Wanted: Plans With Work! . . .

As we come to grips with the study of the trends in post-war planning, we see that some of the planners appear to have overlooked the fact that plans stay on paper until someone translates them into work. Not only that, but some of the plans appear to be plans to avoid work. They consist almost wholly of proposals to make life easier and pleasanter for everyone, payment for which is to come out of the public treasury, and to overlook the fact that only work—hard work, will rebuild the things that have been destroyed in the battle areas, and catch up on those things that have been neglected in favor of war work, in other areas.

We are in favor of making life easier and pleasanter for everyone but we are curious about who is going to do the work. Because, behind that phrase "out of the public treasury" there hides that uncomfortable fact that the only public treasury is taxes, drawn from the money that somebody got by work. The justifiable magnitude of the sums now being obtained by taxes of one kind and another, and the necessarily vast war efforts being paid for out of these sums, obscures for some people the fact that, if such a scale of taxation remains in effect after the war, to finance public spending, much of industry we have known will never be re-created. Such great employers of labor, as, for instance, the automobile industry, are utterly dependent for their existence upon a public in whose hands is left a reasonable margin between income and outgo.

This consideration is relevant to the fact that business is only one of three groups now at work on post-war planning, and we are not sure if it is the most active, because business is simply the work of the country. The other two groups are first, the rather large group of people with ideas. It may be an accident but most of these people have not, in the past been prominently identified with the work of the country. Second are various governmental bodies being set up. These bodies can at best supply governmental guidance to post-war movements—but the citizens will have to supply the work. To expect otherwise would be to expect of government that it did our part as well as its own. The government bodies will need the co-operation of business in the making of the plans and the support of business in their implementation.

If the business is the work of the country it has a right to express itself on the soundness of the plans offered by the people with ideas and, if it thinks some of them to be unsound, should be prepared to point out in what respects they are unsound. Should it fail to do so, it might regretfully see the electorate vote affirmatively on some of such plans.

Again, if business is the work of the country, it should study, discuss and express itself in connection with the plans now being evolved by the various governmental bodies. On its shoulders will inevitably fall much of the work of carrying out these plans and, through taxation, much of the financial burden of paying for them.

YOUTH DAY PROGRAMS

To Assist Churches to Imbue Youth With Loyalty to Things of The Spirit

TORONTO, May 10 — Youth Sunday, celebrated throughout the British Empire as an integral part of the Empire Youth Movement, will be observed May 16, under the special patronage of His Majesty the King.

Originating with the King's coronation in 1937, observance of Empire Youth Sunday has been marked by increasing numbers of youth throughout the Empire each year. A similar movement in the United States also has advanced to some degree.

The purpose of the movement is to assist the churches of all denominations to imbue youth with a profound loyalty to things of the spirit just as Nazi youth have been fired with adherence to the principles of evil.

Objective and Plans
 Major F. J. Ney, founder of the National Council of Education in Canada and now in the service of the British Ministry of Information has emphasized that two ideologies are represented by the "O" and the "S" face each other in the conflict. The future of Christianity lies largely with youth. "Their general acceptance of that way of life must, in turn, largely depend on the ability of the church to define itself and its mission in terms of a changed world, of service and self-discipline."

The character of Youth Sunday observances will necessarily vary in different localities and denominations. In some places processions and mass meetings will be held. Schools and Sunday Schools naturally fall into the picture. Specially suitable hymns and scripture readings will be used and sermons for the young preached. The "I Believe" poster, sent out by the National Council of Education to thousands of clergymen will be posted on church doors, above the pulpit or in some other prominent place.

Religious bodies in Canada will co-operate in making Youth Sunday a milestone in the advance of civilization. The Anglican, Baptist, Presbyterian, and Roman Catholic Churches, the United Church and the Salvation Army have distributed to individual clergymen across Canada 12,000 leaflets, posters and brochures by the National Council of Education and donated by individuals and companies, featuring the victory of the Cross over the Swastika.

Mother's Day Church Service

Job's Daughters Attended in Body At First Presbyterian Church

Another observance of the Mother's Day occasion by the local Job's Daughters organization was attendance at a special church service in First Presbyterian Church last night. Daughters and their mothers attended in a body, the officers of Job's Daughters being in their white gowns. Miss Margaret Morin, honored queen, and Mrs. Alex Mitchell, guardian, were in charge of the party.

Rev. A. F. MacSween, the pastor, preached appropriately to the occasion. Sergeant Glen Scarvie sang a solo as did Mrs. W. Martin in the course of an anthem by the choir.

There was a good-sized congregation.

A Letter to Adolf Schickelgruber

Adolf Schickelgruber
% Wilhelmstrasse
Berlin, Germany

BY AIR MAIL
PAR AVION

Herr Schickelgruber:
I've just bought more Victory Bonds. The good wife also has bought more. That's why I'm writing you this letter. There's a lot to these Victory Bonds, a lot that concerns you as well as ourselves.

You see, these were the BIGGEST bonds we've ever bought, just TWICE AS LARGE as the bonds we bought last time and the times before that. Buying double this time wasn't easy. It meant digging deep into our savings. It meant pledging part of my pay for the next six months. But every single cent is coming back with interest.

It's like this, Schickelgruber. Four years ago you and your gangsters caught us peaceful folks unprepared. You started blasting your way through one country after another, murdering innocent women and children by the hundreds of thousands. Truth to tell, you had us worried. It seemed that we were next on your list.

But you didn't figure it right, Nazi! What kind of people do you think we are? Remember that first Victory Loan? That should have been the tip-off to you. Remember the Second and Third Victory Loans? The way they went over should have put you wise.

And now, Schickelgruber, now we're ready. We've caught up to you and your gang. It's taken us four sweating years, but at last WE'RE READY! We've got the ships, and guns; and tanks, and planes enough to darken the skies. So look out mister. We're coming your way—and it's YOU we're after.

That's why the wife and I both bought DOUBLE SIZE Victory Bonds this time . . . why we cheerfully invested our savings and part of our earnings, too. Thousands more Canadians like us are doing the same thing . . . we're of one mind in wanting you and your kind destroyed, and if dollars will help do it, and do it QUICK, then we'll gladly invest all the dollars we've got.

So this letter is a warning to you Schickelgruber. You've been pushing us around long enough. It's our Turn Now!

Determinedly,
Jack Canuck

P.S. The chaps who will be delivering this letter Air Mail are neighbours of ours. They've promised to deliver it right to your doorstep together with a 4,000 lb. sample of the stuff that Bonds Buy. Hope you're in when they call.

MINING DEVELOPMENTS

Individuals prospected for placer gold during the past year. On the other hand, there is, by way of compensation, the extensive and profitable mercury operation in the Pinchi Lake area and an expanding search for war minerals.

Prospecting for tungsten and minerals of other strategic metals, such as chromium, manganese and mercury, has been very active in the Omineca division and sound mining companies, including at least one eastern corporation, have had parties of prospectors in the field. Many engineers representing both British Columbia and eastern mining companies have been engaged in examining occurrences of both base and strategic-mineral deposits in the district. Prospecting for scheelite has been especially active in the Usk area and further discoveries have been made in the Ridge group owned by J. Bell.

The quest for mercury during the past season resulted in new discoveries on Silver Creek, a tributary of the Omineca River. Exploration of these discoveries was undertaken by the Consolidated Mining and Smelting Company and Bralorne Mines Limited. These developments will probably lead to production in the near future. Exploratory work on mercury prospects southeast of the Pinchi Lake area was undertaken by Pioneer Gold Mines of B.C. Limited. These prospects and developments verify the occurrence of a definite mercury belt in that section as was officially predicted by the government mining engineer, Dr. T. T. Mandy, in 1938; his immediate identification for the original stakers of important cinnabar deposits led to mercury production in 1940.

In 1942 the Red Rose mine in the Hazelton area commenced the production of scheelite. Operated by the Consolidated Mining and Smelting company, the Red Rose is scheduled for an expansion of output in 1943. Other tungsten deposits known to occur on Rocher Deboile Mountain are to be investigated during the present year. The environs of Hazelton also include the old Silver Standard mine, a silver-lead property, the revival of which is possible.

The mining of coal has assumed "strategic" importance in the Omineca Mining Division. Recognizing the necessity of increased coal production to offset a growing shortage of fuel and to take care of the greatly increased strategic demand in the northern area of the province, the Aveling Coal Company Limited near Telkwa has been taken over by the Telkwa Company Limited, organized by A. M. Richmond and associates of Vancouver. Necessary machinery has been installed, the crew augmented and active development commenced for an appreciable increase in production with Mr. Richmond in charge of operations. The neighboring Bulkley Valley Collieries, operated by F. M. Dockrill, has continued in normal production with a more than ready local demand for the entire output.

Portland Canal Mining Division

Here in 1942 the Big Missouri ceased operating, dismantled its underground mill and shipped the machinery from the property. The Silbak Premier reduced output markedly because of lack of adequate labor. The town of Stewart, together with the surrounding mines, has been badly hit by the war.

Exploration was continued by Montreal interests at the L. L. and H. a gold-base metal property of Bitter Creek east of Stewart. Encouraging results from this work were reported by the operators. The war situation will doubtless, however, determine the immediate further development of this property.

Prospecting for tungsten deposits (scheelite) has been active in the Stewart area. Further work has been carried out on the Molly molybdenite-scheelite deposit, by John Haathi. Several bulk samples for metallurgical tests, with a view to producing both a marketable molybdenite concentrate and a clean scheelite concentrate, have been extracted and forwarded through the medium of B.C. Government Sampling Plant at Prince Rupert to ore-testing laboratories at Ottawa and to the U.S. Vanadium Corporation at Bishop, California. The Ottawa Laboratory and the American corporation have co-operated in trying to solve this metallurgical problem, on the outcome of which production depends. In 1943, Mr. Haathi plans to extend the adit on the Molly B. zone to determine more accurately the prevalent character of the mineralization.

New scheelite discoveries have been made in the Stewart area on several properties by Art Cameron utilizing an ultra-violet ray lamp. These include the Dot, Louise, Little Pat, Lucille, Badland and Hogback claims. Further prospecting of some of these showings will be carried out during the forthcoming season.

Potentialities for war requirements of copper, lead and zinc deposits exist in the area contiguous to Stewart and are easily accessible by road, trail and seaboard. As the need for these metals is urgent it would seem investigation for the development of these known and easily accessible deposits would be constructive at this time. The utilization of such resources is still dependent on Canadian and United States co-operation in matters of financing, export, transportation, tariff, marketing, and smelting facilities.

In the summer of 1942 the ghost copper town of Anyox, south of Stewart, was primed for revival by a leading Canadian exploration company, Ventures Limited. Unfortunately, fire swept through the camp in July and destroyed much of the old installations, thereby seriously affecting the plans. The company subsequently conducted diamond-drilling operations throughout the season.

Atlin Mining Division

Individual and small syndicate operations, which have always played a major role in Atlin, have continued in normal production. These, included with large-scale operations, composed 39 placer-gold producers on at least ten creeks in the Atlin area. Utilization of modern mechanized equipment characterized operations by Northern Resources Limited, Spruce Creek Placers Limited, and Columbia Development Limited, and resulted in appreciable gold production in 1942 by these companies. On Boulder Creek the Consolidated Mining and Smelting Company's hydraulic operation was carried on by "lay-men." Northern Resources Limited, operated by California interests, was the only Atlin 1942 casualty, closing towards the end of the season for the duration but with bright prospects for profitable post-war operation.

The further development during 1942 of the tungsten (wolframite) deposit on the Wolframite group at the head of Boulder Creek by lessees, Norman Fisher and Ole Olsen, was important. These enterprising operators plan the production of a high-grade had-sorted and cobbled product and, to that end, immediate underground exploration to determine the warrant for the installation of a small and simple gravity-concentration plant. Through bulk samples of a preliminary hand-sorted material the Government Sampling Plant at Prince Rupert has secured a ready market for the product and will market the production from the operation. The first shipment of ore is planned early in 1943. This marks the first attempt in the province of British Columbia at the production and marketing of wolframite.

The Polaris-Taku Mining Company, financed by Duluth, Minnesota, interests, and operating the only lode-gold mine in the Atlin mining division, suspended mining last year because of handicaps occasioned by the war.

Future of Northwest

Based on 1942 activities and developments, predictions for a bright future of post-war progress in this region are justified. The Alaska-Yukon highway will make remote sections in this area easily accessible. The linking of already known mineral areas with adequate transportation facilities through the medium of this artery and the probable discovery of new mineral areas, contiguous to the highway, which will be immediately supplied with transportation, heralds a new era for the mining industry of northwestern British Columbia.

We Want Freedom From WANT... FEAR... and FORCE

THERE'S nothing old-fashioned about this war. The weapons are all new-fashioned.

The methods of attack and defence are new-fashioned.

And so are our war aims.

Nations used to be content with victory.

But, this time, we shall not be satisfied with victory.

We shall not be content with peace.

We shall be satisfied only with freedom... freedom from Want, Fear and Force... freedom from every kind of oppression.

THIS is a people's war.

This is a war of the world's free peoples against aggression and evil dictatorship which seek to force the will of the few on the lives of the many.

The free peoples of the world want security and the right to think and act and plan their own lives in their own way.

They are tired of being pushed around.

They want to be left alone — to live in peace with their neighbours.

They want to regain those things which free people everywhere hold dear.

IN Canada we are fighting and working and saving to secure for ourselves and others a world that will be really free.

Our future security is everybody's business.

Security has to be paid for.

It must come out of our own pockets.

You can protect your future and the future of your loved ones, by putting every cent you can save into the 4th Victory Loan.

Brigadiers Keith and Gillingham arrived here accompanied by Captain Peacock of Prince George, and Adj. Garry of Hazelton. Capt. J. H. Johnson of the Kitsegukla Post brought the party here by motor.

The opening of the dinner was highlighted by an address of welcome by Mrs. Capt. J. H. Johnson. Outpost S. Morgan also made a speech of welcome to the visitors.

The dinner, which was enjoyed immensely by everyone, was prepared under the direction of Mrs. (Capt.) J. H. Johnson.

During a short program after the dinner Mrs. Edward Wesley sang a solo "When His Salvation Brings" and D. S. Williams sang a song, accompanying himself on his autoharp.

Brigadier Keith responded to the speeches of welcome, and continued his talk by telling of his work with young people across Canada. He concluded his discourse with a sermon.

The evening's celebration was closed with a prayer for Capt. Peacock, and the visitors were returned to Hazelton by Capt. Johnson.

Very Successful Affair Held on Saturday Afternoon

The little betters, those optimistic fellows who have a "sure thing" in every race, but seldom a winner, are due for a break when post-war reconstruction starts and horse-racing in Britains hits the come-back trail. There will be fewer tracks, but they will be better equipped to accommodate the general public. The Jockey Club, that august body of stewards which rules the nation's flat-racing with a heavy, righteous hand, at last have recognized the people who risk their shillings and pence to make horseracing a big business. It's a sign of the times. Racing will have to make a fresh start after the war and a lot of money will be needed. It's the little fellow who is going to pay in the long run so the Jockey Club has taken steps to see that he gets some return for his money.

A committee appointed by the club to consider the "whole future of racing in general and in particular with reference to the encouragement of owners and the greater comfort and convenience of the public" declared in a report that race-course executives had shown little disposition in the past to cater to the individual beyond the fringe of those directly concerned with racing. "Yet," the report said, "It is from the general public that the money will have to come if many of the improvements desired are to be carried out." It acknowledged that post-war conditions may make it impossible for some time to carry out extensive re-buildings, but thought that it would be possible to erect artificial embankments from which those who couldn't afford the stands could obtain a clear view. The committee proposed partial centralization of race courses within easy reach of the public, envisaging a larger revenue becoming available through such procedure. The Jockey Club, which has approved the report in principle, has taken steps to implement this suggestion and has consented to the appointment of a sub-committee which will negotiate for the acquisition of a number of small courses.

On the technical side, the committee recommended that no horse should be allowed to run unnamed and suggested a rule, in effect in Canada, that when a horse is disqualified for interference it may be placed immediately after the horse or horses interfered with instead of last, as at present. The committee, however, rejected the Canadian and United States track practice of giving a running commentary from loud speakers during the running of races. They suggested use of loud speakers to announce entries and jockeys, numbers of the first and second horses (for benefit of bookmakers and their clients) and note prices for the first three. That was as far as they would go.

It is probable that a great number of other changes will be implemented when the big task of rebuilding begins. There's still racing nowadays, but it's a mere token compared to the days when throngs jammed Aintree, Goodwood and Epsom for the season's classics. Many tracks have been transformed into military establishments and the few that operate appear more like vegetable plots than a place where horses matched speed and stamina.
