WANTMORE FOR SALMON

Native Fishermen Protest Prices-Will Refuse to Fish if Higher Not Set

KITWANGA, May 31-Concern felt here among native fishermen over the uncertainty of the prospect presented by the coming sal- + by aircraft of the coast common fishing season.

In reply to an enquiry sent by Harold Sinclair to Andrew Paull, business agent for the Native Brotherhood of British Columbia, concerning the extent of the organization's negotiations over the salmon prices for the coming season, a letter was received stating prices had been set.

However, it is expected here that the scale will be similar to the one set for last year and there is an atmosphere of gloom over the prospect. Unless there is a more favorable price set-up this year, fishermen of the Skeena local branch have determined to remain at their present jobs for the entire fishing season.

Last year's average price for sockeye salmon was 121/2 cents a pound and the average weight of each fish was 51/2 pounds. That gave the fisherman 66 cents a fish and a fair season's catch was one thousand sockeye. This his return for the season was $660. An itemized recasting of last year's costs shows that with rental charges for their boats, sockeye nets and other gear, gas and oil, doctor's fees and compensation and income taxes, the average outlay ran to approximately $770.

At their last convention in Kitsegukla, the Native Brotherhood of British Columbia set a scale of prices considered to be the minimum on which they could operate as follows:

Round red spring salmon, lb. Sockeye, lb. Cohoes and steelheads, lb. White springs and jacks, lb. 10c Chums, lb. Pinks, lb.

The Music of the Pipes . . .

The decision of the learned judges of the Appeal Court of British Columbia that the playing of bagpipes on the streets does not constitute a "loud and objectionable noise" has aroused emotions of varying intensity in the hearts of many Canadians. Pipers, of course, are jubilant, and Scots generally concur in the soundness of the judgment. A minority, perhaps, is not amused.

The case arose when a solitary piper, marching up and down a residential street in Vancouver, was arrested and sent to jail for six months for creating a nuisance, blocking traffic, and what not. Children, it appears, crowded around him and enjoyed the piping.

The appeal court reversed the judgment of the lower court and the piper at this very moment may be marching up and down his favorite street, filling the air with the music of the Highlands.

A vision of every street in every city and hamlet in Canada with its own marching piper is one to make strong men shudder. Fortunately, it is grossly exaggerated. Piping is not yet a universal art. No doubt if it showed signs of epidemic tendencies, the British Columbia judges would think seriously of reversing themselves! And this is no slur on the music of the pipes; a concert piano or a symphony orchestra in the street would be equally out of place.

Martha Logan, Swift's famed home economist, whose weekly wartime cooking column is a regular feature of this page. Look for these valuable hints each Monday

But good nutrition is still our greatest challenge Good nutrition for our families is still the greatest challenge to every homemaker. Shortages, rationing and other food problems complicate, but must not cloud, the basic fact that good food on our table means better health for the home front.

Woman's greatest war work is to see to it that in spite of mounting difficulties, the health of her family will be strengthened by a wise and better use of the foods available, and by following as closely as possible the rules established by Canada's Nutrition Program.

To make the supply of food available for civilians during wartime go farther, follow these guides: Plan meals before buying; buy whatever foods are available in your market; take good care of all food purchased. Let's take a look at the eight important food groups and see how we can make the most of each food.

MEAT, POULTRY, EGGS AND FISH: All grades of meat have high food value. Cook meat slowly to prevent shrinkage. Broil or roast tender cuts, braise less tender cuts to make them tender and delicious. Keep all fresh and cooked meats in a cold place—fish and poultry, too. Try to use liver, kidney or heart, at least once a week. Keep eggs cool. Use eggs cooked in any way and count these on the weekly quota of at least 3 or 4. Cook eggs slowly, as fast cooking toughens the whites.

by Martha Logan

MILK AND MILK PRODUCTS: Whole milk, skim, evaporated or buttermilk may be used. Count the milk used to make soups, puddings, breads, gravies as part of the milk you need daily. Use cheese in cooking, serve it on the table. One ounce of cheese may be eaten in place of one glass of milk. Keep milk cool, clean, and covered. Keep cheese closely wrapped in a cool, dry place.

ORANGES, GRAPEFRUIT, TOMATOES: Use citrus fruit, tomatoes or raw cabbage every day. Keep all fruits in a cool clean place. Wash just before using. Do not squeeze fruit juices long before serving. LEAFY, GREEN OR YELLOW VEGETABLES:

Green outer leaves contain more vitamins than inner bleached leaves. Keep vegetables covered in a cool place. Cook vegetables quickly in a small amount of water in a covered container. Do not overcook vegetables. Store cooked vegetables in a covered dish. Use as soon as possible—in a mixed salad, perhaps. OTHER VEGETABLES, FRUITS: Eat two or more fruits and vegetables each day;

ing with cereals, in salads or puddings, and other desserts. CEREALS AND BREAD: Use Canada Approved bread or whole-grain bread, use whole-grain cereals. Keep in closed containers. Use up dry bread in puddings use fresh, stewed, baked, canned, servor stuffings, or as bread crumbs. BUTTER, AND OTHER FATS: Use butter as a table spread. Use strained, light drippings for cooking fat. Peanut butter, lard, shortening, salad oil, and cream all furnish concentrated energy.

Martha Logan's handbook of meat cookery, "Meat Complete," is a great help in making rationed meat go further. Yours for 10c. Write to Dept. NE 20, Swift Canadian Co., Ltd., Tor.
