BIG ARMS PLANT IS HARD HIT

Schneider Munitions Works in France Strated by Royal Air Force Saturday Night

FREIDRICHSHAFEN LATEST LONDON, June 21—The Royal Air Force attacked southwest and north Germany last night and Swiss dispatches said Friedrichshafen near Lake Constance had been bombed so heavily that reverberations of the destruction shook houses in Switzerland. A radio factory sustained heavy damage. Great waves of Royal Air Force bombers swept out in daylight today to resume the battering of the European continent with silence of the Kalundborg radio station in Denmark suggesting another raid on northern Germany.

June 21—The great "Schneider munitions works at Le Creusot, 176 miles southeast of Paris, was pounded Saturday night by the Royal Air Force with four and two-ton block busters. It was an 800 mile round trip and the second raid on Le Creusot, the first having been October 1942. "Maximum damage" was done to this largest of arms factories in France, sometimes referred to as the "Krupps of France." There was little resistance. Three of the British bombers failed to return, one of them being Canadian. A power plant 5 miles from Le Creusot was also hit.

Large formations of Royal Air Force bombers swept out across the Channel yesterday afternoon in daylight attacks on enemy territory including air fields at Caen and Amiens.

ACTIVITIES OF Y.M.C.A. AND Y.W.C.A.
 By DOROTHY GARBUTT
 The Hostess

There's quite a dance program this week so I might as well list it right here and now. Tonight one of the Army units is holding a dance at the Empress 'Y' Hall. Junior hostesses are invited and Y.M.C.A. chaperones will be Mrs. Giske and Mrs. MacIntyre, representing the Women of the Moose. Wednesday there will be the regular 'Y' dance at the Empress. As all junior hostesses pass cards are now given out I would like the girls to present their passes at the door. Red Cross girls must have some means of identification and the Knights of Columbus girls their own passes. These measures are necessary now because the hostess list is closed and will only be added to when a vacancy occurs. On Thursday night our old friends at one of the highway camps are starting their Thursday dances again. Junior hostesses will meet at the 'Y' Hut as usual. On alternate Thursdays the other highway camp regiment will hold a dance so remember to keep Thursday open each week.

Although there is no man shortage in this town the girls in the East are feeling it. Douglas Badger's sister described the situation very tersely in the following little tale. She says that—

In 1941 it was "What a man."
 In 1942 it was "What? A Man."
 In 1943 it is "What's a man?"

I had a letter from Connie MacKenzie today. She says Hec is in the East now and in the same party is Wilson MacDuffee who was Y.M.C.A. supervisor at Seal Cove last summer. She says "Skipper," their little fox terrier, is having a wonderful time as he has a big back yard to play in. I miss Connie very much. It's very nice for me to have one of the "Y" wives to chum around with and for that reason I am looking forward to Jean Melvin coming up. We can air the family washing between ourselves and thus keep the odd grouse from the public.

Local Women Are Welding

Receive Training at Prince Rupert Shipyard

The employment of women in essential industries is one way of meeting the present labor shortage and the local shipyard is fully aware of this. One step has been the training of women as welders. The training of women is carried out in conjunction with the Dominion-wide war emergency training scheme. Under this plan the women receive instruction in welding in the plant, and are also given every opportunity to observe expert workers on the job. When the welder trainees have completed the course and passed the tests satisfactorily, they may then be employed in the welding department.

Already eight women have qualified and this leaves vacancies for other trainees.

Dance and Concert for Mr. and Mrs. R. Campbell at Kitwanga

KITWANGA, June 21—In honor of R. Campbell, manager of the local Hudson's Bay store, and Mrs. Campbell who are leaving for Fort St. James, where Mr. Campbell will take over the managerial post, the Kitwanga Senior Football Club held a dance and concert recently.

A large crowd attended the affair and, during the evening, Harold Sinclair spoke of the high regard held for Mr. and Mrs. Campbell by the natives. He introduced Chief Ack-Bo-Quad and Chief Wee-Sheiks who sang the Indian war canoe song. Chief Councillor W.B. Morgan interpreted the song and explained that it had been composed by the great warrior chief Lea-gak of the Tsimpsean tribe.

Eddie Benson, manager of the K.S.P. club, and David Williams vice-president, presented Mrs. Campbell with a decorative paddle as a farewell gift and thanked Mr. Campbell for his interest in the club.

Vocal solos by Albert Douse, Harold Sinclair and W. Blackenbury, and a violin solo by W. B. Morgan, completed the program and the dancing was continued.

Assistants in R.C.A.F. Hospital in Newfoundland Talk of Their Work

By GLADYS LENNON
 Canadian Press Staff Writer

AN R.C.A.F. BASE IN NEWFOUNDLAND, June 21 (C)—It was a quiet day in the women's ward of the Sir Frederick Banting Hospital. Only two of the 10 beds were occupied. Cpl. Ruth Kelley of Toronto, hospital assistant of the R.C.A.F. (Women's Division) turned smiling from the eight-year old mite whose blue eyes danced over a still-unopened parcel.

"We get experience here that we'd never get in any other R.C.A.F. hospital," she said. "We get all kinds of cases. I've learned an awful lot since coming here." Cpl. Kelly said she liked her civilian work as bank stenographer, but "for wartime, this is the job to have."

The corporal was right about the experience the assistants get. The 150-bed Banting Hospital, built in 1941 and named after the Canadian scientist who lost his life in a plane crash not far away, is something special in R.C.A.F. hospitals.

Treat All Ages
 Here Wing Cmdr. E. N. Ferguson of Yeymouth, N.S., Chief Medical Officer, and his staff treat cases that include "everything people get from birth to old age." And the hospital has modern equipment to handle them.

There are two bright operating rooms. One small room with connecting dark-room holds equipment that "can x-ray anything." In another, physiotherapy treatments are given. A laboratory in the basement is equipped to handle all sorts of pathological tests.

There are civilians as well as Air Force and Army personnel among the patients. Because there is no other hospital for hundreds of miles, the R. C. A. F. could not turn away the sick who came looking for help. They kept coming until the past year civilian business brought a revenue of more than $10,000.

Under the supervision of the small staff of R. C. A. F. Nursing Sisters headed by Matron Frances Anderson of Winnipeg, Women's Division, hospital assistants work in wards and operating rooms, nursery, x-ray room and laboratory. "You couldn't ask for better girls," said Wing Cmdr. Ferguson.

Not Much Flu
 Colds and influenza cases are comparatively few, the Medical Officer said. "There's no reason why we should have them. When we do it's usually through someone who has been away on leave." But fractures average about one a day. Sickness rate among the Women's Division, he continued, is lower than it would be in civilian life, and neurotics are much rarer. "That doesn't mean that neurotics don't enlist. They would be among the first to join, wanting a change. There is no way to stop them—they are perfectly healthy. But once they get in they are too busy to think about themselves."

Air Raid Alarms . . .

Already formal complaints have been made at the sudden sounding of the air raid sirens when there is not even a change in the state of alert. There has also been official assurance that the practice would be discontinued. Furthermore, the A.R.P. authorities some time ago said that henceforth air raid alarms would only be sounded when it was the real thing.

It is needless to point out that every time an irregular sounding of the siren occurs and it is explained that it was merely a test or a short circuit, the public and the forces on leave, too, become that much more disregarding. Some time the real thing may come and it will be the simple old story of "Wolf! Wolf!"

If the air raid alarms have to be tested, it would seem that it could surely be at the regular noon hour time.

An Enlarged Navy . . .

It has been intimated by Navy Minister McDonald that plans for an enlarged post-war navy are under consideration and that the report made some years ago for the Canadian Government by Lord Jellicoe on Canada's naval defence requirements may be returned for comparison with the government's present viewpoint.

The Jellicoe report carried recommendations that the Canadian Navy should consist of battle cruisers, cruisers, submarines and destroyers. At that time such an aggregation would have constituted a pretty well rounded navy but the aircraft carrier is now in the fore and the once high regard of navy men for the heavier type cruisers has been reduced. The fate of the Hood and the general British trend toward cruisers of less than 10,000 tons suggests that this type of ship would find no place in Canada's post-war navy.

The present war, in which Canada is trying to keep the sea lanes open and build a navy at the same time, ought to teach us a lesson. If Canada had not been allied with a strong naval power, especially in the west, this coast, or parts of it might even now be under enemy control. If the enemy in the far east had struck at some Canadian outpost instead of Pearl Harbor, the effects would have been no less damaging merely because we had no navy to be destroyed.

Even though the waging of war is not a completely continuous human pastime, military developments have a way of keeping pace with the humane sciences. For this reason the dimensions and qualities of Canada's future navy should not be cast beforehand and the materials for it merely poured into the mould. In the light of past inadequacies this is no unneeded warning. Rather a navy should originate gradually as a compact progressive force. Its nature should be that of an effective expendable, that is, it should be powerful enough to deliver a deterring blow against any invading force before it was itself crippled or destroyed. And since Canada is a two-ocean country, it needs a two-ocean defence.

The continuation of peace after this war will depend, as it always has depended, on the power of the right people to enforce it.

Who Are We Fighting? . . .

While there is no apology to be made for insisting that there should be a full measure of respect for civilian rights in measure consistent with the efficient prosecution of the war effort and the carrying out of the military program both for attack and defence, civilians would also do well to remember the principal objective in this war is the defeat of the enemy—not to quarrel with the authorities or compete with each other.

Possibly, there is an inclination on the part of some to be unduly concerned about the incursion of the war prosecuting authorities on what are considered essential civilian rights. After all our real enemies are the Nazis, the Fascists and the Japs although, from talk we sometimes hear, one would think they were some of the authoritative personnel.

We all have to do our duty and play our part in the war and because some one else does not happen to be playing the same is no excuse for us not to be doing ours.

If we spend all our time looking after our own personal pleasures and inclinations, trying to avoid sacrifices and responsibilities, we will get little done in the war effort.

Undoubtedly, many of us are still thinking more about our personal interests than we are of helping to win the war, leaving that to somebody else to do.

WEEKLY WARTIME NUTRITION HINTS

Chili Con Carne

Both as a "meat extender" and a "meat-user-upper," this is an aid to the menu

CHILI CON CARNE AMERICAN STYLE
Approximately 6 servings
1 lb. Kidney or Navy beans
4 large mild onions
1 lb. diced raw meat
2-4 tablespoons chili powder
4 tablespoons Lard or Shortening
1 tin (2½ cups) tomato juice
Salt, pepper and garlic or garlic salt to taste

Wash and look over beans; soak overnight in cold water. Simmer gently in same water until tender. If you use raw meat, brown in hot fat then cook onions gently until delicately browned. (If cooked meat is used, brown onions first then add meat and sauté gently 3 minutes). Add the beans (including their liquor, probably ¾ to 4 cupsful), tomato and seasonings. Simmer gently to blend flavours thoroughly. (For specially delicious flavour and to dispense with overnight soaking you might try one of the brands of dehydrated beans now on the market—follow directions on packet).

The amount of meat—these days—is variable, too. If you have less meat, increase the beans' proportion and you will still have a nutritionally valuable dish. A cool salad—shredded cabbage and diced apple would be grand—is a delicious contrast to follow the chili. If you eat a hearty slice of Canada Approved bread with the meal and drink a glass of milk, you will have gone a long way to getting your daily minimum requirements of protective foods.

DECORATION DAY HERE

Demonstration for Honored-Dead
 Of Last War

On Sunday the Imperial Order, Daughters of the Empire, the Canadian Legion and Women's Auxiliary, assisted by the citizens of Prince Rupert and military units, paid tribute to their honored war dead on the occasion of the annual Decoration Day. Queen Mary Chapter, I.O.D.E., whose duty and privilege it is to care for the graves in the Soldiers' Plot, had charge of the arrangements together with the Canadian Legion.

Conditions were favorable for the parade which formed up at the Legion Hall, headed by the band and firing party of a local regiment. Mayor W. M. Watts, with Capt. D. Stuart, army chaplain, followed, then the standard of Queen Mary Chapter with regents and members of the four chapters, members of the Women's Auxiliary of the Canadian Legion with their president, Mrs. F. Barber, and the Canadian Legion under their president, Dr. R. C. Bamford. The Legion men turned out in goodly numbers and it was gratifying to note how soldierly they looked in their medals and berets, despite the fact that a quarter-century has gone by since they faced the foe for Canada and the Empire.

To the stirring, yet plaintive strains of "Boys of the Old Brigade," the parade swung smartly down Third Avenue to the Cenotaph where Mrs. G. E. Moore, regent of Municipal Chapter, placed wreath.

Proceeding in cars to the cemetery, the soldiers' plot was the scene of an impressive service with Mrs. D. C. Stuart, regent of Queen Mary Chapter, officiating. George Dawes had charge of the colors at the central flagpole and raised and lowered them at appropriate moments in salute.

Commencing with "O Canada," a prayer by the regent followed. Then came two minutes' silence, broken by the "Last Post" sounded by Bugler Rance of the Legion. Capt. D. Stuart next addressed the gathering in a short but moving speech. "It is our duty," Capt. Stuart said in part, "to pay tribute to those who now sleep beneath the flag. If we did not make public acknowledgement of the sacrifices of those who fought and died that we might live, we should be failing in our duty." The same high courage and devotion to the Empire which inspired those men who enlisted in 1914 is evident today in their sons of this world war.

"O God Our Help in Ages Past" followed the address. Then the impressive firing of three volleys by the regimental firing party was despatched with smartness and precision. During the decoration of graves the regimental band played very beautifully and softly "Lead Kindly Light." Small Union Jacks and poppies were placed on the graves. Bugler Rance sounded "Reveille and, with the singing of "God Save the King," the ceremony ended.

The regimental band accompanied the musical numbers and lent new beauty to the familiar words by their excellent rendering.

Cars again conveyed the gathering back to town but the parade again formed up at Long's garage and marched to the Legion Building where it was dismissed.
