Italy Is Trying To Get Out Of War

REPUDIATES BROADCAST

Statements Regarding Victor Emmanuel and Badoglio Were Unauthorized

WASHINGTON, D.C., July 28—President Franklin D. Roosevelt announced last night that a broadcast describing Victor Emmanuel of Italy as a "moron-king" and Marshal Pietro Badoglio as a Fascist had been made without authorization and should not have been made.

POUNDING AT MUNDA

Allied Effort to Drive Japanese Off Solomon Islands Continues

ALLIED HEADQUARTERS IN AUSTRALIA, July 28—Another heavy raid has been made on the Japanese stronghold of Munda in the Solomon Islands, air attack by planes synchronizing with further pressure by American land forces which are but 1 1/2 miles from the air base.

On the other end of the South Pacific war theatre, Allied bombing planes delivered another heavy air attack on Salamaua, New Guinea, dropping 123 tons of bombs to cause heavy damage.

RENOUNCE FASCISM

New Government of Italy Repudiates Mussolini's Political Doctrine

ROME, July 28—The Italian radio in an English language broadcast yesterday, announced that the new government of Italy had rejected Fascism as "an obstacle to the war effort."

RED ARMY MOVES ON

Further Advance Made by Russians Against Nazis in Orel Section

MOSCOW, July 28—The Red Army has pushed ahead another two to four miles in advance on the Orel front against stiff German resistance. In the direction of the Bryansk railway line an important hill has been taken.

LIZZIE HAD SMALL NIP

Back Alley Conviviality Has Police Court Sequel

Appearing in police court, charged with drunkenness, is almost routine with Lizzie Jones a native woman. The cause of her latest remission was a soldier with half a bottle of rum who appeared out of, and vanished into nowhere, after giving her "a small drink." According to Mrs. Jones this nameless son of Mars accosted her on Second Avenue last night and asked her if she wanted a drink. Righteously she replied that she did not drink on the street. However, it transpired, a dark alleyway was a fitting enough place, and there she took a small snort of rum.

She was unable to shed any light on the identity of her benefactor nor where he got that rare and precious thing called rum. "I was told that there was no rum at the vendors," commented Magistrate Vance, before passing the usual sentence of $25 or seven days.

ITALIANS COLLAPSE

Americans Making Way on Sicily—British Canadians Meet Resistance

ALLIED HEADQUARTERS SICILY, July 28—United States forces, pushing rapidly across northern Sicily against crumbling Italian defences, have Cefalu, 38 miles east of Palermo and 90 miles from Messina. They are now moving on toward San Stefano.

The British and Canadian forces are still encountering stiff resistance from the Germans to the east but are making gradual headway.

Heavy Allied bombing of enemy objectives on northern Sicily and southern Italy continues.

Prisoners taken by the Allies in the Sicilian campaign are reported to include hundreds if not thousands of conscripts from subjected countries. These surrender readily to the Allies once they have the opportunity. Among the latest to be taken was a group of three hundred Poles.

NEW ENGINE TAKEN OVER

C.N.R. President Accepts Delivery of First of New Order

MONTREAL, July 28—R. C. Vaughan, chairman and president, Canadian National Railways, yesterday took over locomotive 6235 as the first of 30 on order for the National system and required for wartime traffic. The others will follow as quickly as they can be delivered by the Montreal locomotive works and as each one is received it will immediately go into service.

These new engines are up to date examples of the northern type developed by Canadian National engineers and especially adapted to system requirements. They are dual purpose locomotives, being available for both freight and passenger service.

A wartime substitution is that the bells of these new locomotives are of steel plate, made at the Canadian National Railways Montreal shops. Previously engine bells were cast of bronze but war priorities made that metal scarce and the railwaymen produced a bell made of steel plate instead.

The 30 new locomotives follow closely the principles of the original 6200's with modifications suggested after service which has proven the soundness of the design. The new lot have the sand boxes and the steam dome combined to suggest streamlining. The total weight of engine and tender in working order is 677,890 pounds. The overall length is 94 feet, 9 3/4 inches.

The engine taken over yesterday will be broken in by hauling a light tonnage freight load to Brockville, Ontario, and, when the engine is in smooth running order, it will be carrying heavy wartime freight.

ITALY AND AXIS

MADRID—The view is expressed here that Italy will continue on the side of the Axis providing Germany gives adequate assistance in the defence of central and southern Italy against Allied invasion.

ENDORSED BY CHINA

CHUNGKING—The Chinese government endorses the demands of Prime Minister Winston Churchill of Great Britain and President Franklin D. Roosevelt of the United States for unconditional surrender of Italy as the basis of peace with that nation. China also favors the punishment of Benito Mussolini as an "arch criminal."

HAMBURG BOMBED AGAIN

LONDON—For the fourth successive night Hamburg was subjected to a heavy bombing attack which was officially described as "concentrated and effective." Extensive fires were started and casualties were high. The Ruhr was also attacked during the night. Eight bombers, including two Canadian, failed to return.

TRAFFIC AWAY UP

Further Increase Shown by TransCanada Air Lines

WINNIPEG, July 28—During the first six months of the current year, air mail carried by TransCanada Air Lines was more than doubled as compared with the corresponding period in 1942, more than three times as much express was carried, and the number of passengers increased by more than 17,000.

Figures made public today by O. T. Larson, vice-president, give the mail load this year as 1,732,227 pounds, as compared with 864,095 pounds; air express as 332,212 pounds; as against 107,834 pounds; 64,747 passengers, as compared with 47,650.

In the month of June, 12,616 passengers were carried, an increase of 2,299 over June a year ago; 309,109 pounds of mail, an increase of 135,005 pounds; 71,623 pounds of express, an increase of 44,217 pounds.

MOVING OF PRISONERS

Great Numbers of Axis Captives From Mediterranean to Britain

AT A BRITISH PORT, July 28—The greatest mass movement of war prisoners, including thousands of Germans and Italians from North Africa, ever undertaken by boat has been accomplished without hitch despite Axis efforts to sink ships carrying their own soldiers out of the Mediterranean war zone.

TEACHERS AND WORK

Selective Service Regulations In Regard to Them Explained

"The general intention of Selective Service Regulations, as applying to teachers," according to E. V. Whiting, manager of the local Employment and Selective Service Office, "is to retain teachers at their profession during the school year, and to make the best possible use of their services during vacation."

Mr. Whiting said that there might be some misunderstanding among teachers as to their status under Selective Service Civilian Regulations. He explained this status in this way:

By Order in Council of June 17, 1943, teachers were brought under Selective Service. Previously they had been exempt in so far as employment at their profession is concerned. Now a teacher must continue at the teaching profession during the school year and can only leave to take their other full-time employment, except in the agricultural industry, under permit from Selective Service. It is not the intention to authorize teachers to leave the profession, where their services as teachers are needed. Teachers may still join the armed forces without permit or they may engage at part-time employment during the school year so long as it does not interfere with their teaching hours. During vacations teachers are encouraged to take other high priority work but, generally speaking and apart from employment in agriculture, teachers must secure Selective Service permits before entering employment. Teachers will not require permits to engage at work in their own profession.

PEACE TALK WIDESPREAD

Unconfirmed Reports Continue of Italy Dropping Out Of Fight

NEGOTIATIONS START MADRID, July 28—British and American legations to the Vatican, according to a report received here today, have asked their governments for instructions as to their attitude in regard to immediate peace with Italy. This report was received following an earlier one that the Italian government was endeavouring to establish peace negotiations with the Allies through the Vatican. One of the principal difficulties in regard to peace negotiations appears to be the question as to the fate of German divisions still in Sicily and southern Italy. The situation in Italy among the civilian population is gradually deteriorating. In Milan the armed forces have been called in to quell riots arising from demonstrations for peace. The Badoglio government has officially dissolved the Fascist party.

LONDON, July 28—Without confirmation, rumors of negotiations for an Italian-Allied armistice circulate in neutral capitals and in London. Swiss newspaper dispatches indicate that Italian factions, long subordinate to Fascism's yoke, and these include liberals who seek an immediate end to the war, are seeking a voice in the development of new national policy.

Indicating that there might be peace overtures through Turkey, a report from Ankara said that Rafeale Guariglia, new Italian foreign minister, conferred at sea with Turkish foreign minister Numan Menemencioğlu aboard an Italian embassy launch.

At the same time a report from Rome quoted information from Prime Minister Badoglio discussing armistice conditions with the Allies. There was no confirmation.

In Italy there are widespread but unconfirmed reports of peace moves which would remove Italy from the war as an Axis partner against the Allies. The new government of Marshal Pietro Badoglio is said to be already discussing terms. Pope Pius is reported to be making every effort to promote peace negotiations between Italy and the Allies.

DAILY EDITION  Wednesday July 28, 1943

LETTERBOX

FAIR PLAY

Editor, Daily News:

After reading your issue of July 26, fair play compels me to ask for the use of your columns for the publication of this letter.

After serious consideration of your editorial, "Who is Winning the War?" it is apparent that you are more concerned with denying credit to the Americans than with giving credit to the Russians. Your quotation from the Digest "that the American contribution toward winning the war is less than that of Russia, Britain or China" indicates the negative thought.

You raise an issue which can be real only to that idle-brained group who have spent the past 25 years arguing "Who Won the War?"

What pleasure it must bring to our enemies and what dismay to our allies that, upon winning our first campaign after four years of retreat, we engage in a scramble for credits.

One cannot conceive of a discussion more fruitless or one more calculated to disrupt hitherto amiable allied liaison than an argument as to "who is winning" a war that is as yet unwon and that such polemics be based on a consensus of (in these days of censorship) necessarily ill-informed opinion is akin to checking a gas tank with an open flame.

Had your editorial been headed "who is suffering most" it would have warranted earnest consideration. Everyone realizes Russia's loss in men, material and property is unequalled. This in itself is a fit subject for editorial discussion. Unfortunately, the sincerity of your remarks about Russia is open to doubt when coupled with implied criticism of our great ally to the south that is not only unfair but decidedly unwelcome to all whose object is the defeat of the Fascists.

Whatever the good intent of your editorial may be, the effect is nonetheless disruptive. May I counsel any Americans who felt that effect to observe the customs and manners of our younger generation and if "imitation is the sincerest form of flattery" they will be reassured of our good will.

I consider it my duty as a

The New European Situation . . .

Out of all the welter of rumors, reports and speculation regarding the circumstances which may have attended the downfall of Benito Mussolini as dictator of Italy came one interesting and plausible item yesterday. It suggested that Il Duce had conspired with Adolf Hitler to withdraw the main Axis defence line before the Allied advance to the River Po, thus abandoning all but a comparatively small northern portion of the country to the Allied advance.

The strategy of such a defensive move as far as Germany is concerned is, of course, evident. There can be little surprise that Hitler should leave any of his allies to their fate if it should simplify his own defence to do so. The treachery of Mussolini in collaborating to sell his own people out in this way, might not be so believable to those who, even at the worst, had made a higher estimate of Il Duce.

The fact that the Fascist Grand Council should have rejected Mussolini's plan and turned the weakening dictator out cannot improve Italy's fighting position much at this late date. Hitler will abandon her just the same as far as any pretence at a defence is concerned now that such a defence, in view of the evident collapse of the Italians themselves, would be of no advantage to his own changed position of retreat instead of advance.

Italy is now reaping the reward of having picked the wrong side in the war. She has now been shorn of her colonial empire as Churchill promised she would be. And now Churchill promises that, unless she surrenders unconditionally, the homeland will be "seared, scarred and blackened from one end to the other." Grim words, those, of which Italy, in the light of past experiences, may well be expected to take heed.

Of course, the demand of Britain and the other Allies for Italy's unconditional surrender is the only thing that could have been expected. With the tide of battle now definitely turned against the Axis, it is to be reasonably supposed that Italy, beaten and discredited, will grasp at the only vestige of salvation, ignominious as it may be, that is still open to her.

Hitler and Mussolini have abandoned Italy. What is her alternative now but to meet the Allied demand?

Meantime it may be interesting to speculate on the course which events may take in the near future in the rest of Europe now that Italy is virtually out of the war.

The German offensive on the Central Russian front has developed into reverse.

Russia has not had to wait until winter to launch another offensive. By winter other bridgeheads will have been established elsewhere on the continent, air raids will have been intensified and Germany will be able to gain no respite. Damage to transportation and industry will be reflected directly in German war production since there is not enough of a civilian economy left to absorb these blows.

The Luftwaffe, forced to come out and fight in defence of the Ruhr and against later Allied landings, should suffer decisive defeats this year. With a similar decline in the effectiveness of the submarine, the disintegration of military morale will be accelerated.

Although German propaganda will attempt to represent the loss of Italy as an economic and defensive gain, this will also depress internal morale. German defeat in the last war was preceded by the defection of her allies.

Bombing of German industry and transportation will have a double by-product. The efficiency of foreign workers in undamaged plants will decline; and the community kitchens established in devastated areas will become centres of discontent as family life disintegrates.

Germany is unlikely to be able to weather the crisis that, developing rapidly now, should reach an acute stage this winter or by next spring at the latest.

GROUPS OF CANDIDATES

Many Have Offered Policies and Panaceas Over 77 Years of Political History

TORONTO, July 28 (C)—Indications are there will be few "lone star" or small group candidates on the ballots in the Ontario general election August 4 but the province has had elections when as many as eight or nine parties or groups stormed the hustings and offered their services as M.P.'s to an harassed electorate.

In the present 21st general election campaign and Ontario's 77th year as a province it is expected that while there will be three-way contests in many constituencies the issue will be largely between the Liberal, Progressive-Conservative and Co-operative Commonwealth Federation parties.

Generally speaking, government of the province since Confederation has remained in the hands of either of the two old-line parties. Total years of power enjoyed by various parties or groups follow: Union 4, Reform 1, Liberal 42, Conservative 25, Farmer-Labor 4.

Earlier Groups

Reflecting differences of opinion on the form and operation of Confederation in 1867, the earlier Ontario elections were fought largely by Union and Reform parties. John Sandfield MacDonald's Union government of 1867 gave place in 1871 to the Reformers under Edward Blake, a member also of the House of Commons. Blake resigned the provincial leadership in 1872 to devote all his effort to federal affairs.

The election of 1875 saw the Union and Reform parties renamed Conservative and Liberal following the example of the Dominion House. The provincial Liberals were then led by Sir Oliver Mowat, who had forsaken the judiciary for politics. Shrewd leader of men, he held the premiership 24 years, still an Ontario record. He was appointed lieutenant-governor in 1897.

Led by Joseph Haycock the Patrons are recalled by many as the genesis of the United Farmers' political movements in Canada. For four years the P.F.'s were an effective group in the Ontario House and put the older parties on their mettle. Mr. Haycock was defeated in the 1898 election. The new party broke up.

The Protestant Protective Association rose from the agitation born of the payment of $400,000 by the province of Quebec for Jesuit estate claims. It became an issue in the Dominion House and was echoed throughout Ontario. With the ebb of sectarian sentiment the P.P.A. movement subsided.

Later Governments

The general election of 1905 ended a 33 year Liberal regime. Conservatives, first under Sir James Whitney, then Sir William Hearst, were in office until 1919.

Post-war reconstruction and the election of 1919 brought Ontario's first venture in government outside the two major parties. The United Farmers elected 44 members, Liberals and Conservatives 25. With help of 11 Labor members Drury formed the Farmer-Labor Coalition which held the seat nearly four years.

Led by G. Howard Ferguson the Conservative party regained office in 1923, taking 76 seats compared with 17 U.F.P., Liberal and three Labor. Ferguson succeeded Ferguson as premier on his appointment as High Commissioner to London.

In the election of 1934 the Liberals under Mitchell Hepburn swept the province and over the government with supporters in the House, a slim majority of 42, the last since 1908 when Conservatives were elected to 86 of 106 seats.

The Hepburn government returned Oct. 6, 1937 with following result: Liberal-Progressive 23, Liberal-Progressive 2, Independent-Liberal total 90 seats. Standing at solution of the Legislature on 29, 1943, was: Liberal 59, Progressive-Conservative 19, Liberal-Progressive 2, vacant 10.

SUPPLY OF COAL

Was Important Matter of Business at Housewives Session

A committee consisting of Mrs. Adolph and Mrs. Smith was appointed by the Housewives League at the last meeting to interview coal dealers in the city to see if a more satisfactory distribution of coal could be arranged...

A shortage of storage space was one of the causes of the hand-to-mouth, coal situation here and at the present time this was made worse by the fact that many of the Alberta mines where the city's coal comes from are flooded with water...

Mrs. Thurgood and Mrs. Adolph were appointed as delegates to attend meetings of the Allied Trades Council, following an invitation by that body.

A suggestion laid before the last meeting that women be allowed to work four hour shifts in local plants to help alleviate the manpower shortage had been presented to several firms as well as the Selective Service, it was reported, but no reply had been received up to last night...

Attendance was smaller than usual at the meeting of the Housewives League owing to the fact that so many members are away on holidays. However, several matters of interest were dealt with.

DEATH IN THE ATLANTIC

Four aircraft of the R.A.F. coastal command, two Halifaxes and two Sunderlands, shared in the destruction of a U-boat sighted and attacked in the approaches to the Bay of Biscay during an intensive phase of the Battle of the Atlantic, when a major Allied victory was gained. The TOP photo, taken from a Halifax, shows one of the Sunderlands, circle, making its run-up to attack. The U-boat turns in a tight circle, leaving a streak of oil in its wake as the Sunderland's front guns open up on it. Photo at BOTTOM shows the plume of depth charge explosions masking the submarine.

ACTIVITIES OF Y.M.C.A. AND Y.W.C.A.
By DOROTHY GARBUTT
The Hostess

Thursday afternoon the Service Wives' Club will meet in the ladies' lounge at the "Y." This week they plan to do Red Cross work. I have good news for them about a picnic they are planning.

This Thursday one of the highway camps is having a special dance and supper in celebration of their regimental anniversary. Junior hostesses are invited and Y.W.C.A. chaperones will be Mrs. Stuart and Mrs. Garbutt representing the Queen Mary Chapter of the I.O.D.E. The ladies will meet at the "Y" as usual.

So far as I can learn there will be no navy dance this Friday. I think they plan to have one every second and fourth Fridays.

Alas and alack! Our darts board is a thing of the past. With the increasing crowds in the hut we felt it was no longer safe to have the men hurling darts around the place in the indiscriminate manner to which they were accustomed so the pleasure of the few had to be sacrificed to the safety of the many. How can I remain a champion when I have no board on which to practice?

Mrs. Calderwood phoned to say she had had a letter from Jimmy Aiken who used to be stationed here for so long but is now somewhere with the overseas troops. Jimmy had an idea he'd never be drafted out of Rupert but, once the draft caught him, it certainly blew him a long ways. Jimmy was never without a cigarette and I used to scold him so much about this habit that it got to be he'd hide the fag every time he saw me coming.

Mrs. Brass says her son, Leading Aircraftman Peter Brass, gave a pint of blood the other day when volunteers were called. "It was swell," Peter says, "we got a free show and a free meal out of it."

SWEDE IS ON VISIT
Chief Engineer of Stockholm Air Line is in Canada

WINNIPEG, July 28—In spite of the hazards of war, air line traffic between Sweden and Great Britain is so heavy that the Swedish government air line—A B Aero Transport—is looking for new equipment so that the service may be amplified. This fact was made known to the press in an interview here by Karl H. Larsson, chief engineer. On a mission to Washington, Mr. Larsson extended his trip to Winnipeg to study operation and maintenance procedure of Trans-Canada Air Lines. "Canada and Sweden have much in common," he said. "We both have cold weather to contend with and I think we may be able to exchange ideas to our mutual benefit." He is visiting the TransCanada Air Line shops and conferring with O. T. Larson, T.C.A. vice-president, and J. T. Blain, superintendent of engineering and maintenance.

The Swedish Air Line, the visitor said, flies as regularly as possible between Stockholm and Scotland. "It is an 800-mile non-stop flight, made by night, and we have to make it with meagre weather information. We are obliged to cease operations for about six weeks during midsummer. The British Overseas Airways Corporation," he added, "operates a similar service with Norwegian crews."

A B. Aero Transport also flies between Stockholm and Helsinki, Finland, Mr. Larsson said, and between Stockholm and Berlin, by way of Makno. "Service to Moscow has been discontinued but we hope it will be resumed when the frontier shifts. We have found that our flights to Moscow have resulted in a better understanding between Sweden and the Soviet Union."

In answer to a question as to how his neutral country was faring in the war, the engineer said "we are not complaining. Food rationing is working very well, on the whole. Of the northern countries, Denmark is in the best situation for food. Norway suffers most."

COWARD IN FINE FILM
"In Which We Serve," Long Anticipated Production, is Due at Capitol Theatre

"In Which We Serve" screen production by Noel Coward, noted British author, comes to the Capitol Theatre here commencing tomorrow night. In view of its importance and the anticipation with which it has been awaited, it is being given a three-day showing instead of the customary two days. It is heralded as one of the most outstanding war films ever made on either side of the Atlantic.

The chief character is a destroyer captain, the part of which is played by Coward himself, and the heroine is the ship on which he serves. The picture shows the ship being built and the launching, it shows her in action on many seas, doing her share at Dunkerque, suffering casualties and damage, sometimes limping homeward, sometimes being towed and, at last, going down with guns blazing off Crete.

The sequence of the sinking is intense and realistic, enemy planes dropping their bombs through a hail of fire with one gun firing defiantly until it is swallowed by the water. Then there is the episode of the men in the rubber float, the film flashing back as their plight is depicted to incidents in their lives which they recall.

Since Noel Coward is author, director, producer and star it is truly a Noel Coward production.
