YugoSlavia: Balkan "X"

Reports that a provisional government has been vice hospitals, these being Vanset up in YugoSlavia, apparently in opposition to the couver. Victoria, Prince George. government-in-exile headed by King Peter, will cause many to ask if serious gaps are not developing between all the people of the occupied countries and land, Port Alberni, Prince Rupthe leaders now recognized by the Allies. Doubtless ert and Terrace. Members of gaps, are growing, though not in the same degree in all cases. As we know, some leaders-in-exile are in and deliver them to the patients constant touch with the undergrounds in their own in hospital take them in person nations.

But in YugoSlavia a sharp conflict is going on. Those acquainted with the country's long history of struggle against empires without, and against the servants of empire within, have some idea how intense this conflict can be. It includes efforts to weld peoples of like race, but of very different historical and religious background, into one independent nation. They are worthy efforts, necessary to the survival of the people involved.

Against this violent and complicated background, Allied leaders must make decisions about Yugo-Stavia. The news of a provisional—and in a sense a revolutionary - government in that country poses a delicate question as to who is to receive military supplies. It comes at a time when the stock of the Partisans is rising as against that of the Chetniks. But it could, unless skillfully handled, lead to another situation like that in Algiers, where the conflict between Generals Giraud and de Gaulle produced such general confusion.

Nevertheless, to sav, as some do, that present problems in YugoSlavia offer a sample of the complexities postwar planners must face all over Europe is stretching a metaphor. There is no doubt that Europe is complex, but there can be no part of it more complex than YugoSlavia. This nation will present Allied political strategists not with an average problem but with one of their most difficult prob-

We need not, therefore, share the apprehension of those who cite YugoSlavia as an example and almost throw up their hands at the prospect of tackling a half dozen more such problems during the invasion of Europe. The problems will be challenging enough. But they will not be YugoSlavia.

Christmas Eve, 1943

"This is the night - the night I've always lived for, year in and year out.

"This one is sure different, though. Instead of sleighbells, we've got tank tracks clanking over the rocks. Instead of stockings over the fireplace we've got Army socks drying on the bushes. Instead of a treeful of presents, Jerry lobs over 155's.

"See that star over there? Looks like a Christmas star all right. It's shining down on our house right now, I bet . . . on Dad and Mom and the kids and Mary.

"They'll be singing carols and it'll sound wonderful. And there'll be a big fire in the fireplace and the stuff on the tree will be sparkling like diamonds.

And after a while they'll hang up the stockings. And finally they'll all go to bed and the kids'll dream of Santa Claus all night long, like I used to.

"Merry Christmas, Dad and Mom! Merry Christmas, kids! Merry Christmas, Mary! Don't worry about me. I'm all right. And, if everything goes okay, I'll be home for next Christmas."

Let us not fail the boy who waits tonight on a wind-swept hill. Let us try to match his job with ours. Let us work harder in mine and field and factory. Let us buy more and more Victory Bonds and War Savings Certificates. Let us resolve now to bring him home before another Christmas comes.

To speed the day when he returns

T WILL be a real Merry Christmas when he returns to sit again at the table and join in the festivities of the family circle.

All of us, in some way, are affected by this second world war. In order to effect its conclusion and bring about the return of our loved ones, we realize that every effort must be made to win the war as soon as possible. We know that it takes manpower and equipment. All must serve.

Materials, like human beings, have a job to do. Alcohol is necessary for the very existence of modern mechanized fighting forces.

In laboratories, scientists are continually discovering new life-saving antidotes for use in the many hospital units on the battle fronts.

The greater the production and the effort, the sooner the Victory and the Peace.

With this in mind, United Distillers Limited are indeed happy to participate in the all-out war effort, in order to bring him back to the family circle.
