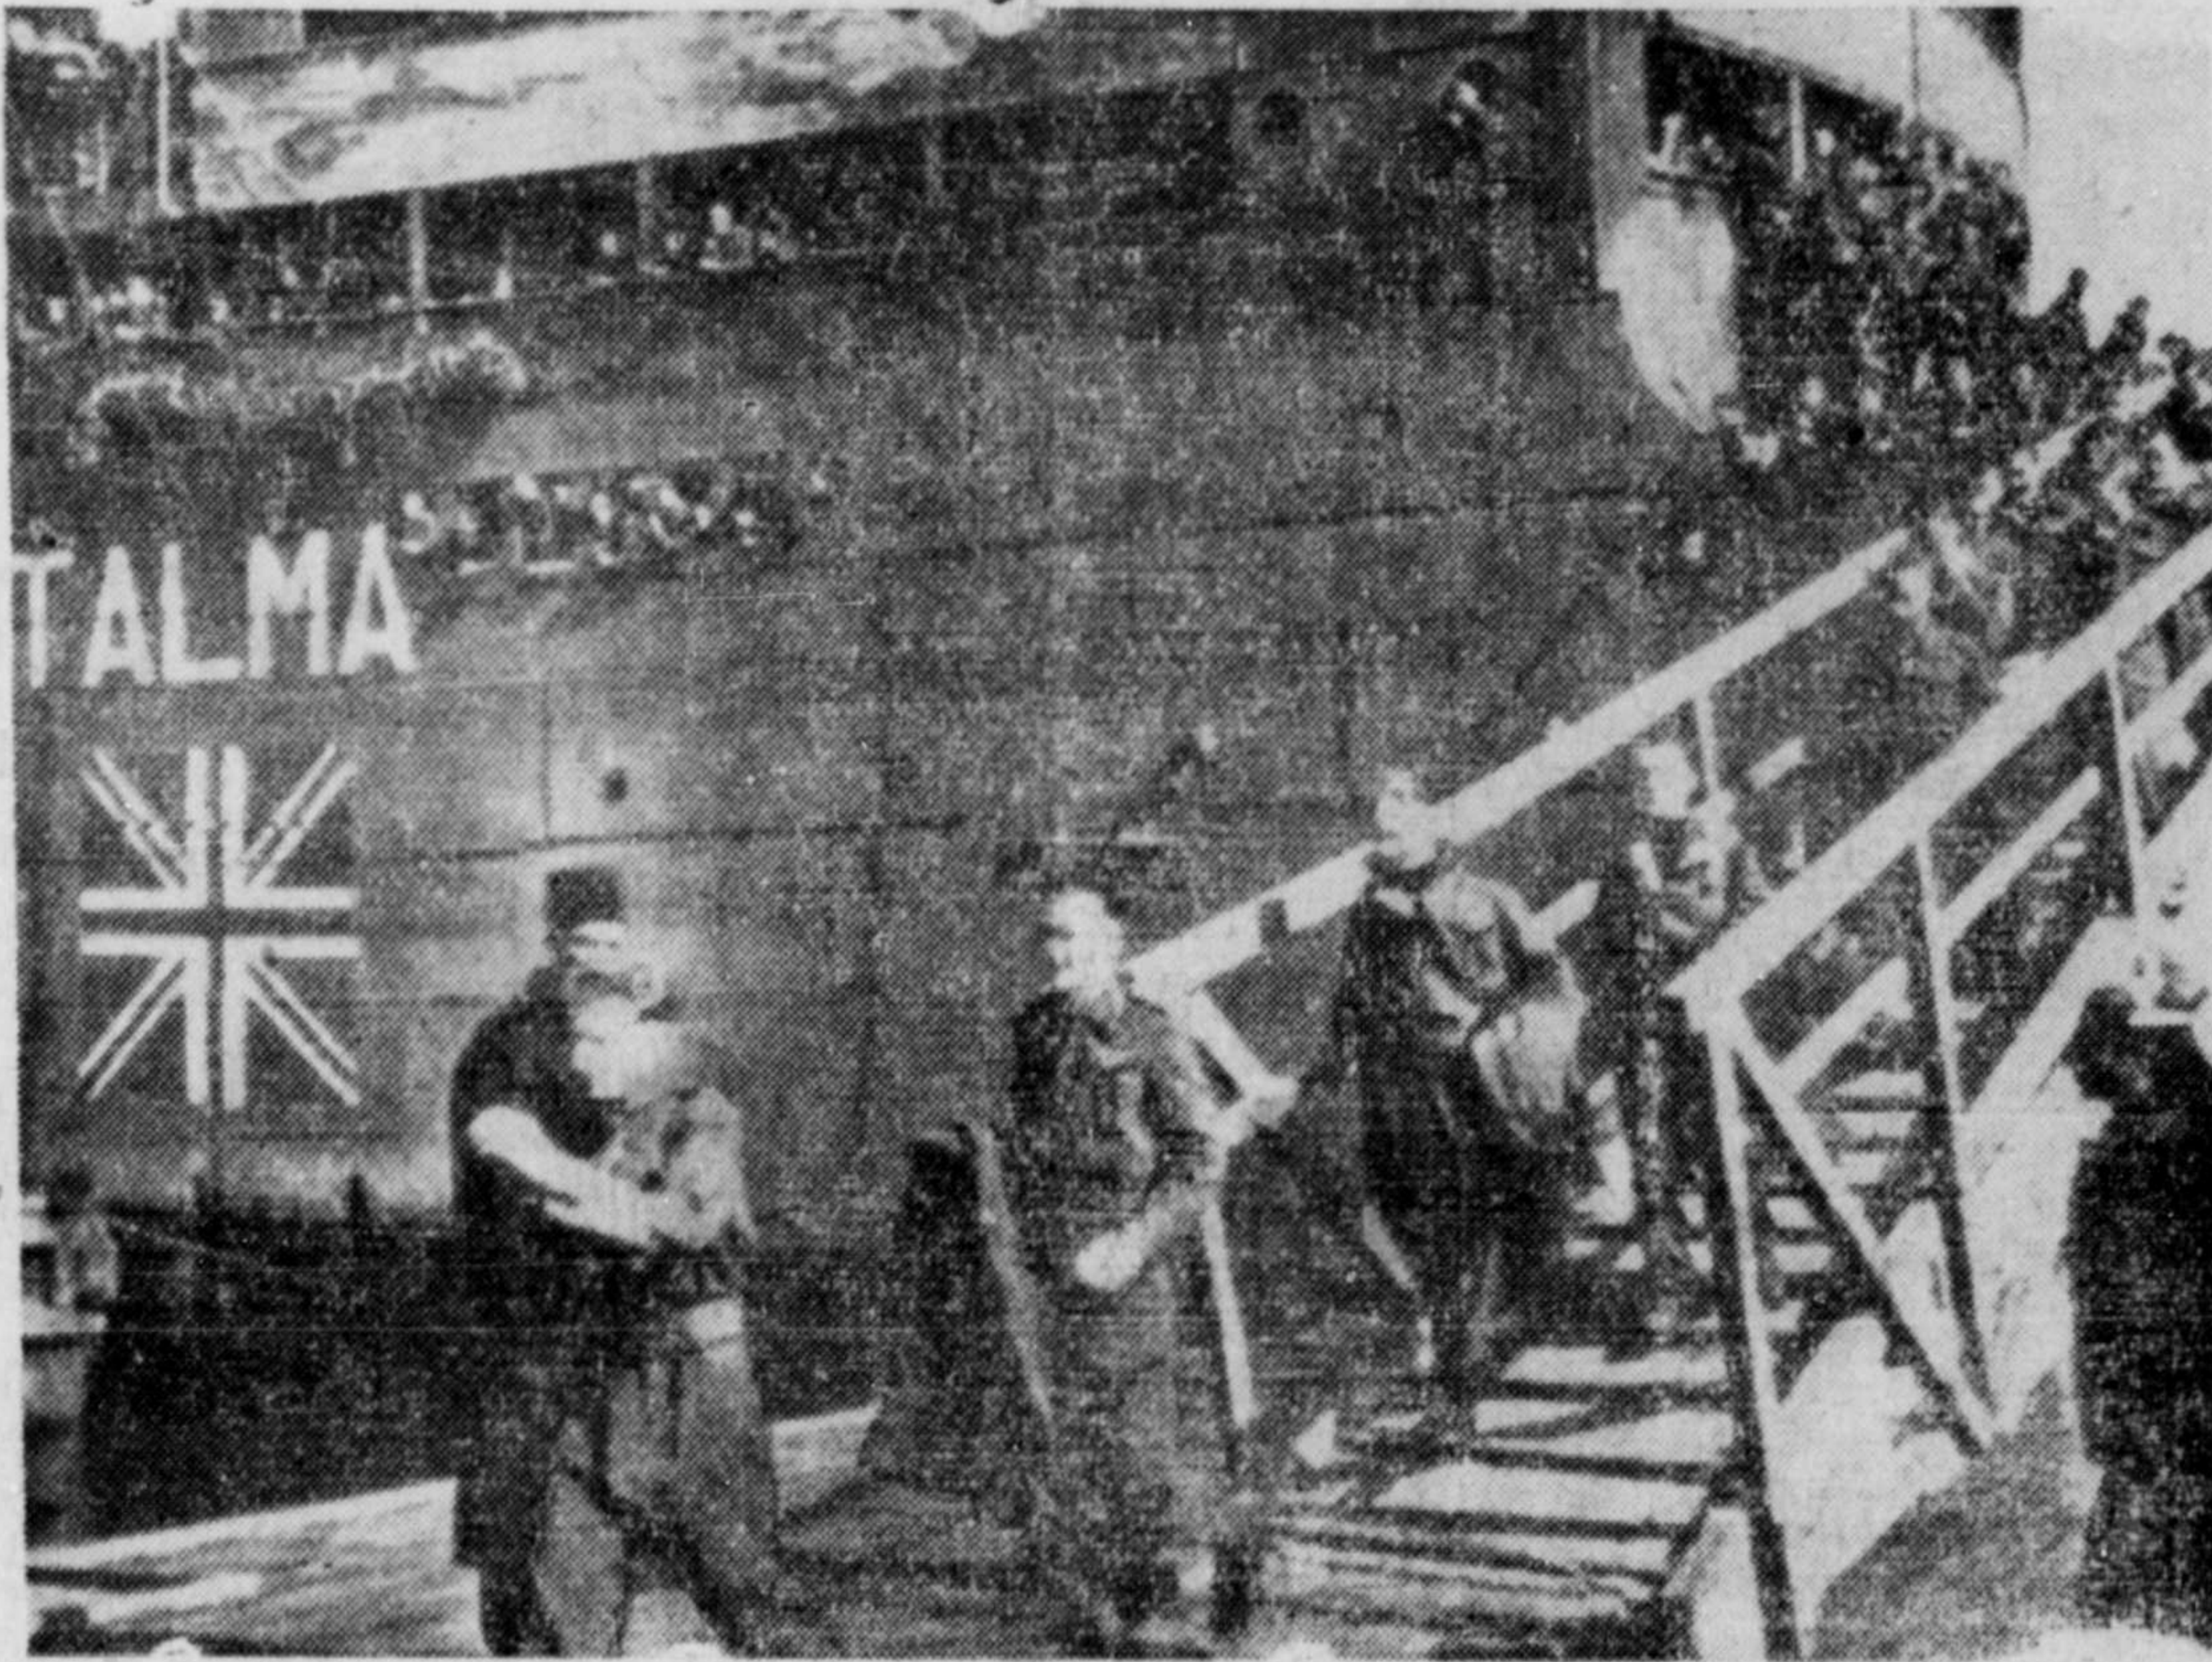

The fighter strip, upon which hundreds of Nipponese have sweated for the past three and a half months, should be ready any day.

From a mile high over Kiska, the buildings look like angleworm diggings. Actually coming in at low level the revetments look all of their four-to-eight-foot thicknesses. Their roofs, for incendiary and camouflage purposes, also are covered with sod.

The Japanese built two water reservoirs—one for bombing, one for water—almost immediately upon landing.

At the opening to a building, the Japanese wedges in a chevron-shaped revetment, about four feet thick and 14 feet long and eaves-high. One side of the V ends inside the wall, the other, outside. Pilots who have dropped 1,000-pound bombs within 25 feet of the buildings did not see so much as the front door open. They know that the purpose of the chevron is to keep out unwelcome blasts.

TELEGRAPH MANAGER

W. J. Davies To Succeed H. S. Meadows in Charge at Prince Rupert

William J. Davies, at present wire chief and dean of the telegraph service in Prince Rupert, has been appointed local manager of Canadian Telegraphs in succession to H. S. Meadows who is retiring on superannuation, it is announced. The change becomes effective a week from today.

W. M. Armstrong, general manager, Canadian National Telegraphs, Montreal; J. G. Davies, general superintendent, Winnipeg, and G. Gottfried, superintendent, Edmonton, will be arriving in Prince Rupert next Thursday night on a general inspection visit.

Active Service Superannuation

Local Board Considering What Is To Be Done with Such Teachers

The matter of protecting superannuation privileges for members of teaching staffs on active service in the war is being considered by the local board of school trustees. Following an application of Walter Ferguson who is now on active service for the protection of his superannuation rights, the board has instructed the secretary to obtain information as to how many local teachers may be in a similar position.

It is optional with boards as to whether they should keep up superannuation payments for teachers on active service. In any event, the superannuation is only effective if such teachers return to the teaching service.

Roads of North Africa Blocked With Axis Army Fleeing to Mountains

Greatest Guns in Country Left Unmanned for British and Americans to Take Over—Heavy Air Pounding—Many Ships Sunk—DeGaulist Governor

ALLIED HEADQUARTERS IN NORTH AFRICA, May 8 (CP)—American and British armies are mopping up following the capture yesterday afternoon of both Bizerte and Tunis. French troops today captured Pont du Fahs. North Tunisian roads are blocked with remnants of the Axis forces in flight toward Cape Bon where they may put up a last ditch stand in the rocky, hilly country.

Bizerte was captured at 4:15 yesterday afternoon by the Americans and five minutes later Tunis fell to the British.

So hasty and disorganized was the Axis retreat that great guns, the strongest in North Africa, were left unmanned.

The Allies, being in complete control of the air, are subjecting the retreating forces to merciless pounding.

Twenty-five enemy ships have been sunk since yesterday in the Mediterranean.

General Henri Giraud has appointed General Charles Masse, a strong DeGaulist, as resident governor of Tunisia.

REDS KEEP OFFENSIVE

Assault on Approaches to Novorossisk Continues — German Battalion Wiped Out

LONDON, May 8 (CP) — The Red Army continued its assault on the approaches to Novorossisk, Black Sea port, today, wiping out a battalion of German infantry and 87 gun positions in Friday night's fighting northeast of Novorossisk, a Soviet noon communique said.

As the Red Army continues to crush all German resistance on the ground in the Caucasus, the Russian air forces has destroyed 400 Axis planes in the last few days, losing only a mere handful themselves. Russian air forces have destroyed 400 the Black Sea.

Five Enemy Planes Down

LONDON, May 8 (CP)—An air raid alert was sounded in London early Saturday and anti-aircraft batteries went into action soon after the alert was sounded. The all-clear signal was given a little more than an hour after the original alarm. Five enemy planes have been brought down in England in the last 24 hours.

Infant Clinics Prove Popular

Many Mothers Availing Themselves Of Service for Babies and Pre-School Age Children

Clinics for babies and children of pre-school age, being held weekly on Tuesdays at King Edward School and on Wednesdays at St. Peter's Church Hall, Seal Cove, are proving very popular with mothers who have been turning out forty strong at the former place with their children for consultation and advice with some thirty-five at the latter.

The clinics are conducted under the auspices of the local public health unit with Dr. R. J. MacDonald in charge, Miss Elizabeth Ochs, one of the public health nurses, assisting at King Edward School and Miss Eleanor Graham, the other, at Seal Cove.

USES OF CORN

Corn is used in the manufacture of alcohol, sugar, starch and many other war supplies.

The Isle of Wight, off England's south coast, has been renamed "The Isle of Plenty" by a newspaper writer who found the place abounded in the little luxuries that have disappeared from the mainland.

ARMY UP ON LOAN

Service Men Are Spontaneously Lending Money to Government For Which They Fight

Army subscriptions in Prince Rupert area to the Fourth Victory Loan have so far totalled some $30,000. The Pacific Command has reached its quota of $750,000 while the total for the army across Canada two days ago was $7,250,850 or 138 percent of objective.

Light Bills For Schools Lower

Costs Prince Rupert More for Electricity Than Other Cities

The board of school trustees had replies at Wednesday night's meeting from the boards of New Westminster, Kelowna and Victoria in inquiries which had been made by the local board as to scales of charges for electric light and energy to the schools in those cities.

New Westminster reported that it paid a flat rate of 2½¢ per kilowatt hour and the total bill for 14 schools in January was $285.

In Victoria the schools paid 4¢ and 3¢ for light and 5¢ and 2¢ for power. Eighteen school paid $680.09 for electricity in January.

Three schools with 40 rooms paid $623.34 last year for electricity with $76.54 this January, the rate there for the schools being 1¢ per kilowatt.

The rate in Vancouver was 3¢ for light and 2¢ for power. One school paid $26.50 in January and another $26.16.

In Prince Rupert the schools are charged 8¢ per kilowatt hour. Owing to the shorter days in winter here, Trustee Langridge suggested that the Prince Rupert schools used more electricity.

Mrs. George Hill wondered why schools could not come under a "domestic" rather than a "business" rate.

To meet the problem created by many children growing out of their shoes before the shoes are worn out barter centres have been set up in many parts of England.

EDITORIAL

DAILY EDITION Saturday, May 8, 1943

Tunis and Bizerte . . .

We are amply justified in feelings of gratification and exuberation over the grand success of our arms in the Tunisian campaign which has gloriously culminated in the capture of the two most important cities of Tunis and Bizerte in one day. For the British and Americans and the Fighting French too the clearing of the Axis from North Africa, which we may now consider as practically accomplished, represents the greatest positive victory so far in this war. The next thing now, we may reasonably anticipate, will be our invasion of Europe by way of the weakest link in the Axis defences of Europe through the Mediterranean and the Italian sphere of influence.

Coupling the success of the African campaign with the grand fight of the Russians who, with the battle season in their part of the country now well advanced, we seem to have definitely turned the corner and are at last on the way to our victory.

On the other hand, there is no justification to assume that the rest of the way is going to be easy or that all we have now is a downhill pull. We would be surprised if the enemy is as yet anywhere near the breaking point. Quite possibly the worst and the bloodiest and the hardest fighting is yet to come in this war to the death.

Here in this Pacific area we must recognize that fact that there is still a lot of fighting and a lot of winning back to be done before our particular enemy has been put in his place.

But the war picture is rosier for our side than it has been since the dark and dismal opening year of the conflict. We have been shown by the outcome of things in North Africa that we are a match for the enemy and are really able to fight. Any doubts that we may have had as to our capacity to win must now have been dispelled once and for all.

Tunis and Bizerte for us may be accepted as a real turning point.

Nurses' Week . . .

Apropos of Nurses' Week which, commencing next Monday, will be specially observed in Prince Rupert, it is fitting for us to agree that the nurses of Canada are meeting a great challenge at the present time. The war has increased the demands for nursing service in all fields to the extent that every possible means of conserving and strengthening nurse power is being considered.

Approximately 1,600 nurses are serving in the armed forces: the Army, the Navy and the Air Force, and it is quite possible that more will be called at any time. Over 300 Canadian nurses are in South Africa.

While the necessary supply of nurses for the armed forces must be maintained, civilian nursing needs must be safeguarded. More nurses are needed to take care of the sick in hospitals; more public health nurses are required to meet the health needs in homes, and in the community. Public health nurses with special preparation are wanted in increasing number to safeguard the health of workers in war industries throughout Canada. Private duty nurses are becoming scarce.

Nursing today is war work with a future. High school and university graduates who enter nursing now will play a very important role during their training, in the nature of a war effort, and after graduation they should find many opportunities for service. Nurses have always held positions of great responsibility but not for years have they had so many positions open to them.

Yes, Canada needs nurses from among promising young women who possess the personality, the necessary education, and abilities to enter nursing.

City's Case Strengthened . . .

Some progress appears to have been made in the way of enlisting strong support for Prince Rupert's case with a view to obtaining substantial federal aid in connection with the maintenance of roads and services here under the pressure of heavy use and demands in connection with defence developments and the war effort. Notable among them are sympathetic letters which have been received from the minister of municipalities of the province. They should greatly strengthen the city's case and possibly we are justified in expecting some real help soon. Anyway, the matter is still being vigorously pursued as federal aid is obviously the only means of solution since it is now far beyond the ability of the city itself to take care of.

ACTIVITIES OF Y.M.C.A. AND Y.W.C.A.

By DOROTHY GARBUTT The Hostess

This change in the hospital visiting hours from 2-4 p.m. to 2-3:30 p.m. has rather mixed up our hospital visiting the past two weeks as the Y.W.C.A. visitor just gets in a few visits when it's time to go. However we'll learn. This week, Mrs. Johnston, who is our visitor for May, reports a baby boy, born May 7 to Sergeant and Mrs. Quick of the R. C. A. M. C. And to Mr. and Mrs. Brandes of the R.C.A.F. a nine pound boy was born on May 1. Altogether there were five R. C. A. F. babies in hospital this week. What's the matter with the other two services? Seems to me for a very junior service the R.C.A.F. is doing itself proud.

A lot of boys who were here last summer have been turning up lately. Gordie MacIntyre of the S.D.O., P.O. Gordon Stancombe and George Rudland also of the S.D.O. They all look well.

I spent a busy half hour yesterday afternoon tying up the prizes for the Navy dance. Ivan gets a lot of fun out of buying these dance prizes and comes home with the most amazing things, but all are very practical. I think he knows the Variety Store backwards, forwards and sideways.

Hee MacKenzie has gone south on business for a few days. "Skipper" is a little confused as to what all this travelling back and forth means but, being an army dog, he guesses perhaps it's a draft or one of those courses everyone's always talking about, or perhaps a furlough, whatever that may be.

The concert at the Capitol Theatre is local talent this week. Cleaver Wilson, Professor McLelland and Doug Badger have cooked up a pretty good program. Tickets will be given out from headquarters for this concert which is only in the evening. The Army are the challengers in the quiz contest.

SPORT CHAT

Sixteen years ago today, only 1-5000 the part of a goal put Portsmouth into the English Football League first division. Climaxing a great promotion fight with Manchester City, Portsmouth blanked Preston North End 5-0 while the City walloped Bradford City 8-0 in final games. Although tied in points Portsmouth gained major-league ranking with a better goal average.

LETTERBOX

RED TAPE Editor, Daily News:

I am writing this letter to describe a day of red tape in Prince Rupert. I am a 23-year-old returned man from 19 months' service overseas in the present war. I write from a busy doctor's office where I am waiting a brandy prescription. At 6 a.m. I am awakened by my good friend Art Berchen at 99 Third Avenue. A look out at a wet, breezy city of Prince Rupert. Rain or snow, there's a war to win. Jerry and the Jap don't wait. Neither do I.

I find out the American Army urgently needs mechanics. So, being a diesel mechanic, I go to the Unemployment Commission Office and here the red tape commences.

But getting back to my story. I get home in January, 1942, from overseas service on discharge but six months later I am called up in Edmonton and categorized A. However, red tape stopped me from getting overseas again so I go on war work for seven months at Trail. During that time I volunteer again but am reminded I have been discharged twice on medical grounds.

Here I am in Prince Rupert now and I know I can pass any doctor of psychologist.

Now I have wired to Ottawa for a release from Canada's cheap labor market in order to work for the United States Army. How long is red tape going to hold me up?
 J. O. RANGER.

Timely Recipes

STUFFED FLANK STEAK

1 beef flank steak
 1/2 cup chopped celery and leaves
 1 small onion, chopped
 4 tablespoons fat
 1 1/2 cups soft bread crumbs
 Salt and pepper to taste
 1 cup water
 Use one large or two small flank steaks. Sauté the celery and the onion in two tablespoons of the fat for a few minutes. Add the bread crumbs and season with salt and pepper. Pound and flatten steak. Spread with dressing and, beginning at one side of the steak, roll up like a jelly roll and tie securely in several places with string. Brown in the other two tablespoons of fat in a heavy frying or roasting pan on the top of the stove, turning the meat until it is browned on all sides. Slip a rack under the meat, add water, cover closely and bake in a moderate oven (325-350F) 1 1/2 to two hours. Use dripping in pan to make a rich brown gravy. Serves five to six.

GRAVES OF SMOLENSK MYSTERY

Nazi Propaganda Makes Big Thing Out of Alleged Russian Atrocities

Since the Berlin Reichstag fire of February 27, 1933, Nazi propaganda has not launched anything as big as the atrocity story about their discovery in the wood of Katyn, writes Ernest S. Pisko. Katyn is a place near Smolensk, occupied by the Germans since the fall of 1941, and there they reported to have found two weeks ago an entire row of mass graves and in them the bodies of 10,000 Polish officers, allegedly slain by their Russian captors in the spring of 1941.

No one, presumably, except a few people in Germany and in Russia know for sure whether the story is true or not. All we know is that some 500,000 Polish soldiers and some 15,000 of their officers surrendered to the Russians in the second half of September, 1939.

We also know that negotiations between the Polish government in exile and Moscow concerning the release of the Polish prisoners of war did not run as smoothly as would have been desirable. We may further regard as a proven fact that mass graves were indeed discovered in the wood of Katyn. Yet any connection between these facts is sheer guesswork. It is based on nothing but Nazi statements of a doubtful validity.

Series of Broadcasts

This writer listened to Radio Berlin when it announced its "hasty" discovery and when it elaborated on it in a series of broadcasts. The story resembled rather strikingly those of the Reichstag fire, the Roehm purge, or the bomb explosion in the Munich beer hall on November 8, 1939.

What "evidence" the Nazis produced in the Katyn case was quite inconclusive.

The Germans gave in their first report the number of slain men as 10,000. But it became clear from subsequent broadcasts that at that time they had not even discovered all the graves, let alone opened them.

Again, the Nazis stated that the exhumations were carried out under supervision through a professor of the Breslau University and in the presence of the former Polish minister Koslovsky. Assuming that both these gentlemen were present, there was apparently nothing to be gained from this fact—certainly not what the Nazis wanted to prove, namely, the identity of the bodies.

Are Documents Reliable?

According to Radio Berlin the identity was established by the aid of documents which were found in the clothes of the victims. Whether the documents really belonged to the men on whom they were found still requires proof.

To none of the papers was the photograph of the bearer affixed, apparently, as is usually the case, with certificates of identity. At least, the Nazis did not mention photos—and this can hardly have been a mere omission. By the same token, there is no way of ascertaining whether the documents were genuine or faked, or whether the victims were Poles, or Russians or Germans.

The alleged evidence brought forth by the Nazis against the Russians, in fact, is not only purely circumstantial but also full of gaps.

On the other hand, extermination of conquered people is a well-known Nazi custom. The Russians have not been addicted to this expedient during the war, so far as is known. In the case of the Volga Germans, they were satisfied to shift that group of potential "fifth columnists" farther inland. Moreover the Russians could expect to gain little but trouble from the murdering of Polish officers. The Germans, however, who are reported to have been murdering civilians continuously ever since September,

Funeral of Mrs. Katherine Blakely Campbell at Burns Lake

BURNS LAKE, May 8—Funeral services were held in Burns Lake United Church on Wednesday for Katherine Blakely Campbell of Uncha Valley, widow of Donald Campbell, who predeceased her three months ago. Interment was in the Burns Lake Cemetery, Rev. Adam Crisp officiating.

During the service in the church the hymns "Peace, Perfect Peace" and "Abide With Me" were sung and a solo "One Sweetly Solemn 1939, could expect from their coup exactly the result which they achieved—a serious disagreement between several members of the United Nations.

Thought" was rendered by Mrs. Adam Crisp.

The pallbearers were M. L. McLeod, Blake Nobles, W. Wilson, John Berg, A. R. Brown and Hume Linton.

The late Mrs. Campbell was a lady of gentle manners and kindly personality and greatly endeared herself to all who were fortunate enough to know her.

Sympathy is extended to her sister, Mrs. Laura Copeland, who came from Hope to be with her in her final illness and to her only son, William Harvey Campbell of Uncha Valley.

Britain produced 135,000 tons of home-grown tomatoes last year, a 75,000-ton increase over pre-war figures.

Today
Electronics aims
the Guns of War...

Industry is helping win the war...
industry must help build a peacetime world

Today, all industries must produce as never before—must speed the output of food, tanks, planes, guns, ships and other instruments of war—must conserve vital supplies—that we may win quickly a decisive victory.

Tomorrow, all industries must continue to produce—beating swords into plowshares—to prevent world-wide unemployment leading to ultimate economic collapse.

If the world is to prosper, there must be the same cohesion among the United Nations during the transition period and thereafter as now exists during the world-wide conflict. Internal stability here and in other nations can be gained and maintained only by sustained industrial production and by interdependence.

The people of this country, in common with the people of other lands, will prosper materially and spiritually when this war is ended but only if plans world-wide in scope are formulated promptly for A JUST AND DURABLE PEACE.

Halibut Landing Running Fifty Percent
Higher Than Last Year — Trolling
Fleet Active Now, Fair Catches
And High Prices

Halibut landings at the port of Prince Rupert for the 1943 season are running about 50 per cent heavier than last year. The landings up to and including yesterday had reached a total of 1,774,400 pounds as compared with 1,273,600 pounds last year at the same time. The American total for this year is 840,500 pounds as compared with 775,000 pounds and the Canadian aggregate is 833,900 pounds as against 500,500 pounds. Thus the gain this year is largely in Canadian fish. During the week ending yesterday the landings amounted to 669,000 pounds consisting of 427,500 pounds American and 241,500 pounds Canadian fish. Prices during the week continued at a high level, making for a continuation of very profitable fishing for all concerned. The top price of the week for American fish was 22.9c and 17c which the Reliance I received for 16,000 pounds and the low 16.9c and 15c paid the Superior for 30,000 pounds. For Canadian fish the top bid for the week was 23.9c and 17c which the I. H. was paid for 6,000 pounds and the low 18c and 15c which the Cape Race received for 9,000 pounds.

Early May sees the trolling fleet out of Prince Rupert commencing to move out to the grounds in fairly substantial numbers with some good spots of spring fishing. Camps of the Prince Rupert Fishermen's Co-operative as well as the well known packer, John Clausen, are already out—the latter at Squadaree, Dundas and Portland Canal. Quite a number of the gas-boat trollers are already at work. Prices are away higher than last year and 18c and 20c being paid on the grounds for red springs. During the past week some quite heavy landings were made by the packers.

London County Councils plan summer entertainments of ballet and boxing this year to encourage stay-at-home holidays.
