

Churchill Sees 1944 Climax

British Premier Warns Against Expecting War End Without Hard Fight

Situation is More Hopeful Than Ever But Also More Grim — Pays Tribute to Russians — Submarine Menace Broken.

LONDON, Nov. 9 (CP)—Speaking at the Lord Mayor's Festival today, Prime Minister Winston Churchill predicted the "impending ruin" of Germany but gave warning that, in his belief, defeat of the Nazis could not come before 1944. The Prime Minister asserted that, "unless some happy event occurs on which we have no right to count, 1944 will see the greatest sacrifice of British and United States armies." The war situation was more hopeful than it had ever been and yet more grim.

Mrs. Churchill Meets the Press

LONDON, Nov. 9 — Mrs. Winston Churchill says if she had had to choose a profession she would have been a cook. "Better still" she told the newspaper reporter who asked the question, "I should like to run a restaurant. I love cookery books."

But after the war, she added to a press conference, she wanted to retire into private life and look after her family, though her Aid to Russia Fund and the Y.W.C.A. Fund for Women in the Services were "very dear" to her during the war.

Mrs. Churchill held the press conference because she wanted to meet the press of Britain after holding one in Washington.

"I feel that press conferences are good things," she said. "I sometimes wonder whether my husband should hold them."

Why Pressure of Water is Lower

Explanation is made at the City Hall that the poor water pressure the city has been getting during the past week has not been due to any further deterioration in the city water supply and distribution system but rather to the fact that the reservoir is empty these days while the work of gunnitting, including cleaning, repairing and painting, is going on. During this time the reservoir is cut off and the water is going directly into the mains which makes the elevation lower and the pressure accordingly less. The reservoir should be in use again within a week.

ONLY LABOR NOW ACTIVE

Interest is, However, Developing In Municipal Election Situation.

With the Civic Labor Federation still leading the way, some interest appears to be developing in the civic election contest to be held next month. Unless some other organization than the Labor Federation soon becomes active, however, there is reason to forecast that labor will have even a greater control of civic affairs next year than it did last.

As already mentioned, Ald. W. H. Brett is being groomed for the mayoralty in succession to Mayor W. M. Watts. If Ald. Brett does resign to contest the mayoralty, five aldermen will have to be elected. The terms of Ald. Robert McKay, Ald. N. E. Arnold, Ald. Thomas Elliott and Ald. T. H. Sorensen expire this year, the remaining members of council being Ald. W. H. Brett, Ald. George Hills, Ald. J. S. Black and Ald. H. M. Daggett. The intentions of the retiring aldermen have not yet been made known. As for the school board, Trustees C. G. Ham and E. J. Smith complete their terms at this time with Trustees Jack Deane, Kathleen Hill and J. T. Langridge continuing.

Advancing Steadily

Fifth and Eighth Armies Capture More Important Italian Places—Yanks Bomb Turin

ALGIERS, Nov. 9 — Advancing five miles through enemy positions, the British Eighth Army seized positions overlooking the Sangro River and a height beyond where the Germans were reported establishing an eastern anchor of the winter defence line, headquarters announced today.

The Eighth Army captured Torino, four miles northwest of captured Turinodisangro, four miles northwest of captured Casalborgino. Further inland Canadian and British troops punched through Torrefronda, capturing control of an additional chunk of valuable lateral road.

Kassel has ceased to exist as a part of Nazi war industry for some time at least, the Air Ministry said tonight after studying new reconnaissance photographs of the heavily bombed Ruhr industrial centre of two hundred thousand persons.

Sketch by Negress Is Used for Print

WINDSOR, Ont., Nov. 9 — First of a series of historical prints depicting characters and background of Kent and Essex counties in Ontario has been issued by the Assumption Historical Research Society here. The print is from a sketch of Rev. Josiah Henson, more familiarly known as "Uncle Tom," whose life story was made into the book, "Uncle Tom's Cabin," by Harriet Beecher Stowe. The sketch was drawn by Artist Shreve, young Chatham, Ont., negress who, in the opinion of Eugene S. J. Paulus, curator of the history department of Assumption College, gives promise of a bright career in Canada art circles.

The sketch was drawn from an original photograph taken in Chicago after the great negro emancipator and one-time slave had visited Queen Victoria in England.

Henson founded the Dawn Institute and the Wilberforce Institute for escaped slaves after he moved to Dresden, near Chatham, in 1828. He died and was buried there five years later.

Copies of the print, taken from a sketch owned by Dan Taylor, president of the Assumption Press Association, will be sent to colleges, libraries and museums in Canada and the United States.

Prince Rupert's New Band...

The band of the local reserve unit, the Prince Rupert Machine Gun Regiment, turned out in the midst of the big rainstorm Sunday morning to lead the war veterans on their annual Remembrance Sunday church parade. The band is only of about twenty pieces but, after a very few months of training, regularly each Monday and Friday, it has been developed into a very creditable organization. The band is not only an asset to the home town regiment but to the city itself. There were not a few difficulties to be overcome in bringing the band along to its present state which will undoubtedly be further improved upon by the enthusiastic and conscientious group of musicians. Bandmaster Peter Lien and his bandmen are entitled to these words of encouragement and appreciation.

Need of Ambulance...

A couple of weeks ago we commented in these columns on the ambulance—or lack of such—situation in Prince Rupert. The letter from Dr. Large we published on Saturday suggesting that a campaign for funds for the purchase of a new ambulance be instituted has created some interest and it was not long after the paper was out that the first subscription was received over the Daily News counter—$5 from an anonymous donor, since which there have been several others since. We are glad to co-operate in receiving, acknowledging and delivering contributions and we would commend such a campaign for support. There is no need to labor repetition of the important reasons for the need of a public ambulance here.

JUST FAIR PLAY

Editor, Daily News:

It was not such along time ago when an enterprising young man with very little capital bought a vehicle of ancient vintage and, with another man as driver and one as mechanic, started the "Arrow Bus Line". Shortly after, the City of Prince Rupert became the overcrowded place it is today and the "bus line" proved to be very successful.

The Civic Labor Federation, casting envious eyes on this sound and flourishing business, now says "Let the City take over the 'bus line'."

I suppose that when a fellow working man makes a moderate success out of an undertaking he becomes one of the hated capitalist class.

Yours for fair play.

ROOT OF EVIL

Editor, Daily News:

So! Our smoking mothers want to deprive us of the pleasure they themselves are so addicted to. Surely it could not be that they are considering our health at this late date! Why was that not thought of when as infants they were nursing us, or even before they gave us birth. Were the health of our lungs, or the state of our hearts, or the condition of our nervous system considered then? Gosh, no! They wanted to smoke to be thought smart, and so they smoked. We did not count! Nicotine was our daily diet so naturally we just liked nicotine before we were old enough to recognize a cigarette. Now they want to turn the onus on us and throw the responsibility on the store keepers.

And if it is morals they are considering—where were mothers in our formative years? Sitting in smoked-fogged drawing rooms playing cards or standing in smoked-fogged halls sipping tea in the name of charity.

Charity (love) begins at home, and so does responsibility for the lives—physical, mental and moral—of their kids. And don't forget that, if mothers and girls (the mothers-to-be) do not smoke, the manufacture of cigarettes would drop to less

CONCERT BY SHIP

Fine Entertainment by "Three Balls of Fire" and "Two Sparks."

(By Dorothy Garbutt)

The other day I asked Chester le Maitre the translation of the name of one of the minesweepers in port at the time and he said our only English equivalent was "The Merry Chase." And the name just fits the crew of this rollicking ship which has done more towards our fun and entertainment than any other ship to date. Sunday night they led us a merry chase through one of the smartest concert programs at the Capitol in a long time. Given by only a handful of men and the wife of one of them, it had all the variety, pep, zest and what have you of a larger number of men.

The master of ceremonies, introduced to the audience by Chester le Maitre of the YMCA, was George Chisholm, the epitome of all that's tall, dark and handsome. George was a very efficient master of ceremonies, combining dignity and impudence in a highly disarming manner. He kept the numbers going smoothly, introducing each with a quip, wisecrack or timely verse in a most amusing manner.

The concert opened with the original "Three and a Half Balls of Fire" — plus "Two Extra Sparks" in the persons of Petty Officer Glenn Harlow on the banjo, "Smiling" Chick Wiebe at the piano, Signaller Art Ralph on the piano accordion, Telegraphist Larry Sawatski on the guitar (these were the original Three and a Half Balls of Fire) and the "Two Sparks" were Leading Stoker Mickey Burke and Stoker First Class Phil Barron who played the bones and the mandolin. Their first number was "La Paloma." This was followed by Phil Barron singing and playing on the mandolin a vivacious South American number "Sibonet."

half the present output and it would not be so easy for us kids to get them. And just maybe we would not want them then either. The force of example is strong. Wake up women!

—Under Sixteen.

The next number was by the "Balls of Fire" and was dedicated to all sailors' sweethearts. It was called "Dummy Sweetheart." Glenn does that song reminding you of the time you took the gal painted on the sign in to dinner with you and had the waiter serve her a full course meal? That was really dummy love, as ever was!

Shades of Red Newman and the Old Dumbells troupe but I never expected to hear an audience of soldiers of this war laugh and applaud that old war favorite, "Oh, Oh, Oh it's a Lovely War!" But when the ship's engineer Eddie Mills came out in full kit and with the most forlorn appearance singing this old classic, which is new to this generation, the applause was deafening. Eddie is an old hand at stage work and knows how to put a comic song over. The orchestra then played and sang "I Only Want a Buddy Not a Sweetheart," harmonizing beautifully. Chick Wiebe, a clever pianist, played a medley of popular songs with his own variations. Then Phil Barron did a solo number "My Isle of Golden Dreams." The "Balls of Fire," featuring Mickey Burke, the "bones" of the troop, romped through "The Beer Barrel Polka."

Mr. Mills' next solo number was the London Blackout song, "Follow the White Line" into which he cleverly inserted a topical verse of his own, "Follow the New Loan." In both his numbers he was accompanied on the piano by Mrs. Mills. None of their programs would be complete without Art Ralph's famous "Norwegian Melodies" on the piano accordion, this always going over well with the boys who call for encores again and again. By now it was the turn of the master of ceremonies, George Chisholm, to show off and he did so most acceptably, singing "Did I Worry?" from which he led to the beautiful choral music of "Casey's Bar Room," the tender and haunting words of the chorus being alternately "Boo" and "Hooray." George then accompanied the orchestra imitating a Hawaiian guitar by a nasal technique entirely his own. The "Three and a Half Balls of Fire" and the "Two Sparks" closed the program with a waltz, then the famous "Ship's Lament" and ending with a tribute to the three services in a medley

Roll your owners!
Go for Ogden's

Snowshoes were the accepted winter footwear for old-timers in the West... Ogden's was their accepted smoke all the year round. Follow their example. You'll find it's not just another tobacco but a distinctive blend worthy of its famous name.

Ogden's quality for pipe smokers, too, in Ogden's Cut Plug of Army, Air Force and Navy songs.

A fine effort, boys, including Tommy Walker who was the curtain puller upper and downer, and thanks again and again. Good hunting, boys, which is another name for "Merry Chase," so Chester says.

THE FUNDS of the

depositor are the first concern of Canada's Chartered Banks.

Canada's Chartered Banks are the proud custodians of more than 4,350,000 savings deposit accounts. These accounts, averaging $391, represent the work and thrift of you and your neighbours—of heads of businesses and heads of families.

Naturally, the first concern of these depositors is that their money, or any part of it, shall be available when called for. That is the banks' first concern, too.

The Bank Act specifies the types of transactions in which the Chartered Banks of Canada may engage. But it is the banks' responsibility to analyze the assets and prospects of the intending borrower. They must be such as would satisfy you if you were asked to lend your money.

Funds deposited with the Chartered Banks form the basis for loans to individuals, businesses, institutions and Government. Your savings thus help to sustain business activity and the general welfare of the nation.

A publisher who holds interests in no fewer than 85 different activities, Walter Hutchinson, added another purchase in the Manor Stud, a Hampshire estate steeped in British turf history. The stud comprises 100 acres and was purchased for "five figures." Hutchinson, who raced on a large scale before the war, intends to resume in the near future and is "keen on breeding staying blood." He will bring some horses from Eire. "There is room for between 30 and 40 horses at the stud and apart from training I shall breed on a large scale," he said. Oddities surrounded Hutchinson's pre-war activities. At one time he had 31 horses in training and when Broad Oaks won the Autumn Cup at Alexandra Park in 1938 the publisher caused a sensation by giving away a handful of banknotes. He also owned Ballyscalon, a steeplechaser who was at his best only when his jockey carried a rattle attached to his whip. The ruling body of Jockey Club stewards eventually banned the practice. Hutchinson won more than $45,000 on Ballyscalon during his career. He bought the 'chaser at auction, entered him in a race the following day. Hutchinson made a large wager on his entry which won sensationally at odds of 63-1. The publisher's main race hopes revolve around breeding a winner of the Grand National. His last entry in that classic was Tapionis in 1937 which fell during the running.

There was plenty of celebrating—for some—up Stockton way when Screech pounded to an easy, two-length triumph in the seven furlong Tees Handicap. The little betterers—those fellows who lay a couple of bob—received nearly $33 for every 45 cents they bet. That represents odds of more than 72 to one.

Royal Glory, four-year-old winner of the $4,400 Northern Cambridgeshire at Stockton, was a gift horse which narrowly missed being destroyed. Owned and trained by Matt Peacock, one of England's most successful trainers, Royal Glory previously was the property of J. G. Thompson who bought him for $5,525. Thompson became so discouraged with the poor performances of the racer, he told Trainer Peacock to have him shot. Peacock demurred and Thompson then sisted his trainer take the racer as a gift.

Keeping up the high prices being paid for yearlings with a view to post-war racing, a filly was bought at a Dublin bloodstock sale for the equivalent of $11,575. Purchased by Trainer Tom Hall, the animal is a half-sister to Diplomat, which won stakes on successive days at Ascot in 1937 and more than $45,000 in stakes. Another filly was purchased by the Hon. Dorothy Paget, millionaire racehorse owner and breeder, for nearly $10,000.
